YANK SPENDERS POUR GOLD INTO BRITISH ISLES

Leave $50,000,000 There Each Month

BY WILLIAM FULTON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Nov. 10—As the wave of GIs begins to recede from the British Isles, economists are starting to add up the contributions from their spending here on their way to the battle fronts of Europe.

Since March, 1942, American troops have been swarming into the United Kingdom. They have contributed hundreds of millions of dollars in cash into Britain's dollar reserves and poured millions of pounds sterling into the British treasury. At one time there were upwards of 2,000,000 American soldiers here and army fiscal officers estimate, conservatively, that they spent more than 50 million dollars monthly.

The way it worked out was this: The United States army went to the British treasury periodically and purchased pounds sterling with American dollars. The treasury thus added dollars to its reserves for purchases in the United States. American soldiers would go out and spend the British money, a high percentage of which also found its way back into the British treasury as taxes.

Giant Wave of Tourists

It has been a giant tourist wave which benefited British shop keepers, pub owners, theater operators, jewelry dealers, hotel men, the servant class, and little and big business men.

The tide is ebbing but thousands of GIs still are coming over here every week from the continent for a few days while they wait for a boat to take them home. Army fiscal officers figure that the personnel on leave is spending an average of $100 apiece.

Even today you will find GIs poking around all corners of the British Isles buying old brooches, leather goods, rare books and prints, antique silver, and china, as well as spending money on a good time.

It also was recalled that the GIs have been spending large amounts in Australia, India, and New Zealand. These dollars flow back into the British empire dollar pool.

Admit Sum Is Large

The British treasury demurely shies away from telling just how much the dollar reserve has been increased by GI spending. However, John Anderson, who has accompanied Prime Minister Attlee to the United States, admitted in a speech before the Canadian chamber of commerce in London last July that the contribution had been sizable.

"As American forces came into the sterling area, altho we gave them all their local supplies and services free of cost as reciprocal aid," said Anderson, who was then chancellor of the exchequer in the Churchill cabinet, "they had an impressive spending power in dollars and those dollars have formed a very large part of the additions to the reserves we have been able to build up."

American soldiers cannot buy rationed food or clothing here but their expenditures have been made in the categories where British taxes bear down most heavily and where levies have been increased during the war years.

Revenues Up Millions

The British fiscal year ends March 31. The table comparing these revenues for the last peace year, ending March 31, 1939, with last year which ended March 31, 1945, in terms of dollars, follows:

Tobacco	$95,600,000	$21,800,000
Beer	71,900,000	16,400,000
Spirits	15,700,000	8,900,000
Entertainment	11,400,000	2,000,000

In addition to these items the GIs made handsome contributions to the British treasury in paying the purchase taxes on luxuries such as new jewelry and souvenir baubles.

Thousands Die as British Shell Java, Report

BATAVIA, Java, Nov. 11 [Sunday] —(AP)—Indonesian reports said today that Soerabaja and vicinity had been devastated and thousands of Indonesian soldiers and civilians killed by continued British attacks from the air, sea, and land.

Reports telephoned here from a T. K. R. [Indonesian army] captain and released by officials of the Indonesian republic, said "bodies are piling up in all Soerabaja and cannot be removed because of continuous British shelling from the sea."

The first British bulletin since an announcement Saturday that Maj. Gen. E. C. Mansergh had ordered an attack to protect the advancing 5th Indian division, was issued today from the headquarters of Lt. Gen. Philip Christison, British commander in the Dutch East Indies. It officially denied Indonesian reports that "thousands of Indonesian soldiers and civilians" had been killed in all Soerabaja by "continued British attacks." It also denied an indiscriminate air attack.

British Use Tanks

The report said British troops were "moving into the city using the common people as a shield and employing bombs, tanks, and heavy guns in a deliberate, indiscriminate attack on the people."

"Indonesians, their spirit aflame, fight on," the report added.

An Indonesian spokesman said civilians had set fire to compounds surrounding the British perimeter in carrying out a scorched earth withdrawal.

Warships Bombard City

A Nationalist spokesman said British warships were bombarding the city of 500,000 inhabitants, and that families were fleeing and carrying out a scorched earth policy.

The telephone report said Dutch, Chinese and Indian residents of Soerabaja were among those killed. An Indonesian spokesman here stated many refugees were killed or wounded on roads leading from the city.

Strong Indonesian forces were reported marching on Soerabaja from Jogjakarta, Nationalist stronghold 175 miles to the southwest.

Bomb Government Buildings

Shelling started at 6 a. m., the deadline hour set by ultimatum for the Indonesians to surrender their arms. Four Thunderbolts bombed and strafed the postoffice and government buildings, and one plane was hit but landed safely, the R. A. F. said.

Advices from Jogjakarta, where 100,000 armed Indonesians are reported concentrated, said hot-headed Indonesian youths were already marching toward Soerabaja shouting "Fight for Freedom!"

Battle in Batavia

Late last night British troops used mortars in a short clash with Indonesians in the Kramat sector of Batavia, and firing was heard behind the Hotel des Indes.

A British statement asserted that the arms in possession of the Indonesians belonged originally to Japanese troops and sailors, 20,000 of whom were still to be rounded up in the Soerabaja area. The British maintained they were only carrying out the mandate of the united nations in rescuing prisoners of war and internees, and in rounding up the defeated Japanese.

ARMISTICE DAY FETE TOMORROW

Adm. Halsey to Be Guest of City; Parade Planned

Altho the speeches, parades, and formal ceremonies will not be until tomorrow, all of Chicagoland today will celebrate quietly and sincerely Armistice day—the day when the firing stopped 27 years ago in World War I. and the day that has come to represent peace.

It will be America's first chance to celebrate a real Armistice day since the celebration Nov. 11, 1941, less than a month before this country was again at war. And in Chicagoland tomorrow the lid will be off.

Adm. Halsey will be the official guest of the city and more than 12,000 persons will march in the parade behind the admiral, who fought the Japs to a standstill in the South Pacific and then took his mighty 3d fleet to the gates of Tokyo.

Navy Gun in Grant Park

The navy's three inch salute gun has been unbolted from its stand at Great Lakes Naval Training center and installed in Grant park, where it will roar the traditional 17 gun salute given to a four star admiral.

The parade will form in Columbus dr., south of Jackson blvd., at 8:45 to 9:30 a. m. tomorrow and it will start moving at 9:45. It will move west on Balbo dr. to Michigan av., north on Michigan to Skyth Water st., west on South Water and Wacker dr. to State st., and south on State, passing the reviewing stand at Madison st. at approximately 10:10 a. m.

Adm. Halsey will ride in the parade, with Gov. Green and Mayor Kelly.

Banks to Be Closed

Adm. Halsey will deliver the address of the day and is scheduled for a 15 minute spot broadcast from the scene over W-G-N at 11:30 a. m.

All banks and public offices will be closed tomorrow, while those private businesses that remain open have indicated they will halt operations for one minute at 11 a. m., the moment when the last shot was fired in World War I.

Churches today will offer special prayers of thankfulness and in memory of the American war dead who lie on battlefields in every corner of the world.

'$30,000 A DAY' GAMING HOUSE HIT BY RAIDERS

Washington, D.C., Nov. 10—(AP)—Police announced tonight the "biggest gambling haul" in the capital's history. Raiders broke into a basement and reported they found a $30,000 a day gambling business operated by three men.

The three men arrested, police said, were operating a 15-foot table of telephones, a leased wire ticker carrying football scores, and a wire from race tracks.

Fight for Life in Typhoon

It is 4 o'clock in the afternoon in Buckner bay, Okinawa, and darkness has set in. Even if it were light, you couldn't see 100 yards beyond the rail of the U. S. S. Colbert, damaged by a mine, her engine room flooded, helplessly dragging her two anchors toward the beach, because of the sheets of driving rain, hurled like bullets against her steel plates by a 132 mile an hour wind.

It is the afternoon of Oct. 9, when the worst typhoon in the island's history tossed huge ships on the beach like floating walnut shells, and leveled shore installations.

Heavy Seas Lash Deck

In a dimly lighted deckhouse, the deck listing and partly awash, sits Harold Jones of Kansas City, Mo., a crew member, typing a blow by blow account of the storm. He has sent by the later mails to George W. Bliss, 1640 E. 76th st., Tribune reporter on military leave.

"The wind is blowing at approximately 75 knots and it is predicted we will travel at 100 knots within an hour," he writes. "The ship is bobbing and weaving as all the loose gear clatters on the steel decks, while the whistling wind runs a chill up my spine. We haven't any control over our ship as our motors and engines are dead. We have both anchors lying out and if one of them gives way, we will go hells bells with the wind, mowing down anything ahead of us, providing it is smaller than our ship.

"On our fantail we have a Swedish merchant vessel, approximately our size, and everyone, including the captain, is holding his breath, fearing a collision.

Wind Tears Off Buttons

"Early this afternoon I took a stroll on the forecastle and was forced to hug and grasp the rail, while the wind tore a couple of buttons off my shirt.

"The American flag that used to fly on our flag pole was sheered off by the wind and many loose gadgets were blown overboard.

"The electric lights are blinking and threatening to go out, for the ship is vibrating and it feels like it would break in two. The mist is worse than ever and it makes foggy London look like bright daylight. I just received word one of our anchor winches is powerless. Many of the gang are testing their abandon ship whistles and water proof flashlights. Some of the older salts are playing poker.

Man Their Life Jackets

"We have the ship's records stowed in sea bags, and life jackets within reach. The word has just passed over the loud speaker, 'All hands man your life jackets.' One of the mates just asked me to open the catch on his dog tag chain, because his fingers were trembling.

"About three hours ago the Swedish vessel sideswiped a small tug. Within two minutes the tug fell apart and sank. I saw five fellows swimming without life jackets as they clung to a line thrown to them by the Swedish vessel.

"We just got a report 14 of our ships are on the beach, and it feels like this is only the beginning. I don't feel a bit nervous. I just finished my second pack of cigarets today. I ran out of the office just now to see an oil tanker nearly hit us as she steamed off the port bow.

Others Call for Help

"The time is 4 p. m. and darkness has set in. The whistling and howling wind is louder than ever. The lights are very dim. Our communications office is crowded with messages from other ships, 'Please help save our personnel, we are sinking,' but their appeals are hopeless for it's almost impossible to render help and everybody is thinking of his own life.

"It is 5 p. m. and the typhoon is gradually pushing the ship toward the beach. Just heard another announcement that the typhoon has dropped to 85 knots, even tho the wind is howling and has pushed the Colbert three miles from our original anchorage.

"Couple of life rafts loaded with men just passed nearby. I wonder how many never reached a life raft. It is 7 p. m. and completely dark. The wind is 75 knots. The men are scattered in groups, some of them playing cards.

Many Swim for Lives

"It is now midnight. The wind has died down considerably. It is raining steadily and the sea is rough. We have all of our nets and Jacob ladders hanging down over the side, in case of any survivors approaching our ship, for we know many ships were demolished and in this rough salty water, there are many men swimming for their lives. A short distance away another ship ran smack into a reef. We could see the crew abandoning ship. Other ships could not render much assistance, fearing a collision.

Rescue 7 Clinging to Reef

"I'm not ashamed to admit it is the worst scare I ever had in my life. At present two of our landing boats are braving stormy weather, searching for survivors. Early this morning the boats rescued seven men who clung to a reef. They had wrapped their life jackets around their feet for some of the reefs are razor sharp.

"Near-by a patrol craft with a crew of 49 was riding at anchor when her anchor chain snapped. The skipper made a fighting effort to sail out and ride the typhoon, but she went against a reef. She immediately made one complete turn under water and rested on her side. Frantic men shouted and scrambled to the wheelhouse, breaking 16 windows, and 14 men appeared above water, clinging to the vessel that was once their home, now a funeral basket for 35 of their buddies.

Pair Swept Out to Sea

"Two of the men lost patience and released themselves from the vessel, gambling on the wind to sweep them ashore, but the wind changed and drifted them out to sea and at present they are classified as missing."

The U. S. S. Colbert, a 455 foot attack personnel amphibious vessel, ran into a mine in a storm Sept 17, while evacuating 600 prisoners of war from Darien, Manchuria, to Okinawa.

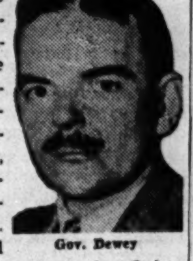
ARMY AND NAVY CHIEFS CALLED AS WITNESSES

Stage Is Set to Lift Veil of Secrecy

BY WALTER TROHAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10—Forty-eight witnesses have been summoned to appear before the joint congressional committee investigating the Pearl Harbor disaster, which begins public hearings Thursday, Chairman Barkley [D., Ky.] announced tonight.



Gov. Dewey

The stage will be set for inquiry into the fixing of the responsibility for the debacle with a survey of the military situation in the Pacific which will embrace American war plans and strategy in the western sea.

This will be followed by witnesses who will detail what information on Jap movements was in American hands so that it can be determined who was responsible for the wrecking of the American fleet and the loss of 3,000 American lives.

Dewey Testimony Expected

Among the witnesses scheduled for examination is Gov. Dewey of New York. It is expected that he will be called upon to produce a letter from Gen. Marshall, army chief of staff, reported acknowledging President Roosevelt knew 15 hours before the attack that the Japs were going to strike.

Dewey refused "for patriotic reasons" to use his information on Pearl Harbor during the 1944 Presidential campaign, in which he opposed Roosevelt, after Marshall appealed to him to keep Pearl Harbor out of the political battle.

Marshall, Hull to Be Called

Marshall is to be a witness at the same time. Other scheduled top flight witnesses are former State Secretary Hull, former State Under-secretary Wells, former War Secretary Stimson, Gen. Arnold, Adm. Halsey, former Ambassador to Japan Grew, and Adm. Stark, former chief of naval operations.

The list of witnesses is not a fixed one. Other witnesses will be added from time to time. The committee has volumes of data collected by the army and navy boards and a vast amount of documents and information, some in the top secret class.

Kimmel, Short on List

Two of the most important witnesses, of course, will be Adm. Kimmel and Gen. Short, commanders at Pearl Harbor, who for almost four years have shouldered the blame placed on them by the investigating commission headed by Supreme Court Justice Roberts.

Plans for the conduct of the investigation, prepared by William D. Mitchell, former attorney general and committee counsel, were learned as Sen. Ferguson [R., Mich.] disclosed he has demanded permission to examine the diary Stimson kept before Pearl Harbor.

Ferguson disclosed that he asked Mitchell two weeks ago to put in a request for the diary, but has received no reply from the committee counsel.

Sen. Lucas [D., Ill.] described Ferguson's demand for the diary as an attempt to look at "personal papers."

'Public Document Now'

Ferguson, however, said that since the army report on Pearl Harbor

PLAN ESCALATORS FOR BIG MUSEUM IN NEW YORK CITY

New York, Nov. 10 [Special]—Escalators will be installed in the metropolitan museum of art in a diamond jubilee rebuilding program that will cost more than 10 million dollars, William Church Osborn, its president, announced today. The museum will be 75 years old in February, 1947.

The metropolitan's art objects, valued at between $500,000,000 and $1,000,000,000, will be reassembled into five separate groups, all under the same roof.

The rejuvenation program, in addition to escalators, calls for modernized heating and lighting.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10 (AP)—While Russian leaders watched from afar, President Truman and Prime Ministers Attlee of Britain and Mackenzie King of Canada pulled up easy chairs in the White House this afternoon and began discussing what to do about the atomic bomb.

This presented a speed up in the schedule. As late as last night it had called for the talks to start on Sunday.

But Attlee arrived early this morning by plane from London, King came in from the same capital by ship and train, and the decision was made to start the conference at once. It will continue thru next week. It seemed probable that other subjects than atomic energy would be discussed, including Anglo-American negotiations over a United States loan of about 4 billion dollars to Britain.

Reception Is Serious

Attlee's reception at the airport was more serious than colorful. It lacked the fanfare and ceremony which sometimes attend the arrival here of a foreign leader.

As he stepped down from the big four engined Skymaster in which he had crossed the Atlantic, he was greeted by British Ambassador Halifax and officially welcomed by State Secretary Byrnes. They took him immediately to the White House.

Following a luncheon there, he met with Mr. Truman and King. Others in this initial parley, according to the White House, were Byrnes, Halifax, Adm. Leahy, the President's chief of staff; Lester B. Pearson, Canadian ambassador, and T. L. Rowan, Attlee's private secretary.

Formal Dinner Arranged

Mr. Truman held a formal White House dinner to top off the day. Sunday's schedule called for an Armistice day visit to the tomb of the unknown soldier in Arlington National cemetery, with resumption of the conference in the afternoon aboard the yacht Sequoia on the Potomac river.

At the dinner, Mr. Truman declared he wants a foreign policy of the people and not of any political party.

"One of the great things of the British empire," the President said, "is that when they have a foreign policy—and they always have one—the British people are behind that foreign policy no matter which government is in power."

Attlee, in reply to the President's remarks on foreign policy, observed that "what we need most of all is a universal foreign policy, a policy that is conceived in the interest of all the people of the world."

A "Serious Test"

Diplomatic officials were inclined to agree, in private talks to reporters, with a Russian newspaper assertion that relations between the western powers and Russia would be under serious test until the Russians find out [1] Anglo-American plans for international handling of the bomb, and [2] what part—if any—Russia has in them.

Mr. Truman has called for "outlawing" the bomb and Attlee has talked about putting it in the custody of the allied nations security organization. But neither has outlined yet a specific course for its future control or for handling the basic scientific knowledge of atomic energy which America, Britain, and Canada share.

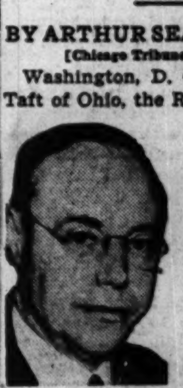
TRUMAN WAGE THEORY INVITES INFLATION: TAFT

Senator Urges Cut in U. S. Budget

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10—Sen. Taft of Ohio, the Republican party's outstanding authority on fiscal and economic policies, warned today that President Truman's wage raising and government spending program is heading the country into bankruptcy, inflation, and a depression equal to that of the '30s.



Sen. Taft

Taking the proposed 20 per cent increase in pay of government employes as an indication of the wage raise in private industry favored by the administration, the senator said this would mean a 68 per cent pay increase in industrial pay since 1941. Thus wages would be up 68 per cent compared with a 30 per cent increase in the cost of living for the same period.

"The inevitable result, said Taft, would be increased prices and the greatest inflation in our history.

Outlines Spending Slash

The Ohio senator, who figures as a potential Presidential candidate in 1948, outlined a program to hold government expenditures to 20 billion dollars a year and balance the budget within the next four years. In contrast, the Truman program, Taft said, entails indefinite deficit spending.

The a 25 billion dollar budget would break the back of the American taxpayer, the senator said, the administration proposals would require an even greater expenditure, not counting foreign loans.

"Present plans," said Taft, "contemplate the outpouring of American money abroad at the rate of perhaps 5 billion dollars a year for the next four years. That would add 20 billions to our public debt and I doubt it could ever be recovered."

Analyzes Wage Statistics

The senator gave his views in an interview sought after a speech Nov. 5 in the house by Rep. Mason [R., Ill.], who presented Taft as the type of man to be nominated by the Republicans in 1948 to halt "New Deal socialism." The senator was found in his office analyzing government statistics showing that in the year and in year out in the American economy wages constitute from 67 to 70 per cent of the national income.

With wages already up 40 per cent over 1941, they stand at 140. A 20 per cent raise on top of that would mean increasing the figure to 168 or a total increase of 68 per cent over 1941, compared with the living cost increase of 30 per cent in the same period. A 68 per cent rise would give wage earners more than 83 per cent of the national income.

"Many wage increases," said Taft, "may be wholly justified, but the effect of a general increase of wages can only be an increase of prices and a strong boost for inflation. The general tendency of the administration is shown by the recommendation that every congressman and senator be raised to $20,000 a year, a 100 per cent increase, the normal effect of which would be to encourage increases in every line of salary and wages. Even members of congress don't take this recommendation seriously.

"Like King Canute"

"The administration's only proposal for the prevention of inflation is the strenuous maintenance of price control. Chester Bowles stands like King Canute bidding the tide of inflation to recede. Inflation to him apparently means an increase in the published OPA prices for retail stores, regardless of the fact that the whole country is becoming involved in a floodtide of inflation. The stronger this tide becomes, the greater incentive to a spreading black market.

"The only effect of Mr. Bowles' lonely activity will be to interfere with the operation of legitimate industry and the expansion of production and employment. If costs and wages are allowed to increase with prices held down, there will be no incentive to increase production at this time, there will be no incentive to new men to venture their money in losing enterprises. The large companies, of course, can stand a loss, but the policy is destructive of existing little business and discouraging to all those new enterprises we need to provide more jobs.

"The result of decreased production then is more inflation because the supply is less able to meet the demand. The best solution for high prices is a rapid increase of production and a balancing of the government's budget. The administration makes the mistake of regarding increased prices and the cost of living as inflation when they are merely the evidence of inflation.

Recalls 1929 Collapse

"In 1929 we were told that we were living in a new era, that we had solved the problem of depression and prosperity and the argument was supported by the fact that there had been no increase in commodity prices. But there was inflation just the same, brought about by an undue expansion of public credit.

"The collapse of that balloon, which also included incidentally a good many unsound foreign loans, brought the greatest depression that we have ever seen in this country. Now we face the same result thru an unwise expansion of public credit."

The senator said that Commerce Secretary Wallace and other proponents of the full employment bill "are frankly inflationists." He cited Wallace's recent book proposing to maintain in peace time the 200 billion dollar level of peak production of goods and services in war time. If private industry cannot provide jobs for 60 million, the President is to propose a program of federal investment and expenditure sufficient to reach the goal.

Must Curtail Spending

"I cannot imagine any more inflationary proposal," Taft commented while recalling with satisfaction that the senate had stricken the compensatory government spending theory from the bill. He led the fight on the measure in the senate.

Taft went on to say that we must put an end to the spendthrift policy of war and weigh every expenditure in the light of the necessity of taxing the people to meet it.

"We must stop appropriating money," the senator asserted, "and see where we stand. We must exorcise from our thinking the theory that the government can spend itself into prosperity, or that the creation of purchasing power is a sufficient excuse for spending.

"The only way this can become and remain a prosperous country is to speed up the machine of private enterprise. The largest public works program any one has imagined is about 5 billion dollars a year, which will put 2½ million men to work. We wish to employ more than 50 million men.

Need Sound Fiscal Policy

"If by sound fiscal policies, we can keep the private enterprise machine on a stable basis and increase its operation by 10 per cent we can put more additional men to work than the largest possible public works program. Public works are necessary and should be expanded when unemployment occurs, but they can never be a panacea for depression. They must be undertaken only if they are justified by their intrinsic worth."

To produce or maintain prosperity, said Taft, it is necessary to have a sound fiscal policy, which "can put more men to work than all the public works in sight"—a policy that determines the essential expenditures and the tax system required to furnish the fund. He said that we need a post-war budget now—one that can be put into effect when normal peace time conditions are restored. Private estimates of such a budget run all the way from 16 to 25 billions.

Need 20 Billion Budget

"But there is no official estimate, not even an official guess," Taft went on as he leafed thru a Presidential message. "President Truman's message to congress listed countless spending projects but never suggested that there might be a problem in raising the money to pay for them. His only reference to taxation was to a reduction of taxation to stimulate business without 'losing sight of the budgetary situation.' It is hard to lose sight of something which we have never yet seen."

The senator thought we cannot escape a 20 billion peace time budget, comprising 6 billion for interest on the public debt, 6 billion for the army and navy, 3 billion for veterans, and 5 billion for the other departments of government, including agricultural aid, social welfare, and public works. The new tax law will produce about 22 billion. Of the 2 billion surplus 1 billion would go to reduction of the public debt and 1 billion would constitute a "leeway for new and unforeseen expenditures."

"But today there is no administration plan," said Taft as he went on to enumerate the spending items which would swell the budget far above 25 billion. Among them were the 500 million a year for highways and 200 million a year for rural electric coöperatives already voted by congress and 75 million a year aid for construction of airports, passed by the senate. Pending early consideration are bills to appropriate 75 million a year to aid construction of hospitals and several hundred million a year to aid common school and high school education.

Other spending bills await consideration, Taft said, enumerating measures that asked 100 million a year for aid to vocational education; 500 million a year for a national food allotment plan, the old stamp plan; 50 million a year for a rural telephone administration; 50 million a year to provide free school lunches; 50 million a year to aid elimination of river pollution; 50 million a year for aeronautical experiments; 100 million a year for additional subsidies for public housing. Others were flood control, irrigation, and river development projects, like the Missouri valley authority. The army engineers are ready to proceed with a 1½ billion dollar river and harbor program.

Heavy Social Program Costs

Many additional proposals of aid to public health in addition to construction of hospitals aggregate 600 million a year. Taft said the only justification of Mr. Truman's proposal of federal subsidy of local public works is the fallacy that spending of public money "in some way creates prosperity."

To finance the Murray-Wagner-Dingell bill providing universal compulsory health insurance and many other benefits on the lines of the Beveridge plan in England it is proposed to increase the pay roll tax to 8 per cent. In addition, it would cost the treasury 8 billion a year, Taft estimated.

"If the budget is allowed to run as high as 25 billion a year," said the senator, "I believe it would require such a burdensome system of taxation as to stifle the very prosperity which pays the taxes. It would mean a total tax burden, federal, state, and local, of about 35 billion, probably more than 25 per cent of the nation's income."

"What about the plans for foreign spending?" Taft was asked.

"Well," he replied, "we already have authorized about 6 billion dollars for Bretton Woods, 3½-billion for the export-import bank, and 1 billion 350 million for the UNRRA.

British Want 5 Billion

"It is suggested now that we loan or grant Great Britain approximately 5 billion more. Russia would like 6 billion. Many European and Asiatic countries will follow in their wake. Altho I think most of them can be taken care of by the export-import bank. The UNRRA wants another 1 billion 350 million dollars.

"I have always felt that we should make reasonable loans abroad to enable war devastated countries to get their own machinery in working order, but I have never felt that American dollars could cure the troubles of the world or make more than a small contribution to the success of a foreign nation in solving its own problems.

"But foreign lending on any such scale as is now proposed becomes another general charge against the American taxpayer. Our experience with the World war debts, our experience with lend-lease, teaches us that if the sums loaned are so large as to become truly burdensome they will never be paid."

Headed for Inflation

All in all, observed the senator, we are "drifting rapidly to a chronic condition of deficit spending." Explanatorily he added:

"With the huge reserve of purchasing power in this country, with 40 billion dollars in E bonds outstanding and convertible into cash, with a huge increase in currency and commercial deposits, with a great backlog of pentup demand, we are headed for the biggest spending spree and inflation this country has ever seen. We must resume immediately some sense of responsibility and planning in our spending and taxing. We must provide for a definite and steady reduction in the federal budget to reach a balance in the fiscal year 1948."

Missionary Back from Jap Prison

Sister Mary Ludmilla arriving at Northwestern station yesterday with Isabelle, 8, and Myrtle Sharp, 13.

Brings Children

Sister Mary Ludmilla, missionary worker who was interned for almost four years in China by the Japanese, arrived in Chicago yesterday to spend a brief visit with her brother, Fred Phillips, 800 Windsor av. She will go to the St. Francis convent in Milwaukee, Wis., today.

The nun, who was a teacher in a primary school for girls in Tsinan, Northern China, when she was interned, was accompanied on her arrival by two girls, Isabelle and Myrtle Sharp, 8 and 13 years old, daughters of an ex-marine and his Japanese wife. The girls, who will enter St. Mary's academy in Milwaukee, were put in the charge of Sister Mary Ludmilla when their father left the ship after hearing that his 20 and 22 year old sons had arrived at Peiping after walking more than 200 miles to escape from service in the Japanese army.

Sister Mary Ludmilla said she will make use of her furlough for recuperation and then hopes to return to China to resume her missionary work.

KENT ASKS U. S. AID IN GETTING OUT OF PRISON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10—A plea for the American government to intervene to secure his release from a British prison has been received by the state department from Tyler Kent, former code clerk in the United States embassy at London, who was jailed on charges of violating the British official secrets act in 1940.

Tyler Kent

Kent, who was surrendered to British courts by the embassy after he reportedly intercepted correspondence between President Roosevelt and Winston Churchill before the latter was prime minister, contends that he is being illegally held because his sentence expired early last month. He is awaiting deportation.

Injustice Charged

The plea, written in longhand on gray prison stationery Oct. 29, states:

"I am writing to you to request the intervention of the American authorities in a matter which I consider involves an injustice to myself. I am subject to a deportation order which became effective on the 4th of October.

"Today I am still being held in prison under conditions which do not materially differ from those of a convicted person. I have been informed that passage was retained for me on two different vessels, on neither of which I was able to embark owing to a strike of the dock workers in the principal ports of this country.

Held Beyond Sentence

"You may not be aware of the fact that at the present time I have already been deprived of my liberty for some ten months in excess of the sentence imposed upon me by a British court. Regardless of the technical legality of such extra-judicial imprisonment, I suggest that any further detention of me constitutes a gross injustice and is a matter in which I may properly request the intervention of American authorities."

Kent argued that if the British are not able to deport him he should be at liberty so that he can arrange for his own return or that he be permitted to go to another country, from which he might arrange to reach the United States.

No Answer To Plea

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Nov. 10—Tyler Kent today appeared no closer to going home or even winning temporary freedom from a detention cell than he was more than a month ago when he completed a five and a half year prison term for violating Britain's official secrets act while he was a code clerk of the American embassy here.

The American embassy said it has received no word from Washington in answer to the appeal made thru it by Kent.

Kent's lawyers yesterday decided against filing an appeal with the British court for a writ of habeas corpus to win his freedom until he is deported. They figured he has no means to get home, even if he were freed, so he might as well sweat it out in prison.

CZECH PREMIER SAYS REDS, GIs PULL OUT SOON

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Nov. 9 [Delayed]—(AP)—Premier Zdenek Fierlinger announced to the provisional parliament today that Russian and American occupation troops would leave Czechoslovakia "in a short time." He indicated the Russian and American governments had reached an agreement to withdraw simultaneously.

"The soviet government notified us that Russian military units will leave our territory in a short time," the premier said. "At the same time the American government reported it is withdrawing its soldiers from Czechoslovakia. It is evidence of confidence in our ability to continue the reconstruction of the state."

Fierlinger renewed his promise there would be free elections for parliament by secret ballot soon. The first homeward bound Russian troops already have left Pisek in south Bohemia, official quarters disclosed.

30,000 ATTEND MARINES' 170TH BIRTHDAY FETE

More than 30,000 persons witnessed the cutting of a 600 pound birthday cake last night in Chicago Stadium in celebration of the marine corps' 170th anniversary.

The cake was served to more than 600 wounded marines from hospitals in the Chicago area who were guests of honor at the celebration. Col. Chester L. Fordney cut the cake with his saber and was assisted by members of the Marine Corps League, detachment No. 1.

A stage show of 25 acts was presented. Capt. Joseph McCarthy, former Chicago fireman, veteran of campaigns on Iwo Jima and Okinawa and winner of the congressional medal of honor, and Miss Dee Balla, 5338 Foster av., who was elected "Sweetheart of the Marines" were introduced.

CONSTITUTION OF CANADA TAGGED MADE IN BRITAIN

Dictation by Conference in London Recalled

BY FRANK HUGHES
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

[This is the second of a series of articles telling the story behind Canada's rise to nationhood.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 10—Canada's constitution, the British North America act, according to the erroneous popular opinion in Canada, was produced at colonial conferences in Quebec and Charlottetown, Prince Edward, Island, and was strictly a Canadian product.

An examination of historical documents in the library of parliament here shows, however, that it was drafted in London, three years after the Canadian conferences took place. The confederation delegates made a wholly fresh start, under chairmanship of a British crown minister, and the actual drafting was done by British government experts.

The senate of Canada directed its parliamentary counsel, William F. O'Connor, on June 30, 1938, to find the scope of "the intended legislative powers of that precise central or general union which was presented to and accepted by the three original provinces of Canada" in the 72 resolutions drafted at the Quebec confederation conference of 1864.

"Compact Nonexistent"

His reply to this, contained in a voluminous 1939 report to the speaker of the senate was:

"My researches have led me to conclude that no proposals of union of those provinces were ever presented to them, and that the so-called compact of confederation is nonexistent."

His report said the Quebec conference "was one of merely crown appointed delegates from five provinces [colonies] who met at Quebec in Oct., 1864, with authority to discuss, but without authority to conclude or arrange a union." The colony of Canada [Ontario and Quebec] was the only one to accept the resolutions drafted at Quebec. The report continued:

"More than two years after the Quebec conference had been dissolved, following upon the rejection by Nova Scotia and New Brunswick of the Quebec scheme, those two provinces carried in their respective legislatures practically identical resolutions favoring proceedings de novo [from the beginning] at London, England, for union with the province of Canada on terms to be discussed there by delegates of the three provinces but to be arranged with the imperial government direct . . ."

Not Basis of Act

O'Connor emphasized several times in the preface of his report that the discussions at London were "de novo," the legal term meaning that a wholly fresh start was made there.

At another place in the report, he said, "the Quebec resolutions cannot, in my opinion, for reasons assigned and to be assigned, be accepted as the basis of the British North America act." The Quebec conference was the final meeting held in Canada, the only further confederation sessions being held in London.

"What was resolved at Quebec and what was afterwards resolved at London," O'Connor wrote, "differed not much in principle altho it differed immensely in detail."

The machinery of central government—an upper and lower house, federal union, British in system and practice, local powers for the provinces and general powers for the parliament—"was all easily settled, not at Quebec, but at Charlottetown, before the Quebec conference was ever called," O'Connor said.

"Thus we find the Quebec conference concerning itself, principally, with the completion of matters of detail, already largely settled, and the recording of matters of principle," he said. "The task of applying already admitted general principles to practical and political facts was, however, found to be the really difficult part of constitution building.

"Not Well Enough Done"

"It had been well, but not well enough, nor authorizedly, done at Charlottetown, Halifax, Saint John, Fredericton, and, as it transpired, Quebec, so it had to be done over, and it was completely done over in the end at London.

"It is to the fact just mentioned that the erroneous conception that the British North America act is based on the Quebec resolution is attributable. Until one examines them they seem to be so alike. I do not remember that I have ever seen the London resolutions published in any book except Poe's [Confederate Documents]. Nearly all Canadian constitutional works continue to publish the Quebec resolutions, which never were brought into being . . . and which are, in fact, repealed by the subsequent inconsistent London resolutions . . ."

O'Connor said the London scheme "in fact, was an imperial conference," and that the chief difference between it and the Quebec plan was that the British government "was to 'sit in.'" He mentions "two drafts prepared by the British expert draftsman."

Canadian Delegate Protested

He told how a delegate from Upper Canada [Ontario] protested that "we place ourselves in a false position in every departure from the Quebec scheme. But in advocating an alteration on the question objected to by the colonial office [of Great Britain] I thought we had full power."

Only sketchy notes, and no minutes, were kept of the London conference, and it is thru collateral references that the interference and dictation of the British cabinet in Canada's constitutional plans can be discovered.

O'Connor quotes a letter from F. Rogers, British permanent under-secretary of state for colonies, who said that at the London conference British Secretary Carnarvon "was in the chair, and I was rather disappointed in his power of presidency."

Like a Private Bill

John A. Macdonald, premier of Canada [Ontario and Quebec] and one of the leading fathers of confederation, wrote:

"The union was treated by them [the British colonial secretary and British governor general of the Canadian colonies] much as if the B. N. A. act were a private bill uniting two or three English parishes. Had a different course been pursued—for instance had united Canada been declared to be an auxiliary kingdom, as it was in the Canadian draft of the bill—I feel sure [almost] that the Australian colonies would, ere this, have been applying to be placed in the same rank as 'the kingdom of Canada.'"

O'Connor listed more than 10 pages of changes from the Quebec resolutions made at the London conference.

HERE'S WHY ONE CAN'T CONTACT REICH FRIENDS

BY HENRY WALES
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BERLIN, Nov. 10—Since the war in Europe ended without an armistice, the United States remains officially in a state of war with Germany until a peace treaty or some other instrument is adopted to change the status.

The United States cannot resume postal connections with a country with which she technically is at war, nor can the government permit any private enterprise, like an express company, to deliver packages until the belligerency of the two nations is formally ended.

Answers a Question

This is the authoritative explanation of why no one in America can send letters, cables, radio messages, and packages of food or obtain any other contact with friends, relatives, and business associates in Germany. No German can do these things, either. In fact, he cannot obtain this service inside Germany because of the disruption and the division of the reich into four zones. There is mail service only with a few cities, altho most communities have reëstablished postal arrangements locally.

All mail from the United States is handled by the army postoffice system, supplemented by courier service for the diplomatic staff in different localities. The army postoffice functions for military personnel, the Red Cross, newspaper correspondents, and such few civilians and business men as are able to wangle passports and travel orders to get here and look over commercial pickings for the future.

Urge Yanks to Mail Letters

Yanks are constantly besought by German civilians to send letters for them to relatives of the Americans who will remail them to the Germans' relatives and friends, but this violates postoffice regulations.

"Postal and package service between America and Germany could be reëstablished easily by the simple expedient of the passage of a bill or law in Washington," said an army postoffice official. "However, the APO, with its present staff, could not handle large additional business because we are demobilizing like every other branch and would need considerable extra personnel to handle more traffic. Furthermore mail and packages could be sent only to people residing in the American zone, as we have no interchange with the Russian, French, and British zones, and German postal facilities not yet have been restored to anything like normal. Until the German postoffice could assume distribution, letters and packages would just pile up in our quarters, and, brother, we're pulling out as fast as we can."

PATTON PLACED IN COMMAND IN ABSENCE OF IKE

FRANKFURT, Germany, Nov. 10 [Reuters]—Gen. Patton, by virtue of his seniority, has been named to command the United States forces in the European theater during the absence of Gen. Eisenhower, on a visit to the United States, it was announced here today by Lt. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, Eisenhower's chief of staff.

Patton was named recently to head the 15th army after his removal followed Patton's statement that nazi politics were similar to a United States Republican-Democratic election and that he saw no need for a denazification program in occupied Germany.

FRANCE BLOCKS ALLIED O.K. FOR GERMAN UNION

BERLIN, Nov. 10 (AP)—The French blocked a move in the allied control council today to permit the amalgamation of German trade unions into a central organization for all Germany.

The French firmly opposed the representatives of the United States, Britain, and Russia on the issue. The control council announced that, for the first time in its history, it was unable to reach an agreement on an issue and that its members had so informed their respective governments.

The French also oppose the establishment of a central administration for Germany, upon which the other nations have agreed.

RED CROSS MAN GIVES THRILL TO YANK PRISONERS

But He Is Unable to Ease Their Misery

(More illuminating examples of the Japanese military mind are given in this instalment of "Men Who Wouldn't Die," an account of life in a prisoner of war camp in Japan. The author, a Chicagoan, served as the spokesman for 500 prisoners forced to work as slaves in a coal mine. His story is based on his diary.)

BY MAJ. A. C. TISDELLE
as told to Carl Wiegman

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

The International Red Cross was thoroly informed of conditions in our prison camp at Omuta, Japan, where 500 Americans were slaves in a coal mine. We saw to that on April 25, 1944, when Max Pestalo, a Swiss representative of the Red Cross, inspected our camp.

It was a thrill to see him, not only because we expected he might be able to help us, but because he wore well tailored clothes, good leather shoes, carried a brief case, and looked like an American. He inspected us on the parade ground, walked down the line, and looked at each man slowly, from head to foot. Unfortunately, we all had clothes on, so he couldn't tell how skinny we were.

After the inspection, Pestalo went to Jap headquarters, and Maj. Mamerow and I, the senior American officers, were summoned to talk with him. My heart sank when he asked only questions that could be answered in the affirmative, such as "Are the men working for pay?" and "Do the men have sufficient clothing?"

Tells Story in French

When the interview ended, Pestalo toured the camp with Jap officers. I joined the party, and at odd moments, when the Japs were preoccupied, I was able to tell him in French that our men were abused, never got enough to eat, and that Red Cross supplies not only were looted by the Japs but were exploited to get more coal production.

When we reached the camp hospital, where 65 men were ill, Pestalo saw something that only the brainless Japs could have conceived. Standing beside the 65 patients were 65 unopened bottles of milk and 65 unopened bottles of cough sirup. How they expected to deceive the Red Cross representative with such a transparent fraud was more than we could comprehend.

Before he left the camp, Pestalo let me know he understood the situation, but apparently there was nothing he could do about it. After his visit there was no improvement whatever in the handling of Red Cross supplies.

Hold Mail 12 Days

On April 30, the camp received 35 United States mail sacks containing 215 personal packages from home. Of course we were desperately anxious to get the packages, but the Japs stalled around, and did not distribute them until May 12.

The packages were opened on long tables and their contents carefully scrutinized by the Jap guards. All pencils and fountain pens were confiscated because it was against the rules to keep a diary. Then the owner of the box was called forward to receive it. If a guard fancied any article in the box, he would say: "Will you give this to me?" The box owner had to grit his teeth and say "Yes." By this holdup method the guards acquired much loot.

Some of the packages had been smashed on the long journey to Japan and there were many loose articles in the mail sacks. Since we had no way to identify the owners, we distributed these, by lottery, to the men whose names were on the package in the sack.

Weep Over Handwriting

After the distribution, the Japs did another heartless thing. They gathered up the outer wrappings of the packages, which showed the names of the senders, and carried them away to the trash pile. Our men were frantic to get the wrappings to find out who sent the packages, and, fortunately, our work details managed to retrieve some of them. Men wept when they saw the handwriting of their mothers.

As I reread the entries in my diary, it is easy to see why the minds of a few men snapped under the strain. On May 31 a prisoner went crazy, robbed his fellow Americans and then robbed the Jap warehouse. He was captured and thrown into the guardhouse, from which he escaped.

Again he robbed the warehouse and again he was caught. This time the Japs beat him until he was almost insensible and then executed him with a bayonet. To the Japs, insanity was no excuse.

First Deaths in Mine

On June 10, we had our first death as the result of a cave-in at the mine. During July, we had two more deaths in the mine. Daily we expected word of a major disaster at the mine, and we were not surprised, one day, to hear that 30 Koreans had been buried in a cave-in.

Accidents in the mine continued to occur day after day. Dr. Hewlett continued begging for surgical equipment so he could care for injured men in camp, instead of watching the results of the Jap doctors' bungling in the mine hospital.

At last, when Hewlett had almost given up hope, Baron Mitsui sent him complete equipment for an operating room, including a superb lamp. Hewlett was as excited and happy as a small boy with his first electric train. After that, our men received good treatment, altho Dr. Hewlett had only bits of rags to use as bandages and these he had to use over and over again.

New Prisoners Bring News

The camp's esprit de corps received a tremendous boost on June 19, when 422 Dutch and Australian prisoners arrived from Thailand. They brought our first definite news that the Japs were withdrawing from parts of their stolen empire.

Lt. Uri permitted me to go to the railway station with Capt. Hewlett and a truckload of our medical corpsman to welcome the newcomers. They looked as bedraggled and bewildered as we did when we arrived. Our little welcoming committee formed a single line outside the station, and as the Dutch and Australian soldiers filed by, I called the Americans to attention and we came to a salute.

When the new men arrived in camp they were quarantined in their barracks for several days and were not permitted to mingle with us. We organized a musical group which went to the edge of their area and sang to them. Some of the Dutchmen had concertinas, and they sang to us.

Hang Up Welcome Sign

In the camp recreation room I put up a big sign saying "Welcome" and beneath it the American, Australian and Dutch coats of arms. The Japs did not permit us to have representations of our own flag, but they were too dumb to understand that coats of arms served the same purpose.

The new contingent of prisoners included seven officers, whom we needed badly to help in the camp administration. Among the Dutch officers was a chaplain, Capt. J. C. Hamel, who spoke English with a Chicago accent. I was mighty puzzled about this accent until he told me he had been trained for the Presbyterian ministry in the McCormick Theological seminary, Chicago.

Chaplain Hamel was a great help to the camp's morale. We arranged to have him preside over a special mess table set up for mentally debilitated men who made foolish trades of food and therefore did not eat regularly.

On Burma Slave Gangs

The Australians and Dutch told us they had been members of slave gangs organized by the Japs to build a railway into Burma. They said they had lost one man for every rail laid—a total of 20,000. When they reached our camp they were in better physical condition than we were, but after about a month on our diet they were down to our level.

The Japs continued to erect new camp buildings until the original compound's area was almost tripled. On June 26, 200 British prisoners arrived, also from Thailand. Again I went to the station with a welcoming party.

Crowds of Jap civilians gathered to watch the new groups parade to the camp, but their faces expressed disinterest, rather than hostility. No children threw rocks. It was a marked change from the way we were greeted almost a year earlier.

Hear Stalin Will Return to Moscow Duties Soon

MOSCOW, Russia, Nov. 10 (AP)—A foreign diplomatic source said today a high soviet official had indicated that Generalissimo Stalin was expected to return to active duty about the middle of November. He added that he had been told that Stalin did not appear at the Moscow celebration of the 28th anniversary of the Russian revolution because it would have been risky for him to come from the warm climate of the south, where he spent his vacation, and expose himself to the frigid temperatures of Moscow's streets.

Attlee and Truman Meet in White House

"It is a very great privilege for me tonight, as the President of the United States, to be host to the prime ministers of Great Britain and Canada and the representatives of the other commonwealths of the British empire, and I want to say a few things that are, I think, in the hearts of all of us.

Striving for World Order

"We, I know, are striving for a world order and a world peace in which nations will feel as the British commonwealth of nations does and as the 48 states in the United States feel. The objective of the United States, I think, has been stated both by the President and by the secretary of state in words which all of us can understand. We are trying heroically to implement the program which was started by Woodrow Wilson, was carried forward by Franklin Roosevelt, and was finally consumated at San Francisco by a delegation made up of members of the senate and citizens at large, without political complexion.

Carry On Policies

"One of the great things of the British empire is that when they have a foreign policy—and they always have one—the British people are behind that foreign policy no matter which government is in power. That was amply illustrated at the Potsdam conference which started with Winston Churchill as prime minister of Great Britain and ended with our guest of honor tonight as the prime minister of Great Britain. And there was no break in the negotiations. Mr. Attlee was there with Mr. Churchill from the beginning. He knew the aims of the conference, and when he came back as prime minister, things went on just as they had started.

Policy of the People

"I am hoping that the United States of America can implement a foreign policy which will be the policy of the people of the United States, and not the policy of any political party.

"The prime minister of Great Britain and the prime minister of Canada are here to discuss with the secretary of state and the President of the United States a program for the use of atomic energy, and for the implementing of a peace program that will be world-wide and continuous, and that will include every nation in the world without exception.

"We are going at our conferences prayerfully. We are hoping that agreements and policies will come out of these conferences which will make the united nations organization a living, moving, active program."

"Historic Occasion"

Attlett said: "Mr. President and gentlemen. I am extraordinarily glad to be here this evening at this historic occasion, and in this great White House, and to be your guest tonight.

"I heard what you said with great interest, Mr. President, of the need for having a foreign policy—a foreign policy for Britain, a foreign policy for the United States of America. But it seems to me today that what we need most of all is a universal foreign policy, a foreign policy that is directed not to any immediate aim of any particular country, but a foreign policy that is conceived in the interest of all the people of the world. That does not mean that we don't take into account our particular differences, but it seems to me today that our over-riding interests of world civilization come first.

Stand for Freedom

"We all stand here for freedom, but we know that freedom may be attacked from many sides. Freedom needs to be retranslated every generation. Things that menace it in one epoch, pass away; something else may menace it in another.

"We all here believe in democracy. We have come out of the war in a great fight for freedom and democracy. And I think that standing here today with the United States of America and the representatives of the British commonwealth of nations, we can all take pride in our democracy, we can all take pride in our freedom; but I think we must beware of attributing that entirely to our own virtues. It has also something to do with our own geographical position, and we have to have a little charity toward others who are less happily placed.

Ocean No Barrier

"We, for years, have had the channel to protect us; you, for years, have had the Atlantic. But, as we know today, the discoveries of science are transcending seas and transcending oceans. We must not let anything rob us of our freedom, and of our democracy. Rather, we must try to see whether we cannot give to all nations that kind of security in which thru long years on both sides of the Atlantic we worked up in practice that most difficult of all forms of government—democracy, about the only form of government that is worthy of free men.

"And I hope, Mr. President, that our meeting today—this week—in which we shall take counsel together, will lead us on to help in bringing about what I believe is the supreme need of today—the lifting of the bonds of fear from the human spirit, and the setting free of the human spirit, so that science, instead of a menace, as it is being looked on today, shall be looked on as something that is throwing open wide the gate to a fuller life for all of us.

"It is my earnest desire, Mr. President, in meeting you here today, that you and I and Mr. King, and all others with whom we shall be talking, will keep ever in mind that what we are out for today is to try and devise a world policy of the common man."

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Nov. 10 (AP)—Persons protesting the arrest and confinement of the Rev. Josef Tiso, former puppet president of Slovakia, smashed windows and distributed leaflets in Bratislava today.

ATOMIC ENERGY BILL DENOUNCED AS TOO DRASTIC

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10 (AP)—Nine members of the house military committee contended today that establishment of a permanent federal atomic energy commission as now proposed "would undermine the very foundation upon which our national life is built."

Legislation setting up the commission to control the use and development of nuclear energy has been approved by a majority of the committee. It is expected to reach the floor soon.

Urge Reduced Powers

The nine dissenters, including one Democrat and eight Republicans, issued a report urging that:

1. The house send the bill back for further study and revision.

2. The measure should be of "interim character" and provide only for a temporary agency.

3. The powers of the agency should be greatly reduced, particularly to allow congressional supervision.

Urged Speedy Action

In an earlier report, the committee majority had recommended speedy action to set up a nine member commission with broad authority over atomic energy. It said the proposed commission needed power in order to protect atomic secrets.

The dissenting report filed today was signed by Rep. Sheridan [D., Pa.] and the following Republicans: Short [Mo.], Arends [Ill.], Clason [Mass.], Shafer [Mich.], Elston Ohio], Harness [Ind.], Fenton [Pa.], and Luce [Conn.].

FIND KING'S MAN IS NO PROTECTOR IN NEW ZEALAND

Farmers Lose Plea for Curb on Labor

BY QUENTIN POPE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Nov. 10—New Zealanders learned today that the king's representative, Gov. Gen. Cyril Newall, who had been asked by farmers' organizations to urge the Labor government to reconsider new legislation designed to maintain it in power at the 1946 elections, had denied he had power to act.

In the belief that the king's representative stood guard over individual rights and could dismiss governments threatening them, the farmers had asked Newall to force the Laborite government, if it refused to reconsider the legislation, to face an immediate national test at the polls.

Newall Lacks Authority

Thru his secretary, David Fouhy, the governor general replied that the matter was not within his authority.

Peter Fraser, prime minister, told the house of representatives last week that the governor general lacked power to intervene in any matter to protect the citizens.

In debate on an electoral bill, the former prime minister, Adam Hamilton, oppositionist, expressed pleasure at the farmers' appeal to the governor general.

Right of Appeal Denied

New Zealand, Hamilton said, has the privilege of appealing to the king. Fraser answered: "There is no such privilege."

"It's a privilege, but whether any notice will be taken of it is another matter," Hamilton said. "None at all," Fraser retorted.

Newall's stand supports Fraser.

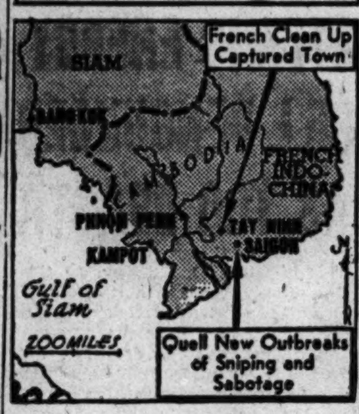
Fighting Continues



SABOTAGE AND SNIPING FLARE ANEW IN SAIGON

French Use U. S. Guns to Seize Town

SAIGON, Indo-China, Nov. 10 (AP)—Sniping and sabotage broke out anew in the Saigon area today as strong French forces, armed with American lend-lease equipment, continued to clean up newly captured Tay Ninh, Annamese resistance center 58 miles northwest of here.

An Anglo-French statement said the Annamese set fire to a fuel dump at the Saigon airport and burned an unused movie theater during the early morning hours, while firing flared up in the powerhouse area of Cholon.

Many Seized

It also reported sniping near Thudaumot air field, where Japanese forces were concentrated for disarmament. A number of arrests were made and some weapons were seized.

The capture of Tay Ninh, opening the first overland link with Cambodia, was announced yesterday after a bitter battle in which the 9th and 11th French colonial regiments and elements of the veteran French 2d armored division took part.

The fighting raged late into the night in a bamboo forest six miles from Tay Ninh, where the French encountered the focal point of Annamese resistance. The French said they had seized "a large number of important documents," an indication that they may have discovered the headquarters of the Viet Minh, Annamese nationalist movement.

Opens Route to Food Lands

The reopening of a land route to Cambodia will expedite the movement of food supplies to Saigon. Up to now, the only way Cambodia's rich food supplies could reach here was by Japanese manned river convoys.

The new route also will be used for the movement of two divisions of Japanese troops from Phnom Penh, capital of Cambodia, to Saigon for disarmament.

Altho the French were known to be using United States made equipment, including tanks, army officials refused to furnish details or estimate the amount of American weapons used.

CALCUTTA, India, Nov. 10 (AP)—The Aga Khan, former president of the league of nations assembly, said today that if the atomic bomb should remain secret he would like that secret to be held by the United States "because then I would know that the bomb will never be used for aggression."

BELGIUM TO GET 99 MILLIONS DUE HER FROM U. S.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Nov. 10—Belgian Supply Minister Paul Kronacker, visiting London on his way back to Brussels from the United States, said today he reached a satisfactory agreement with the American government to cover the gap of 99 million dollars between the 177 million dollars that reverse lend-lease cost Belgium and the 78 million dollars she received in lend-lease supplies.

Saving the 99 millions equal one-third of Belgium's pre-war budget, Kronacker asserted the compensation principle was not part of the lend lease system, and it was obviously not intended that small countries should bear part of the United States' war expenditure.

Belgium, he said, would receive in addition 42 million dollars in straight lend-lease, plus 45 million dollars worth of surplus stocks from the armies in Europe, leaving a balance of only 2 millions. The Export Import bank also offered Belgium 100 million dollars in long term credits at interest rates averaging 3 per cent, Kronacker said.

LEGAL HISTORY BEING MADE IN YAMASHITA CASE

MacArthur Writes His Own Trial Rules

[By Wireless to the New York News and The Chicago Tribune]

MANILA, Nov. 10—Gen. MacArthur is making history in a totally new field these days. He is sponsoring the most radically new rules of court procedure imposed since the first French emperor laid down the code Napoleon. He is the author of the regulation governing the trials of Gen. Yamashita, which will be resumed Monday, and of other Japanese war criminals to follow.

The trial has all the lawyers here watching intently, because there has never been anything like it. This trial will break new ground in the field of jurisprudence. It undoubtedly is being closely studied for precedents by attorneys for both sides in the nazi war criminal cases.

Old Rules Don't Apply

MacArthur wrote a set of brand new rules to govern its progress. He had to do so because none of the old ones could apply because of the defendants' peculiar status.

The traditional rules of civil courts were not applicable because this is a strictly military proceeding. The customary regulations governing courts martial and the United States articles of war don't go because they are limited to soldiers of our own army. And, as the international laws of war are vague and indefinite about these circumstances, MacArthur wrote his own rules.

From his headquarters in Tokyo he issued a memorandum directing the trial commission how to proceed, what evidence to accept and reject, and how to reach a decision. These regulations repeatedly have been challenged by defense counsel, but the five general-judges continue to follow them. They are taking their law according to MacArthur and not according to Blackstone or John Marshall. And that gives the defense lawyers what they are counting on as their final ace in the hole.

Supreme Court Is Threat

They already have expressed a threat to take the decision to the Supreme court if it is against their client—and to base the appeal on the argument that MacArthur ignored the directions of congress. They assert that the law governing the conduct of this commission requires it to follow the rules laid down in the Federal courts. This contention is vigorously denied by the prosecution, which expects the highest court to refuse to touch the case.

MacArthur's rules are a lot broader than court rules. They authorize the commission to receive hearsay evidence. MacArthur is admitting a lot of evidence that would not get by, ordinarily, including such things as letters and diaries if the commission thinks they will reveal the truth.

Yamashita May Testify

On the other hand, MacArthur has laid down certain basic rights for the defendant. He can cross-examine every adverse witness. He was given the right to select his own lawyers. He was given copies of the charges and the bill of particulars in advance of the trial.

As the case goes into its third week one question stands out—will Yamashita take the stand in his own defense? The best guess is that he will.

Dodecanese Islands in Mediterranean where Russia is reported to be seeking military bases.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10—Little headway has been made in obtaining assent from Russia on the general peace conference which our government proposed at the London conference of foreign ministers. Persons in close touch with the situation said today there was the same evidence of "stalling" on this question as on the matter of soviet representation on the far eastern advisory commission which is now meeting here.

At the same time it was learned from persons present at the London conference that soviet Russia on that occasion asked for military bases in the strategic Dodecanese islands, which the other major powers wish to reserve for Greece.

MARINES HAPPY AT REPORTS OF LEAVING CHINA

BY JOSEPH HEARST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

CHINWANGTAO, China, Nov. 9 [Delayed]—The hopes of the marines that they will leave North China in time to get home by Christmas received a shot in the arm today from a radio broadcast from America saying that they are to be withdrawn from China. Today's report, however, is merely the latest in a series of rumors that have left the marines undecided whether to begin packing their gear for the trip home, or settle down for the winter in China.

[Secretary of State Byrnes said Wednesday in Washington that the United States was planning to withdraw the marines from China's hot spots. He was unable to say when the withdrawal would take place. In Chungking yesterday, Lt. Gen. Wedemeyer, commander of American forces in China, predicted all United States forces would be out by spring.]

Celebration Is Held

A few days ago rumors were widespread here, where a battalion of the 1st marine division has been stationed since Oct. 1, that the movement of the marines home was to start around the middle of November. Then only yesterday there were rumors that this order was canceled and they are to be held tho thousands of Chinese troops have been moved into this and the Tientsin-Peiping areas.

Just where the latest reports leave the situation no one here knows, but the marines, officers and men, did some celebrating tonight and hoped for the best.

The sailors of the 7th amphibious force also received the report joyously, for they reason that if the marines are going home, it will be their job to transport them. There are about 53,000 marines in North China and the same number of men in the 7th amphibious force.

Question Occupation Policy

The marines have been questioning the reason for their retention since Oct. 30, when the 13th Chinese army disembarked here in sufficient numbers to take over all functions in the area of the American battalion. The sailors also are wondering why they are transporting Chinese troops and supplies northward and carrying coal back southward.

If and when the marines leave, and their excellent equipment is left behind for the use of the Kuomintang [central government] troops, it will give the nationalists a decided advantage in the field over the Communists, as there is no evidence in this area that the communists possess any field artillery or trucks, and few automatic weapons.

Chinese May Man Ships

Vice Adm. Daniel E. Barbey's policy is against landing the Chinese in the communist-held areas, and the Russians have refused to allow the Chinese to land in the two ports they hold. However, if Barbey's proposal, that certain ships be turned over to China and manned by Chinese crews, is adopted, it is possible the Chinese might try beach landings on their own in undefended areas in Manchuria, in the hope of reaching the interior of the northeastern provinces without long, bloody fighting at the Great Wall.

Such landings also might enable the nationalists to outflank the Communists in the port areas.

FIGHT TO BLOCK CHIANG'S TROOPS FROM MANCHURIA

Chinese Reds in Heavy Battle at Great Wall

CHUNGKING, China, Nov. 10 (AP)—Artillery and mortars thundered today along the coastal end of China's Great Wall, where the Chinese Communists' best divisions blocked the path of thousands of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's nationalist troops into industrially rich Manchuria.

The booming of heavy weapons first was heard during the night in the United States marine guarded port of Chinwangtao, Associated Press Correspondent Richard Bergholz reported, signalling the first heavy fighting in the undeclared civil war.

The action began near Shanhaikwan, coastal anchor of the wall north of Chinwangtao where the Reds' crack 8th route army is solidly entrenched.

The wounded had been trickling in from the front even before the big guns opened fire.

Other Sectors Flare Up

Intensified fighting was reported far inland, and the struggle also flared south of Chinwangtao along the railroad to Tientsin.

A Chinese report said one nationalist platoon was annihilated near a first aid station set up to care for wounded at Nationalist held Pehtaiho junction, 15 miles south of Chinwangtao.

Altho almost encircled by the fighting, United States marines had been involved in no new incidents, Bergholz said.

Lt. Gen. Wedemeyer, commander of American forces in China, today said marines would remain "nonpartisan," and would not make any further landings in North China or move to any other points from their present stations, at Peiping, Tientsin, Tangku [near Tientsin], Chinwangtao, and Tsingtao.

Communists in Chunking, where peace talks have thus far been fruitless, reiterated complaints against American "intervention."

Tell of Chiang Defeat

SHANGHAI, China, Nov. 10 (AP)—

Where Battle Rages

(Story in adjoining column)

Belated reports today from an area 165 miles southeast of Peiping told of the defeat of the Chinese Nationalist 40th army by a communist force which outnumbered the government troops 10 to 1. Remnants of the defeated 40th reportedly fled southward.

[The dispatch from Associated Press Correspondent Olen Clements on this engagement followed one earlier in the week from Chungking in which a government spokesman acknowledged defeat and the capture of two nationalist generals by the Reds.]

Skirmishes have broken out between Chinese Reds and Nationalists on the outskirts of Tientsin.

Foresees Manchurian State

CHINWANGTAO, China, Nov. 11, Sunday—(AP)—Vice Adm. Daniel Barbey said today that if there is a fight over Manchuria both the Chinese Nationalists and Communists might lose—Manchuria might become a separate state such as outer Mongolia. America's chief negotiator with the Chinese Nationalists, Communists and Russians in the Manchurian occupation said China must recognize that possibility in case of fratricidal conflict.

NAVY'S HOLDING PIER THRU 1946 UPSETS SHOWS

City May Lose 100,000 Trade Visitors

Delay in relinquishing of Navy pier, now anticipated by navy officials not earlier than Jan. 1, 1947, will cost Chicago at least four of the largest events in the American trade show field with an anticipated combined out-of-town attendance exceeding 100,000, Dell Rhea, executive vice president of the Chicago Convention bureau, said yesterday.

Another Year's Radio Training

Mayor Kelly had requested of navy officials the earliest possible return of the pier and had anticipated its use by next fall for conventions and other municipal purposes. Rhea said that Assistant Secretary John L. Sullivan wrote the mayor last week, however, that the navy contemplated continuation of its radio technician program at the pier for at least 12 more months.

The four large trade organizations that had planned shows at the pier, Rhea said, are the Dairy Industries Supply association, Automotive Service Industries, American Road Builders, and National Machine Tool Builders association. Other smaller conventions also had been planned to be held at the pier next fall.

Tool Builders' Show Largest

The dairy group had planned its first national show, with an anticipated attendance in excess of 12,000 out-of-town visitors, for November, 1946. The auto service show, last held at the pier in 1942, drew more than 20,000 from outside Chicago. The road builders' show in 1940 drew more than 25,000 and increased attendance is anticipated at the next show. The tool builders' latest show at Cleveland, O., had 58,000 attendance and 'he post-war show is expected to be much larger.

"The uncertainties occasioned by Mr. Sullivan's reply throw the entire Chicago trade show schedule into confusion," Rhea said. "Whether we shall be able to save the scheduled events for Chicago is a serious problem."

BENEFITS SPUR RECRUITING IN REGULAR NAVY

Comdr. Robert T. Secrest, head of the naval recruiting station at 321 S. Plymouth ct., said yesterday that voluntary enlistments in the regular navy, already brisk, are expected to rise thruout the country.

Secrest attributed the expected increase to new inducements authorized by congress. Among these are the two and three year enlistment periods open to boys of 17, and the two, three, four or six year periods for volunteers 18 to 30. Other factors, Comdr. Secrest said, were immediate mustering out pay and reenlistment bonuses allowed navy reserves entering the regular navy.

CHRISTMAS JUST ANOTHER DAY TO WOUNDED YANKS

It Can Be Brightened Thru Gifts

BY HARRY McCLAIN

For millions of Americans Christmas this year will be the happiest in five years. A war has been won and several millions have been released from military service to join millions more at home in merry celebration.

For thousands who helped to win that war Christmas this year still will be a day of suffering—suffering because they still have not recovered from the wounds and illnesses received on the battlefields and contracted in the jungles of the fighting fronts.

To make this Christmas a more cheerful day for the thousands of fighting men who still are patients in military hospitals in middle western and central states an opportunity is being given to Tribune readers to send a personal Christmas gift direct to the service men.

44,000 Patients This Year

Last year when there were only 24,000 patients in these military hospitals generous Tribune readers asked for the names of 44,000 to whom they desired to send gifts. This year there are 44,000 patients.

To obtain the name of a service man to whom a gift will be sent Tribune readers need only clip the coupon in this issue and mail with an addressed, stamped envelope to the Friend of the Yanks, Chicago Tribune, 435 N. Michigan av., Chicago 11, Ill.

Names of the hospital patients will be obtained by the Friend of the Yanks in the first few days of December and mailed to readers as soon as received. Requests for names will be filled in the order received.

Readers in 18 States Reply

Already Tribune readers in 18 states have sent in their requests for names. States heard from extend from New York to California and from the Carolinas to the Dakotas.

Many persons are participating in the Friend of the Yanks Christmas Gifts for Service Men in Hospitals program for the third time. Their letters tell of the pleasure they have derived from making a hospitalized service man happy with a holiday gift.

Many readers say gratitude is their incentive for taking part in the program this year.

ELIZABETH BORN, DRAKE VICTIM'S DAUGHTER, WED

The marriage of Elizabeth Born, daughter of Mrs. Frank Starr Williams, who was murdered in the Drake hotel Jan. 19, 1944, to Capt. Joseph Snager Linz, 35, Dallas, Tex., in Dallas last May 6, was disclosed in Chicago yesterday.

Friends said the couple met when the captain and his mother, Mrs. Clarence Linz, visited Chicago last March. The captain's mother and Edgar R. Born, father of Elizabeth, were old acquaintances. Mrs. Linz and the captain were unable to locate Born but did find Elizabeth and met her in a cocktail lounge. Elizabeth and the captain recalled that they had known each other when children.

The romance began at that meeting and the secret marriage followed. Capt. Linz was released from the army last week.

9,838 REQUEST TRIBUNE HOME CONTEST RULES

Competitors Have Month to Prepare Designs

Nearly 10,000 requests had been received yesterday for rules of the $24,000 Chicagoland Prize Home Competition, sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE to encourage better home designs for the area within 300 miles of Chicago.

A tabulation showed that 9,838 architects, architectural draftsmen, architectural students and others had applied for the rules, which became available shortly after Oct. 1. The contest was first announced Sept. 16.

Contestants yesterday had one month left before the competition closes Dec. 10.

Last Day for Instructions

Yesterday also was the last day for contestants to make inquiries for interpretations of the rules, under a system designed to preserve scrupulous anonymity of everyone submitting designs.

The competition presents three typical home problems for entrants to solve. Problem No. 1 is a home for a father, mother, and son, age 6. No more than 1,100 square feet of floor space may be used. Problem No. 2 involves a home for a father, mother, son, 12, and daughter, 8, in 1,400 square feet or less of floor space.

Eight Prizes in Each Class

Problem No. 3 allots 1,700 square feet of floor space, or less, for housing a father, mother, two daughters, 16 and 6, and a son, 12.

In each class eight cash prizes of $1,000 each will be paid by THE TRIBUNE. If conditions permit, THE TRIBUNE later will sponsor the construction of homes from these prize winning designs on sites in Chicago and the midwest.

Japs Figure War Cost Them Nearly 13 Billions

TOKYO, Nov. 10 (AP)—The Japanese finance ministry has officially figured that the war in China and the Pacific cost Japan 194,900,000,000 yen, or more than $12,993,000,000, the Kyodo news service said today.

BRAZIL WEIGHS REVOCATION OF VARGAS CHARTER

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Nov. 10 (AP)—The eighth anniversary of the authoritarian "new state" proclaimed by Getulio Vargas passed unnoticed in Brazil today, with its constitution resembling a bare stump from which most of the branches had been lopped by the 11 day old regime of Provisional President Jose Linhares.

The newspaper Diario de Noticias reported that even the stump might be uprooted, saying that circles close to the government were thinking of a "pure and simple revocation of this fascist charter."

The Linhares administration already has revoked former President Vargas' proposals to hold state elections at the same time as the national elections and smashed the state machines for control of the elections. It has restored freedom of the press and assembly, repealed the Vargas anti-trust law which gave extraordinary presidential power over corporations, retired the head of the Vargas security tribunal which judged political offenses, and transferred the special police to the civil police.

IKE CALLS FOR BETTER BEHAVED GIs IN EUROPE

FRANKFURT, Germany, Nov. 10 (AP)—Gen. Eisenhower today directed his unit commanders to take immediate steps to improve the dress and behavior of American troops in Europe to prevent the army from getting "a bad reputation."

In a letter to the commanders, Eisenhower said "our standards of courtesy" had fallen below those "that Americans habitually observe at home," that careless and reckless driving was taking a considerable toll of life, and that proper army dress was not being observed.

Commons Members Plan to Increase Their Salaries

LONDON, Nov. 10—Britain's 630 members of the house of commons may soon vote themselves a raise in salary. The members, who draw $2,400 a year and have no allowance for secretarial assistance, are becoming restive at the expense involved in serving their constituents. A number of members are said to have buttressed their arguments for greater salaries by drawing parallels with "the lavishly remunerated politicians in America."

DETROIT VOTE HURT NEW DEAL AND REDS, SAYS G.O.P. CHAIRMAN

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10—Herbert Brownell Jr. asserted today the Detroit mayoral election "afforded conclusive proof that the unholy alliance between the New Deal and the radical elements does not have the approval of the American electorate."

Nationally, the Republican national chairman said in a statement, the G. O. P. "strengthened" its position for the 1946 congressional campaign.

The result in New York city, Brownell said, means—if it represents any change at all—that "Tammany is once more the dominant political force in that city."

In New York William O'Dwyer, a Democrat, was elected mayor. In Detroit Mayor Jeffries defeated Richard T. Frankensteen, who was supported by the CIO and its Political Action committee.

END LEND-LEASE, INDONESIANS IN U. S. ASK TRUMAN

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 10 (AP)—The committee for Indonesian independence, claiming to represent all its countrymen in this area, said today it had sent a message to President Truman asking him to "terminate lend-lease which is used against freedom-loving Indonesians."

The message said more than 200 Indonesians had quit ships here in a demonstration of solidarity with the Indonesian republic and asked the President to grant them passage to Indonesian ports or give them permission to work here pending their return.

M. Soenardjo, a spokesman for the committee, said 178 Indonesian seaman also walked out in New York and that an undetermined number had quit their ships in Los Angeles harbor in protest against Dutch "supressive methods" in the Netherlands East Indies.

PROBERS READY TO RIP LID OFF PEARL HARBOR

Why Was Fleet There to Be First Question

quoted excerpts from Stimson's diary, "I assume the diary is an official matter and is more or less a public document by now. I see no reason why committee members should not be permitted to examine it before committee hearings begin.

"But this is just what we have been battling against. We want the machinery to make things move."

Lucas expressed the opinion the Republicans will be "greatly surprised" when they see the files of correspondence between Roosevelt and former Prime Minister Churchill.

Ferguson and Sen. Brewster [R., Me.] have said they asked for these files to see if anything in them bore on the possibility of this country's entry into the war about the time the Atlantic Charter was publicized.

Lucas told a reporter the Republican members seemed to indicate in senate debate yesterday that a senate-house inquiry committee can't be trusted to make a thoro investigation of the responsibilities for the disaster. Democrats outnumber Republicans six to four on the group.

"The only mistake the committee seems to have made," Lucas declared, "is that it didn't employ Sen. Ferguson, the one-man investigator from Michigan, as its general counsel.

"It apparently is his view that no other committee member, the general counsel, no one in the war or navy departments, and none of those who have charge of the late President Roosevelt's files can be trusted."

A "Self-Investigation"

Ferguson charged in the senate yesterday that as a result of President Truman's order permitting government employes to volunteer information, but barring individual members from looking at the files, the departments apparently were going to be allowed to "investigate themselves."

Advised of Lucas' remarks, Ferguson told a reporter:

"I don't think it is right for the committee to sit back and wait for the departments to produce what evidence they want to produce. After all, I can't find anything in the files that doesn't exist. If there is nothing there of a disturbing nature, why are they objecting to my looking?"

Majority Must Be Prodded

Ferguson praised Sen. Wheeler [D., Mont.] for telling the senate yesterday about the freedom of investigation that was granted to minority members of the Teapot Dome investigating committee.

"People don't really investigate themselves," Ferguson said in reference to the Democratic majority. "They need the prodding of the minority."

Under the committee's investigation plans several army and navy officers will give the setting of Pearl Harbor. They will not only give a description of the base but discuss its strategic position in war plans. These witnesses will not go into controversial phases of naval policy, however.

The first major witness will be Adm. Richardson, former commander in chief of the fleet, who will discuss reasons why the fleet was based in the Pacific and concentrated at Pearl Harbor. The admiral differed with President Roosevelt on fleet policy and was replaced by Kimmel.

Protested Secret Convoying

Richardson urged shifting the fleet to the west coast. He also protested withdrawal of naval units for convoy duty in the Atlantic at a time when the President was denying that American vessels were being so used before this country's entry into the war.

In this connection it is expected that the committee will go into President Roosevelt's reasons for bottling up the fleet in the harbor. The navy never has disclosed how long the battleships were in the harbor before the attack. It has been reported that they were tied up there for several weeks.

The state department has been called upon to present witnesses for examination on the diplomat negotiations with Japan preceeding the attack. The witness or witnesses the state department will send will merely present the record. The inside story of the negotiations will be told by Hull. Grew will be questioned on Japanese policy.

A parade of witnesses will go into the breaking of the Japanese code. The intercepted Japanese message thru which Roosevelt and the war and navy high commands knew of every Jap move were read in congress during the week by Rep. Gearheart [R., Cal], a committee leader.

Gearhart charged that a vital message, known as the "East Winds Rain" message, which purportedly gave the signal for the attack, had disappeared from the files of the navy department.

The committee will hear Gen. Sherman Miles, former chief of army intelligence, and Vice Adm. Theodore S. Wilkinson, former chief of naval intelligence. Miles executed an affidavit stating he had been instructed by Gen. Marshall not to give some information relating to Pearl Harbor to the army board of three generals which investigated the disaster. Marshall was partially blamed for the debacle in the report.

Gen. Gerow to Be Called

Col. R. S. Bratton and Col. Otis T. Sadler, who unsuccessfully urged that Gen. Short be notified of the decoded material in the hands of the President and top military men, also are to be questioned. Bratton delivered to Gen. Marshall's office a decoded message, which he knew meant war, the night before Pearl Harbor.

Gen. Gerow, then of the war plans division, is on the list of witnesses. He, too, drew censure in the army report, for failure to advise Short on information in his hands. Gen. W. B. Smith, former chief of staff to Gen. Eisenhower, who is said to have accepted the important message from Bratton, is also on the list.

Maj. Henry C. Clausen, a reserve officer, who was sent around the world on orders of Stimson to get testimony from witnesses, is also on the list. Sen. Brewster charged in congress that the officer was assigned to get the army witnesses to change their stories in order to cover up Washington's responsibility for the disaster.

Navy Witnesses Named

Other scheduled army witnesses are Generals Carter Clarke and Russell A. Osumun. Both were in army intelligence at the time of Pearl Harbor.

Navy witnesses include Capt. McCullough, signal officer; Capt. Safford, navy code expert, and Capt. Alwin D. Kramer, who told his superiors that one of the intercepted Jap messages meant that the attack would come at Pearl Harbor. That was the night before the attack.

Kramer was the center of congressional interest during the week when Republican committee members charged he was being held incommunicado in the psychopathic ward at near-by Bethesda naval hospital. Two committee members later saw the officer at the hospital.

In the examination of witnesses, Republican members of the committee will seek to establish who was at the White House the night before the attack. It has been reported in congressional circles that Marshall, Stark, and the late Gen. John Dill, former British chief of staff, were closeted with Roosevelt in a discussion of the impending attack on the night of Dec. 6.

Witnesses Named

Chairman Barkley said the following additional witnesses will be called:

Capt. Edwin T. Layton, Gen. F. L. Martin, Adm. Irving H. Mayfield, Capt. Arthur H. McCollum, Col. Walter C. Phillips, Col. Carroll A. Powell, Comdr. Joseph J. Rochefort, Adm. R. E. Schmirmann, Comdr. William R. Taylor, Adm. Richmond E. Turner, Robert L. Shivers, Grace Tully [secretary to the late President Roosevelt, Adm. Halsey.

Adm. Pye, Adm. Smith, Adm. McMorris, Capt. Listwieler, Capt. Zacharias, and various monitoring and radar witnesses.

Some of the witnesses were identified only by last name and title. Barkley was not available tonight for amplification.

In making the list public Chairman Barkley gave assurance in a statement that the committee will not "countenance any effort to keep from the public any fact material to the inquiry."

SANTA ARRIVES IN STATE ST. IN CLOUD OF 'SNOW'

Parade Officially Opens Yule Shopping Season

There was no secret about Santa Claus' arrival in Chicago yesterday. One hundred thousand persons, it was estimated, witnessed his descent down a giant chimney in a cloud of "snow" at State and Van Buren sts. This pre-Yuletide visit officially marked the opening of the Christmas shopping season in the loop.

Crowds of children greeted jolly, old St. Nick as he leaped from the chimney to board a float of toys. On the float were 10 tiny helpers dressed in Santa uniforms and equipped with hammers and other tools to make toys.

This festive equipage was driven slowly north in State st., as the theme song of the day, "The Pied Piper of Christmas Town," written by Marion Macdonald, was broadcast over the 80 loud speakers along the street.

Decorations in Place

The float moved under the new Christmas decorations which consisted of eight 24 foot Christmas wreaths hung on cables in the center of eight blocks. These wreaths are connected with smaller wreaths on lamp poles by heavy evergreen garlands.

The toy float halted at Lake st. elevated station and Santa Claus disappeared in a second cloud of "snow," to appear shortly afterward in the toylands of State st. department stores.

Christmas Program Given

Prior to this welcome arrival, a half hour program of Christmas music and bulletins was given from a platform near the 50 foot fireplace at State and Van Buren sts.

Ray Engle was master of ceremonies. James Cassidy played the organ and songs were sung by James Hatton and a trio composed of Florence Edwards, Ann Andrews and Ora Mae Blackburn.

The entire program was prepared by a committee of the State Street council headed by Ruben Richman. The decorations were arranged by a committee under the direction of Guy Bowen.

Those killed were O. C. Bruce of Washington, Ind., engineer on the train's first engine, and William Barnett, 26, of Zionsville, Ind., driver of the truck.

NAVY PRISONERS ATTACK GUARDS; FLEE WITH GUNS

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 10 (AP)—A widespread hunt was under way today for eight navy prisoners who overpowered and disarmed two marine guards at Camp Peary yesterday and fled toward Richmond, Va., in a stolen automobile.

Fifth naval district headquarters here reported last night that the eight escaped about 9 a. m. from a work detail outside the prison compound at the naval training and distribution center near Williamsburg, Va.

The men were reported to have beaten their marine guards and seized their guns and to have fled afoot along the highway, where they stopped N. R. Ring of Detroit, Mich., and stole his money and automobile. The guards were given medical treatment at the camp and their condition was reported satisfactory.

OPA GIVES RULES FOR FURNITURE SALE TO TENANT

Conditions under which landlords may require new tenants to purchase furniture as a condition for obtaining apartments were disclosed yesterday by James F. Riley, office of price administration director in the Chicago area.

The OPA rent office, Riley said, must be given the following information: An itemized list of the furniture to be sold, including the age and condition of each piece; reason for selling; price asked for the furniture, and, the address and maximum rent of the apartment to be rented.

Riley said complaints have been received by his office that some landlords have abused the privilege recently granted them of requiring new tenants to buy furniture in proved hardship cases. A physician was forced to pay $900 for a set of furniture that was appraised at $200, he said.

NAZI TRIAL CAST, MINUS ACCUSED, TO HAVE TRYOUT

Nuernberg Cost to U. S. Set at 4 Million

BY HAL FOUST
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

NUERNBERG, Germany, Nov. 10—The international military tribunal will hold a dress rehearsal here Tuesday to test the court mechanics of the trial of 22 Hitler lieutenants scheduled to open on Nov. 20.

Col. H. A. Brundage

Trial briefs on a dozen of the defendants were handed to trial counsel today. Col. Howard A. Brundage, River Forest, Ill., chief of the conspiracy section, said the documents outline individual responsibility of the defendants with relation to the war guilt conspiracy as set forth in the indictment.

The trial brief for Arthur Seyss-Inquart was presented by Maj. Joseph D. Bryan, Chicago. Other briefs were for: Herman Goering, Rudolf Hess, Wilhelm Frick, Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, Col. Gen. Alfred Jodl, Hans Frank, Baldur von Schirach, Adm. Karl Doenitz, Adm. Erich Raeder, Franz von Papen, and Constantin von Neurath.

Judges to Take Bench

In the bomb damaged palace of justice of this war wrecked city four judges will assume the bench, former Attorney General Francis Biddle as the American member, Maj. Gen. I. T. Nikitchenko for Russia, Lord Justice Goeffrey Lawrence for Great Britain and Henri Donnedieu de Vabre for France. Their authority will be the four nation agreement drafted in London this summer.

The bench is on one side of the courtroom, especially designed, as are the rules of procedure, for the occasion. On the opposite side is the prisoners' dock where the accused nazis will sit during the trial but not during the rehearsal.

In the well between will be the prosecutors of the four victorious nations. The American staff is headed by former Supreme Court Justice Robert H. Jackson. The defense attorneys will share this well.

In the front of the courtroom, occupied by the bench in ordinary tribunals, will be a motion picture and still photograph projector screen. Beside it, encased in glass, will be 12 interpreters to give running accounts in English, Russian, French and German of speeches, statements and arguments as they take place.

Choice of Languages

The participants and audience, including 240 press reporters, will wear ear phones dialed so as to listen to the proceedings or interpretation thereof in any one of the four languages.

Tentative reservations for the press section indicate the world audience to whom this drama of allied justice is addressed. Seat allocations are: the United States 80, Russia 25 to 40, Great Britain 50, France 40, the Netherlands 5, Belgium 5, Denmark 5, Norway 5, Sweden 5, South America 5, Central America 5, Poland 3, Switzerland 3, Finland 3, Czechoslovakia 3, Spain 2, China 2 and one each for newspapers which will be served by the USFET [United States forces in the European theater.]

Estimates of the length of the trial range from eight to 16 weeks.

One British newspaper estimated that America was spending more than 4 million dollars in arrangements as the host nation. Its staff, headed by Jackson, numbers 560 investigators, lawyers, clerks and stenographers, some on war and navy department payrolls and some paid by the German control council. The British have a staff of about 150, and France and Russia have about 50 each.

A battalion of the United States 1st division infantry, with auxiliary forces totaling 7,500 men and officers, is furnishing security and supplies for the international tribunal. The press is housed, fed and transported by the United States army. Correspondents are living in the outlying castle of Eberhardt Faber, the pencil manufacturer.

Filing of Appeals Barred

Jackson has warned that the proceedings must not be regarded as political trials with the victors wreaking vengeance upon the vanquished, but as tribunals for the establishment of personal responsibility for waging war and for a governmental policy of persecutions and inhumanities.

The charter for the tribunal says that its jurisdiction cannot be challenged. It also established that the rule of defense based upon obedience to a totalitarian government or to a superior officer does not free a defendant of responsibility for crime but may be considered in mitigation of punishment. Punishment is to be fixed by the tribunal, and there is no appeal.

Wainwright Would Like to Start Bataan Memorial

Walla Walla, Wash., Nov. 10 (AP)—Gen. Wainwright wants to go back to Bataan to establish a national park as a memorial for the men who fought and died there, he told a press conference today. Wainwright will become head of the eastern defense command Jan. 15. "I reach the mandatory retirement age in 1947," he said. "My only ambition then will be to start this national park."

U. S. AND BRITAIN OFFER ALBANIA DIPLOMATIC TIE

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10 (AP)—The United States and Great Britain proposed today to recognize the partially communist government of Albania upon assurances that it will allow the Albanian people to hold unrestricted and freely reported elections at an early date.

Arrow points to Albania

Balloting for a constituent assembly has been set for Dec. 2.

Diplomatic officials said they understood that Russia also was offering to establish diplomatic relations with the regime of Premier Col. Gen. Enver Hoxha, but Russian terms were not made known here.

[The Moscow radio said the Russian government has decided to establish diplomatic relations with Albania.]

Hoxha's administration, with a cabinet about equally split between communists and non-communists, grew out of the country's resistance movement and came to power at Tirana following final liberation of Albania about a year ago.

Greece Protests

Britain took the step toward recognition over a protest from Greece which has made territorial claims to northern Epirus. Foreign office officials in London said, however, that the action would not prejudice the Greek claims.

Albania was swallowed up by Mussolini's fascist legions on April 7, 1939. The United States never recognized Italian sovereignty and officially considered Albania a friendly country thruout the war. It was liberated by its own resistance forces and never occupied by Russian or other allied troops.

United States Asks Assurances

In a note delivered to the Hoxha administration at Tirana by Joseph E. Jacobs, United States political representative, Washington requested these assurances as conditions to establishing diplomatic relations:

That the forthcoming elections shall be free, by secret ballot, and "with no threats or intimidations."

That "all democratic individuals and groups in Albania shall enjoy freedom of speech and the right lawfully to present and support their candidates."

'TOSCA' IS SUNG WITH SPIRIT ON THEATER OF AIR

Puccini's magnificent opera of frustrated love and violent death, "Tosca," lost none of its dramatic impact in an Anglicized and streamlined version presented by the Chicago Theater of the Air last night before a capacity audience in the Masonic temple. It was broadcast over W-G-N, WGNB, and the Mutual network.

Marion Claire, leading W-G-N soprano, brought a gentleness to the title role and delivered the beloved "Vissi d'arte" aria with lyric warmth. Supporting her was Richard Tucker, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera company. Bruce Foote, baritone, and Ruth Slater, contralto, sang other supporting roles.

A cast of more than 100 actors, singers, and musicians gave full operatic scale to the shortened version of the tragedy. Henry Weber conducted the W-G-N Symphony orchestra. Jack La Frandre was the producer.

can I find a new ELECTRIC IRON?

WHAT are my chances of getting a new RADIO?

WHO

will I know when hard-to-get items like these are again available?

Here's Walgreen's Answer

We are getting some of these items now and we will get increasing quantities and wider variety quite soon.

As each shipment comes in we are distributing it equitably so that each of our stores may offer its fair share to you and our other customers.

All scarce merchandise is immediately put on display and offered all our customers. We are not holding it back to make capital out of it and we are not hiding it for a favored few. We cannot, in most instances, advertise it, as quantities—while generous on some items—are still not sufficient to supply everyone, and we are notably opposed to "bait" advertising. You will see this merchandise on display as soon as it is received.

Just what does this mean to you as a Walgreen customer?

CITY FARMERS FOUND GOOD AS TILLERS OF SOIL

Search for Security Is Their Motive

BY GAIL COMPTON

Hundreds of thousands of acres of farm land surrounding Chicago now are owned and operated by city business men as a result of a war stimulated search for sound financial investments and a hedge against inflation.

These city farmers, as a rule, are proving to be good tillers of the soil. Unacquainted with old fashioned farming procedures, they have adopted the latest scientific methods, have employed experts, and are following the recommendations of the colleges of agriculture. In many instances they are opening the eyes of the dirt farmers to new and modern ways of farming.

Improving Farm Soil

In almost every case, the city farmers are improving their soil and practicing conservation. Farm experts expect the business men to leave the soil in better condition than when they bought it.

In some cases this city capital has been a bad influence. A regular farmer may find himself surrounded by city owned farms on which huge sums are lavished and the owners have no need to exchange labor with the dirt farmer, with the result his crops suffer. Also, in some instances, the city owners have raided the local labor market and taken experienced help from the dirt farmer.

In the main, however, the city business has increased the value of farm land in the Chicago area thru the application of sound business principles to the job of farming. The dirt farmers have benefitted thru this activity.

Three Types of Farms

Three types of farms are being purchased by city dwellers, a survey reveals. The first are the big farms of thousands of acres equipped with the latest agricultural devices, the second are the medium sized farms of 160 to 300 acres usually run by a tenant farmer, and the third are farms of one to 20 acres. These are springing up like mushrooms close to the edge of the city.

The first type of farms usually are owned by wealthy individuals or companies. Such farms often have been accused of representing merely a new device for taking a loss on a personal or company income tax. In a number of cases this probably is true. There are, however, many big farms which are being run as a business and are making money.

High Mortality Rate

There is a high mortality rate among the middle sized farms. These usually are purchased by persons of fairly moderate means who hope to find in them a sound investment. After five or six years of struggling with the problem of help, the steady stream of money which must flow into such a farm to keep it running, and other worries the owner is likely to sell out in disgust.

For every owner ready to sell out, there are two city men willing to buy, farm real estate dealers say. The demand for medium size farms boomed with the start of the war and the market has not slackened. The dealers' main trouble is finding farms to sell.

Confusion Is Caused

The craze for a few acres can, in part, be traced to the flood of books advocating "five acres and independence," "one acre and the good life," and similar slogans. This class of buyers is furnishing considerable trouble for county agricultural authorities.

The buyers are demanding paved roads, drainage ditches, new schools, and are plaguing farm offices with a multitude of questions on farming. Most of these people settle near the city and try to work at a city business in the day time and farm in the twilight and on week-ends. The result is confusion and waste of time and effort, farm experts say.

Scenery Must Be Good

Most of the city owned farms are in Lake and McHenry counties. Here the business men have been able to find fairly cheap farm land, rolling scenic country, and fast transportation to the city. City capital does not seem too greatly inclined to invest in a farm unless it contains eye pleasing characteristics such as lakes or wooded hills.

It is estimated by some real estate dealers that as much as one-half of all the farm acres in Lake county are owned by city dwellers who act as absentee landlords. Ray T. Nichols, Lake county farm adviser, is more cautious, estimating that 30 per cent of the counties farms are city owned.

Real estate dealers assert that almost as great a portion of the farm acres in McHenry county are city owned. In Du Page county about 10 per cent of the land belongs to city business men and in Cook county Chicagoans own around 200 out of the county's 4,200 farms. Kendall and Will county have a smaller city investment.

Club Shows Interest

The Chicago Farmers club, an organization of city men who own farms, has a membership of more than 650, indicative of the interest in farming which has developed. The organization started with a handful of men in 1935. Now its members own 284,732 acres of farm land around the city.

The Curtiss Candy company has become a big factor in Chicago area farming thru its ownership of approximately 10,000 acres scattered thru Cook, Du Page, Kane, Lake, and McHenry counties. On its farms the company produces many of the ingredients used in the business and also supplies the city with a good deal of food. Highly modernized and operated scientifically, it represents a huge investment.

In the Grayslake sector are big farms operated by Harry Epstein, Joseph N. Sikes, and Louis I. Behm. Sears-Roebuck company has an 800 acre farm in this area and the Riteway Milking Machine company runs a 500 acre experimental farm in this area.

Doings on the Tribune Farm

November 10, 1945

CORN growers, especially in the northern states, dream of hybrid corn that will mature rapidly, thus eliminating the danger of frost damage in growing seasons shortened by adverse weather conditions. Such a corn was grown this year at Wheaton farm.

The usual corn belt hybrid matures in about 120 days. The new corn was in the dent at the farm in 74 days and tests show it is ready for the crib 80 days after planting. The new hybrid was developed by two Illinois men: one a young scientist, the other a farmer and former corn growing champion.

70 Bushels Per Acre

Aside from the test strips at Wheaton farm, plots were grown at Hanna City, Peoria county. Fifteen different varieties were grown. The best seed gave a yield of approximately 70 bushels per acre on soil of ordinary-to-high fertility.

The new corn has a short stalk and a large ear weighing almost one pound. It was developed from four open pollinated varieties that were broken down to the in-breds and then crossed back to six hybrids.

Advantages of a corn that will mature in 80 days are numerous. Farmers in northern states have a short growing season and often lose much of their crop to early frosts. In northern Illinois this year, 25 per cent of the corn crop was nipped.

Several Advantages Cited

Such corn also would be valuable to farmers in Nebraska, where hot winds are likely to burn up the corn before it matures. Farmers with river bottom land on which floods cause late replanting would like the corn, for it can be seeded as late as July 4 and still produce a good yield.

One disadvantage of the corn is that a quick growing variety usually sacrifices high yield to attain its growth. Yet this new corn assures a yield of around 70 bushels per acre. It has a very low moisture content, which helps keep it safe in the crib under adverse circumstances.

Farmers threatened by corn borer will find the new hybrid valuable because it is planted before the first insect brood starts its active damage, and it ripens before the second brood of borers gets to work.

The two discoverers of the corn have available now about 500 bushels of seed that can be used by growers interested in testing it. They expect to have the new variety in substantial commercial production next year.

YANK IN MUTINY CASE SHIFTED FROM PRISON

A report that Bernard B. James, 24, one of 18 Negro soldiers convicted of mutiny while serving in England, has been transferred from the federal penitentiary at Terre Haute, Ind., to the rehabilitation center at Fort Knox, Ky., was verified yesterday by his family. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. William James, of 6421 Champlain av. James was charged with willful disobedience and mutiny and sentenced to 18 years, but this sentence later was commuted to 13 years. His relatives said James will be eligible to restoration to duty after two or three months. His sentence will be remitted after restoration to duty.

OFF LIMITS RULE ENDS RUCKUSES OF GIs AT HAVRE

Illinois Men Find Fewer Complaints

BY JOHN THOMPSON
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LE HAVRE, France, Nov. 9—Most of the disorders that were turning this port into a city termed by the French unsafe for civilians have ceased since Sunday, when Le Havre and Rouen were put off limits for thousands of homeward bound American soldiers.

Restless Yanks backed up in the staging area within sight of the sea but without enough ships to move them home caused the trouble, said Lt. Col. Robert L. Staver, provost marshal. But the shipping situation now is improved and the average staging camp stay is nine days, where it used to be several weeks.

Only a small percentage of the troops who tramped Le Havre's streets caused trouble, according to William J. Thyer, Brighton, Ill., former investigator in Gov. Green's finance department. Thyer is now chief agent here in charge of the criminal investigation division and is assisted by Alvin I. Yaeger, 5050 Sheridan rd., Chicago.

Knifings Were Frequent

"We haven't had a thing to do since Le Havre was placed off limits," said Thyer. "Formerly we had about three or four knifings a night. We used to have plenty of work investigating violent deaths. This involved both soldiers and civilians. Right now some soldiers are in the hospital and we haven't been able to crack the case of one colored boy we found shot to death with his clothing stripped off."

Many disorders occurred, he said, when soldiers engaged in black market transactions. Sometimes GI's would be jumped by gangs of Frenchmen and sometimes it would be vice versa.

Col. Staver said everything had been exaggerated. His blotter listed 21 serious complaints last month. They ranged from one murder of a soldier to robbery. Five complaints did not involve French citizens. Two were concerned only with the merchant marine. The others were either entirely military or soldier and civilian.

Minor Cases Increase

His records, however, disclosed a rise in the number of minor complaints ranging from failure to salute properly to rioting. In August there were 191, in September 351, and in October 380.

Staver is charged with controling the entire 4,000 square mile staging area, which now averages 40,000 transient soldiers at one time. In Le Havre there are also nearly 17,000 garrison soldiers, 18,000 German prisoners, more than 8,500 American civilians, and 1,200 Italian workmen.

Military police in the town patrol said they often were shot at nightly in tours of the tough waterfront area, and during one period the security police who guard warehouses and other installations were fired upon nine consecutive nights.

ONLY AMERICAN PAPER IN BERLIN TO CLOSE DOORS

BERLIN, Germany, Nov. 10 (AP)—The only official newspaper of the American occupation forces in Berlin, the semi-weekly Allgemeine Zeitung, will cease publication tomorrow. This will leave the Berlin field to one British and six Russian controled papers and the German edited Tagesspiegel, licensed by United States authorities.

The decision to end publication was in line with the American policy to turn over newspapers to Germans free of any nazi taint at the earliest possible time.

Withdrawal of the Allgemeine Zeitung, probably the most popular of the papers published in Berlin, will leave the Neue Zeitung of Munich as the only large newspaper in Germany directly controled by American occupation forces. There are small papers in Regensburg and Bayreuth.

NEW REPUBLIC LAUNCHED AMID FRENCH CRISIS

De Gaulle Bars Left's Move to Tie Hands

BY ROBERT SAGE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Nov. 10—The fourth republic began its political life with a first class crisis despite the fact that its first government has not yet been set up. The main factors of the crisis are threefold:

1. The failure, after two days of debates of the big three—Communists, Socialists, and the MRP—to agree on a common program that would permit them to form a coalition.

2. The unsuccessful attempts of Communists and Socialists to force Gen. De Gaulle's hand by making him agree to their program before they decide to vote for him as the new president of the provisional government.

3. The refusal of De Gaulle, who let it be known he does not consider himself a candidate for the presidency, to meet the party leaders to discuss a program before the election, and the probability that he will refuse the office if the three main parties cannot get together.

Elect President Tuesday

Prospects were today that the deadlock will not be broken until the constituent assembly, recently elected and given power to shape a new constitution, elects a new president of the provisional government. This election, originally scheduled for yesterday, will be Tuesday.

The question on which the three major parties divided was that of a state subsidy to religious schools.

An agreement between the big three virtually had been reached due to the conciliatory attitude of the Catholic M. R. P., which compromised on its insistence for the subsidy to the extent of accepting the status existing before the war, when the state paid no subsidies. The Communists appeared to agree to this solution, but later insisted that state subsidies to certain missionaries abroad and charitable workers must cease. At this the M. R. P. balked, and a complete deadlock developed.

The prospects are that the Socialists and probably the Communists will abstain from voting.

De Gaulle 'Disappears'

The crisis began to develop on Thursday when the Communists and the Socialists decided to demand that De Gaulle carry out the governmental program approved by all the leftist groups as a condition for voting him into the leadership of the new government. De Gaulle's answer was to leave his office in the war ministry for the first time since the liberation and "disappear" pending the elections.

It is believed De Gaulle intends to remain free to accept office without having his hands tied in advance. Moreover, he is reported determined to govern with the full support of the three chief parties, or not at all, and observers say it is unlikely that he will accept the office if he does not get a majority of the votes of each party.

CHINA GETTING 50,000 TONS OF U. S. SUPPLIES

[By Wireless to the New York News and The Chicago Tribune]

HONOLULU, Nov. 11 [Sunday]—The navy disclosed today that it is sending six ships carrying 50,000 tons of supplies valued at 20 million dollars to China. The cargo consists of United States army and navy supplies and is being sent to the office of the foreign liquidation commission in China for "disposal in accordance with the surplus war property act." It does not include arms or ammunition, the navy said.

Navy officers said the shipment is the first large one to a foreign government since V-J day. Two ships are carrying transportable hospital buildings and hospital supplies and equipment.

The other four ships, loaded in the United States, are carrying general supplies of food, clothing, general stores, automotive and general construction equipment and repair facilities. The foreign liquidation commission was set up in China to handle the disposal of surplus United States materials there.

U. S. Hit and Run Truck Injures French General

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Nov. 10—Gen. Martial Vallin, chief of staff of the French air force, and two French officers were injured and their chauffeur was killed early today when a United States army truck hit their car in the outskirts of Paris. The truck sped away without stopping.

ENVISIONS LAKE AIRPORT BUILT ON SHIP HULLS

Engineer Says It Would Be Cheaper, Too

A revolutionary plan for constructing a comparatively inexpensive island airport off Chicago's lakefront thru the use of Victory ship hulls as retaining walls for tangential runways was offered yesterday by John W. Magill, 102 E. Bellevue pl., a marine engineer.

A permanent island, shaped like a July 4 pinwheel with 12 spokes, could be built in an area reaching from a mile to five miles off the shore in the following manner, Magill explained.

200 Ships Needed

The oblong hulls of about 200 victory ships, stripped of everything but the hull [leaving a box 440 feet long, 57 feet wide, and 37 feet high], could be sunk in shallow water. Small openings between the ships would make them an effective trap for drifting sand. This would eventually fill the southernly, or leeward, side of the island to a degree where considerably less mechanical filling would be required.

One of the 12 fingers would be enlarged to form a double decked hangar for airplanes. The center of the pinwheel would offer loading facilities.

Each Ship Would Cost $17,000

Each of the Victory ship hulls woulds cost about $17,000 delivered in Chicago, Magill said. Any salvage company would be willing to strip them to the bare oblong for the salvage they would obtain, he said.

Filling the spaces not blocked by drifting sand and capping the entire area with concrete would cost about 75 million dollars. Buildings and hangars would cost another 10 million. The total cost of the project, he estimated, would run around 90 million dollars.

The cheapest previous estimate for island airports was 120 millions, with some estimates running as high as 175 millions. The cost of reconstructing the Douglas airport is estimated at 40 million dollars.

Airport Off North Side

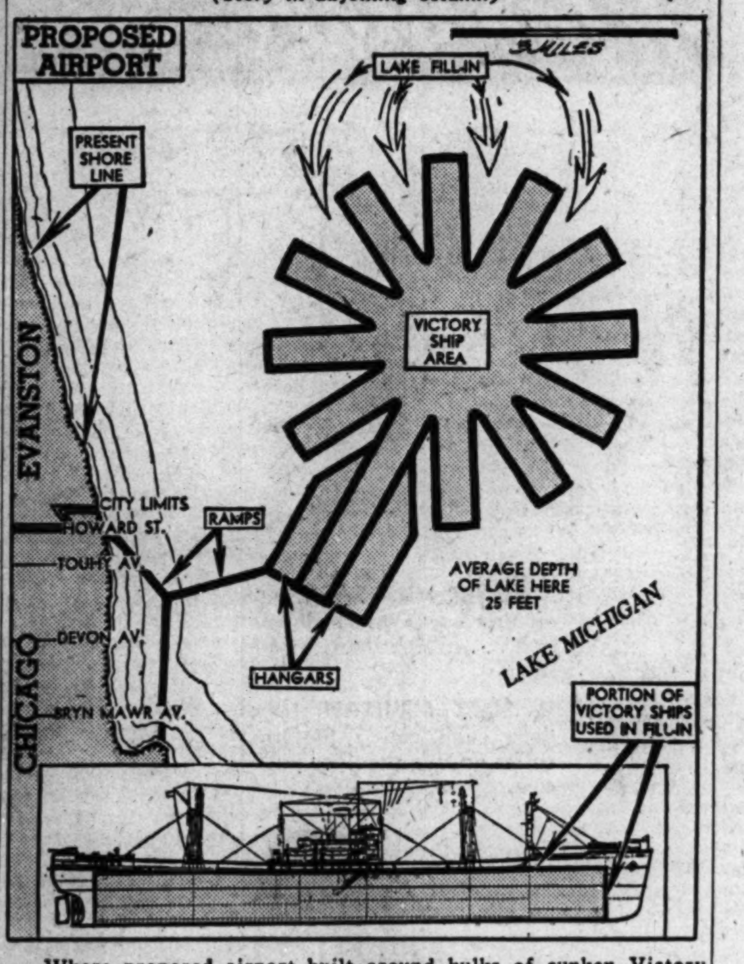
Magill placed his proposed airport in an area slightly north of the Edgewater Beach hotel. The average depth of water in this area is about 25 feet, with the deepest area 33 feet.

The proposed airport would conform with all federal regulations and would be large enough to accommodate the largest planes predicted for the future, Magill said.

Each runway from the center of the island to the tip would reach 7,500 feet and be 400 feet wide. The total area of the island would be about 2,400 acres with about 14,000 feet of terminal loading space. The port would accommodate about 360 landings and take-offs an hour, Magil' said.

New Plan for Airport in Lake

(Story in adjoining column)



Where proposed airport built around hulks of sunken Victory ships would be located in lake off Chicago's north side under plan suggested by John W. Magill, marine engineer.

GEN. CARL GRAY, ARMY RAIL BOSS, ARRIVES IN CITY

Maj. Gen. Carl R. Gray Jr., executive vice president on leave of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, and Omaha railroad, who headed the military railway service in Europe and Africa, arrived in Chicago last night. He was met at Union station by his son, Lt. [j. g.] Carl R. Gray III., and the latter's wife, Dorothy, who live at 4700 Malden st.

Gen. Gray, whose father was president of the Union Pacific railroad prior to his death in 1939, saw duty in Africa, Sicily, Italy, France, and Germany. He said German railroads are 85 per cent in operation, and French and Belgium roads are 95 to 99 per cent in operation.

"We taught them a little, I think, about railroading," Gen. Gray said. "About all we learned from them was negative—what not to do. America's railroads are still the best in the world, even when they're two hours and five minues late, like this one."

He explained his train developed a hot box and one car had to be cut out.

MERCHANT SHIP VETERANS NOT TO BE DRAFTED

Merchant sailors who have at least 32 months of continuous service will not be liable for induction under the draft, Vice Adm. Land, war shipping administrator, and Maj. Gen. Hershey, director of the selective service system, announced yesterday.

Under the new regulations outlined in a joint announcement the war shipping administration will not recruit any men between the ages of 18 and 25 except those who have been found disqualified for military service.

Altho men with 32 months' service are eligible for discharge from the merchant marine Adm. Land emphasized the continuing need for seamen to ship relief goods and bring soldiers and sailors home. At present, he said, there is a need for 14,200 additional merchant seamen and officers.

CLOTHING IN AUTO STOLEN

Thomas K. Pattison, Atlantic hotel, told police yesterday that thieves who broke into his automobile near Clark st. and Jackson blvd. took an overcoat, movie camera, and a trunk containing clothing, all valued at $300.

REPORT BRITAIN, U. S. WILL ACT JOINTLY ON JEWS

Committee Will Decide on Palestine Issue

LONDON, Nov. 10 (AP)—Reliable sources said tonight that Great Britain and the United States had agreed upon creation of a joint committee to deal with the questions of Jewish immigration into Palestine, and displaced European Jews.

These sources said agreement on main issues was reached recently, but that Prime Minister Attlee wanted to discuss the question with President Truman in their Washington talks before any British statement on Palestine is made.

Foreign office sources said Foreign Secretary Bevin would state the Labor government's position on Palestine, with reference to America's attitude, in commons possibly next Tuesday. Diplomatic quarters believed Bevin would announce formation of a British-American plan calling for immediate rather than long-term action.

British Want Load Lightened

The British were said to believe that a substantial increase of immigration into Palestine would be possible if the country were placed under international trusteeship, while if they bear sole responsibility only a small increase would be possible.

Diplomatic quarters said it was "fairly certain" that Bevin would deal also with the problem of thousands of Jewish refugees in the British and American zones of occupation in Germany.

London estimates say there are 65,000 Jewish refugees in the American and 200,000 in the British zone who want to go to Palestine or some other country. Some European experts here declare, however, that if the Jews were given a guarantee against persecution many would prefer to remain in Europe.

Arabs to Ask Voice

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 10 [Reuters]—The council of the Arab league will formally communicate to the British and United States governments the view of the Arab countries that no new decision should be taken about Palestine without prior consultation and agreement with the Arabs, it was learned here today.

This was the essence of the decision taken after a three hour meeting of the Arab league's Palestine committee composed of representatives from Egypt, Iraq, Saudi Arabia, Lebanon, and Yemen.

There had been reports that the Arab league would ask for the ending of the British mandate and the granting of independence to Palestine but no such decision was taken.

Propose Independent State

The league resolution, it is understood, was based on the British white paper of 1939. It proposed the establishment within 10 years of an independent Palestine state with Arabs and Jews sharing the responsibility of government. The resolution also was said to have cited the late President Roosevelt's pledge this year to King Ibn Saud and the regent of Iraq, Emir Abdullah Illah, that the United States would not support a final decision on Palestine without full consultations with Arabs and Jews.

Troops were standing by in Tripoli to protect Jews on their way to synagogs, after this week's anti-Jewish rioting in Tripolitania.

British authorities are investigating whose hand was behind the disorders which Arab leaders in Tripolitania deplore as a disservice to their claim to independence.

Trials of rioters alleged to have been caught red handed are proceeding expeditiously.

PRINCIPAL HELD NOT GUILTY OF SLAPPING PUPIL

Henry Wiebel, principal of Theodore Roosevelt school in Park Ridge, was found not guilty yesterday of charges of slapping a pupil so hard that bruises were visible the next day. Testimony lasted for three hours in the Justice of Peace court of Vincent Connors at Des Plaines. The charges were made by Bruce R. Guild, building contractor, who said his son, Merle, 10, told him that he was slapped after he denied an accusation of tripping another boy on the playground of the school during recess, Oct. 24.

FIGARO RENEWS CRITIC'S FAITH IN LYRIC STAGE

Walter Spins Brilliant Performance

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY

About two hours in time and an infinite distance in taste separated the lackluster "Aida" presented by the Chicago Opera company in the Civic Opera house yesterday afternoon and the bubbling brilliance of "The Marriage of Figaro" that sold out the same theater last night.

Not all the Mozartian casting was ideal, and the settings were monstrosities committed in expensive error 16 years ago. But Bruno Walter was in the pit to persuade orchestra and piano recitative into Elysian fields of song, while the stage held such major joys as the masterly Figaro of Ezio Pinza, who sings like a bass angel with far from angelic implications, and the polished comedy of Jarmila Novotna's Cherubino, which knows the line between the captivating and the coy.

Opera to Renew Faith

At its best, it was opera to renew one's faith in the lyric stage. Despite the handicap of the settings, Herbert Graf staged it smoothly and gaily, and Konrad Neuger caught the chorus up in its blithe spirit. Mr. Walter spun the miraculous score into a fabric so lovely the most glorious aria was merely a highlight. While the performance clung to Italian in lieu of expert English translation, it spoke the universal vernacular of expert mime.

Individual weaknesses were so smoothly spun into eloquent ensemble you almost forgot they existed, but of course not quite. There was no disguising the fact that Stella Roman, who often sings superb Verdi, lacks the limpid purity of projection to sing the Countess, or that Margit Bokor, for all her stagewise skill and occasional birdlike timbre, is no vocal match for Susanna.

Cast Is Delightful

But the cast on the whole was delightful, and Mr. Pinza by no means had everything masculine his own way. John Brownlee, who sang Almaviva [turned from tenor to baritone in the Beaumarchais journey from Rossini to Mozart] in full Glyndebourne tradition, tho not quite with all the remembered voice. Alessio de Paolis was a wryly comic music master, and Virgilio Lazzari sang Bartolo superbly, as a bass should who is Rossini's deftest music master and once was Chicago's prized Figaro. Mr. Lazzari's is Salzburg Mozart by a master.

Ralph Telasko, newer at that sort of thing, did a neat bit as the gardener, and Rosalind Nadell had a comedienne's way with Marcellina, altho that make-up job quite failed to disguise her good looks. Figaro never would have run from that one!

Comparatively, the matinee's "Aida" was poor opera and maligned Verdi. It simply had no brilliance and no backbone of style and the best Verdi singing was done in Fausto Cleva's orchestra pit by the visiting cello of Ennio Bolognini.

GUNMEN ROB GROCER

Two Negro gunmen robbed him of $30 in his grocery at 2838 S. Dearborn st., last night, Morris Lazaroff, 1141 S. Keeler av., reported to police.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

Nov. 11—The Armistice

IN a railroad car parked in the forest of Compiegne, France, a tense group of men—allies and Germans—toiled thru the night of Nov. 10-11, 1918. There was no sleep for them. Soldiers still were dying on the battlefields. The hopes of millions—vanquished as well as victors—centered on a conference table. Only here could the carnage be stopped.

Wearily the Germans sought to soften the stern armistice terms with which Marshal Foch had confronted them. They had in their possession instructions from home to attempt to obtain a modification of the terms—but if this were impossible to sign anyway.

For behind Germany's defeated armies was a crumbling, rebellious homeland incapable of the moral and physical effort that another lunge against her enemies would require.

The German delegates wrestled with Foch until 5 a. m., and obtained some slight concessions. Then they declared themselves willing to sign. In the pre-dawn darkness of Nov. 11 signatures were solemnly affixed. Immediately a "cease firing" order, effective at 11 a. m., went out to the armies.

This armistice agreement, which set the bells pealing thru all the allied world, required German evacuation of occupied territory within 14 days and relinquishment of stipulated territories of western Germany within 31 days.

It called for immediate repatriation of allied prisoners of war and for delivery by Germany of 5,000 big guns, 25,000 machine guns, 1,700 planes, 5,000 locomotives, and 150,000 trucks.

All German submarines were to be surrendered and 74 other naval vessels interned. Germany was to renounce the gains she had won in the treaties recently concluded with defeated Russia and Rumania. The question of reparations was touched on and provision was made for the immediate return of all valuables and securities that the Germans had removed from the invaded regions.

COSSACKS GIVE CONCERT SERIES ROUSING START

Break Music Rules in Entertaining Way

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG

The Zelzer series of Saurday night concerts got off to a rousing start at Orchestra hall last night, with the Gen. Platoff Don Cossak Russian male chorus singing to an audience that filled every seat in the auditorium.

In case you confuse your Don Cossacks, this is the other group—not the one conducted by tiny Serge Jaroff but the one with massive Nicholas Kostrukoff at the helm. Not that the musical results make much difference. The Don Cossacks pursue a policy of musical esthetics that is peculiar to themselves. They sing like no other choruses in the world and no other choruses try to emulate them—possibly for sound reasons.

Break Academic Rules

The Don Cossacks strive for and achieve effects that are not in the standard musical dictionaries; they violate most of the academic rules, but they produce music of a sort that is vigorous, arresting, and salable—particularly to the American public. And tho the critic sometimes has to park his work-a-day set of standards when attending these events, there is no denying that the Cossacks have struck a rich vein of musical entertainment and that for sheer vocal sound the concert world today offers nothing to compare with those phenomenal basses or those piled up masses of virile tone.

Impressive Department

Whether the Don Cossacks' treatment of their native liturgical music is authentic it would be difficult to say; judging by the airy freedom with which they dispose of more familiar idioms, there is at least a basis for suspicion. Nevertheless this department of their repertoire continues to be the most impressive, and last night there were two outstanding examples: Lvov's setting of the Easter "Of Thy Mystical Supper" and Tchesnakoff's "Save Thy People, O God." In between the naive Russians apparently thought to pay tribute to the American liturgy—and came up with Ethelbert Nevin's "The Rosary," which was enough unlike the original to be almost unobjectionable.

TERROR, MISERY UNDER RED RULÉ IN BALKANS TOLD

BY LARRY RUE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Nov. 10—The terror and misery they and their friends are undergoing as a result of the communist rule in Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, and Hungary are told in numerous letters written by Serbs, Americans, French, and British on the spot.

The wife of a Serbian doctor writes: "My husband, who was among the first to take up arms against the Germans, and is, as you know, an ardent Socialist, was arrested and condemned to 10 years at hard work. They charged him with collaboration with Germany, and they know that he risked his life working against them here. He protested, however, against the Red violence, and that was the real reason they have deported him."

An American woman who returned to Athens the first of October writes from there: "I found Belgrade physically in better shape than I expected. But you couldn't see your old friends. I heard nothing but dreadful tales of people we know being shot and deported. We had to be careful not to get people into trouble by calling on them. The wife of our old landlord said her husband was arrested. My old maid told me she heard the husband was shot, but the wife doesn't yet know about that."

Church Property Taken

A French officer's wife says, "How depressing it is to see what old friends still survive in such a terrible situation. The war against the church has been most ruthless. Church property has been taken, Catholic priests arrested without reason, and even those dying not allowed to see priests. Pressure is made on people not to go to church, and religious marriages have been annulled."

The same correspondent, however, mentions that a weekly opposition newspaper, Democratie, is being published in Belgrade, but the government is trying to stop its circulation. Any one selling the Democratie is not allowed to sell any other newspapers. Milan Grol, opposition leader, is the publisher, it was stated.

According to another correspondent, agrarian reform is aimed at the impoverishment and liquidation of the bourgeois. "Not only are they taking property away, and denying civil rights to the former owners, but they are making people pay taxes on land they no longer own or can use."

Living Under "Mad Rule"

"Nearly all the owners of factories operating under occupation," another writer says, "have been shot or interned as collaborators.

"Class hatred is boiling over. Smash, burn, and kill is all they know. They have even thrown food supplies into the Danube, and killed farm stock and left the animals to rot in the fields, to vent their hatreds. With people starving, this gives an example of the intelligence of the mad rule we are living under."

From Geneva came this letter of a recent visitor to Budapest: "Your friends have been arrested and deported by the Russians. I realize it is useless to do anything. Every one feels so helpless and hopeless."

On Oct. 14, one correspondent, not a Bulgarian, wrote from Sofia: "Our house has been grabbed by the Communists and we don't know if they are paying us rent or not. The crimes being committed can never be told—they are too many and horrible."

SCIENCE AND SHORTAGES

The bugaboo of exhaustion of American petroleum resources has been with us for more than a generation. Most of the prophets of early exhaustion have been proved by time to be false, but nevertheless our oil reserves are not inexhaustible and the problem of wise use of domestic resources and fair distribution of petroleum resources elsewhere in the world is of primary importance.

After our war time rationing experiences no one needs further demonstration of the completeness with which our whole economic structure, and to a considerable extent our social structure also, depend on cheap and abundant supplies of motor fuel. It is heartening to know that even if petroleum were to vanish from the earth we would still have plenty of motor fuel at a price.

Dr. Robert E. Wilson, chairman of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, testified recently before the O'Mahoney special senate committee investigating petroleum resources. He confessed that he could not predict whether our resources will always be sufficient to meet our demands. Nevertheless, he assured the committee, we shall always have motor fuel. We can get motor fuel from oil shales and oil sands and we can make it from coal. All of these basic materials are, by comparison with petroleum itself, inexhaustible. If we have to turn to them we shall have to pay more for our gasoline.

One synthetic process, using natural gas, can compete on a cost basis with petroleum and could, if necessary, produce half a million barrels of gasoline a day, about 30 per cent of our pre-war consumption. Gasoline can be made by a hydrogenation process from low grade coal, but it would cost 10 to 15 cents a gallon more than gasoline now costs us at the refinery. Dr. Wilson points out that such gasoline was the mainstay of the nazi army until our air force knocked out the plants. The Fischer process for making synthetic gasoline he thinks even more promising. It was greatly advanced during the war and can now use as a raw material the lignite, or brown coal, which we have in immense quantities in the Dakotas and other western states. Costs under this process would exceed the present refinery cost by at least 5 or 6 cents a gallon, which would double the cost, tho not the price to the motorist.

It is unlikely that we shall ever again have any long term shortages of materials essential to our civilization. Science is too adept at developing substitutes, providing it is given time to solve the problems. We know, for instance, that the high grade iron ore in the Lake Superior ranges will not last more than 15 to 25 years at current rates of consumption, even if it were possible to extract it all in that period, which it is not.

But taconite, the rock which overlies the virtually pure deposits of iron oxide of Minnesota, is itself an ore containing about 30 per cent iron. It is commonly discarded as refuse today, but it could be reduced in blast furnaces. The difficulty is that it would take two tons of coal to produce the same amount of iron from taconite that one ton would produce from iron ore. Nevertheless, the Hermann Goering iron works in Austria used ore that was not much richer.

We shall always be able to keep our civilization rolling, but in some instances at a higher cost. The principal effect of those higher costs would be to make our products so expensive as to bar them from international trade, provided other nations retain supplies of cheaper and richer raw materials. We have greatly depleted our natural resources to win the war. A primary concern of our foreign policy must be to see that we have equal access to those resources in other parts of the world.

FOOLING THE VETERANS

Congress has another proposal before it for aid to veterans in readjusting themselves to civilian life. It's a fake, just as most of the provisions of the original GI bill of rights, which this proposal is designed to amend, are a fake.

The fakery doesn't apply to any large extent to the educational provisions of the present act. A boy getting out of the army, who wants to continue his education, can get substantial assistance from the government. If he wants to buy a home or a farm, he can get some assistance, altho it is so bound up in red tape that in many instances it isn't worth the trouble of applying for it. But if he wants to borrow money to start a business or buy a business, the GI bill of rights is 100 per cent fake and the proposed amendments to "liberalize" such loans don't get rid of the fakery.

The OWI did a good job of fooling the soldiers about the GI bill. It told them that if they wanted to start a business when they got out of the army the government would guarantee up to $2,000 of a $4,000 loan. The impression was given, and is firmly held by many soldiers, that this means that if there is any loss on the loan the government will stand the first 50 per cent of it. If this were true, banks and other lending agencies would be willing to take a chance even on loans to men whose experience raises doubts as to their chances of success in the business they have chosen. But it isn't true.

The joker in the bill can be found in the following lines: "Provided, that the liability under the guarantee shall decrease or increase pro rata with any decrease or increase of the amount of the unpaid portion of the obligation." That means that if a veteran borrows $4,000 and pays off $1,000 of it, $500 will go to the government and $500 to the private lender. If he defaults on the loan, the private debtor stands half the loss and the government an equal amount. There isn't any real guarantee. All the government has said to the local banker is, "If you will take the risk on this man, we will take an equal risk, but no more, and we won't guarantee you a penny against your losses."

What this amounts to is that if a veteran is a good risk, a bank will lend him and not bother with the red tape of a meaningless guarantee. If he's a good risk for $2,000, he's a good risk for $4,000, providing the business requires that much capital. But if he isn't a good risk, the bank isn't going to lend him anything, because it is still responsible to its depositors not to lose their money on bad loans, and the GI bill doesn't give it an iota of protection.

It may be questioned whether the public obligation to veterans extends so far as a guarantee of loans which are too risky for private lenders. But there is no question that it is a dirty trick to assure the veteran that the government is going to give him loan guarantees which in fact it doesn't give him, either under existing law or under the law as it is proposed that it be amended.

WHEN THE KHAN DIED

Seven hundred and four years ago central Europe suffered a blitzkrieg which surpassed anything Hitler did in Poland or France. The invaders were the Mongol horde, founded by Genghis Khan.

Genghis in his lifetime conquered Asia from China to the Ural mountains. His sons and grandsons ruled more of the world than any other conqueror ever has. In 1241 A. D. Genghis had been dead for 14 years. His son, Ogotai, ruled the Mongol horde and the Mongol empire from Karakorum, in the Gobi desert.

Between 1238 and the autumn of 1240 the Golden Horde overran Russia and southern Poland, from the Volga to the Carpathians. By the spring of the following year the chivalry of western Europe had been rallied to repulse the invaders, whom Europeans knew as Tatars. Within two months the Mongols, in a lightning campaign, destroyed three major armies and a dozen minor forces and overran all of central Europe as far as the Elbe and the shores of the Adriatic.

Suddenly they vanished into the Asiatic steppes, never to return. Harold Lamb, the historian of the Mongol conquerors, tells why.

"No second Tours saved western Europe from inevitable disaster," he says. "Its armies, capable only of moving in a mass, led by reigning monarchs as incapable as Bela [of Hungary] or St. Louis of France, were valiant enough, but utterly unable to prevail against the rapidly maneuvering Mongols, led by generals such as Subotai and Mangu and Kaidu—veterans of a lifetime of war on two continents. A courier from Karakorum brought the Mongols the tidings of Ogotai's death and a summons to return to the Gobi."

Stalin, for the first time during his dictatorship, did not appear at the Moscow celebration of the anniversary of the Red revolution. Rumors of his failing health are heard everywhere. One explanation offered for the mysterious softening of Red policy in the Hungarian election has been that the Red generals are anxious to return to Moscow while their laurels are still fresh, in order to participate in the expected struggle for power.

Soviet Russia is heir not only to the territories of the Mongol horde, but to Mongol blood and Mongol treachery and ruthlessness. Another gathering of the clan at the death of a dictator may give western Europe another respite from an eastern menace.

NEWSPAPER ETHICS IN MONTREAL

In Montreal, Canada, the city administration appropriates about $10,000 a year for the purpose of distributing gratuities of $900 apiece to reporters for the various Montreal newspapers who cover the city government. The expense is charged to advertising. City hall reporters and their editors deny, however, that this practice places the writers under any obligation to city officials. News of the city government, they say, is handled for what it is worth.

The explanation may be taken with a grain of salt, for the Montreal city hall reporters themselves explain that stories which the city administration wants emphasized are handled at such length as to make it unnecessary for the city to buy advertising space. The quid pro quo probably goes beyond that. The politicians who are responsible for the bounty must expect tender treatment from the reporters.

Canada, lacking any constitutional guarantee of a free press, may be accustomed to something less than strict objectivity in the treatment of news. In the United States, whatever the imperfections of the press, the outlook is different. Any reporter who was found by his managing editor to be taking money or favors from any man in public life would be looking for a job in some other business the same day. American newspapers have become so scrupulous in such matters that for many years now sports writers have refused to accept traveling expenses which in earlier days professional baseball clubs were accustomed to grant them.

If American editors and publishers felt that, even unconsciously, reports of something as harmless as a ball game might be colored out of a sense of indebtedness, what must Canadian readers think of political news served up to them by reporters who are beholden to the politicians who figure in that news?

Molotov is a Communist party name, meaning "the Hammer." If the Democratic party had a similar custom, Mr. Byrnes would probably be best known, after London, as "the Anvil." — St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

DISASTER AT PEARL HARBOR

[Following is an address delivered last night by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of The Tribune, and broadcast on the Chicago Theater of the Air over W-G-N, WGNB, and the Mutual Broadcasting system.]

BY COL. ROBERT R. McCORMICK

On the morning of Dec. 7, 1941, the Pearl Harbor fleet was divided into three squadrons. The aircraft carrier Enterprise was returning from Wake Island, where she had left a few marine fighters; the aircraft carrier Lexington was on the way to Midway with a few airplanes. They were accompanied by cruisers and destroyers.

These large squadrons were taking to Midway and Wake a handful of planes and flyers which could just as well have been delivered by any small cargo ship. The fleets were ordered to fire upon any Japanese craft encountered.

There are two other mysteries in connection with this expedition. Ensign John H. L. Vogt, scouting north of Adm. Halsey's flagship, reported sighting a fleet thru the overcast. His report was not confirmed. As he was killed the next day, he is unable to testify to what he saw. Adm. Halsey was under strict orders for radio silence and, therefore, could not apprise Adm. Kimmel of the report. I have not ascertained who ordered the carrier expeditions or the radio silence.

If our carriers had been informed the night before of the location of the Jap carriers they might have bombed them before the Jap bombers had taken off. Nothing else could have saved our battleships. We all now know that anti-aircraft fire alone cannot stop bombers, but the navy did not know it then. Some 200 airplanes of all types on Oahu, many of them obsolete, so far from stopping the Jap bombers, were too few to have defeated the Japanese fighters.

As we know, airplanes that had left the carrier Enterprise for shore were surprised on running into the Japanese attack. Planes coming from San Francisco were in worse case, as they were not even armed.

The third carrier in the Pacific, the U. S. S. Saratoga, was in San Diego for repairs.

The value of radar had not penetrated the conceptions of the high ranking officers of the navy and army at that time. Men were being instructed in its use and it was employed from 4 to 7 in the morning. A soldier seeking to equip himself for radar duty was practicing on it at Opana station at 7:02 a. m. when he detected a large number of planes a little east of north about 136 miles distant. He informed the officer in command at the information center what he had perceived, but this officer did not take the information seriously.

The destroyer Ward, returning from a mission, sighted a Japanese submarine in the vicinity of Pearl Harbor and sank it about an hour before the Japanese planes arrived at the island. The captain of the Ward reported his action, but the navy staff kept the matter secret, fearing that he had sunk an American submarine.

Earlier than that, two Japanese midget submarines had entered Pearl Harbor over the submarine net, which was designed only to keep out standard size submarines. Our navy did not know of or imagine the midget size. One of these submarines made a complete tour of the harbor all around Ford Island, noted the positions of all the principal ships, and then left the harbor. It is surprising that after this extraordinary piece of seamanship, the submarine should have been run ashore on the open ocean. The other submarine remained in the harbor and was destroyed during the battle.

Tied up mostly in pairs at Pearl Harbor were the battleships Arizona, Oklahoma, California, Nevada, West Virginia, Maryland, and Tennessee and the target ship Utah. The battleship Pennsylvania was in drydock. In the harbor or in drydock were seven cruisers, 28 destroyers, and a great many auxiliary craft.

The subject is avoided in the Pearl Harbor reports, but it is obvious that the navy thought these battleships were safe. Their indoctrination was that, strung out with intervals of not less than 500 yards between ships, rolling in the sea, receiving artillery fire from enemy battleships, and attacks from enemy destroyers and submarines, they could still shoot down hostile aviation.

How safe it must then have seemed with the ships on a completely even keel, tied up stem to stern, some of them in pairs, like fortresses, and surrounded by many cruisers and destroyers, all able to concentrate on the enemy airplanes. They thought such a concentrated fire would shoot down anything that could be put against us.

The Japanese attack began about 7:50.

There was a dawn patrol of seven navy planes in the air as the Japanese came in, but they do not appear to have noticed the Japanese. The Japanese were not even seen until they actually began their attack.

The first attack was delivered at the navy flying boat base and was immediately followed by attacks on all of the air fields. On these fields all of the army and navy aviation was parked in orderly lines to be the more readily protected from sabotage by a complete cordon of sentries. They were thus lined up the most perfect way to be destroyed by the Japanese machine gunners.

The runways, hangars, and repair shops were all bombed, while most of the planes were riddled with tracer bullets and burned. After completing their mission of destruction, the Japanese fighters joined their torpedo planes and bombers in attacking our ships.

The Japanese torpedo planes and bombers came in from all directions—the torpedo planes first—and struck all of the battleships in the outer row before our anti-aircraft fire was opened. The attackers had planned skilfully, level bombers giving protection to dive bombers and fighters distracting the American anti-aircraft fire. The consequence was that within 45 minutes the Arizona had been blown up; the Oklahoma capsized; all of the other battleships in the water seriously damaged. The battleship Pennsylvania and three destroyers in the drydock were thoroly bombed. The damage to our fleet consisted of:

Six battleships, the Arizona, the Oklahoma, the West Virginia, the California, the Nevada, the Utah [a target ship]; two destroyers, the Cassin and the Shaw, and a floating drydock sunk.

Three battleships, the Pennsylvania, the Maryland, and the Tennessee; three light cruisers, the Helena, the Honolulu, and the Raleigh; the destroyer Downes; the seaplane tender Curtiss; the repair ship Vestal, and the minelayer Ogala damaged but afloat.

In achieving this tremendous victory the Japanese say they lost 29 airplanes.

Great heroism was displayed by all hands. Particular distinction attaches to a naval reservist, Lt. Comdr. Francis J. Thomas, temporarily in command of the Nevada. He was the only officer to get a battleship away from the dock.

After the attack, our navy believed that between 100 and 150 Japanese planes had been used, flown from three carriers. Recent information from Japan discloses that the Japanese squadron consisted of two battleships, three cruisers, 16 destroyers, eight tankers, and six large carriers. A total of 350 planes left the fleet some 200 miles north of Pearl Harbor.

They believed they had sunk four battleships and damaged four battleships and that they had wrecked about half of the 900 planes supposed to be on the island.

Shortly after the battle of Pearl Harbor the Japanese took Wake and Guam Islands, but failed to take Midway. That neglect, if it did not cost them the war that would have been lost anyway, greatly facilitated its end because, when trying to take the island six months later, four of the Pearl Harbor carriers were lost, constituting a large step in the attrition that was to destroy the Japanese navy.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

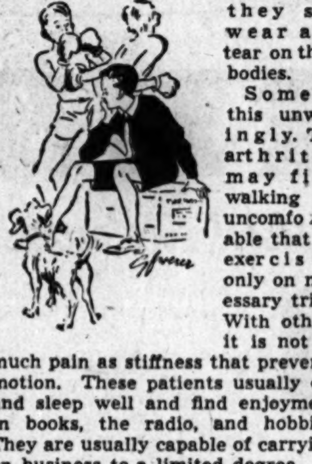
A CHRONIC DISORDER MAY LENGTHEN LIFE

A CHRONIC disease does not necessarily shorten life. On the contrary, many victims of an irreparable disorder often take good care of it and in so doing add years to their normal span.



By sparing themselves they save wear and tear on their bodies.

Some do this unwillingly. The arthritic may find walking so uncomfortable that he exercises only on necessary trips. With others it is not so much pain as stiffness that prevents motion. These patients usually eat and sleep well and find enjoyment in books, the radio, and hobbies. They are usually capable of carrying on business to a limited degree.

A better example is heart disease. Since there are many types, great variation exists in the degree of disability. The outlook depends upon the nature of the defect, its severity, age of inception, and the ability to adjust to a more sedentary manner of living. Altho the sufferer has no control over the first three factors, he can influence the fourth.

Let us suppose that a young man encounters rheumatic fever and is left with a leakage of the pumping apparatus. What procedures will help him to reach an average expectancy? In the first place, his malady originated from an infection, most likely tonsillitis. It behooves him to make every effort to discourage recurrences. This can be done by maintaining resistance at par thru sufficient food and rest. He should keep at a respectful distance from those with colds; and the taking of small doses of one of the sulfonamides will act as a supplementary barrier.

The second step is to avoid overexertion. It would be folly to take up a trade in which excessive physical labor is required. He must make his livelihood with brain and not brawn. If he had lost a leg or an arm no other possibility would be logical.

The child who is afflicted must be made to realize that he is somewhat handicapped. Competitive sports are not permitted but milder forms of play can be indulged in safely. With such a program there is no reason why he should lead a dull life and he can be just as happy and content as a normal youngster so long as he minds his p's and q's.

Those who develop cardiac trouble in later decades as a result of hardening of the arteries, including high blood pressure and coronary thrombosis, may have to change or modify their occupation. The excitement of business must be removed. Exertion should certainly be kept below the level which brings on symptoms. Respiratory infections increase the burden and consequently must be shunned. Excesses of all kinds are taboo. The diet should be adequate, well balanced, and of such caloric value that weight is not gained.

These individuals should not decide that they are on the ash heap. In spite of certain curtailments, enthusiasm and cheerfulness need not be lost. Boredom is an indication of lack of ingenuity.

PARASITIC INFECTION

Mrs. S. A. writes: A service man, just back from the Pacific, tells us he has schistosomiasis? What is this disease?

REPLY

Infection with a parasite called a "blood fluke," which usually gains entrance to the body of those who swim in water harboring the invader. It is of tropical origin.

RECURRING INFECTION

Mrs. F. writes: Every year my daughter develops erysipelas. What do you make of this?

REPLY

This is a strep infection. Most of us harbor these germs in our bodies, but if resistance is maintained they do not get the upper hand. In your daughter's case, removal of the focus seems indicated, as well as building up her vitality.

A CYSTIC SWELLING

D. F. writes: What is a weeping sinew?

REPLY

This term is sometimes used to designate ganglion, or cyst on the back of the hand.

STUPEFIED

L. S. writes: What is "Saturday night palsy?"

REPLY

This term has been applied to a type of paralysis in which an inebriated person falls into a heavy slumber with one arm over the back of a chair. The nerves are pinched for so long that on awakening he is unable to move the extremity.

JERKY MUSCLES

K. S. writes: Can St. Vitus' dance occur in the abdomen?

REPLY

Since all of the muscles of the body may be afflicted there is no reason why those in the abdomen should be exempt. But the response in this region is naturally not as obvious as in the face or extremities.

HAIR TALLY

O. V. writes: What is the average number of hairs on the scalp?

REPLY

I never counted them, but McCarthy gives the following figures: Blond, 140,000; brunet, 102,000; and, redhead, 88,000.

BLOOD DOTS

J. K. L. writes: What causes tiny blood pimples to appear on the body?

REPLY

Pinpoint hemorrhagic spots may appear in many conditions including infections, blood diseases, and wasting disorders.

VETERAN'S RETURN

Chicago, Nov. 2—The alleged assistance of America to its returning war veterans is turning to mockery as they reach for it. Prices of houses have gone so high that GI loans are not approved. In the cities with large schools only residents of the locality can utilize GI scholarships. There is no place for out of town students to live. Veterans and families roam the streets in rising numbers, looking for the long dreamed of place where they can live together again. All of this while legislative and public relations mills still grind air on "the service man's problems."

The present housing crisis was not unforeseeable or unforeseen. It has been in the cards since building stopped in 1929; the shortage became acute during the war. Then: did any one ask where the men who were then living in tents and in the ground were going to live with their families when they returned?

The war veteran has not been involved in a merely personal war during the years he has spent in foreign lands, but in a war for all of this America to which he comes home, homeless. And he wonders: What kind of a war has been fought in the name of his existence, while he could not be present?

VETERAN AND FAMILY IN THE STREETS

DEFENDS DR. TICE

Oak Park, Ill., Oct. 31—I am taking the liberty of writing you with reference to the many articles about Dr. Frederick Tice which have appeared recently in your publication. In writing this letter to you, I am expressing the unanimous opinion of large groups of club women, that while you published nothing really libelous, the implications were definitely daring. Stress was laid upon his age, his political affiliations, and the inference that he was negligent in the fulfilment of his duties at the Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium. I am sure that is not true. If you were to print a column enumerating his many wonderful benevolences, his charitable services, and the vast fund of knowledge which he has made available to the public, you would be doing humanity a great good and doing justice to Dr. Tice. His ability, integrity, and experience are highly respected by thousands of physicians as well as laymen, and these virtues are only acquired by maturity.

DAISY B. BOLSTEAD

THE MISSING HEROES

Chicago, Oct. 29—Let me congratulate you on the Parrish cartoon of Saturday with Delos Avery's "Hymn for Navy Day." Torpedo squadron 8 was on the carrier Hornet and my son, Deering, knew those boys. From what he has told me, I gather that one of his worst experiences on board was the first meal after that battle, when he went to his usual seat in the ward room and on each side of him were the empty chairs of the members of this squadron. For the next meal the chairs had all been removed, but that first meal must have been a horror.

CHAUNCEY McCORMICK

WAGES AND PURCHASING POWER

Oak Park, Ill., Oct. 19—The "common man" yells bloody murder for his "rights." What rights? Should a man who wants to loaf be paid for doing so? Or a man who isn't able to perform other than menial tasks be paid royal wages? Or be paid as much in peace time for 40 hours as he received in war time for 52, particularly when his war time wage was at an all-time high?

If this goes on labor will find itself being paid $1,000 a week and not able to buy a loaf of bread under $2,000. We'll see how they like that.

COMMON MAN

SMOKED OUT

Fort Sheridan, Ill., Oct. 24—Being annoyed while riding a North Shore train by smoke coming from cigarets smoked by high school and college girls, I asked the conductor if smoking is allowed on the trains. He replied, "No, but you can smoke if you want to. People do." Among the many urgent and perplexing problems now being faced by men who fought thru hell and high water in the war, what are we to do now about being smoked out by the new crop of smoking girls?

WM. A. COCKERELL

THEY'LL GET EVEN

Oak Lawn, Ill., Nov. 4—The boys sitting out on those Pacific islands waiting for transportation home are in an uproar about this point system and demobilization. Golly, I pity all the bigwigs in Washington when election time comes up. There's going to be several million GIs remembering what our representatives did not do for us.

HAROLD T. LOFTUS

METAMORPHOSIS

Fairfield, Ill., Oct. 30—No longer does the expression "old maid" have any relationship to sex, age, or lack of marital bliss. The new Webster's dictionary defines it as a "fussy, nervous type of person, especially a man."

VEDA A. BALLEIN

WHAT'S HIS SECURITY?

Chicago, Oct. 23—What about a short lesson in economics before we hand the British $6,000,000,000—under the threat of a trade war and what have you. [Please take notice: Halifax has not said that there will not be a trade war, anyway].

Money in itself does not produce a return. It is the industry and the integrity of the borrower that makes money worth lending. Therefore, the danger in giving money away is that it will not serve its purpose, that the borrower will grab it and, having no obligations to really put it to work, he will fail to do so. In this instance the net loss to every man, woman and child in the United States would be approximately $45—plus the trade war.

Here is an example of a borrower who put his loan to work. During the period 1848-1864 there were two wars between the Danes and the Germans. The Danes lost the latter. They were flat broke. Their politicians were as active with recovery schemes as politicians are today. But something happened to the minds of the farmers.

They huddled in groups and sent petitions to the government asking for the right to pool their land values and sell shares [or bonds] against the total of first mortgages. Against this the farmers pledged mutual responsibility for the payments, backed with full 5/5 of assessed value. The bondholders would have security for prompt payments—nothing else—no control over the affairs of the group issuing the bonds.

Today there is hardly a farm in Denmark that is not financed according to that pattern. Original mortgages, held at usurious interest, were paid off in full. Investors' risk was as good as totally eliminated. The bonds were sold in foreign countries, and interest paid thru banks all over the world. The Danes provided the integrity, and money flowed to the country all by itself.

When Lord Halifax and his retinue will furnish this kind of security, we should be happy to do business with him. But he is in a hurry—lest we gain time to think things over.

N. B. MADSEN

DISABILITY ALLOWANCES

Menominee, Wis., Oct. 21—Very few people know about the extreme difference in civilian disability payments to former officers and enlisted men, but undoubtedly Gen. Bradley, the veterans' administrator, does. The Oct. 21 issue of THE TRIBUNE shows a picture of the general shaking hands with a sergeant who has had both legs amputated. The sergeant will receive some compensation, possibly 50 per cent of the maximum allowed for enlisted men, in which case he will be paid $62.50 a month. A former captain with only a minor disability will receive $187.50 a month —three times as much for as little as one-fifth the injury. And this after they are both civilians.

E. H. BROOKS

70 CENTS A LETTER

Oaklawn, Ill., Oct. 30—Why must I and my son, now that he has as his address Tsingtao, China, instead of F. P. O., pay 70 cents, instead of 6 cents as heretofore, for air mail? The Chicago postoffice notifies me that where a geographic location appears in an address, the regular air mail rate is applicable.

MRS. L. W.

A VICTORIOUS ENEMY POWER

Chicago, Oct. 30—Our foreign policy toward the main axis enemies—Germany, Italy, and Japan—has been one of severe treatment on a long range program. Huge armies of occupation are being maintained, directives have been issued prohibiting GI fraternization with the natives, Gen. Patton has publicly been reprimanded for alleged leniency toward certain nazi elements, a hard armistice has been imposed on Italy, and we are even inclined to criticize a great general like MacArthur for alleged "softness" toward the Japs.

An exception to this rule seems to be made in the case of the axis satellite, Bulgaria, which has fought us twice in our generation, which tortured and almost lynched American flyers when they were forced down there while on their way to the Romanian oil fields, which massacred 54,974 Greeks in the last war, wiped out entirely at least six Greek towns and villages in Grecian Thrace and Macedonia, and which inflicted unspeakable atrocities on a conquered and helpless Greek populace.

Our state department is said to have adopted Red Russia's Slavic policy of treating Bulgaria, not as a defeated enemy, but as a favorite child. President Truman's own emissary obviously enjoys a belated manifestation of Bulgarian pro-Americanism in Sofia. Bulgaria, being a nonmaritime nation with the Danube river on her entire northern border and several first class sea outlets on the Black sea, has herself demanded only one Aegean sea outlet thru the Greek port of Dedeagatch. Our state department, however, is said to favor giving her three such outlets thru the Greek ports of Dedeagatch, Cavalla, and Salonika, at the expense of Greece. Our state department is also said to favor the status quo on the Greco-Bulgarian border, which is advantageous for aggression against Greece. Our state department is said to be also in favor of payment of reparations by Bulgaria to Greece for only "actual damages" and provided the former is given credit for "improvements" made by her on the occupied Greek territory. This is certainly a novel doctrine of international justice and morality; and Japan, Germany, and Italy should take notice and send in their bills!

It is incomprehensible that our state should propose to reward a common defeated enemy and to punish a faithful friend and ally.

"ALMOST DESPERATE"

Chicago, Nov. 7 — I am a married woman and have three children. Their ages are 11 months, 2, and 3 years. 1. Their father left me a year ago last October and thru friends I've been helped with food and with clothing for myself and the children. My husband was employed in Chicago, but has been transferred to an out of town branch of the company for which he works. I have written several letters to the company without success. 2. I have employed a lawyer and with the aid of friends have been able to give him $25 to start divorce proceedings. Because of the children, I cannot go back to work to earn the money to pay the balance which will be due the lawyer when the divorce is granted. 3. Can you advise me as to the children's support? I haven't received any money from my husband since he left and I'm almost desperate. 4. Does any law provide that my husband pay for the support of the children?

J. T.

1. Wife abandonment is an extraditable offense He could be brought back.
2. He is in a better position to advise you than we are.
3. The husband is obliged to support his children, if that is what you mean to ask. The chances of collecting depend on his assets and income.
4. If you take a divorce here, on notice by publication and mailing, this will not support an alimony order and it will bar you from subsequent claiming alimony, but it will not affect his continuing obligation to your children.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT

Friend of the YANKS

[The Friend of the Yanks will answer questions of service men, veterans, and their dependents by mail if stamped envelope is sent to 435 N. Michigan av. The Tribune's veterans' bureau, 1 S. Dearborn st., Superior 0200, gives personal interviews.]

P. L. J. writes: "I have been in the army for more than three years as a member of the medical corps. I worked for three years as a dental technician. Would it be possible for me to attend dental school under the GI bill even tho I was not attending school at the time I was drafted? Does a soldier have to be discharged before he is eligible for a loan under the bill? If so how does he go about getting the loan to buy a home."

If you were under 25 at the time you were inducted your education is presumed to have been interrupted by your military service and you are entitled to four years of education—one year for service in excess of 90 days plus additional time equal to the length of your service, not to exceed four years total. You will have to apply for admittance to a dental school and be able to qualify as a student. The first step is to get a certificate of eligibility from the veterans administration. You must have a discharge before you may apply for a government guaranteed loan to buy a home. The first step is to obtain a certificate of eligibility from the veterans administration and the next is to find a bank or other lending agency or individual willing to lend the money to you. As the law now stands the price you pay for the property must not exceed the reasonable normal value and you may not pay more than 4 per cent interest on the loan. If a maximum loan of $4,000 is obtained the government will guarantee repayment of half of it and pay the interest on the guaranteed half for the first year.

RED CROSS CHIEF REPORTS FREE HAND IN RUSSIA

Field Directors Say They Meet No Interference

BY LARRY RUE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Nov. 10—Basil O'Connor, chairman of the central committee of the American Red Cross, told a press conference at the Hotel Scribe today that field directors report ARC personnel supervising civilian relief in Russia and Poland are allowed freedom of movement in conducting their job. Civilian relief is sent only to countries who ask for it and agree to give the Red Cross freedom to see that the supplies are distributed where needed.

"The operations are going well," O'Connor said, "and there are no reports whatever to indicate that any supplies are being lost or stolen."

O'Connor is here on an inspection tour as well as to attend a conference of the International League of Red Cross Societies, which is electing officers here next week and preparing the program for a convention next spring.

"Of some 50 eligible nations, 48 are already sending delegates," he said.

Russian Delegate Invited

Russia was invited to send a delegate, but O'Connor said he did not know whether the invitation was accepted.

He explained that the ARC activities are increasing in Germany while closing down in Britain, France, and elsewhere as the troops are evacuated. "We are closing out no place until the army gives the word," he said, "but we are not continuing activities in any place longer than necessary."

In Germany there are already 162 Red Cross clubs and probably there will be more under the long term plan.

Among the problems now being ironed out by the military government is whether German girls will be allowed to serve, as they are in some places, doughnuts and coffee to American soldiers.

2,750 on Staff Now

Altogether the plan for Germany and Austria envisages employment of 1,900 American personnel. The peak figure for the continent was 3,009, now reduced to 2,750. The budget for 1945-46 calls for expenditure of 15 million dollars on service for the troops and 10 million dollars worth of supplies will be distributed for civilian relief in France, Belgium, and Holland during December to March, when conditions are expected to be toughest.

Besides Poland, Russia, France, Belgium, Netherlands, Luxemburg, and Austria, the ARC is providing relief in Italy, Scandinavia, and the Balkans.

This relief work, O'Connor said, in no way conflicts with the UNRRA activities. Red Cross civilian war relief for allied displaced persons in Germany was terminated in August, when UNRRA assumed that responsibility.

POLAND SEIZES FIVE FOR TRYING TO FORM PARTY

Limits Field to Six Already Formed

WARSAW, Poland, Nov. 8 [Delayed] (AP)—The national council of the homeland, Poland's legislative body, refused today to authorize the creation of new political parties, thus limiting official recognition to the six now in existence.

Simultaneously, it was reported that five of the seven men who petitioned President Boleslaw Bierut to recognize the "National party" had been seized by the secret police and accused of being Fascists.

The council's action limits official sanction to these parties: PPR [Polish Workers], PPS [Polish Socialists], PSL [Polish Peasant], SL [Peasant party], the Democratic party and the Stronnictwo Pracy [a labor party].

The governmental organ Zycie Warszawy said those who desired to establish new parties were representatives of "Polish fascism."

The men who proposed the establishment of the "National party" based its principles on the old Nationalist party headed by the late Ignace Jan Paderewski. In their petition they contended that their party's program stood for "true democracy as practiced by the western powers."

Marshal Michael Rola Zymierski, commander in chief of the Polish army, told the army newspaper Polska Zbrojna the nation intended to maintain a peace time army of more than 250,000.

He said this represented a drastic cut from the 30 infantry divisions and 40 cavalry regiments Poland had in 1939.

RENEWS EFFORT FOR SETTLEMENT OF STEEL ROW

Meeting on Wages Asked by Schwellenbach

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10 (AP)—Labor Secretary Schwellenbach renewed efforts tonight to bring the United States Steel corporation and CIO steel workers together to discuss wage terms.

Schwellenbach refused to take "no" for an answer from Benjamin F. Fairless, president of the United States Steel, in response to his request for conciliation meetings with the steel workers and Special Conciliator Arthur S. Meyer.

Sends Another Letter

Schwellenbach's first request, last Saturday, was rejected by Fairless. The secretary sent another letter to Fairless saying "I have decided to reiterate my invitation of Nov. 3" to attend the meeting Nov. 14.

Fairless said that before he could accept the proposal to discuss the union's $2 daily wage increase demand the OPA should act on the corporation's request that higher prices be granted and should give assurance of further increases to cover whatever wage demands were granted.

The UAW executive board tonight authorized action as they "see fit" by negotiating committees in each of the Big Three plants in Detroit—General Motors, Chrysler, and Ford. Thus the individual units apparently would be in position to deal alone should a counter-proposal appear that is attractive.

The union's demands will be discussed next Thursday by a strategy committee headed by UAW President R. J. Thomas and the union's vice presidents.

Windsor Parley Fails

WINDSOR, Ont., Nov. 10 (AP)—The problem of settling the prolonged strike at the Ford Motor company of Canada appeared headed for the dominion cabinet at Ottawa today as further government efforts to mediate ended in failure.

Humphrey Mitchell, Canadian minister of labor, left for Ottawa by plane after four days of conferences with Ford officials and strike leaders.

Mitchell said he probably would not return here but would report, without recommendations, to the dominion cabinet.

Strike Gains Momentum

His departure came as more support for the Ford strike, which with sympathy walkouts here already has virtually paralyzed the city's industrial operations, was gaining momentum.

The joint policy committee of the striking CIO United Automobile Workers began making plans for a one day work stoppage of all CIO members thruout Canada, and invited all AFL unions in Canada to join in the "holiday." An estimated 300,000 workers would be affected.

During his stay here, Mitchell obtained a company proposal for arbitration but the offer was turned down by the union's joint policy committee.

Willing to Submit Demands

Roy England, president of UAW-CIO Local 200, which represents Ford workers, said the union would be willing to submit all demands except union security to arbitration. Others include dues, check-off, wage increases, and a guaranteed annual wage.

In addition to the 10,000 Ford strikers, who walked out two months ago, some 8,500 workers in small plants have been idle for a week in sympathy work stoppages.

Back Lumber Strike

Portland, Ore., Nov. 10 (AP)—Oregon and southwestern Washington teamsters backed up the AFL lumber strike today with a resolution to handle no more CIO produced timber.

The announcement was made by the joint council of drivers, which represents all of Oregon and five southwest Washington counties.

The council, affiliated with the AFL International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen and Helpers of America voted unanimously that "from this day and on and until settlement of the strike" it would refuse to "handle in any manner any lumber or timber manufactured or delivered by any firms or operators who may have labor contracts with CIO unions or their affiliates."

The demand in the 48 day old strike is for a $1.10 hourly minimum and a 20 cent wage increase.

NLRB SENDING 15,000 STRIKE BALLOTS TO AREA TRUCK DRIVERS

The regional national labor relations board yesterday was mailing strike vote ballots to more than 15,000 over-the-road truck drivers employed by 3,200 trucking firms in a dozen midwestern states.

The drivers, who operate trucks from terminal to terminal, are members of the AFL Teamsters' union grouped into the Central States Drivers' council, which is seeking a new contract providing increased wages. Efforts to draw up a new contract to replace one which expires Thursday at midnight have been futile despite assistance by the United States conciliation service, union officials said.

All ballots must be returned to the NLRB offices in Chicago before Nov. 24, when they will be counted, Martin Schneid, field examiner in charge of the vote, said. Another strike vote to be taken by mail will be held Nov. 28 among 500 teamsters employed by lumber companies in the Chicago area, Schneid said.

Navy Displays Five Cars of Weapons in Bond Drive

Three railroad flat cars and two baggage cars of navy, marine, and coast guard weapons and equipment were on display at the Union station from 8 a. m. until 9 p. m. yesterday to aid the sale of war bonds. At a ceremony in the station, Gov. Green and Mayor Kelly welcomed navy officials supervising the exhibit.

BILL DRAWN UP FOR U.S. CONTROL OF RADIO NEWS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10 (AP)—Ernest Adamson, counsel for the house committee investigating un-American activities, announced today he is drafting a bill providing for stricter supervision of radio broadcasters.

The measure, which Adamson said he was preparing for committee consideration, drew opposition from without the committee.

As Adamson explained it to reporters, his proposal would specify that:

1. Radio stations must clearly identify commentators, including an announcement whether they are reporting news or opinions.
2. Radio stations must have a legal agent in each state so they can be prosecuted thru the courts of the state by any person damaged by their broadcasts.

Control Plan Charged

Rep. Ellis E. Patterson [D., Cal.] issued a statement terming the proposal "an unconstitutional attempt to control the airways."

Adamson denied this. "We do not want to control or gag any one," he said in an interview. "We just desire to provide for closer regulation of wild, irresponsible analysts and to make a clear distinction between news and prejudiced viewpoints."

Adamson added that in reply to letters he had written the lawyers of "all but one" national radio network had agreed "there is room for improvement in the broadcasting of news and news analysis."

Supervision Proposed

"We'll have to require in some way that stations write up rules and regulations and file them with the federal communications commission and then have the FCC see that they adhere to them," Adamson said.

Adamson said a legal agent is needed "to put radio stations in the same position as newspapers when they make mistakes." He said that at present when radio broadcasts damage a person the aggrieved has to seek legal remedies in the state where the station is located.

In New York the American Broadcasting company said its views were expressed in a letter sent to Adamson Nov. 1 by Mark Woods, president of the company. The letter said, in part: "The American Broadcasting company is opposed to any attempt by the congress to restrict the freedom of expression of news commentators, whether on our own network or other networks or on individual stations."

STUDENT STRIKE IN GARY SCHOOL ENDS TOMORROW

Return Ordered After Plea of Official

Eight hundred white students in Froebel school at Gary, who have been staying away from classes for two weeks in a strike against alleged favoritism to Negro pupils, were ordered yesterday by their adult and student leaders to return to classes tomorrow.

The order was issued in response to an appeal from Dr. Clement T. Malan, Indiana state superintendent of public instruction, who conferred in Indianapolis Friday with strikers' parents.

Certain Trouble to End

"I ask all the students to return at once," Dr. Malan said. "That is the first step to take. I have no legal authority to intervene as it is a local problem. I have, however, a moral advisory problem and I am certain the situation can be worked out to the satisfaction of all."

A simultaneous statement by Leonard Levenda, 17, student leader of the strikers, voiced confidence in Dr. Malan. He called striking students to meet in Tyler park at 2:30 p. m. today to adopt a resolution calling for return to school tomorrow.

Parents Praise Malan

John Jadrnak, chairman of the Parents Committee of Thirteen, which has been supporting the strikers, and other parents who conferred with Malan, praised the state official as "capable and sincere" and advised the pupils to comply with his appeal.

Gary, Superintendent of Schools Charles D. Lutz and Principal Richard A. Nuzum of Froebel made no formal comment, but indicated that school authorities will take steps at once to improve conditions at the school, which has 2,100 elementary and high school pupils, of whom 1,000 are Negroes.

Claim Promises Broken

The white students walked out of classes Sept. 18 and stayed out for two weeks. They were called out again Oct. 29 on the ground that school authorities had backed down on promises made in an agreement that ended the first protest.

Jadrnak's group has charged that communistic influences were shaping school policies.

STUDY 2 ROUTES FOR SECTION OF SUPER-HIGHWAY

City and State Differ on Jefferson Park Link

Wesley W. Polk, chief state highway engineer, yesterday asked the city to make a study of two alternative locations for a one-mile section of the northwest super-highway. When the results are ready in about 10 days, he intends to call a meeting of principals in the project, which is to be financed by the city, state, and county.

A route proposed by the city would follow the North Western railroad tracks to Central av., at a point just south of Foster av., then go west to Higgins av., and follow that to the city limits.

The state has suggested that the super-highway follow Higgins av. from its starting point at Milwaukee av. near Lawrence av. to the city limit.

More Space for Interchange

The chief difference is that the state's proposal would take the wide expressway thru the Jefferson Park section of Chicago. Its purpose is to have more room for interchange facilities at Central and Milwaukee avs. The city concedes that its route would give less room for these facilities, but contends the space is adequate. Further, the city prefers not to cut into the sizable business district in the Jefferson Park area.

It was emphasized that the discussions on this point are exploratory and that differences of views are not adamant. No delay in the project need be feared, it was said.

President Clayton F. Smith of the county board said that state, city, and county representatives will meet Nov. 21 to discuss the highway.

Smith Tells Benefits

"We're eager to coöperate," he said. "We had the northwest super-highway in mind even before the Congress st. super-highway was on the boards. The northwest super-highway is greatly needed entirely aside from the new airport development scheduled for a site near Park Ridge.

"Growth of the northwest suburbs makes the northwest highway imperative. Then there is the great volume of traffic between Chicago and Wisconsin and Minnesota, all of which would benefit."

Talk that railroad locomotive smoke would be an annoyance to those using an expressway along the tracks was discounted by Smith. At the rate that diesel engines are coming into rail use, smoke will be a small item by the time the highway is completed several years hence, he said.

STUDENTS' BONDS NOW CAN BUY 88 HOSPITAL UNITS

Students in Illinois city and rural schools are well under way in their campaign to provide 2,413 hospital units for veterans, it was announced yesterday by Mrs. F. Russell Lyon, state chairman of public and private school bond sales, and Mrs. Leo P. Cunnings, state chairman of Catholic school sales.

Under the program, 687 public and private schools and 300 Catholic schools in the state will purchase the hospital units.

It was announced that Marie McGarry, sophomore at the Marywood school for girls, Evanston, has sold [illegible],000 worth of Victory bonds, enough to finance a complete hospital unit. Tilden High school sold $51,000 worth of bonds, for 17 hospital units; Thornton Township High school, 30 units, and Trinity High school, River Forest, 40 units.

NAVY APPROVES 78 ACTIONS FOR SERVICE STARS

Campaigns and Battles Compiled by Tribune

(The first compilation of campaign and battle stars authorized by the army and navy during World War II. has been made by The Chicago Tribune with the cooperation of the army and the navy. Families of men still overseas will find it an interesting tabulation to save for perusal when the men return. The army's list was presented last Sunday; the navy's is given today.)

BY WILLIAM STRAND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10—During the period since Pearl Harbor the army and the navy authorized 112 campaign and battle stars for their respective theater ribbons.

The navy approved 78 stars, including engagements by the fleet, the marines, and the coast guard. The army list included 34 battle honors.

In addition to the battles for which stars have been authorized, both services in special cases have permitted the wearing of additional stars for exceptionally hazardous duty or other operations not on the published lists.

No Point Credit by Navy

Navy regulations provide that an individual wearing a star must have served honorably on a ship, aircraft unit, or shore based force at the time it participated in actual combat with the enemy in one of the designated operations.

The navy does not allow any discharge credit for battle stars. The army allows five points for each star.

The complete battle list for the navy follows:

FIVE GERMANS DIE ON GALLOWS FOR KILLING U. S. FLYERS

BRUCHSAL, Germany, Nov. 10 (AP)—Five German civilians were hanged at the Bruchsal prison today for the murder of six American flyers who parachuted from a disabled plane near Ruesselsheim on Aug. 26, 1944. They were Joseph Hargen, Freidrich Wust, Johann Seipel, Johann Opper, and Philip Gulich.

Wearing German prison clothes and white skull caps, they were permitted to make last statements. Four were accompanied by Protestant clergymen and the fifth by a Catholic priest. Protesting his innocence, Hargen said he fired pistol bullets into one of the injured Americans because the American "stuck his tongue out at me." He added, "God forgive you; you do not know what you're doing."

The five were convicted at Darmstadt last July 25. Three other men and two women were sentenced to prison.

ETHRIDGE PUSHES BULGARIA SURVEY

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Nov. 9 [Delayed]—[AP]—Mark Ethridge, special investigator for Secretary of State Byrnes, continued his survey of Bulgaria today. Some newspapers had erroneously reported the he had gone to Bucharest, Romania.

BAR SECRETARY FOUND GUILTY OF STEALING FUNDS

Scranton, Pa., Nov. 10 [Special]—A jury in federal court here today convicted Harry S. Knight, Sunbury, Pa., secretary of the American Bar association, of conspiracy to misappropriate funds during the reorganization of the Central Forging company of Catawissa, Pa.

Harry S. Knight

The jury also convicted Atty. George L. Fenner Sr., Wilkes-Barre, Pa., but acquitted two other defendants, Donald M. Johnson, district attorney of Snyder county, and Homer N. Davis, Catawissa attorney.

Ex-Judge Faces Trial

Johnson is a son of former Federal Judge Albert W. Johnson, who resigned from the bench last July while under investigation by a congressional committee and the department of justice concerning fee splitting in cases under his jurisdiction.

The trial, which lasted three weeks, was held before Federal Judge William F. Smith and took place in the same courtroom where the elder Johnson presided for 20 years. Former Judge Johnson and three lawyer sons, including Donald, are under indictment on charges of conspiracy to obstruct justice and defraud the government.

Judge Smith deferred sentence until Dec. 10.

Accused of $3,000 Theft

The Central Forging company reorganization plan was approved by Judge Johnson before he left the bench and involved the sale of its assets to the Maxi Manufacturing company of Catawissa, of which Davis was secretary.

The government charged the defendants with misappropriating $3,000 from the forging company and altering its records in such a way as to indicate the $3,000 never existed. A fifth defendant, Robert Michael of Scranton, pleaded guilty, and was the government's principal witness.

Donald Johnson was accused of receiving $2,500 as an "off the record" fee split, altho he had no official connection with the reorganization proceedings.

MAP COSMIC RAY EXPLORATIONS AT U. OF ILLINOIS

Betatron May Open Vast New Field

BY ROY GIBBONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 10—Dr. Donald W. Kerst, 34, University of Illinois physicist, today was completing plans to embark on what observers believe may some day be recorded as one of the most significant explorations in history—a journey into the never-never land of science.

Kerst said, "We don't know what we will discover. But the prospects are thrilling."

No ship or other conventional travel means will carry the research worker and his colleagues on their strange journey. In fact, while making the trip, Kerst and his companions point out they will never leave the campus here as figuratively they are shot into space with the speed of light aboard a mythical chariot built of magnets and vacuum tubes powered by the electrons which are satellites of the atom.

To Explore Cosmic Ray

Lands to be visited by the strange expedition, Kerst disclosed in an interview, include the dark shores bordering an uncharted sea of the cosmic ray. There, according to scientists, energy surpassing the ability of the human mind to contemplate is being generated in the depths of interstellar space at voltage rates reaching 10 raised to the 16th power. That figure, when written out, is 10 followed by 15 zeros.

Heretofore, scientists have had to climb to mountain peaks, descend into deep mines or send up stratosphere balloons to examine the cosmic rays. But Kerst, who has just returned to the university's science faculty following a three year absence during which he aided in development of the atomic bomb in the government's secret laboratory at Los Alamos, N. M., intends to reproduce the rays artificially for close examination.

To do this he will use a betatron, a machine invented in 1940. The betatron is essentially a high powered X-ray device. It employs the energy of a huge electromagnet to whip electrons into flight at 185,000 miles a second, or within three-tenths of one per cent of the speed of light.

A 20 million volt model is in operation here. But Kerst explains the present machine will be dwarfed by the 250 million volt betatron now being designed. The larger machine, and a separate laboratory building to house it, are to be built with funds released by Gov. Green from a $1,500,000 appropriation voted by the legislature. Ground for the building may be broken within the next 90 days.

To Probe Mesatrons

Kerst said another prime objective of the scientific expedition will be to probe further into the mystery of nuclear particles called mesatrons.

These recently discovered forces are believed by some scientists to be a kind of cosmic cement holding the nuclear core of the atom intact. They will be produced by the big betatron for close hand study as part of the cosmic ray phenomenon.

A more complete understanding of mesatrons and energy of the cosmic ray, Kerst explained, may very well lead to a complete reconstruction of present scientific concepts regarding the nature of nuclear fissian [splitting] which produced the atomic bomb explosions over Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

Deep Therapy Use

Also to be explored, Kerst said, are the unknown possibilities of the big betatron as a deep therapy device for the treatment of internal cancer. Some experimental work has been done on small animals using the X-ray output of the machine for cancer study, he said. But a new field calling for the use of the electron stream emitted by the device has still to be utilized for such work, he disclosed.

'FOR SALE' SIGN ENDS ROYAL ERA IN WASHINGTON

Martha's $252,000 Home Put on Market

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10—The passing of an era of royalty in the national capital was marked today with the placing on sale of Pook's Hill, the Maryland estate of Crown Princess Martha of Norway.

The famous Tudor mansion on Rockville pike, nine miles from Washington, became the property of the Norwegian princess thru the intervention of the late President Roosevelt. The President visited the estate several times. It was one of the few homes in this area he visited.

In July, 1941, at the direction of the President, laws freezing Norwegian funds in this country were lifted so the crown princess could buy the estate from Merle Thorpe, former editor of Nation's Business, magazine of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

The purchase price was reported to be $252,000. It also was reported this included an allowance of $25,000 for redecorating the mansion and adding an addition.

A Great 'Ambassador'

Martha was known as the most successful unofficial ambassador in the United States because no other titled foreigner ever was so cordially or frequently received at the White House or the Roosevelt family estate at Hyde Park, even in years dotted with royal visits to this country. A secretary of the British embassy in the days before the United States entered the war once referred to Martha as Britain's No. 1 agent in this country.

The wife of the heir to the Norwegian throne was born in Sweden. She and her husband, Crown Prince Olaf, came to this country in 1939 and were entertained at the White House and at Hyde Park. In 1940 she came here a refugee from German occupation of Norway with her children, Prince Harald and Princesses Astrid and Ragnhild.

A White House Favorite

In a short time she became a White House favorite. Up to the President's death she was a White House guest several times a week and was at Hyde Park on almost every visit Roosevelt made there in the days when censorship concealed his movements. She was in a favored spot with the nation's highest dignitaries on the south portico when Roosevelt took the oath of office for his fourth term last January.

Since the Roosevelt funeral services, she has not been in the executive mansion. She returned to England and is now in Norway.

The Maryland estate has 103 acres of lawn and wooded green. When purchased by Martha the house had 14 rooms. She added a two story addition containing 10 rooms. Priorities for this construction, it was said, were secured with White House help.

ARMY SHIFTS 33D DIVISION LANDING PLACE

Ship Sent to Portland; Seattle Fete Off

BY GEORGE SCHREIBER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 10—In a last minute revision, the army troop transport service today changed the port of debarkation of the Marine Falcon, bearing 2,000 high point men of the 33d division, Illinois National Guard, and ordered the ship to dock at Portland, Ore. It will dock tomorrow morning.

The men will be sent to Fort Sheridan, Ill., Wednesday or Thursday.

The ship was originally scheduled for arrival at the Seattle port late tonight, and preparations for the reception of the Chicago, downstate Illinois, and Wisconsin veterans were about complete. Then some one at the last moment found there were not enough beds available at either Fort Lewis or Fort Lawton, on the outskirts of the city, to accommodate the middle western fighters.

Men Seldom Told

Fort Lewis would have been more or less a homecoming for the men of the 33d because the division was stationed there from September, 1942, to April, 1943, prior to embarking for the combat zone.

Naturally there was no reaction to the change of plan from the men aboard ship. Officers and soldiers who plan this movement say the men are ordinarily happy to be on their way to the United States, and seldom are told their destinations until the last moment in order to guard against such disappointments.

The change in plan, however, did come as a disappointment to the members of five or six families of Illinois men who have been waiting for the ship to dock. They were forced to make their way to Portland as best they could. The army coöperated with them in furnishing information.

Went Into Service in 1914

Lt. Abbott Simon and Staff Sgt. Bernard Kahn, the latter a former Pekin, Ill., newspaper man, who were flown here by 6th army headquarters to pave the way for the arrival, led a trek of unofficial welcomers, newspaper men, radio announcers, and photographers to scramble as best they could over the 200 miles between Portland and Seattle.

The 33d division went into regular army service in March, 1941. The division saw the fall of the Philippines, New Guinea, and Moroati, the latter in the Netherlands' East Indies.

Ceylon Votes to Accept New British Constitution

COLOMBO, Ceylon, Nov. 9 (AP)—The Ceylon state council today voted 51 to 3 to accept a British proposal for a new Ceylon constitution as a step toward Ceylon's goal of dominion statue. The constitution is modelled on British lines, with a bicameral legislature, a cabinet of ministers, universal suffrage, and special powers reserved for the governor.

46,500 YANKS IN MARIANAS WILL SAIL THIS MONTH

Vets on Lonely Isles Make Complaints

HONOLULU, Nov. 10 (AP)—More than 46,500 eligible army officers and men—about 95 per cent of them now in the Marianas—will be started homeward before Nov. 30, the mid-Pacific command announced today. More than half are strategic air force personnel.

Of the 75,000 mid-Pacific army men reported eligible on Nov. 1, 17,800 already are en route home, the command reported. During the week ended Nov. 3, 10,000 personnel returned in units which were to be inactivated after their arrival in the United States.

Kicks from Lonely Isles

Complaints from 140 high point veterans on lonely Canton island in the Phoenix group that they have been awaiting transportation home since last July brought confirmation—and a promise of a quick ride—from the mid-Pacific command's transportation office.

The office attributed the delay to the fact that only a few men at a time had become eligible for discharge. This, it said, made it necessary to wait until enough were eligible to justify sending a troop ship 2,000 miles from Honolulu to pick them up.

Similar complaints were received from high pointers on Christmas Island, 1,300 miles south of Hawaii.

Many to Quit Manila

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 10 (AP)—The last large contingent of service men to leave Manila, P. I., for some time will embark for the United States next week, Guthrie Janssen, National Broadcasting company correspondent at Manila, said today in a broadcast heard here.

Janssen said men with 78 and 82 discharge points were loading to go home and that 72 and 77 point men were preparing to move into the 29th replacement center next week. The 82 to 100 point men left six weeks ago, he added. He reported 14 ships carrying 35,000 service men were en route to the United States.

IKE PUTS CURB ON NEWS FROM OCCUPYING ARMY

FRANKFURT, Germany, Nov. 10 (AP)—Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters directed today that henceforth news be channeled to correspondents only thru a senior officer to be selected by each division.

The disclosure by some officers of information classified as secret was believed to have prompted the order. At a press conference with Lt. Gen. Walter B. Smith some correspondents raised the question whether the order would invoke a form of censorship. It restricts correspondents from going to any officer for news other than the division news spokesmen.

Smith said the order would be given a 30 day trial and added that a new approach would be taken if it was found not to work. "The order was put out to protect ourselves less from correspondents than from our own people," Smith explained. He added that "freedom of the press also means freedom of self-defense against bad reporting."

WACS ANXIOUS TO DO K.P. DUTY —FOR HUSBANDS

"Give me K. P. and lots of it, the civilian kind for the man of my dreams," was the remark of one discharged WAC at the Fort Sheridan separation center yesterday as she walked out of the door flourishing her newly acquired honorable discharge.

And that is the sentiment of most of the discharged WACs, said 1st Lt. L. S. Button, assigned to the WAC separation center at the fort.

"Most of the girls say they are thru with office work and the thing that they want most of civilian life is a husband, a home, and a kitchen where they can spend lots of time fixing the things they like to eat and tasty dishes for their husbands," Button said.

Button said the separation center set a new record in October for the number of WACs discharged. During the month 1,504 were given discharges for a total of 5,561 since the separation center was activated, July 24, 1944.

222 VETS BACK AT TRIBUNE OF 870 IN SERVICE

Of the 870 TRIBUNE and W-G-N employes who entered the army and navy, 222 yesterday had returned to their former positions or to promotions, and the number is increasing at the rate of several a day.

Nineteen of the Tribune's men were killed in the war.

Among those who returned recently was Joseph Burns of 634½ Arlington pl., of THE TRIBUNE'S classified advertising department, who won the bronze star when his medium tank platoon destroyed a German armored column in France.

From Private to Lieutenant

Burns, 27, enlisted in the army nearly four years ago as a private. He attended officers' candidate school and took command of the tank platoon. He served with the 5th armored division and was discharged on points, Oct. 1, as a first lieutenant.

William Buchanan, 29, of 5331 Kenmore av., who was communications officer on a destroyer in the Pacific, is back at his old post in the W-G-N newsroom. His ship did convoy and shore bombardment duty in New Guinea, New Britain, the Palau Islands, the Philippines, and off Iwo and Okinawa.

On a Lucky Ship

Buchanan, who enlisted in the navy and won his commission in 1943, said his ship, the U. S. S. Hobby, was lucky and wasn't hit in 21 months of overseas duty.

Thomas Javorski, who was employed in the Tribune circulation department for 12 years prior to entering the army, served 4½ years and was recently discharged on points.

German Shell Proves Dud

Once, a German shell hit close to his jeep, and it turned out to be a dud. Another time he got separated from his outfit during the drive thru France and had to thread his way thru German lines and a minefield before he reached an allied group.

James F. Coffey Jr., 24, of 6428 N. Washtenaw av., of the Tribune auditing department, is back after three years with the 2d Marine division. He served as a radio operator at Tarawa, Saipan, and Tinian.

A total of $397,496.85 had been paid by Oct. 31 as a special military bonus from THE TRIBUNE to the families of its employes on active duty.

BERLIN PAPER SPURS HUNT FOR MISSING CHILDREN OF LIDICE

BERLIN, Germany, Nov. 10 (AP)—The Berliner Zeitung called upon all Germans today to help trace the lost children of Lidice who were scattered after the SS. destroyed that Czechoslovak town in revenge for the killing of Heinrich Heydrich, protector of Moravia and Bohemia.

Czechoslovak authorities have provided the names of 93 children dispersed in Germany after the Nazis slew all men of Lidice over the age of 15 and put the women in a concentration camp.

The Berliner Zeitung, organ of the Berlin city government, urged that the children's names be posted in all public buildings and that every individual aid in the search as "a work of atonement," with a special effort to restore them to their mothers for Christmas.

363,539 YANKS LEAVE BRITAIN SINCE V-E DAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 10—Since redeployment homeward began shortly after V-E day 363,539 American troops have left Britain by ship and plane. Reports issued tonight showed that there are only approximately 76,000 here now, compared with 1,526,965 at the pre-invasion peak.

Four thousand of those remaining are studying at the American university at Shrivenham and another 2,000 are taking industrial courses at Wharton college near Liverpool. Eighty of the 8th air force's airfields have been cleared of men and machines and only the British government's request that the Americans guard them until arrangements can be made for their future use is causing the remaining 32 to stay in American hands, said a United States officer.

All but one of the 60 permanent general hospitals have been handed back to Britain, and only nine of 80 military camps still are being held by Americans, said one army source who reported, "We're getting the boys home at the rate of 30,000 a month."

VIRGINIA GRABS HER GUN, WINS A BRONZE STAR

Evanston Girl Captures Looters in China

Miss Virginia Jane Lamb, 24, a Red Cross worker in China, of 1102 Judson av., Evanston, was awarded the bronze star for meritorious service when she captured two men who were looting a Red Cross clubmobile in Shanghsi, her father, Andrew T. Lamb, of Evanston, learned yesterday.

The award, the highest presented a civilian, was made Oct. 8 in Kumming, China, by Maj. Gen. Henry S. Aurand, China theater commanding general of the service of supplies, according to a letter received from Miss Lamb.

Heard Noises in Kitchen

"At 4 a. m. on the morning of Sept. 21," she wrote, "I heard noises which sounded as tho the kitchen was being carried out. I listened, peeked out the window and discovered that two men had removed the tailgate of our truck.

"We had a lot of valuable movie equipment in addition to Red Cross supplies aboard. I've never been so mad in my whole life," she continued. "I just saw red at the nerve of those boys breaking in right outside our window. So I packed a rifle, which we kept in the room, and stormed out to point blank range at them and demanded to know exactly what they thought they were doing.

Looking for Doughnuts

"They stammered something about looking for doughnuts. Afterwards we got a new lock and I considered the case closed, except for a few good laughs on the part of people I awakened while dashing out in a raincoat, armed to the teeth."

The citation read that Miss Lamb, "during the night of Sept. 21, by quick, bold, and determined action, seized a United States rifle and captured two men who were in the act of robbing a United States government truck that had been assigned to the Red Cross as a clubmobile."

Trip in Wilds of China

Miss Lamb previously has written about her journeys over wild Chinese terrain to take doughnuts, cigarets, movies, and entertainment to isolated American service men in the country. At one time, she and another Red Cross worker were gone a month, traveling 1,500 miles thru territory recently recaptured from the Japanese.

Both were later reprimanded by China Red Cross headquarters for their hazardous adventure, but it was decided to use the trial expedition as an example for future Red Cross journeys to distant outposts.

MICHIGAN CITY DOUBLE KILLING INQUEST CALLED

An inquest into the death of Joseph W. Gazarkiewicz, 35, paint shop owner, and his wife, Irene, 29, whom Gazarkiewicz shot before ending his life Friday in Michigan City, was called yesterday for Thursday. Coroner Russell Beck said the verdict undoubtedly would be murder and suicide.

The Gazarkiewicz' baby, Loretta, 14 months, was near death in St. Elizabeth's hospital after removal of a bullet from the base of her spine. Mrs. Gazarkiewicz's sister, Mrs. Herman Novak, wounded twice in the left arm, was released from the hospital.

Gazarkiewicz, who had sued for a divorce, went on a shooting rampage when his wife refused to take him back. Police said he recently tried to kidnap the baby on a street. Mrs. Gazarkiewicz, it was disclosed, sued for divorce on four occasions, and each time returned to her husband.

DAWES ESTATE TO PAY $590,099 INHERITANCE TAX

Federal and state inheritance taxes will lop off one-third from the $1,723,586 estate of Edward L. Dawes, 91, former vice president of the American Radiator and Standard Sanitary corporation, who died in Sewickley, Pa., Nov. 20, 1944.

An inheritance tax return filed in County court yesterday for the estate of Mr. Dawes, who was a resident of the Union League club here for many years, showed a federal tax of $537,099 and a state levy of $53,000.

Mr. Dawes' will left two-fifths of the estate to his daughter, Mrs. Frances Meanor, Sewickley, and the remainder to her children, Edward D., Mrs. Catherine Schroeder, and Mrs. Margaret Pierce.

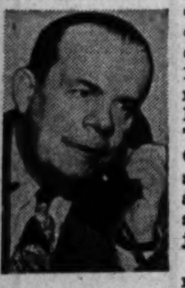
JUNE 30 WINDUP OF WAR BOARDS URGED IN SURVEY

Report to Truman Calls for Liquidation Chief

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10 (AP)—Elimination "as far as possible" of every federal emergency agency by June 30, 1946, was recommended today to President Truman by George E. Allen, a special assistant named to study this subject.



George E. Allen

Allen urged immediate appointment of a director of liquidation to accomplish this.

In an 80 page report made public by the White House, Allen said it is important that the government "act rapidly to insure an orderly, efficient, and humane transition from war time to peace time organization."

Job Insurance Urged

He emphasized that the 126,937 employes of the 25 emergency agencies as of last September be given special consideration in the liquidation process, including unemployment insurance.

Allen said the "few agencies" which must continue beyond the end of this fiscal year, such as those dealing with prices and other reconversion problems, should be coordinated under Reconversion Director Snyder's office or transferred to permanent agencies.

"Emergency services vital to our national welfare must not be abolished, but should be made permanent," the report said. "Funds for scientific research, such as that which developed the atomic bomb, should be utilized for peace time progress and might even be increased for the benefit of all mankind."

Advisory Body Proposed

Besides a director of liquidation, Allen recommended appointment of liquidators for each agency and an administrative advisory committee to advise the director. The latter would consist of representatives of the treasury, budget, surplus property, national archives, and civil service.

While it is essential to "retrench promptly and to economize whenever possible," Allen said:

"Seemingly unnecessary public agencies might have to survive much longer than unprofitable private enterprises, since economic considerations are not necessarily the only factors involved."

30 Day Notice Suggested

For protection of employes, Allen recommended 30 days' notice prior to termination of service, unemployment insurance, transportation home for those unable to find new jobs, payment of retirement pay deductions within 30 days of separation, and letters of commendation for worthy employes.

"The problem of a few hundred thousand emergency agency employes, of course," Allen said, "seems relatively small compared with the various estimates of millions of unemployed but willing workers. Yet, the basic problem remains the same. It is of utmost importance that we take energetic measures to be sure that all willing workers will be permitted the right to work and the dignity of individual independence."

Allen made no recommendations at to specific agencies slated for liquidation. Termination for most of them has been provided by law or executive order and several agencies, such as the offices of censorship and civilian defense, have ceased to function.

KELLY REPORTS AIRPORT DEAL IS IN THE BAG

Finds Red Tape Has Been Snipped

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10 — Mayor Kelly found the way paved today for Chicago to get possession of the Douglas airport near Park Ridge — "for practically nothing," the mayor said.

Official red tape has been delaying government action for weeks on proposals that the spacious airfield be declared war surplus in order that the Chicago city government might make claim to it. Sen. Brooks [R., Ill.] has been conferring with government officials, however, and Mayor Kelly was able to report after a conference with W. Stuart Symington, surplus property administrator, that the red tape has been cut.

How It Will Work

The war department, which had retaken possession of the property after it had once been released to the surplus property administration, will return it to SPA. SPA will then declare the property surplus and the city can present its claim, which government officials say will be granted without question.

"It's practically settled," Mayor Kelly told a reporter before departing for Chicago.

Army Wants Shops

The war department asked that it be permitted to maintain army machine shops and hangars at the airport, and Mayor Kelly agreed to the proposal.

During his visit, the mayor conferred with federal authorities regarding plans for increasing Chicago housing facilities for veterans. He expressed optimism on the prospects for success in this matter.

60 NATIONS OBEY 1927 RADIO PACT, HOOVER ASSERTS

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 10 (AP)—Herbert Hoover said tonight a 1927 treaty signed by 60 nations to regulate radio had stuck fairly well even tho during the war "practically every other treaty has been violated."

The former President traced the development of the radio industry in the United States in a broadcast marking the 25th anniversary of radio and said:

"In October, 1927, I called an international radio conference. We signed a treaty among some 60 nations, dividing the wave lengths, designating the station symbols and other things. Thereby we cleared up a great deal of international interference. And one of the astonishing things of World War II. is that altho practically every other treaty has been violated, this one has stuck fairly well."

DR. FURCH ENDS 8 YEAR TERM FOR KILLING WOMAN

Dr. Frank J. Furch Jr., 46, a chiropodist, sentenced in 1937 to serve 14 years in prison for murdering his second ex-wife, was discharged yesterday from Stateville penitentiary. He had served eight years and three months, which was his sentence when maximum time was allowed for good behavior.

Dr. Frank J. Furch Jr.

Furch's trial was filled with divorce tangles. In 1935 he was divorced by his first wife, Mrs. Myrtle Furch, because of a romance he had been having with Mrs. Norma Schmidt. Mrs. Schmidt divorced her wealthy husband in May, 1936, and married Furch within a few weeks. She divorced him three months later.

Furch returned to his first wife and their two children. On Feb. 26, 1937, while visiting his second wife, Furch shot and killed her and wounded her maid and himself. He pleaded insanity at his trial.

THOUSAND HOME UNITS PLANNED FOR FLOSSMOOR

Cherry Hill Club Forms Part of Site

BY AL CHASE
[Real Estate Editor.]

The first big south suburban postwar residential project was announced yesterday for the Flossmoor area. Leonard W. Besinger, head of Leonard W. Besinger and Associates, one of the most active home builders in the Chicago area in recent years, purchased a 310 acre tract of land, including the Cherry Hill Country club, and said next spring he will start a building program providing eventually for 1,000 houses.

Leonard W. Besinger
[TRIBUNE Photo]

The new development, to be known as Cherry Hill estates, adjoins the Flossmoor western limits. It is bounded on the north by 187th st. [Brumley rd.] extended, by Crawford av. on the west, Flossmoor rd. on the south, and Kedzie av. on the east.

Plans for June Occupancy

Surveyors and land planners are at work laying out the southeast 40 acres, at the northwest corner of Kedzie av. and Flossmoor rd., into 120 homesites, on which residences will be built in the early spring, Besinger said. He expects some will be ready for occupancy in June.

The next step in the big development will be laying out of home sites on the 80 acre tract west of the club grounds. After that 75 acres fronting on Crawford av. will be developed.

The Cherry Hill Country club will continue to be operated as a fee course for several years, Besinger said. Its 115 acres, including an 18 hole golf course, will be the last to be built with homes. Plans provide for use of the clubhouse as a community center for the entire development.

Adjoining it will be a community business center with shop buildings designed to harmonize with the residential character of the project.

Winding Roads Planned

The development will be laid out with winding roads and cul-de-sacs. Lots will be about 100 by 108 feet. Sidewalks will be flush with the curb and automobile drives from street to garage will take the place of the customary walk to the front door.

All the 310 acres will be landscaped, Besinger said. He is negotiating for the purchase of a nursery to supply the project with trees and shrubs. All roads will be blacktopped and there will be no alleys.

Lots will be sold only for immediate erection of homes and every home will be designed and built by the Besinger firm. Garages must be an integral part of the residences. William Kotek, who has just returned from the army, will resume his architectural work with the organization.

Sell for $7,000 Upwards

The first 120 homes to be built will sell for about $7,000 and upwards, Besinger said. Financing will be thru General Mortgage Investments, Inc., with FHA insured mortgages.

Cherry Hill Country club golf course was laid out in 1926-'27 by Percy Wagner. He sold the property in 1934. Besinger purchased it from S. Graham Nelson, trustee, who is associated with Wolf & Co. Andrew D. Collins was attorney for the seller and William T. McNeill of Litsinger, Gatenbey, Spuller & McNeill, for the buyer.

Besinger also is having plans drawn for 107 homes in the $10,000 to $15,000 bracket to be built in the south part of Park Ridge.

McCarthy, Levin Form Law Firm; Were in OPA

John F. McCarthy, former director and chief attorney for the rent control division of the OPA in Chicago, and Robert E. Levin, former chief enforcement attorney of OPA in Chicago, have formed a law partnership, McCarthy & Levin, with offices at 110 S. Dearborn st.

BUILDING IS SOLD

Mr. and Mrs. Denison B. Hull of Winnetka sold the building at 1525-33 N. Clark st. to Arthur H. Peponis of Plaza Cleaners and Dyers for $60,000. Edward J. Lindahl of Paul Steinbrecher & Co. was sole broker. The property adjoins the Plaza hotel.

George F. Anderson, attorney, is delivering a series of 25 lectures for lawyers on "Real Estate in Action" in the Chicago Bar association rooms, 29 S. La Salle st. He gives the talks on Friday afternoons at 4:30. The lectures deal with the practical side of real estate law and cover the listing of property for sale, liability for commission, drafting of contracts, removal of objections to the title, and closing of the deal. This is pioneering in legal education for no university teaches the actual closing of deals, Anderson said. Evidence of interest was shown by the attendance of 250 lawyers at the opening session Oct. 19. The "students" fill out actual forms in their realty lessons.

BY WILFRID SMITH
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 10—Indiana still is the only undefeated football team in the Western conference.

This afternoon in Memorial stadium the husky Hoosiers cleared their penultimate hurdle in the Big Nine race with ridiculous ease. Score: Indiana, 49; Minnesota, 0.

We repeat: Indiana scored 49 points, 29 more points than Minnesota had in yards gained by rushing. Here was the nadir of Minnesota football which the crowd of 41,400 scarcely could believe.

This was the most decisive licking any Minnesota team ever has received. Two years ago Michigan trounced the Gophers, 49 to 6, and back in 1897 Wisconsin blanked them, 39 to 0. Moreover, the Hoosiers had their 49 points by the start of the last period and then swept the bench clean of substitutes. Thirty-four Hoosiers, the complete traveling squad, participated.

Six Passes Intercepted

The disparity between these teams today was so great it defies description. Minnesota didn't tackle, couldn't block, and had six passes intercepted. The Gophers made one first down by rushing in the opening period, two by passing in the second, and finished with another first down by passing in the third quarter.

Perhaps, the Hoosiers just can't be as strong as they appeared. Certainly, Minnesota had no semblance of desire to play football. Here was a contributing factor to the debacle. But it is indisputable that Indiana did as it pleased with its opponent today.

The Hoosiers' first conference championship in history now is just ahead. Purdue, which will be played Nov. 24 in Bloomington, is their remaining opponent, altho Indiana meets Pittsburgh next week in nonconference competition.

Taliaferro Runs 95 Yards

George Taliaferro, fleet Negro half back, and Ben Raimondi forward passing field general, were the bulwarks in Indiana's attack. Except for their own anxiety the Hoosiers possibly would have scored in the opening minute of play for Taliaferro returned Bob Kasper's kickoff 95 yards to Minnesota's 4 yard line.

Indiana lost the starting cadence on the first scrimmage play—the line also was offside—and Taliaferro fumbled to have Bob Carley recover for the Gophers on his 9 yard line. Three plays later, Indiana started again from Minnesota's 43 and progressed to within 7 yards of the goal. This time Raimondi's third down pass was intercepted by Kasper. Even with these breaks the Gophers were held in midfield so Indiana, forgetting its nervousness, set about scoring a first period touchdown which was all that was required to win this game.

Lateral Nets 24 Yards

The attack started on Indiana's 18 yard line. Pete Pihos plunged and then lateralled to Taliaferro for a total gain of 24 yards. Raimondi passed to Mel Groomes for a first down on Minnesotas' 46 yard line. When the attack was checked, Taliaferro punted and the ball struck center. Warren Beson of Minnesota on the bounce and was recovered by John Cannady for Indiana on Minnesota's 23.

Groomes, Raimondi, and Pihos made first down on Minnesota's 9. Taliaferro spun thru Minnesota's left tackle for 3 yards and Pihos hit the same position for 3 more yards and then handed the ball to Taliaferro who continued to the end zone. Charles Armstrong kicked the first of his seven consecutive points after touchdowns.

BY EDWARD BURNS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 10—Navy, perhaps reminded that Michigan gave the Middies their worst licking in football history just 20 years ago—a 54 to 0 shellacking—celebrated the anniversary in vengeful glee this afternoon as they poured it on the startled and erstwhile tricky Wolverines, 33 to 7. Many of the capacity crowd of 59,114 no doubt were a bit surprised at the lopsided spectacle, for easterners had been led to believe that Michigan had greatly improved since the Wolverines lost to Army, 28 to 7, on Oct. 13.

The first 13 Navy points, the ones essential to victory, grew out of rather grievous errors by the Wolverines, who built up quite a reputation for precision in their 28 to 0 victory over Minnesota only a week ago.

Pass Produces Touchdown

Navy scored first near the end of the first quarter after Henry Fonde had thrown a lateral into the crisp autumn space and Doc Duden, Navy's left end, slapped the ball out of bounds on Michigan's 21-yard line. On the next play, a pass, Tony Minisi to Leon Bramlett negotiated the 21 yards to the goal line. Jack Currence missed the kick from placement.

The winning touchdown was scored on the first play of the second period, set up near the end of the first, when Jack Weisenburger foozled a kick for an eight-yard carry out of bounds on Michigan's 31 yard line. Thus encouraged, Bruce Smith [not to be confused with the former Minnesota star] passed to Duden and the ball was carried to Michigan's 11 yard line. Two shots put it on the 11. Smith passed to Clyde Scott, who went over and Currence made the point to make the score 13 to 0.

Michigan Shows Fight

During the remainder of the second period the Wolverines dominated the play to the point where their partisans probably figured they would win in the second half.

The lone Michigan touchdown bloomed when Navy was forced to kick after being penalized 15 yards for pushing, one of its two penalties and one of four in the entire game. [Michigan drew only two penalties for 5 yards each.] The kick was received by Fonde on Navy's 39 yard line and Henry ran it back to Navy's 13 yard line. Then a pass, Pete Elliott to Fonde, gave Michigan a first down on Navy's 2 yard line. Weisenburger then plunged over for the touchdown and George Chiames kicked the point.

The Big Chance Fades

The Wolverines were at their hottest as they came within four yards of a tie or better at the close of the first half. After taking a kick from Bob Kelly, Elliott and Fonde reeled off two passes, one good for 11 yards and one good for 25 for a first down on Navy's 20 yard line. Another pass, Elliott to Warren Bentz, netted 4 yards, then Weisenburger plowed thru the center of the line for 12 yards. It was first down on Navy's 4 yard line, the score was 13 to 7 Navy, and 30 seconds to go. Two passes were incomplete, Elliott lost a yard and the half ended as Weisenburger failed to complete a pass in the end zone.

When the players came back for the second half, the Wolverines showed none of the drive with which they fought in the later phases of the second period. Another punting misadventure touched off the Navy again. Newbold Smith blocked Weisenburger's punt and it was Navy's ball on Michigan's 13 yard line after the ball had been brought back from out of bounds. Bruce Smith tossed to Minisi for Champaign, Ill., Nov. 10—Illinois' Fighting Illini, starved for six games on a diet of 36 points, today became veritable touchdown gluttons as they gorged themselves with a 48 to 7 Dad's day banquet at the expense of several young fellows identified as the University of Iowa team. The result not only marked Illinois' first 1945 conference victory, but also produced 12 more points than the aggregate it had been able to roll up against Pittsburgh, Notre Dame, Indiana, Wisconsin, Michigan, and Great Lakes.

The wide margin of the final score gives no indication of various exciting matters which popped up this afternoon for the benefit of a crowd of 14,060. These included an injury to the game referee and the ejection of two players for fisticuffing. The official, Lyle Clarno, suffered a fractured small bone in his right ankle late in the second quarter.

Hawkeyes Surprise Everybody

The Illini were somewhat disturbed in the scoreless opening quarter, which found Iowa so brash as to move 64 yards to the Illinois 9 yard mark, following the opening kick-off, and then threaten again on a recovery of one of the day's several fumbles, the total of bobbles being 11.

Came the second period and the home boys dashed off 26 points in jig time. Thirteen more were tacked onto that in the third quarter, being supplied by Jack Pierce, rapid 19 year old freshman from Pontiac, who scored on respective dashes of 82 and 57 yards, both from scrimmage. Robert [Bunker] Jones, another freshman, enlivened the last quarter exercises with a field goal from the Iowa 16 yard line, then Mickey Perkins, 155 pound quarter back, climaxed the scoring with a touchdown in the last seconds.

Zaborac Goes Across

Here's how the Iowans got uppity at the start: After Nelson Smith toted the kick-off 12 yards to his own 27, he and Art Johnson, discharged army air captain who was in on the first Ploesti bombing, kept puncturing the Illinois line, and Sheehan, soon threatened a touchdown, but yielded the ball on downs on the Illini 9.

The second period was another story, the Illini organizing a 73 yard drive in which the chief ingredients were three rousing line smashes by Gene Kwasniewski and

Maple Leafs Deal Hawks 3 to 2 Defeat

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 10 (AP)—The Toronto Maple Leafs scored their first victory of the 1945-'46 National Hockey league season tonight, defeating the league-leading Chicago Blackhawks, 3 to 2, before 13,911 fans. The two teams will meet tomorrow night in the Chicago stadium.

The Leafs, who previously had tied one game and lost five in a row, came from behind to win and then held out against a last minute assault by the fast Chicago squad.

Hawks Open Scoring

Pete Horeck led off the scoring with the only goal of the first period to give Chicago a 1 to 0 lead but in the second, Right Winger Mel Hill and Left Winger Gaye Stewart each scored for the Leafs. It was the fifth goal of the season for Stewart, the Toronto team's leading goal-getter.

Syl Apps scored for the Leafs at the 8:25 mark in the third period and Alex Kaleta tallied one for the Hawks at 13:06, the only goal scored by the visitors in their late offensive.

Youthful Gordie Bell made his first home ice appearance in the Toronto nets and handled himself well. The 20 year old goalie handled 24 shots. Mike Karakas played brilliantly in the Chicago nets, handling 32 shots, and many of his saves were sensational.

Hawk 1st Line Blanked

The outstanding forward line combination on the ice was Toronto's Apps-Stewart-Bill Ezinicki threesome. They had the tough assignment of checking Max and Doug Bentley and Bill Mosienko—whom they held scoreless—and also tallied two of the Toronto goals. Gus Bodnar was at center on this line part of the time instead of Apps.

The loss forces the Hawks to share first place in the league standing with Montreal Canadiens who won tonight over Boston. The Leafs are still in the cellar, one point behind the New York Rangers who won over Detroit.

WILDCATS CASH IN ON BADGERS' FUMBLES FOR 28 TO 14 VICTORY

BY IRVING VAUGHAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Madison, Wis., Nov. 10—Northwestern's Wildcats, desperate for aid in a gruelling gridiron battle with Wisconsin's Badgers this afternoon, finally found it in the shape of enemy fumbles.

With 45,000 homecomers looking on and the score knotted at 14 apiece in the fourth quarter, the powerful Ben Bendrick, who figuratively had cut the Wildcats to ribbons, fumbled not once but twice, and on each occasion the wearers of the purple swept into possession of the loose ball for a touchdown and a 28 to 14 triumph, their second in the Big Nine race.

And this same Bendrick during the activity that for much of the time had the Badgers masters of the situation, had riddled the victors' defense for a total of 133 yards in 14 plays.

Four Long Marches

While the struggle was mainly a matter of sustained offense by both teams, the scoring didn't get under way until the second period when the Badgers completed an 80 yard trip for the first touchdown. Not many minutes later the Wildcats tied it by traveling 73 yards only to have the Badgers come bouncing back over a 65 yard route to score again with only 12 seconds of the period remaining.

The third period was well under way before the surprised Wildcats found means of escaping from the seven point deficit. It took 70 yards of marching to accomplish this feat, and it was done mostly after Ed Parsegian, former bomber pilot in the European theater, had taken over for Bob McKinley, who suffered a recurrence of his ankle injury. And then came the deadly fumbles by Bendrick, one 35 yards from his goal and the other only 24 removed, the retrievers being Bill Hunt and Dick Conners.

Conners Scores Twice

Along with Bendrick, the Badgers offered Jerry Thompson and Don Kindt as pigskin tourists, the former with 48 yards in 12 plays and the latter with 63 in 15 attempts. The injured McKinley, altho absent after the first play in the third period, turned loose 74 yards in 11 jobs, followed by the busy Conners with 59 yards in 19 plays. Conners also had the added pleasure of jolting across the goal with the last two touchdowns. The Purple's first two touchdowns resulted from passes.

McKinley was only one of several Wildcats forced to concede that he needed repairs. In the fourth quarter, Jim Farrar, back, was carried away with a leg hurt which later was reported as not serious. Paul Schuetz, left guard, also was hauled off the field and, on the last play of the game, Right End Stan Gorski, who had grabbed one of the touchdown passes, was out in a horizontal position, first aid fellows helping him off the field.

Farrar Intercepts Pass

That the Badgers had something in the way of drive became evident with the opening kick-off, in which they acted as receivers. With Kindt, Bendrick, and Thompson operating, they swept from their 11 yard line to Northwestern's 44, but being successful on the ground apparently wasn't enough. They tried to show their aerial skill and the result was an interception, Farrar grabbing the ball for the Purple on the N. U. 38 yard line. Then the Wildcats went rolling down the field, being halted when Kindt intercepted a pass on the Badgers' 1 foot line.

Soon thereafter the Wildcats started off again, but eventually were forced to punt, the ball rolling over the Badgers' goal. Wisconsin didn't surrender the ball again until

BY ARCH WARD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

New York, Nov. 10—Army's powerful football team, which last year gave Notre Dame its worst defeat in history, continued its record shattering at Yankee stadium today by whipping the Irish, 48 to 0. It was the first time in the 32 years of the gridiron's oldest intersectional rivalry that West Point beat Notre Dame two times in a row.

Army's Glenn Davis, known at the academy as Mr. Outside because of his speed on end runs, and Doc Blanchard, who is called Mr. Inside because of his explosive punch thru the line, were a combination too potent for the Irish. Davis accounted for three of the victors' touchdowns and Blanchard two. The others were scored by another back field whirlwind named Shorty McWilliams, who last season was a sensation at Mississippi State, and Clyde Grimenstein. Dick Walterhouse contributed six points after touchdowns.

Cadet Parade Starts Early

The game had all the magnificent panoply that has characterized the nation's most popular sporting event thru the years. It attracted a capacity crowd of 76,000. The demand for tickets exceeded 350,000. The pageant, headlined by the entrance and parade of the entire cadet corps, unflagging cheers, and the introduction of notables of military, governmental, and civilian life, was as much a magnet for the spectators as the game itself.

Three of Army's most enthusiastic supporters were Gen. Jacob L. Devers, Gen. Carl Spaatz and Gen. Joseph Stilwell. Officers with fewer than three stars didn't get a nod from the announcer.

Notre Dame was in the ball game for only the first quarter. Despite a fumble which soon was converted into an Army touchdown, the Irish had a marked superiority in their running attack, which rolled up five first downs to West Point's two. Notre Dame's backs, who were getting thru the Army line with less difficulty than they get thru their hotel lobby, were stopped cold in the second period and from that point there was no doubt about the outcome.

One of Greatest Teams

The vast crowd was convinced it was looking at one of the greatest teams that ever has represented college football. If Army has a weakness, two of the top elevens of the middle west—Michigan and Notre Dame—haven't discovered it. It takes something more than loud cheers and the Army mule to crush opponents of that caliber.

Army has a rugged line, a great pair of ends in Dick Pitzer and Henry Foldberg, the best back field this correspondent has ever watched and, above all, extraordinary poise. The latter attribute usually characterizes Notre Dame's teams, but the South Benders today looked like a junior college squad trying to beat the Chicago Bears.

Figures Are Deceptive

The statistics, which made Notre Dame look like something of a match for the Cadets, belied the real margin between the teams. The Irish ground out yardage the hard way, three and four yards at a time, but they had no breakaway runners like Davis, Blanchard, and McWilliams. Bob Stuart, who last year played for Tulsa's Orange bowl winners, was another Army back almost as hard to bring down as Davis.

Notre Dame made 16 first downs, as compared with Army's 19, but the soldiers piled up 294 yards from rushing to the westerners' 133. The Cadets had the edge in forward passing, 147 yards to 51.

The Irish got in trouble soon after Army's opening kickoff. Frank Ruggerio made a 20 yard return to his 25 and on the first play from

TWO CHAMPIONS GIVE UP TITLES AT HORSE SHOW

Cadet Commander and Cliftons Storm Win

BY JAMES SEGRETI

Two champions of the show ring Norwood and Highland Cora—lost their titles in two of the four championship stake events in the second annual Chicago horse show at the Coliseum last night.

Seventy-five hundred thronged the Wabash av. building to watch Cliftons Storm, 7 year old gelding owned by R. C. Firestone, Germantown, Tenn., take Norwood's title in the $2,000 event for hunters, and later saw Cadet Commander, entry of Miss Virginia Penfield, Columbus, O., capture the $2,000 harness ponies crown from Highland Cora, owned by the Dodge Stables of Rochester, Mich.

Expect 13,0000 Crowd Today

Last night's crowd swelled the show's total attendance to 73,500 which already surpasses last year's figures by 10,000. Six thousand saw yesterday's matinee program, and at least 13,000 will gather for the final events of the show's run this afternoon and tonight.

Cadet Commander, 8 year old brown stallion, was driven to victory by Robert C. [Doc] Flanery. Miss Penfield, however, did not witness the brilliant performance. She remained in Columbus because of her father's illness.

Norwood, owned by Donald Sutherland III., Brooklyn, N. Y., took a third place ribbon, being judged behind Cliftons Storm and Our Day, exhibited by W. J. Tarrant, River Forest, Ill.

Captain Bird Scores Triumph

Play Boy, famous chestnut gelding owned by Atlass, closed its outstanding career by taking third place in the $2,000 championship stake for roadster horses, which was won by Savage Sailor from the Bon Ru stables of Perry, Ia. Miss Harriet Atlass placed a blanket of roses over the horse after the event in ceremony marking Play Boy's retirement from the tanbark.

Anna May Joa, 16 year old student at Ferry Hall in Lake Forest, drove Captain Bird, undefeated junior and senior fine harness horse champion, to another victory, defeating Big Shot, owned by Mrs. P. A. Thomas Jr., Evanston, in the Women's fine harness horse event. The Ten Pin farms of Palos Park, Ill., captured the $500 stake for Palominos when Silence Is Golden was judged ahead of Gold Dust, from the Holbrook stable, Fort Wayne, Ind. Summaries:

Great Lakes Power Beats Spartans, 27-7

East Lansing, Mich., Nov. 10 [Special]—Great Lakes turned on a display of power this afternoon that convinced 12,321 Michigan State supporters why the Bluejackets are being rated as one of the most improved football teams in the country. Great Lakes rolled on to a surprisingly easy 27 to 7 victory, thus avenging a defeat that was handed Great Lakes in 1942 by an underdog Spartan team.

Frank Aschenbrenner, who formerly played for Marquette, scored three touchdowns, two on runs of 90 and 80 yards, and one on a five yard plunge.

Harry Robinson accounted for Great Lakes' other touchdown.

In the fourth quarter Michigan State's Matt Mazza recovered a Bluejacket fumble on the 1 yard line and Von Hendricks scored the Spartans' lone marker.

INDIANA TURNS IN 49-0 ROUT OVER GOPHERS

37, Raimondi, unable to spot a receiver, ran 4 yards around defensive left end. He hit Pihos with a bullet pass for first down on Minnesota's 22 yard line. Taliaferro followed with a scoring run over tackle and a reverse down the south side line which left three would-be tacklers sprawled on the frozen turf.

Minnesota's only threat of the dreary afternoon followed but the Gophers were penalized for holding on a touchdown pass from Dick Lawrence to Tom Cates. Shortly afterward the ball changed hands first on Pihos' fumble recovered by Bob Carley, and then on Nick Sebek's interception of Lawrence's pass.

Misplays Set Up Touchdown

Sebek fumbled when tackled and Larry Olsonoski recovered for Minnesota on Indiana's 24. All these misplays set up Indiana's third touchdown by Taliaferro, who stepped in front of Lawrence's pass and ran 85 yards to score. Hudson Mealey and Lawrence were disposed of by Taliaferro's change of pace.

Bob Miller, substitute half back, got the fourth touchdown of the game on Indiana's next scrimmage play by plunging over guard and reversing the secondary for a 62 yard run.

Indiana's fifth touchdown and last of the first half required six scrimmage plays to travel 35 yards and was scored 40 seconds before the intermission. Bill Armstrong, Pihos, and Dick Deranek set it up 4 yards out and Pihos went over on his second plunge. Thus the Hoosiers led 35 to 0.

Early in the third period Deranek returned Bob Fitch's punt 35 yards to Minnesota's 25. On the next play Miller passed to Deranek for the touchdown.

Schwartz Tallies Final Touchdown

Fitch's 12 yard punt against the wind after the subsequent kick-off gave Indiana possession on Minnesota's 33 yard line. Altho penalized for holding, Raimondi threw to Deranek for a first down on the Gophers' 9. Sebek and Raimondi each got 3 yards thru the line and then Raimondi passed to End Tom Schwartz standing alone in the end zone.

Eleven of Indiana's 12 backs carried the ball on rushing plays. Taliaferro led with 10 on which he gained a total of 69 yards. Statistics:

Upland Game Comes Under Sights Today

BY BOB BECKER

Altho thousands of midwestern hunters already have hunted pheasants in the northwest, where the annual crop runs into the millions, today the fellows who like to do their ringneck shooting close to home have their innings, for this morning the pheasant, rabbit, and quail season opens in Illinois.

No other shooting date draws so many gunners into the fields as this one, and today conservation authorities are looking for a marked increase in the number of hunters as compared with 1944.

Vets Swell Ranks

In fact, it wouldn't surprise anybody if anywhere from 10 to 20 per cent more hunters unlimber their shotguns this morning than banged away at the rabbits and pheasants last year on the opening day. The hunting army will be swelled this fall by many honorably discharged service men.

The fact that all of us who like upland game hunting can shoot ringnecks, quail, and rabbits starting today is important, but the most striking feature about this year's opening day is that for the first time in the history of upland game hunting the conservation department is operating a public shooting ground of close to 1,000 acres. On this acreage shooters who have applied for permits may hunt pheasants and rabbits in good cover.

Osborne Takes Firm Steps

Illinois has needed free hunting grounds of this type for many years. Livingston Osborne, director of conservation, has taken over the Chain o' Lakes park west of Grass lake and the Fox river this year and with funds available during the next few years expects to add other areas where a hunter may pick up a few birds during the open season.

Until now one of the weakest points in Illinois' conservation program has been the lack of supervised public hunting areas. Other states have farmer-hunter coöperative programs which open up farm lands for hunting. These states also have been adding to their public shooting grounds year after year.

Fortunately, the conservation department we have now has a program to give us more hunting and more birds. However, all of us who like to hunt pheasants have a job to do to make the program click in northern Illinois.

TRIBUNE'S WEEK AT TRACK DRAWS CROWD OF 47,973

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN

The six day charity race meeting sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., at Sportsman's Park was brought to a highly successful conclusion yesterday by 10,116 spectators who were offered the best card of the meet and indulged their speculative whims to the tune of $857,666.

That amount added to $3,517,977 wagered during the first five days raised the total to $4,375,643 as compared to the 1944 charity meeting during which $4,334,900 was bet. The six days of last fall's session netted the Tribune Charity unit $245,000.

Daily Average of 8,000

The final day's program of the enterprise, staged with the coöperation of President John L. Keeshin of the National Jockey club and the Illinois Racing Board, was run off under bright skies at the snug little Cicero half mile plant. The attendance of 10,166 increased the total turnout for the week to 47,973, a daily average of approximately 8,000.

Clyde Troutt's Cerberus and Mrs. Troutt's Take Wing, the entry of the Benton, Ill., couple, finished one-two in the first running of the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., handicap, featured event of the nine race program.

Cerberus Leads All the Way

The 6 year old Cerberus, ably handled by Rafael Sanabria, stepped out in front of the field of nine as he left the gate and led all the way in the mile and one-eighth event. Take Wing, veteran of many stake races, winner of Arlington Park's Stars and Stripes in 1942, worked his way up steadily under Billy Nichols' careful urging and came down the stretch behind his stable mate, finishing a length and a quarter in back of the winner and two lengths and a quarter in front of Ben Endovina's In The Bag.

Happy Hour Farm's Devalue, surprise winner of this year's $50,000 Stars and Stripes, figured to give the Troutt entry a run for its money, was last all the way. The winning entry paid $3.60, $3.40 and $2.80.

Dead Heat in Seventh

The seventh race, a $2,500 handicap named in honor of Arch Ward, sports editor of THE TRIBUNE, developed into one of the best contests of the meeting as Mrs. Karl Mayer's Whose and the Silver Star Stock farm's Chipamink, winner of his last three starts, wound up in a dead heat.

Chipamink, ridden by Job Jessop, had been established the 2 to 5 favorite while Whose, with Jack Fliter up, went postward at 7 to 2 in a six horse field. Chipamink returned $2.20.

Daily Double Returns $40.20

Another $2,500 handicap, the Rosanav, was taken by James Emery's Chalmette, ridden by J. W. Martin. Ben Fogelson's Pomp's Gal was second and Ben Endovina's Miss Damion took the show. The winner paid $6.

The daily double, worth $40.20, was won by Okpal and Grand Lady.

Wheaton Ends Season with 55-0 Victory

Wheaton college closed its football season yesterday with a 55 to 0 conquest of Concordia of River Forest on the Wheaton field.

Jack Mayhall started the scoring in the early minutes on a 6 yard plunge following a 65 yard march. Bob and Orv Mitchell added 12 and 6 points, respectively, in the 30 point second quarter on a 9 yard dash over tackle, a 19 yard pass play, and a 40 yard pass interception, the latter by Orv, the older of the brother combination.

Bob Blaschke scored on another intercepted pass and a 74 yard run by Mayhall ended the first half tallying.

Playing his last game for Wheaton, Mayhall, 245 pound tackle, shifted to half back for the day, plunged over in the third period. Phil Bush dashed 23 yards to score, and Tackle Dick Hills added the only extra point of the afternoon on an end run. John Green tallied on an intercepted pass late in the game.

BY DAVID CONDON

Austin High school's football team, defending co-champion of the city, paced by a strong line which held for four downs inside the 1 yard line in the closing seconds of play, yesterday won the City league west section title by defeating Harrison, 14 to 13. Ten thousand saw the playoff game in Soldiers' field.

The Tigers and Hornets battled to a 6 to 6 draw early in the season, and concluded their regular schedules in a tie for the west section lead. Yesterday's victory qualified Austin to meet Schurz, north section titleholders, in the league semi-finals next Saturday in Hanson Park. Tilden plays Fenger in Soldiers' field in the other semi-final.

It All Happens in Second Period

Harrison had possession of the ball thru most of the game, except in the second period, when touchdowns by Tom Belsanti and Ray Green and two extra points from placement by Rocco Tarsitano gave the Tigers their 14 points. This advantage of possession, however, proved of little benefit to the Hornets, who found several scoring opportunities stalled by penalties.

Midway in the first period, Harrison established a 6 to 0 lead when Al Brosky, taking the ball on the Austin 34, passed to Nunzio Mugavero, who caught the ball on the 8 and ran for the score. Jack Golden made an unsuccessful attempt to plunge for the extra point.

Austin Starts to Roll

Austin's offense started to click shortly after the second quarter opened. Rocco Mavigliano returned a punt to the Austin 43 yard line. On the next play, Jim Frank tossed a pass to Belsanti on the Harrison 47. Belsanti broke away from the secondary defense twice and once wiggled away from three tacklers, as he scored standing up. Tarsitano's kick made it Austin, 7; Harrison, 6.

Mavigliano intercepted Brosky's pass and returned it to the Harrison 35 to set up the Tigers' second touchdown. Green gained 10, and on the next play George Holmgren went out of bounds on the 2 after taking Frank's pass. Green hit center for the touchdown and Tarsitano again added the point. The score, Austin, 14; Harrison, 6, stood at the half.

Fumble Leads to Score

Neither team had a scoring opportunity in the third quarter, but early in the fourth, George Antczak recovered a fumble on the Austin 14 yard line and Harrison moved to its second touchdown. Brosky went from the 14 to the 5, and Golden cut thru tackle for the score. Golden plunged for the point. Austin led, 14 to 13, with the scoring concluded.

PURDUE BEATS STUBBORN MIAMI ELEVEN, 21 TO 7

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 10 [Special]—Purdue's hard running backs needed all of their scoring power as the Boilermakers chalked up their seventh victory in eight starts by defeating a fighting Miami [O.] eleven, 21 to 7, before a Dad's day crowd of 12,000 in Ross-Ade stadium this afternoon.

Once again the Boilermaker touchdown twins Ed Cody, full back, and Bill Canfield, half back who is setting the western conference scoring pace accounted for the victory points, and Tom Hughes kicked all three extra points.

Purdue Drives 83 Yards

Altho the Boilermaker backs did the most scoring, they were forced to share running honors with the shifty Miami half backs, George Campbell and Bill Fleming, who gave Purdue defense trouble thruout the game. Campbell turned in the best individual effort of the game, a 57 yard run down the sidelines in the first period that carried to the Purdue 14 yard line.

Miami, seeking its 18th victory in its last 20 starts, accumulated 13 first downs to 11 for Purdue, and netted 241 yards on the ground as compared to 268 yards for the Boilermakers. In the air it gained 37 yards, Purdue 47.

Purdue drove 83 yards for the first touchdown in the second quarter with Cody going over from the 1 yard line. The second touchdown came five minutes later on a pass from Bob De Moss to Cody good for 26 yards.

Miami Scores on Pass

Miami scored in the third quarter after Campbell intercepted a De Moss pass and returned to the Purdue 36 yard line. Aided by a pass from Dick Bolton to Bill Hoover that was good for 12 yards, Miami went to the 5 yard line and, on fourth down, Jack Robinson passed to Fleming for a touchdown.

Purdue drove 58 yards for the final touchdown early in the fourth quarter. A pass from De Moss to Dave Shaw was a big factor in the drive, which ended with Canfield going 18 yards off tackle and over the goal line.

Illinois Defeats Iowa, 48 to 7; Referee Hurt; Players Fight

a 33 yard pass from Pierce to End Ray Ciszek. Tommy Zaborac, Canton yearling back, punctuated this march with a 9 yard sweep of the Iowa right end. Bill Butkovich's try for the extra point was wide.

It Becomes a Rout

Jim Valek, Joliet end, recovered a Hawkeye fumble on the Iowa 37 after the ensuing kickoff. Pierce dashed around the defensive left end for 7, Zaborac was stopped, then Pierce flipped a touchdown pass to Ciszek. Jones made the first of three extra points.

The score became 19 to 0 after a 56 yard parade in which Zaborac and Stan Stasica were chief movers. The Iowa line became obstinate and on fourth down with 4 to go, Butkovich rifled a scoring pass to Valek from the Hawkeye 8. Al Zimmerman, late of Chicago's Calumet High, accounted for the fourth Illinois score with a 19 yard right end sweep. It was on this play that Clarno collided with a batch of Illinois blockers and was assisted from the field.

Pierce Goes to Town

Butkovich took the third quarter kick-off to his 18 yard stripe and, on the first play from scrimmage, the speedy Pierce sifted thru center and into the clear with nary a Hawkeye near him after he passed the 35 yard line.

Iowa averted what would have been its fourth shutout of the season in the same third period. Clayton Colbert, Iowa right half, intercepted a Perkins pass and returned it to the Illinois 29. The Illini were penalized for unnecessary roughness, and Johnson smashed thru the home line in three successive thrusts for a touchdown. Niles made good the point attempt. Before the quarter was over, Pierce, aided by one masterful block by Perkins, traveled 57 yards on an off tackle play to score.

Fists Swing; Two Banished

Zaborac headed a last quarter charge which finally stalled on the Iowa 9 and, on fourth down, Jones dropped back to the 16 yard line and booted a field goal. The contest became quite rugged at this point, both teams being penalized for unnecessary roughness. Dan Sheehan, the end who was outstanding for the losers, and Alex Prokopis, Illinois center, started to have at each other in midfield and were instantly thumped to the side lines.

Late in the game, after three straight passes by Niles had failed, Iowa, for some inexplicable reason, ran the ball on fourth down, thus presenting it to Illinois on the Hawkeye 31. Perkins hammered the Iowa center for 23 yards, Charley Starks took it to the 3, then Perkins scored the touchdown that made it 48 to 7.

Catholic Prep Titles May Be Settled Today

By nightfall, football champions may have been determined in the north and south sections of the Catholic league, which concludes its season today. Or, so mathematically complicated are the title races, the day's competition merely may narrow the field for play-offs or whatever method the circuit would employ to decide sectional honors.

Possibly, by the time the day's results are gathered and tabulated from all precincts, the judges will be able to decide something from the variety of statistics and possibilities which confront them before kick-off time.

Fenwick Faces Leo

First, the contending field in the south section, in post position order:

FENWICK—Meets Leo in Hanson park. Fenwick has won four and tied one in five games. Tied for lead with St. George. Needs a victory or at least a tie to remain in the running. Can clinch the title by defeating Leo, if St. Rita beats St. George in Shewbridge field.

ST. GEORGE—Has same record as Fenwick. Should Leo upset the Friars and the Dragons beat St. Rita, St. George would have undisputed possession of the title. If Fenwick and St. George both win or tie they will be tied for the championship.

LEO—Victor in four of five games, losing only to St. George. Lions can win title only if—they upset Fenwick and St. Rita beats the Dragons. A victory by St. George, even tho Leo upsets Fenwick, would eliminate Lions from race.

Close in North, Too

The contending field in the north section, in post position order:

ST. IGNATIUS—Has won five and tied one, leads league and can win championship by defeating St. Mel in Key Branch stadium. St. Mel, first off post, is a strong team in fourth position and led the circuit in the early weeks.

WEBER—The defending league champions have won four and tied two. Today the Red Horde meets De Paul in Lane Tech stadium. If Weber wins, and St. Ignatius loses, Weber would be north section champion. If Weber wins and St. Ignatius is held to a draw by the Cadets, the St. Ignatius and Weber elevens would be tied for the title and have to settle it by play-off or coin.

ST. PHILIP—Meets St. Patrick in St. Philip stadium. If St. Philip wins, and St. Ignatius and Weber both are defeated, the Gaels and St. Ignatius would be in a first place tie, and Weber eliminated. A victory by either St. Ignatius or Weber would eliminate the Gaels.

U. S. C. Wins; Keeps Bowl Hopes Alive

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 10 (AP)—Southern California remained in the running for a Rose bowl bid by pounding out a 14 to 0 victory today over California in Memorial coliseum before 35,000.

The Trojans' victory put them in the conference lead, as Washington was being upset by Oregon State. Southern California has lost one.

BEAVERS UPSET HUSKIES, 7-6

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 10 (AP)—Coming from behind in the last three minutes of play, the Oregon State Beavers upset the University of Washington Huskies, 7 to 6, in their Pacific Coast conference football game before a crowd of 28,000 today. Four passes and a 23 yard run by Dick Gray paved the way for the Beavers' touchdown. Stan McGuire, substitute end, placekicked the winning point.

WASHINGTON STATE WINS

Pullman, Wash., Nov. 10 (AP) — Washington State scored two last period touchdowns today to upset Oregon, 20 to 13, in a Pacific Coast conference football game.

The Cougars tied the score in the final period after Capt. Rod Giske blocked a punt. Quarter back Dean Eggers sneaked thru from the 1 yard line for the winning touchdown late in the final period.

Brown Ruins Yale's Bid for No. 500, 20-7

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 10 (AP)—A Brown football team that almost nobody figured had even a chance to beat Yale rallied today after a poor start to completely outplay the Blue, 20 to 7, in the Golden anniversary game between these rivals as 15,000 fans looked on in bewilderment.

The Bruins were by far the better club this afternoon as they thwarted highly favored Yale's bid to become the nation's first winner of 500 intercollegiate football contests. The Blue was in the running during a rough opening period and part of the second. After that it was mainly Brown.

Art Dakos scored on a quarterback sneak from the half foot mark for Yale's only touchdown shortly after the second quarter opened. Val Wilkie added the extra point. Brown then went 66 yards with Hi Finn tossing 5 yards to Tom Kavazanjian for the score. Irv Morris missed the extra point, but shortly after holding Yale on its 1 yard line in the third, Brown's Bob Mesch pitched a 34 yard pass to Bill Lyons, who took it on the 25 to score.

Then, with the fourth period hardly under way, Fred Diehl went around end from the 5. Al Lisi made the point from placement after both of the last two touchdowns.

HARVARD WINS, 28 TO 7

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 10 (AP)—After recovering a fumbled lateral for Harvard's first touchdown, Charley Roche threw three scoring passes to pile up a 28 to 7 Crimson victory over the Kings Point merchant marine academy's forces today. Roche completed six of 10 aerial efforts for 111 yards, including tosses of 40, 32, and 26 yards to Lou Diluzio, Paul Champion, and Herb Fritts.

The Kings Point touchdown was scored by Bob Pfohl on a 4 yard plunge in the second quarter.

MARQUETTE'S 2D HALF RALLY BEATS KANSAS

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 10 [Special]—Marquette's Hilltoppers, after a scoreless first half which found neither team threatening, broke loose with four touchdowns in the last two quarters to defeat the University of Kansas, 26 to 0, before 9,000 today. It was Marquette's final home game.

The Hilltoppers lost no time in scoring once they got their hands on the ball in the third quarter. Half Back Frank Pattee of Kansas punted from his own 25 to the Marquette 45 and Half Back Paul Glasener returned it to the Jayhawker 43.

Copoulos Goes Over

After Glasener picked up 4 at guard, Quarterback Bob Lodde whipped a long pass to Half Back Paul Copoulos, who grabbed it on the 6 and went over for the score. Guard Bobby Dams kicked the point.

A Kansas fumble was subsequently recovered by Tackle Bob Richardson on the Jayhawk 10 and the Hilltoppers cashed in again with Half Back Jerry Strohm running right end from the 5. Full Back Denny Pantzlaff failed to add the extra point.

March 75 Yards to Score

In the fourth quarter, after suffering a penalty for clipping, Marquette marched 75 yards for its third marker with Quarter Back Karl Plath passing 10 yards to End Orlando Palesse. Pantzlaff made the extra point. Another recovered fumble on the Kansas 15 paved the way for the final tally, with Plath tossing 11 yards to End Tom Marsailles for the touchdown. Glasener missed on the try for the point. Lineup:

PRO FOOTBALL'S WHIRL AT GATE RESUMES TODAY

BY EDWARD PRELL

The National Football league's pennant and box office whirl continues this afternoon on five fronts. Today's activity, instead of clarifying the western and eastern division races, may put them in even more than a snarl.

Playing a subordinate role are the Bears, immensely enjoying their killer's role. They hope to mess up the Detroit Lions' fine record today on Wrigley field. Despite having won only one out of six games, while the Lions have won five out of six, the Bears are favorites to win. This strange situation is the result of Chicago's 28 to 24 stunner over the Packers last week while the Lions had to strain for a 10 to 9 triumph over the Boston Yanks. A crowd of 30,000 may watch this one. Kickoff is at 2 p. m.

Rams Face Packers

Cleveland's Rams, who are showing signs of midseason hesitation, rule favorites by 6½ points to beat the Packers in Cleveland, but the 1944 champions may bounce back from last week's defeat. This they must do to get back in the running. If the Lions and Rams are beaten they will drop back into a triple tie with the Packers in the west. League park in Cleveland, home of the baseball Indians, is sold out, but its capacity is only 23,500.

The Rams, after winning four straight, lost to the Philadelphia Eagles, 28 to 14, and last Sunday rallied late to whip the Giants, 21 to 17. New York had a 17 to 7 lead at half time. Earlier in the year the Rams came from behind to whip the Packers in Green Bay, 27 to 14.

Chicago's other team, the Cardinals, meets the Pittsburgh Steelers in Pittsburgh. The Cardinals, slowly improving, should beat the team with which they were combined in 1944 with the net result of no victories. Under their own power the Cards and Steelers each has won once this fall.

Redskins Sold Out

Washington will have its usual plus 35,000 sellout crowd when the Redskins meet the Boston Yanks in Griffith stadium. The Redskins beat the Cards last week in the final seconds to protect their eastern lead. Their only defeat was at the start of the season when the Yanks beat them in Boston, 28 to 20. The Redskins, who have welcomed back more former stars from the war than any other league club, will be bolstered by Clem Stralka, a guard, who has returned after three years in the navy. He starred on the 1942 team which upset the Bears for the league title.

George Franck, the old Minnesota speedster, will be in the Giant lineup today in Philadelphia against the Eagles. In a pre-game ceremony the Eagles will honor the member of a former star, Nick Basca, who played his final game on Pearl Harbor day. He was killed a year ago today in France. A crowd of 35,000 or more will watch this game.

Attendance Is Booming

Two Sundays ago 175,000 watched five league games. Last Sunday the total was 165,000, attendance being cut down in Boston by a snowstorm.

The Bears, despite the loss by injury of Lee Artoe, and possibly Center Johnny Schiechl, believe they will win this 24th game in their series. The Lions' main ingredients are a passing attack with Chuck Fenerbock and Cotton Price pitching, and the best defensive strength in the league. Against this the Bears will pit their running power and Sid Luckman's passes.

17 Year Old Sub Wins for North Carolina, 6-0

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 10 (AP)—A 17 year old substitute wing back playing his first varsity game smashed seven yards off tackle for a touchdown in the last minute of play to give the University of North Carolina a 6 to 0 victory over William and Maray today before 10,000. The star for a day was Merl Norcross of Kingston, Pa.

PENN SHATTERS COLUMBIA STRING AT SIX, 32 TO 7

Lions Falter After Taking Early Lead

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 10 (AP)—Columbia was toppled from the nation's undefeated ranks today by a strong Penn eleven, 32 to 7. Outmanned and overpowered, the Lions scored the first time they got their hands on the ball with Gene Rossides passing Penn dizzy, but after that Penn took over to end Columbia's winning streak at six before 63,000 fans in Franklin field.

Behind, 7 to 0, in the first six minutes of play after Rossides completed five straight passes for 63 yards and the touchdown, the Quakers started to go and roll up a 20 to 7 half time lead. Bob Evans completed eight out of 16 passes for 116 yards. Four of his pitches produced touchdowns before he left for the day. Three of the touchdown throws went to Frank Jenkins.

The Quakers rolled up 167 yards rushing to a net of 14 for Columbia, altho the Lions outgained their rivals in the air, 166 to 123.

DARTMOUTH, PRINCETON TIE

Princeton, N. Y., Nov. 10 (AP)—Princeton and Dartmouth provided a lot of excitement and entertainment for 15,000 fans today and wound up in a 13 to 13 tie. Dartmouth had a big edge on the ground, due largely to the fast, tricky runnig of Meryll Frost, Glen Treichler, and Joe Sullivan, gaining 204 yards by rushing to the Tigers' 125. But its passing attack was smeared with regularity while Princeton gained 141 yards thru the air and set up both its touchdowns by long passes.

PENN STATE, 27; TEMPLE, 0.

State College, Pa., Nov. 10 (AP)—Penn state crushed Temple today, 27 to 0, to send the Owls toppling from the ranks of the nation's unbeaten football teams.

The Nittany Lions completely outplayed the visitors, with three of the four touchdowns being scored by linemen, who took advantage of every possible break. The game was played in a driving rainstorm before a crowd of 16,000.

3 Games Top Brief Soccer Card Today

BY OFFSIDE

Barring upsets, titles in either the major or first or both divisions of the National Soccer league could be settled today, for two games in the former section and one in the latter have direct bearing on first place in the final standings.

Jimmy McDermott

Interest in the major division will be centered in Weber park, where the Vikings meet Hansa, and on the field at California and Roscoe, where the Schwabens meet Hakoah. Both games were postponed from several weeks ago because of rain. First division fans will focus attentiton on Sparta stadium, where the undefeated Necaxas play the Slovaks.

The Vikings, reinforced by George Gibbons and Don Bain, not only are favorites to defeat Hansa today, but to finish on top in the major division race as well in view of their fine performance last week against the Swedes. They will field the same lineup that has done so well all season, altho Jimmy McDermott, their sparkplug, will shift over to the right side of the field today.

Nexaca, weakened by the loss of four players, is making a desperate bid to retain its first division leadership and has called upon Nick Apostolas, recently discharged from the Navy, to return to the game in an attempt to fill the gaping holes created by wholesale departures. Schedule:

MAJOR DIVISION

Hansa vs. Vikings, Weber park, 2:30 p. m. Referee—Robert Jones.

Schwabens vs. Hakoah, California av. and Roscoe st., 2:30 p. m. Referee—Otto Bilik.

Sparta vs. Chicago Sport club, Sparta stadium, 12:30 p. m. Referee—Emil Baun.

FIRST DIVISION

Slovaks vs. Necaxa, Sparta stadium, 2:30 p. m. Referee—Eli Korer.

Kickers vs. Norwegians, Avondale stadium, 2:30 p. m. Referee—Fred Klotz.

after it was in possession of its first touchdown. By the time the opening quarter ended the Badgers had advanced from their own 20 to the Wildcats' 46 and were going strong.

Badgers First to Score

Bendrick opened the second period with a 4 yard assessment and followed with something better for a first down on the Wildcats' 37 after which Kindt helped out with 3 yards. Thompson flipped a pass to Fuchs for a first down on the Purple's 26. Three plays, one a pass into the end zone, were failures, so another pass was tried and it clicked. Thompson throwing to Mead on the 6 yard line. Mead stepped over the goal and the injured Martin Meyer came out from the bench to make the score 7 to 0.

The Wildcats took the ensuing kick-off and scored without surrendering the ball. They went from their 27 to Wisconsin's 31 where they were shy two yards with a fourth down coming up. They elected to try to make it, and did so with ease, McKinley hiking to Wisconsin's 25 yard line. Conners went up to the 20 by sweeping wide to his left and, after one pass failure, Farrar sailed the ball to Morris for the touchdown. Farrar kicked the tying point.

Score with 12 Seconds to Go

The touchdown that the Badgers let linger until the last few seconds of the second quarter began when Bendrick carried the kick-off out to his 40 yard line. The Badgers were set back 5 yards on the first play, but Bendrick then ran around his right end for 18 yards, and Kindt swung to his left for 3. Thompson ran to the 18 yard line after he had been thwarted in an attempt to pass, and later lateraled to Bendrick for 6 yards. Kindt plunged to the 8 yard line and Thompson helped out with 2 yards. Kindt tried to plow across, but was dumped 2½ yards short of the target. He tried it again, the clock showing 12 seconds of play remaining, and this time went over, Meyer kicking to make the score 14 to 7.

The third period got under way with Whan lugging Wisconsin's kick-off up to the N. U. 30 yard line. McKinley went wide to his right for 9 yards and this marked his finish for the day. Parsegian marked his debut with a first down on the Badgers' 46. In two plays Conners peeled off 8 yards and Farrar sneaked thru for a first down on the 36. Parsegian and Whan divided a 10 yard advance and Farrar then passed to Gorski for the touchdown. Farrar's toe made it 14 to 14.

Fumbles Set Up Scores

The Badgers had just rolled up 15 yards in two plays early in the fourth quarter when they made their fatal blunder. The force of a tackle on Bendrick jarred the ball out of his grasp and it was plucked out of the air by Hunt, who sprinted to the 9 yard line for a 35 yard gain before shocked Badgers nudged him out of bounds. Parsegian cut in at his right tackle for 6 yards, Whan followed with 2, and Conners scored. Farrar kicked the extra point. This was the play on which Farrar was injured.

There wasn't much time remaining in the final period when Conners punted over the goal and the Badgers put the ball in play on their 20 yard line. They immediately threw themselves back on the defensive by the second Bendrick fumble, Conners capturing the oval for the Wildcats on the 24 yard line. Barron swung to his right for 6 yards, after which Parsegian and Conners alternated until they had reached the 1 foot line. Conners dove over the goal and Oral Congdon kicked the last point of the battle. Statistics:

NAVY'S 2D HALF POWER DEFEATS MICHIGAN, 33-7

this third Annapolis touchdown and Currence added the point.

Interception Leads to Score

The fourth Navy touchdown came just a few minutes after the third, springing from Johnny Welsh's pass interception on the Michigan 40 yard line. Joe Bartos sprinted 16 yards for a first down on the 24 then completed the distance for a touchdown. Currence again kicked goal.

The fourth period touchdown was made by Ralph Williams after 10 minutes. Navy kicked and Elliott received the ball and gave it to Fonde, who fumbled. Duden recovered on the Michigan 40. Bartos made 12, Kelly made 16, and shorter gains carried to Michigan's 8, then a lateral, Bruce Smith to Williams, accomplished the touchdown. Currence missed this time.

All season the Navy has complained its attack was in no way comparable to its defense. Today there was an entirely new back field as compared with the starters in the Notre Dame game. It is likely that Wisconsin will see today's quartet at the kick-off next Saturday.

Army Jolts Notre Dame, 48-0; Davis, Blanchard Lead Attack

scrimmage picked up 3. Then Elmer Angsman fumbled and Arthur Gerometta recovered for Army on Notre Dame's 31.

There Goes Davis!

Blanchard made 4 thru his right tackle, after which the Irish got their first look at Davis, the former Southern California sprinter. He faked a pass and with lightning speed broke thru his left tackle for a touchdown. Walterhouse added the point from placement and Army led, 7 to 0, after 2 minutes and 6 seconds of play.

The Irish brought their subway alumni and other supporters to their feet with their recovery from this paralyzing blow. Frank Dancewicz ran back the kick-off to his 25. Angsman darted thru center for 15 yards before Davis caught him. Phil Colella whirled thru right tackle for 8. Ruggerio banged thru the middle for a first down on Army's 36. After four more running plays Notre Dame was half a yard short of a first down.

The Cadets blazed back with a running assault that matched Notre Dame's. Blanchard got 9 thru center and Davis earned a first down on his 47. Blanchard, who seldom was held without gain, got four at right tackle after which Arnold Tucker passed to Foldberg for a first down on Notre Dame's 24. Here the Irish defense stiffened and took the ball on downs after a pass from McWilliams was batted down by Dancewicz in the end zone.

Army Stops Drive

Notre Dame's line outcharged Army's and its backs, notably Angsman and Colella, were prancing thru the Cadet wall in lively fashion the next seven or eight minutes. At the end of the quarter Notre Dame was on Army's 23 and it was second down and only 2 yards to go. Dancewicz tried to make it a first down thru center but gained nothing. Ruggerio picked up a yard and a half. On fourth down Ruggerio was 2 inches short of a first down.

After Army made a first down by rushing, Davis fumbled attempting a lateral pass and Colella recovered for the Irish on the Cadets' 30. Colella fumbled on the next play and recovered for a 14 yard loss. Notre Dame never got over that disaster. Two forward passes failed and Dancewicz punted out of bounds on Army's 26.

A 5 yard penalty for backs in motion set back West Point to its 21, but the Cadets followed with a show of power and speed that stunned Notre Dame's rooting sections. Blanchard ripped thru center for 7 and Tucker's pass to Davis was completed on Notre Dame's 45. George Ratterman, who had relieved Dancewicz at quarter back for Notre Dame, hauled down Blanchard after a 17 yard advance. Tucker then whipped a pass to Davis who bypassed Ruggerio on the 15, sidestepped Ratterman on the 5 and crossed the goal line for a standup touchdown. Walterhouse added the point to boost the total to 14 to 0.

Blanchard Goes Over

Army traveled 53 yards for its third touchdown after Stuart returned Dancewicz's punt 10 yards to his 47. Blanchard made 7 and Tucker tossed a forward pass to George Poole who lateraled to Davis. Davis was crowded out of bounds on Notre Dame's 31. Stuart got thru his right tackle for 14 before Dancewicz dumped him. Blanchard powered his way to the 5. He moved to the 2 thru left guard and Tucker was stopped a yard short of the goal by Jim McGurk. Blanchard went over his left tackle for a touchdown. Walterhouse again added the point.

There was no more scoring in the first half. Army, which had been outrushed in the opening period, made six first downs to Notre Dame's one in the second quarter.

Davis Scoots Again

The Cadets marched 48 yards for their fourth touchdown, which came in the middle of the third period. Powerful plunging by Blanchard and end runs by Davis gave Army a first down on Notre Dame's 21. Davis then scooted to the right, feinted Terry Brennan out of position and raced to the goal without a hand reaching him. Walterhouse kicked the point.

Blanchard, of whom you have heard before, accounted for Army's fifth touchdown by returning an intercepted pass from Ratterman for 36 yards. The pass was directly into his arms. Walterhouse kicked the point only 1 minute 58 seconds after Army made its fourth touchdown.

Irish 6 Inches from Score

The 76,000 fans by this time realized the Irish were thoroly beaten, but their green shirted representatives refused to admit it. They put on a drive that began on their 41 and carried to the Army 6 inch line where Bill Gompers fumbled and Stuart of Army recovered in the air and ran back to his 27. The Irish parade was highlighted by Dancewicz's passing and some fancy running by Brennan.

Elwyn Rowan, who came into the Army back field after Coach Earl Blaik mercifuly removed Blanchard and Davis, was the big man in the Cadets' sixth touchdown, which came in the middle of the last quarter. McWilliams carried it over from the 2 yard line. Walterhouse missed the try for point, which was one of the major news developments of the afternoon.

The final score came just before the game's end on a forward pass, Walterhouse to Grimenstein, which was caught in the end zone. Walterhouse clicked on the try for point.

Cadets All for Rose Bowl Trip; Coach Opposed

New York, Nov. 10 (AP)—Doc Blanchard wore a grin as he peeled off his playing clothes in the Army dressing room deep under Yankee stadium where he and his mates had humbled Notre Dame, 48 to 0, today.

"Sure we want to go to the Rose Bowl," said the Cadet full back who scored two touchdowns and split the Irish defense wide open time after time with his smashing drives.

"If they left it up to the squad, you can bet we'd all vote to accept a bid to the Rose Bowl," he declared. Several other happy Cadets around him nodded approval.

But their ambition probably never will be realized if the decision is left up to Earl [Red] Blaik, Army coach.

"When the season is over I'll have enough for this year," said Blaik.

He hastened to add that there was nothing official about his desire to wind up the season with the Navy game Dec. 1, that it was purely personal and that the final decision had not been made.

LONDON WANTS TO SEE GOLDEN GLOVERS AGAIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Nov. 10—Boxing fans here want to see another Golden Gloves team, and to satisfy the requests Wembley boxing authorities are going to ask the Amateur Boxing association to arrange for the appearance of Golden Glove champions at a big tournament in Wembley's Empire Pool arena.

Wembley has suggested the dates of Jan. 16 or late May after the A. B. A. meet in Empire Pool on May 1. The latter date is more likely to be accepted. Nine years ago a record amateur boxing crowd of 12,000 watched the A. B. A. team beat the New York Golden Glovers, and Wembley has been getting appeals for a repeat performance ever since.

BUCKEYES DEAL 14 TO 0 DEFEAT TO PITTSBURGH

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 10 (AP)—For more than 50 sodden minutes an underdog Pittsburgh football team threatened to spring the upset of a scoreless tie, or even a victory, in its football game with Ohio State in the muck and mire that was the Pitt stadium field today, but the aroused and desperate Buckeyes finally surged to two quick touchdowns and a 14 to 0 victory.

Twenty thousand drooping and bedraggled spectators who braved the steady, dreary drizzle were rewarded with thrilling defensive stands by the Pitt team, and even one mighty but futile, threat by the Panthers, before Ohio State speed and might had its way.

One Great Threat Fades

That one great threat, at the start of the final period, was the swan song of the stubborn Pitt eleven. Ohio State took over the ball after a fourth down Pitt pass into the end zone had failed and marched 80 yards to score, Alex Verdova splashing around his left end, bowling over Jim Robinson with a headlong surge, and ran 18 yards for the touchdown.

Short minutes later Speedy Ollie Cline, the standout offensive Buckeye back today, sliced thru the Pitt line and raced 63 yards to cross the goal, and the saturated game was over, altho the Buckeyes had the ball on the Pitt 10 as the game ended.

Straight Football a Necessity

It was a game of slithering footballs, of players so mud caked identification often was guesswork. Only fumbles were charged against Pitt, but innumerable times a ball carrier would fall on the ball as it squirted from his arms as he fell.

Under such conditions straight football was almost a necessity, and Ohio State rolled to impressive yardage by that medium. The Buckeyes gained 359 yards by foot to 91 for Pitt. Ohio State failed to complete a pass in three tries. Pitt completed one for 16 yards in six attempts.

Penalties Hamper Pitt Attack

The first two periods saw Pitt rise to great defensive heights, and most of the second period the Panthers were skirmishing doggedly in the shadow of their own goal as the Buckeyes rolled forward in three ponderous drives. A fine punt by Dick Fisher had driven the Panthers back to their 2 yard line early in that quarter, and they never could get out of the hole. However, they stopped drives on their 18, on their 3, and on their 8.

Numerous penalties involving substitutions hampered the Pitt attack, altho aside from the one big threat in the fourth period that carried to the Ohio State 12, theirs was strictly a defensive battle against a team that, in the final analysis, had just too much. Lineups:

TWELVE clinics on various phases of the recreational program, including several which will be of interest in the industrial field, are scheduled as one of the important features of the 11th Chicago recreation conference in the Morrison hotel Nov. 27.

Six of the discussion groups will meet in the morning and six in the afternoon. These gatherings of comparatively small groups, all of whose members are vitally interested in a subject, have been among the most popular items on past conference programs. The subjects:

Morning groups—"New Issues for Professional Leaders in Recreation"; "Recreation for Youth Over 15"; "Day Camping"; "Interracial Understanding Thru Recreation"; "Future Value and Uses of Service Men's Centers"; "Recreation for the Older Adult." Afternoon groups—"Labor-Management Teamwork in Industrial Recreation"; "Play Problems for the Pre-School Child"; "The Returning Veteran's Place in Community Recreation"; "Responsibility of Church and Synagog for Community Recreation"; "Community Organization for Recreation," and "Family Recreation."

Start Winter Sports Program at Illinois Tool Works

The Illinois Tool works, whose competitive athletic program is one of the most diversified in the Chicago area—and also highly successful in the matter of championships won in competition with other plants—is well into the winter phase of its schedule. Basketball and bowling naturally are the two major activities.

The I. T. W. bowlers operate in three men's and one women's league. The men hold forth at the Kraft recreation alleys, a 12 team league operating Thursday nights and an eight team circuit Friday nights. In addition, there is the Night Owl league, just starting its 25th season with 10 teams rolling each Friday morning at the same center.

ONCE IN A LIFETIME

Frank Koslowski, president of the J. P. Seeburg corporation's bowling league, was a model of consistency the other night, rolling a series of 135, 135, 135. A plant mathematician comes up with the statement that under the law of averages Frank need not expect to come up with a duplication of that performance until he has rolled 674,432 games.

The Illinois Tool Works basketball team, a leader in Chicagoland industrial competition in recent seasons, should be as strong as usual [and that is plenty strong!] this winter. Returning from last season's championship squad are such players as Art Gerken, Norbert and Larry Hope, Marion Podraza, Norb Pischke, Steve Agostan and Elmer Sahlin. An outstanding newcomer is Robert Behnke, a star on the St. Philip High school city championship heavyweight quintet last year. Then, too, word came recently all the way from the Aleutians that Sam Vukovich, a forward on the 1942 I. T. W. team, may be out of service and bidding for his old berth before the season gets very old. The team works out each Tuesday evening in Kelvyn Park gymnasium.

Illinois Bell Telephones Hang Tenaciously to Bowling Lead

The Illinois Bell Telephone company bowlers hold some sort of a record in the redhot Chicago Association of Commerce Industrial Bowling league as a result of hanging onto first place for the last two weeks. Pyott Foundry & Machine and Railway Express Agency are tied for second, one game back, with Savoy Drug & Chemical and Thompson Elevator & Electric two games out. Joe Seese of Pyott has taken over the individual leadership with an average of 182.

Latest figures on the Austin Y. M. C. A. Industrial league, compiled by Ford Charlton, league secretary, show Miller Roofing and Mojonnier Brothers company tied for first place in the team rankings. In the individual standings there is a three way deadlock for the lead, involving Jerry Hanzlik of Miller Roofing, Walter Wright of Revere Copper & Brass, and Paul Whittenberg of the Polhemus company, all with 181 averages.

Clemence Voted Best Eastern League Pitcher

Elmira, N. Y., Nov. 10 (AP)—Fred Clemence of Albany has been named the most valuable Eastern league pitcher of 1945 by baseball writers in the league's member cities.

OAK PARK BEATS PROVISO, 9 TO 0, TO TAKE TITLE

Victors Tally Touchdown and Field Goal

Oak Park High school returned to the Suburban league leadership after an absence of a year by defeating Proviso, 9 to 0, yesterday in Maywood before an overflow crowd of more than 10,000. It was the final league game for both schools, and gave Oak Park a clean sweep of five triumphs, while Proviso finished with four victories and one loss.

The Villagers scored their touchdown in the first quarter. Taking possession of the ball on a punt return on the Proviso 40, Oak Park moved down the field with a series of running plays to the Pirates' 24 yard stripe. Then Bob Handke passed to Tom Rowe in the end zone for the touchdown.

Proviso Makes Threat

In the same quarter Proviso threatened to score. Taking the kickoff on their own 20, the Pirates advanced to the Oak Park 19, but lost the ball on downs.

After the intermission, Proviso punted to the Oak Park 46, and the Villagers drove to the Proviso 4 yard line. Then the Pirates' line held for three downs, and Don Henkel went in and kicked a field goal to give Oak Park three more points.

Pirates Halted on 3 Yard Line

Proviso again threatened in the fourth period going from the Oak Park 40 to the 3 yard line, but failed to make the necessary yardage for a touchdown. Ed Gilbert, quarter back on the Proviso club became ill at half time, and was on the bench during the second half, with Jim Charlesworth and Don Hampton alternating at the position.

CHICAGO LATIN TAKES PRIVATE SCHOOL CROWN

Undefeated Chicago Latin school which had clinched a title tie a week ago, yesterday obtained clear claim to the Private School league crown when Wheaton was unable to play in Latin's final scheduled game. Robert Foster of Wheaton forfeited the contest to Latin announcing an influenza epidemic had made it impossible for Wheaton to play. Illness also had struck Latin school players during the week, but the Latin squad had said it was willing to play.

Chicago Latin finished its season with seven victories and no losses. It scored 101 points to 26 for opponents.

Kanter Wins Honors

Emil Iverson of Latin lost any chance to catch Alan Kanter of Parker in the individual scoring race when the Wheaton-Latin game was cancelled. Iverson finished with 55 points.

Kanter scored three touchdowns to lead Francis Parker to a 34 to 0 victory over North Shore on the latter's field. It was the sixth victory in seven games for Parker, and gave Kanter the league scoring championship with a total of 93 points, 15 touchdowns, and three points after.

Luther Institute rallied in the second half to score two touchdowns and defeat Todd school, 13 to 6, in Woodstock.

Harvard Beats North Park

Harvard school concluded its league schedule by turning back North Park academy, 19 to 0, in Winnemac park for its fifth victory.

Illinois Keeps 16 Team Prep Basket Meet

Sixteen teams will participate in the 1946 Illinois High school basketball tournament in Champaign March 14, 15, and 16. This was decided yesterday as the Illinois High School association board of control meeting in Chicago voted against a proposal to limit the tournament to one day and four teams.

Action by the board of control came after state high school principals voted, by an almost 2 to 1 majority, in favor of the three day meet. This state-wide poll stopped action on the recommendation for a one day, four team meet, made Oct. 17 by the Illinois High School Principals' association.

The principals' association was advised that the cities of Champaign and Urbana could not provide housing accommodations for the large number of visitors attracted by a three day meeting, and was asked to limit the tournament to one day. It made such a proposal to the I. H. S. A.

Almost immediate opposition was forthcoming, mainly from the Illinois Coaches association, which cited the 1941 one day tourney as unsuccessful, and pointed out that Champaign and Urbana had been able to accommodate large crowds for Illinois home football games and the University of Illinois airport dedication. The coaches cited that many homes in those cities, which would not rent rooms to students over a several month period, would offer accommodations for a few days.

PROFITS have come TOO EASILY!

That certain industries would profit from the post-war boom demand for goods has long been all too obvious. Little skill was needed to select these particular companies as good investments—but, as always, THE OBVIOUS HAS BEEN OVERDONE! Some of these obvious situations have proved much too pouular, and have jumped too high in price. Simultaneously, other stocks, temporarily less favorably situated, have been neglected, and are too low in price.

YES, THE TRUE BULL MARKET HAS BARELY STARTED

But this is no time for indiscriminate buying. Many stocks should actually be sold at these levels—others should be held or bought regardless of interim declines in the general market.

But the real secret of profits from now on will be to take the steps that may well give your POSTWAR CAPITAL APPRECIATION PROGRAM a flying start. You are sure to gain advantages if you promptly square your present holdings with the now virtually completed Gartley Basic Postwar List, centered in the 25 industries sure to benefit from the coming peace boom. Best of all, you will avoid the current confusion of mind and moreover you will enter the postwar future with a strong, carefully considered investment program. Especially important to you are the:

25 low and moderate-priced issues
10 outstanding growth situations
10 low-priced speculations that have qualified under the stern pre-VJ Day sifting of 2,000 individual issues by the Gartley analytical staff under the personal direction of Mr. H. M. Gartley.

These outstanding stocks will be made available to you during the following—

WHAT STOCKS STILL LOOK CHEAP to investment advisers?

WITH stocks at a new 8-year high, it is becoming increasingly difficult to find issues that rank as investment bargains. Yet, in the eyes of some authorities, there are still stocks which appear undervalued, and which should sell substantially higher before this Bull Market ends.

GRAINS SURGE TO NEW PEAKS IN BROAD TRADE

Rye Futures Bound 5 Cent Limit

Grain markets extended their advances yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade. December and May rye soared 5 cents a bushel, the permissible limit for one day's trading. Oats ranged 2¼ to 4¼ cents higher in one of the wildest day's trading in years. Closing prices were at the top.

The upturn in December wheat, all deliveries of corn and July and September rye was checked by ceiling prices. Active deliveries of wheat closed ¾ to 1⅜ cents higher with May at the ceiling. Barley was ⅛ to ⅝ cent higher, with May and July at new peak levels for the season.

Bounds 22 Cents in Week

December rye which brought $1.62¼ a week ago finished at $1.85⅛, an advance of 22⅞ cents. Brokers reported trading was heavy, but profit taking was absorbed by a new set of buyers and the price advanced steadily. Old crop deliveries of rye in Minneapolis and Winnipeg closed 5 cents higher. Purchases of 750,000 bushels of Canadian rye for shipment to the United States were reported.

A corner is believed to be developing in December wheat, corn, oats, and rye because little cash grain is available for tender on future contracts, brokers said. The demand for cash grain for shipment abroad and from the domestic trade has broadened in an astonishing manner recently and the upturn in wheat and oats has been helped by heavy buying by the government.

Distillery Demand Big Factor

Demands from whisky distillers and other consumers seeking a substitute for corn, which is in short supply, have been in large part responsible for the recent large advances in rye prices, said market spokesmen. These demands have risen at a time when United States and Canadian rye supplies are well below the 1944 levels. Feed manufacturers and milling houses also have competed for rye because they could not get sufficient corn for their needs.

Europe's rye crop is about 287 million bushels below 1944 levels. United States exports to European countries have totaled between 2 and 4 million bushels in 1945. No shipments have been or are expected to be made this year to Germany.

Another strong influence in rye prices is the extremely speculative nature of rye trading, it was said. The 1945 rye crop has been free of price ceilings, the only major grain in this position. The 1946 rye crop has been placed under ceilings. Prices of new crop options traded for delivery in July and September have been held at $1.44½, the ceiling. In contrast, December rye sold yesterday at $1.85⅛.

Predict Continued High Prices

The department of agriculture last week said the 1946 rye crop would be below domestic requirements and predicted prices would remain high.

Cash oats sold in the spot market at the ceiling price, without allowing for commission charges. No. 1 and No. 2 extra heavy brought 82 cents a bushel and little grain was said to be available at that price.

Oats futures had a closing range of prices of 1½ cents a bushel between the high and low prevailing in various parts of the pit.

Buyers of cash wheat were reported eager to obtain supplies on any terms. Mills in the southwest were bidding the ceiling prices for grain for shipment from the country as far ahead as next May, and durum wheat was salable at the permissible maximum for shipment by next June.

Question Size of Exports

New York exporters are questioning whether exports of wheat and other grains in early 1946 will be as large as expected as the result of the slowness with which grain from the west is arriving at Atlantic coast ports. Many ships were said to be waiting for cargoes despite efforts of the railroads to move the grain.

Eastern and southeastern railroads were estimated to have delivered more than 1,000 box cars at Chicago to western lines. Emergency demurrage charges for failure to unload box cars promptly ranged from $2.20 a day for the first two days up to $16.50 a day for failure to unload after four days.

Lewis Seizes Leadership in Labor Parley

BY THOMAS FURLONG

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10—Outmaneuvering his rivals, John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, has emerged as the dominant figure in the national labor-management conference, observers agreed today.

Lewis is conceded to be exerting more influence in the conference than either William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, or Philip Murray, president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

Lewis and Murray are enemies, but Lewis and Green have patched up their differences and the ground has been prepared for the return of the mine workers' union to the AFL ranks. Formal approval is expected early next year at the meeting of the AFL executive board.

Surprises Many Persons

The revival of Lewis as a national figure comes as a surprise to many persons in the labor movement who wrote off Lewis when he pulled out of the CIO in 1942. Lewis has shown that he can get along without the CIO, but it is not certain that CIO can get along without Lewis.

The opinion widely held in labor circles is that the Murray leadership in the CIO made a mistake when it tied up with the Truman administration in an effort to force industry to pay wage increases during the reconversion period without compensating price increases. Murray adopted President Truman's message on cost of living increases as the basis of the CIO policy.

Lewis is just as interested in getting wage increases as Murray, but he has adopted a different strategy. He believes the removal of all government controls over wages and prices will serve labor's interest best in the long run.

Management Lacks Initiative

Lewis' viewpoint is shared by Green. It also is the viewpoint of most industrial leaders. Lewis has taken the ball away from the management delegates in his aggressive championship of free collective bargaining and the removal of government economic controls.

The management delegates have lacked initiative in setting forth their views. The only public utterances from their side since the opening day of the conference last Monday have been in answer to statements from the labor side.

Lewis' position is more conservative than that of some of the business leaders who have flirted with the so-called liberal elements. At 65 Lewis promises to exert an important influence in the next few years. Green at 72 is near the end of his career. Murray's future is uncertain.

The immediate results of the conference are not likely to be startling. The best that can be hoped for is an improved procedure for collective bargaining. The conference, however, is sharpening the economic issues around which the congressional elections next year and the Presidential election of 1948 will revolve.

JURISDICTIONAL STRIKE ISSUES LEFT UNSOLVED

Conferees to Shun Old Union Fight

BY GEORGE HARTMANN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10—Efforts of the labor-management conference to find a method to curb strikes caused by jurisdictional disputes between labor unions are headed for failure, labor delegates agreed today. The committee assigned to representation and jurisdictional questions will meet again tomorrow and Monday, hoping to finish its tasks by Tuesday night.

Altho jurisdictional disputes between labor unions are among the matters under consideration by the committee, its members have already agreed to refer such disputes to CIO and AFL unions, "to work out for themselves."

This is just where the question of jurisdictional disputes has been since unions were formed. The futility of organized labor's attempts to settle these battles between their affiliates often has been illustrated.

Fight Still On, After 30 Years

The recently ended 34 week strike at Hollywood movie studios was caused by a jurisdictional dispute between AFL unions. It was only after the AFL executive board had made a number of threats to rescind the charter of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes that the IATSE gave in to the other AFL unions, which called the strike and ended the deadlock.

Another dispute—which has lasted more than 30 years within the AFL and still is unsettled—is that of the carpenters' union and the International Association of Machinists, over the installation of machinery. The IAM also is involved in a dispute of long duration with the operating engineers' union over the repair of building and road machinery.

The federation's executive council has not been able to settle these disputes because AFL affiliates have local autonomy, which they guard jealously. Inability of the AFL board to settle jurisdictional disputes, is well illustrated by the case of the machinists.

Stops Payment to AFL

During 1943, the IAM withdrew from the AFL because of the board's inability to settle its disputes with the carpenters and engineers. Late that year at the AFL convention in Boston, Mass., however, the IAM returned to the fold, determined to "fight it out within the federation."

But last November the machinists began to use other tactics, when the AFL board showed it still was helpless to settle the disputes. The IAM stopped paying per capita dues to the AFL. During its convention last month in New York City, the delegates reaffirmed this stand, voting that the IAM should not pay the federation until it can settle the disputes. In effect, the IAM stands suspended from the AFL but can put itself in good standing by paying up, William Green AFL president, explained.

CIO Also Has Difficulties

Another illustration of labor's inability to settle jurisdictional disputes is found in the CIO. The powerful United Auto Workers union long has been claiming jurisdiction over members of the Farm Equipment and Metal Workers International union, altho this union was charted by the CIO mainly for that type of worker.

The CIO executive board several months ago urged the farm equipment union to merge with the auto workers but the UFE is resisting.

Two members of the jurisdiction committee of the labor-management conference are officers of the unions involved in these jurisdictional disputes. They are George F. Addes, secretary-treasurer of the CIO auto workers and William L. Hutcheson, president of the AFL carpenters.

Wide Demand Keeps Supply of Shoes Low

A heavy demand for shoes, along with shortages of man power and materials, has prevented retailers from replacing depleted inventories, industry spokesmen said yesterday. Consumers, anticipating the end of shoe rationing, caused a heavy drain on stocks in the six to eight weeks preceding the lifting of the control Oct. 31.

Many customers buy two or three pairs of shoes at a time instead of one under rationing.

Better Grade Shoes Scarce

Carl Burgstahler, president of F. E. Foster & Co., said better grade shoes are particularly short. Deliveries are uncertain and supplies probably will not improve until the second or third quarter of 1946, he predicted.

Adolph A. Kotzin, president of the Chicago Shoe Manufacturers association, said continued labor and leather shortages are curbing production. Most factories are not producing near their capacity, and no improvement is expected this year, he said.

New Methods to Aid Output

Favorable manufacturing factors include the absence of military demand, making more leather available for civilian shoes, and the development of new manufacturing methods in the war which will increase output once sufficient labor and materials are available, Kotzin said.

Another spokesman, recently returned from a meeting of the National Shoe Retailers association in New York, said the group generally had agreed shoe rationing had not limited shoe sales, but rather had increased volume by drawing attention to the item.

BUTLER REPORTS 100 JEEP SALES IN CHICAGO AREA

Approximately 100 jeeps have been sold in the Chicago area since the former war utility vehicle was placed on the market in September, Earl Butler, president of Butler Motors, Inc., said yesterday. The Butler company, for many years Chicago area distributor for Hudson automobiles, is Chicago area distributor for Willys-Overland Motors, Inc., producer of the jeep.

About 40 per cent of those sold in the Chicago area have gone to farmers, 40 per cent to business industry, and the remainder to golf course operators and individuals. About 10 former soldiers have purchased them. Butler said soldiers have priority.

George H. Bell, Overland director of sales, said in Toledo that distributors have contracted for 170,000 civilian jeeps and other vehicles.

FORECAST PORK SUPPLY GAINS, SLUMP IN BEEF

Lamb Meat Stocks Also May Drop

BY ARNOLD ERICKSON

Pork supplies are the largest in almost a year and are expected to increase in the weeks ahead as a result of bigger hog receipts.

Beef and lamb supplies probably will be smaller until next spring. Output of both of these types of meat in the Chicago area is about 8 per cent smaller than a month ago. Pork output is about 150 per cent above a month ago, when it was lowest of the year.

The quality of pork is excellent, meat experts said yesterday. Cuts are much smaller than two months ago, but they are the biggest on record for this time of year.

Another Year for Small Cuts

Some members of the trade predicted another year will be required for hog raisers to produce the smaller cuts usually preferred by housewives.

In normal markets consumers pay premiums for the smaller pork cuts from 175 to 225 pound hogs because of the demand for lean meat, but from the standpoint of quality many meat experts prefer the products of the more mature and fatter 250 to 276 pound animals. More than 90 per cent of the hogs butchered last week were in the larger weight class, averaging more than 50 pounds per head lighter than two months ago, when old crop hogs made up the bulk, but 35 pounds heavier than a year ago. Farmers are feeding corn to hogs more generously this winter than ever before and are marketing the spring crop a month later than usual.

Loins Average 13 Pounds

The average weight of pork loins delivered to retail butcher shops last week was about 13 pounds and hams going into cure for sale three weeks from now averaged 18¾ pounds. Normally there is a large run of 8 to 10 pound loins and 12 to 14 pound hams at this season.

Domestic trade channels did not get all of the big increase in pork supplies. A large volume went for European relief. Demand for both pork and hogs was larger than the supply last week. The market for hogs remained at ceiling levels. The steer average at $17.20 a hundred pounds was 10 cents higher, and the second highest level on record. The week's lamb average rose 5 cents to $14.15.

MERCURY AUTO PRODUCTION IS BEGUN BY FORD

The Ford Motor company yesterday announced the start of production on its Mercury line of automobiles and expects to have them in the hands of the public by Christmas. Air Cooled Bus Is Successful; City Orders 30

BY PHILIP HAMPSON

Atlanta citizens found cooled coach riding so agreeable last summer that the Georgia Power company, operator of the local transportation system, placed an order for 30 air conditioned electric trolley coaches with the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company. The company also ordered 70 more similar vehicles in which air conditioning can be installed on short notice.

The successful Atlanta experiments began when one air conditioned trolley coach was placed in service on Aug. 19. It was the first time that such a car had been employed in city transportation.

The air conditioning system used in Atlanta provides cool air in summer and warm air during the colder months. Beside cooling or heating, the system cleans the air, taking in fresh air for ventilation.

Drop of 10 Degrees Sought

The ideal interior temperature, according to the car builders, is 70 degrees. However, in the summer cooling experiment the effort was to maintain a temperature not more than 10 degrees below that outside.

Pullman-Standard engineers said that cooling in the coaches, which have 44 seats, could be maintained up to more than a full seat load. However, when the cars were crowded, briefly, at rush hours, this was not possible.

The air conditioning equipment is of a standard type. It increases the cost of the vehicle by only 10 to 12 per cent, not an important factor in a coach good for many years of service.

The Georgia Power order is the first for a fleet of air conditioned trolley coaches, but Pullman-Standard has had inquiries from several other southern cities.

Adaptable to Chicago Cars

A Pullman-Standard engineer said the air conditioning equipment could be installed in street cars and subway and elevated cars of the type used in the Chicago subway and elevated lines. It also was suggested that if costs could be kept down the equipment could be used to advantage in railroad suburban coaches.

Pullman-Standard engineers said problems in installing air conditioning in public vehicles are much different from those pertaining to automobiles, but emphasized the possibility of air conditioning cars.

In its first month of operation the experimental coach carried 38,250 passengers. During three months 45,000 questionnaires were distributed. Of the replies 96 per cent said air conditioning improved riding comfort greatly, and 3.9 per cent said the improvement was slight.

MARKETS TO CLOSE

Banks and major securities and commodities exchanges with the exception of the Chicago live stock market will be closed tomorrow in observance of the Armistice day holiday.

UTILITY STOCKS IN DEMAND AS MARKET RISES

Largest Saturday Trade in 4 Years

New York, Nov. 10 (AP)—Utility shares, particularly low quoted issues, today attracted most of the speculative buying on the stock market. Many rail and industrial leaders were neglected at lower levels. As a whole the market was higher.

The power group again was benefited by tax relief prospects and reports some holding companies would seek amendment of recapitalization programs which would aid holders of common stocks. Profits were cashed in the liquor and other divisions in preparation for the lengthy Armistice day week-end and on the belief a real technical reaction was near.

Four Year Peak for Saturday

From the opening "penny" issues came out in blocks as large as 30,000 shares. Despite slowdowns, turnover totaled 1,120,000 shares, largest for a Saturday since Dec. 27, 1941. It compared with 920,000 a week ago. Turnover in the five days was 8,940,000, the largest for a similar period since September, 1939.

The Associated Press 60 stock composite was unchanged for the second consecutive day at 74.7 altho the utility average edged up 0.2 point at 52.2, the highest mark since Feb. 4, 1937. The general average for the week made a net gain of 0.9 point.

New highs were reached by Commonwealth and Southern, United corporation, Consolidated Edison, American Power and Light, Standard Gas $4 preferred, Childs company, and Republic Aviation.

On the Curb turnover of 1,150,000 shares was the largest for a Saturday since July 13, 1929.

BOND PRICES UNEVEN

New York, Nov. 10 (AP) — Prices were irregular in today's quiet bond market as operations were curtailed for the long week-end. Investment rated loans and United States government issues followed the general market pattern with small changes both ways and other than advances of a point or so in some of the Peruvian loans, the foreign dollar list was without important change. Sales of $3,420,000 compared with $4,330,000 last Saturday. The market value of bonds listed on the stock exchange increased nearly 250 million dollars in October above a month earlier.

CHICAGO LIST GAINS

Prices closed higher and turnover totaled 36,000 shares yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Volume leaders included Central and South West Utilities, up ⅝; Middle West corporation and Chicago corporation, each up ¼, and Commonwealth Edison and Miller & Hart, each up ⅛. Five 1945 peaks were reached.

MONETARY PACT CONCLUDED BY CZECHS, BRITISH

BY JOSEPH CERUTTI
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Nov. 10—The British government extended its sterling network into central Europe this week by concluding a monetary pact with Czechoslovakia. Officials expressed the hope the pact would pave the way for a resumption of normal trade between the two countries.

Britain's efforts to build up a system of stable exchange relationships by means of bilateral agreements thus far have been confined to western European countries. Political as well as economic considerations, it is believed, influenced the British financial move into what Moscow seems to regard as exclusively a Russian sphere of influence.

Moscow Silent on Pact

Czechoslovakia, a frontier country between eastern and western Europe, is occupied by large numbers of Russian troops and only recently a Russo-Czech trade agreement was announced. No reaction from Moscow has been reported regarding the Anglo-Czech pact but the Czechs were said to maintain they can preserve cordial relations and do business with both Russia and Britain.

British financial interests said there was no indication that the British government is seeking to negotiate similar pacts with Poland or any other country in eastern Europe.

The Anglo-Czech agreement follows closely monetary pacts Britain has made with Belgium and Holland. A new exchange rate of 201.5 Czech crowns to the pound has been fixed and each central bank will hold up to 4 million dollars of the other's currency. Any extra currency needed must be paid for in gold. The Bank of England may, in addition, buy crowns with pounds to offset existing Czech sterling holdings.

Lift Trade Restraints

Coinciding with the signature of the pact the British board of trade lifted all restrictions on new business with Czechoslovakia.

Besides the currency credit of 4 million dollars, the Czech government may draw on a special British treasury credit of 20 millions granted two months ago to facilitate Czech industrial rehabilitation.

The timing of the agreement, financial interests said, was determined by currency reform introduced by the Czech government.

WAR PLANT WRITE-OFFS

Bethlehem Steel corporation's report for the third quarter provided a striking example of the recomputation of war plant write-offs as permitted by the tax law and of the favorable effect on earnings resulting from tax credits thus obtained.

The law permits the cost of war plants and other emergency facilities built or acquired after Dec. 31, 1939, to be amortized over a period of 60 months, in lieu of usual depreciation charges. Taxpayers also have the choice of recomputing the amortization over a shorter interval if within the five years the President should proclaim the end of the "emergency period."

Mr. Truman last Sept. 29 terminated the emergency for this purpose. His action permits war contractors and others having unamortized facilities, acquired under certificates of necessity, to recompute the write-offs by spreading them over a shorter interval ended Sept. 30. Because this results in larger deductions from taxable earnings of earlier years, such taxpayers become eligible for tax refunds or credits.

Bethlehem Steel's quarterly report said the corporation expected to exercise its right to terminate the amortization period on Sept. 30. Its emergency facilities from Jan. 1, 1940, to Sept. 30, 1945, had cost $124,012,240. On termination of the amortization period, there remained $66,419,329 that was deductible from income. Use of this deduction required a decrease in federal taxes based on income for the entire amortization period, all of which was reflected in the third quarter accounts.

For the quarter alone the corporation's deduction for depreciation, depletion, and amortization totaled $49,894,478 compared with $13,013,205 a year earlier. Lumping the tax credits due to recomputing the write-offs resulted in a net tax credit of $34,980,000 for the quarter. After the write-offs there was a net loss of $27,218,333, which the tax credit converted into net income of $7,761,667.

Tax refunds due to such recomputations must be made within 90 days after claims are filed. Many of the railroads at the close of 1944 had large unamortized investments in emergency facilities, including $61,907,000 for Sante Fe, $45,548,000 for Southern Pacific, $38,780,000 for New York Central, $37,4[illegible],000 for Chesapeake and Ohio, and $37,358,000 for Pennsylvania.

You Cannot Be Sure of a New Home for Two Years
Unless now you get your house design and specifications under way.
There are, and will be, nowhere near enough materials and manpower to meet demands, let alone enough quality sites such as we have in Prised East Glenview and in distinctive North Northbrook.
Based on the tested experience of providing two generations of discriminating North Shore families with quality homes and protected sites, we are able, for a limited number of alert families, to provide site, financing, to procure design, and to provide building supervision of houses in the price range of $10,500 to $25,000 on 80' and 90' lawns, or on ½ to 2 acre knolls—out where the hills begin—in East Glenview and in North Northbrook.
Write, phone, or drive out: North on Skokie Hwy., R. 41, to Dundee-rd., R. 68, West to Waukegan-rd., R. 42-A, to Information House.

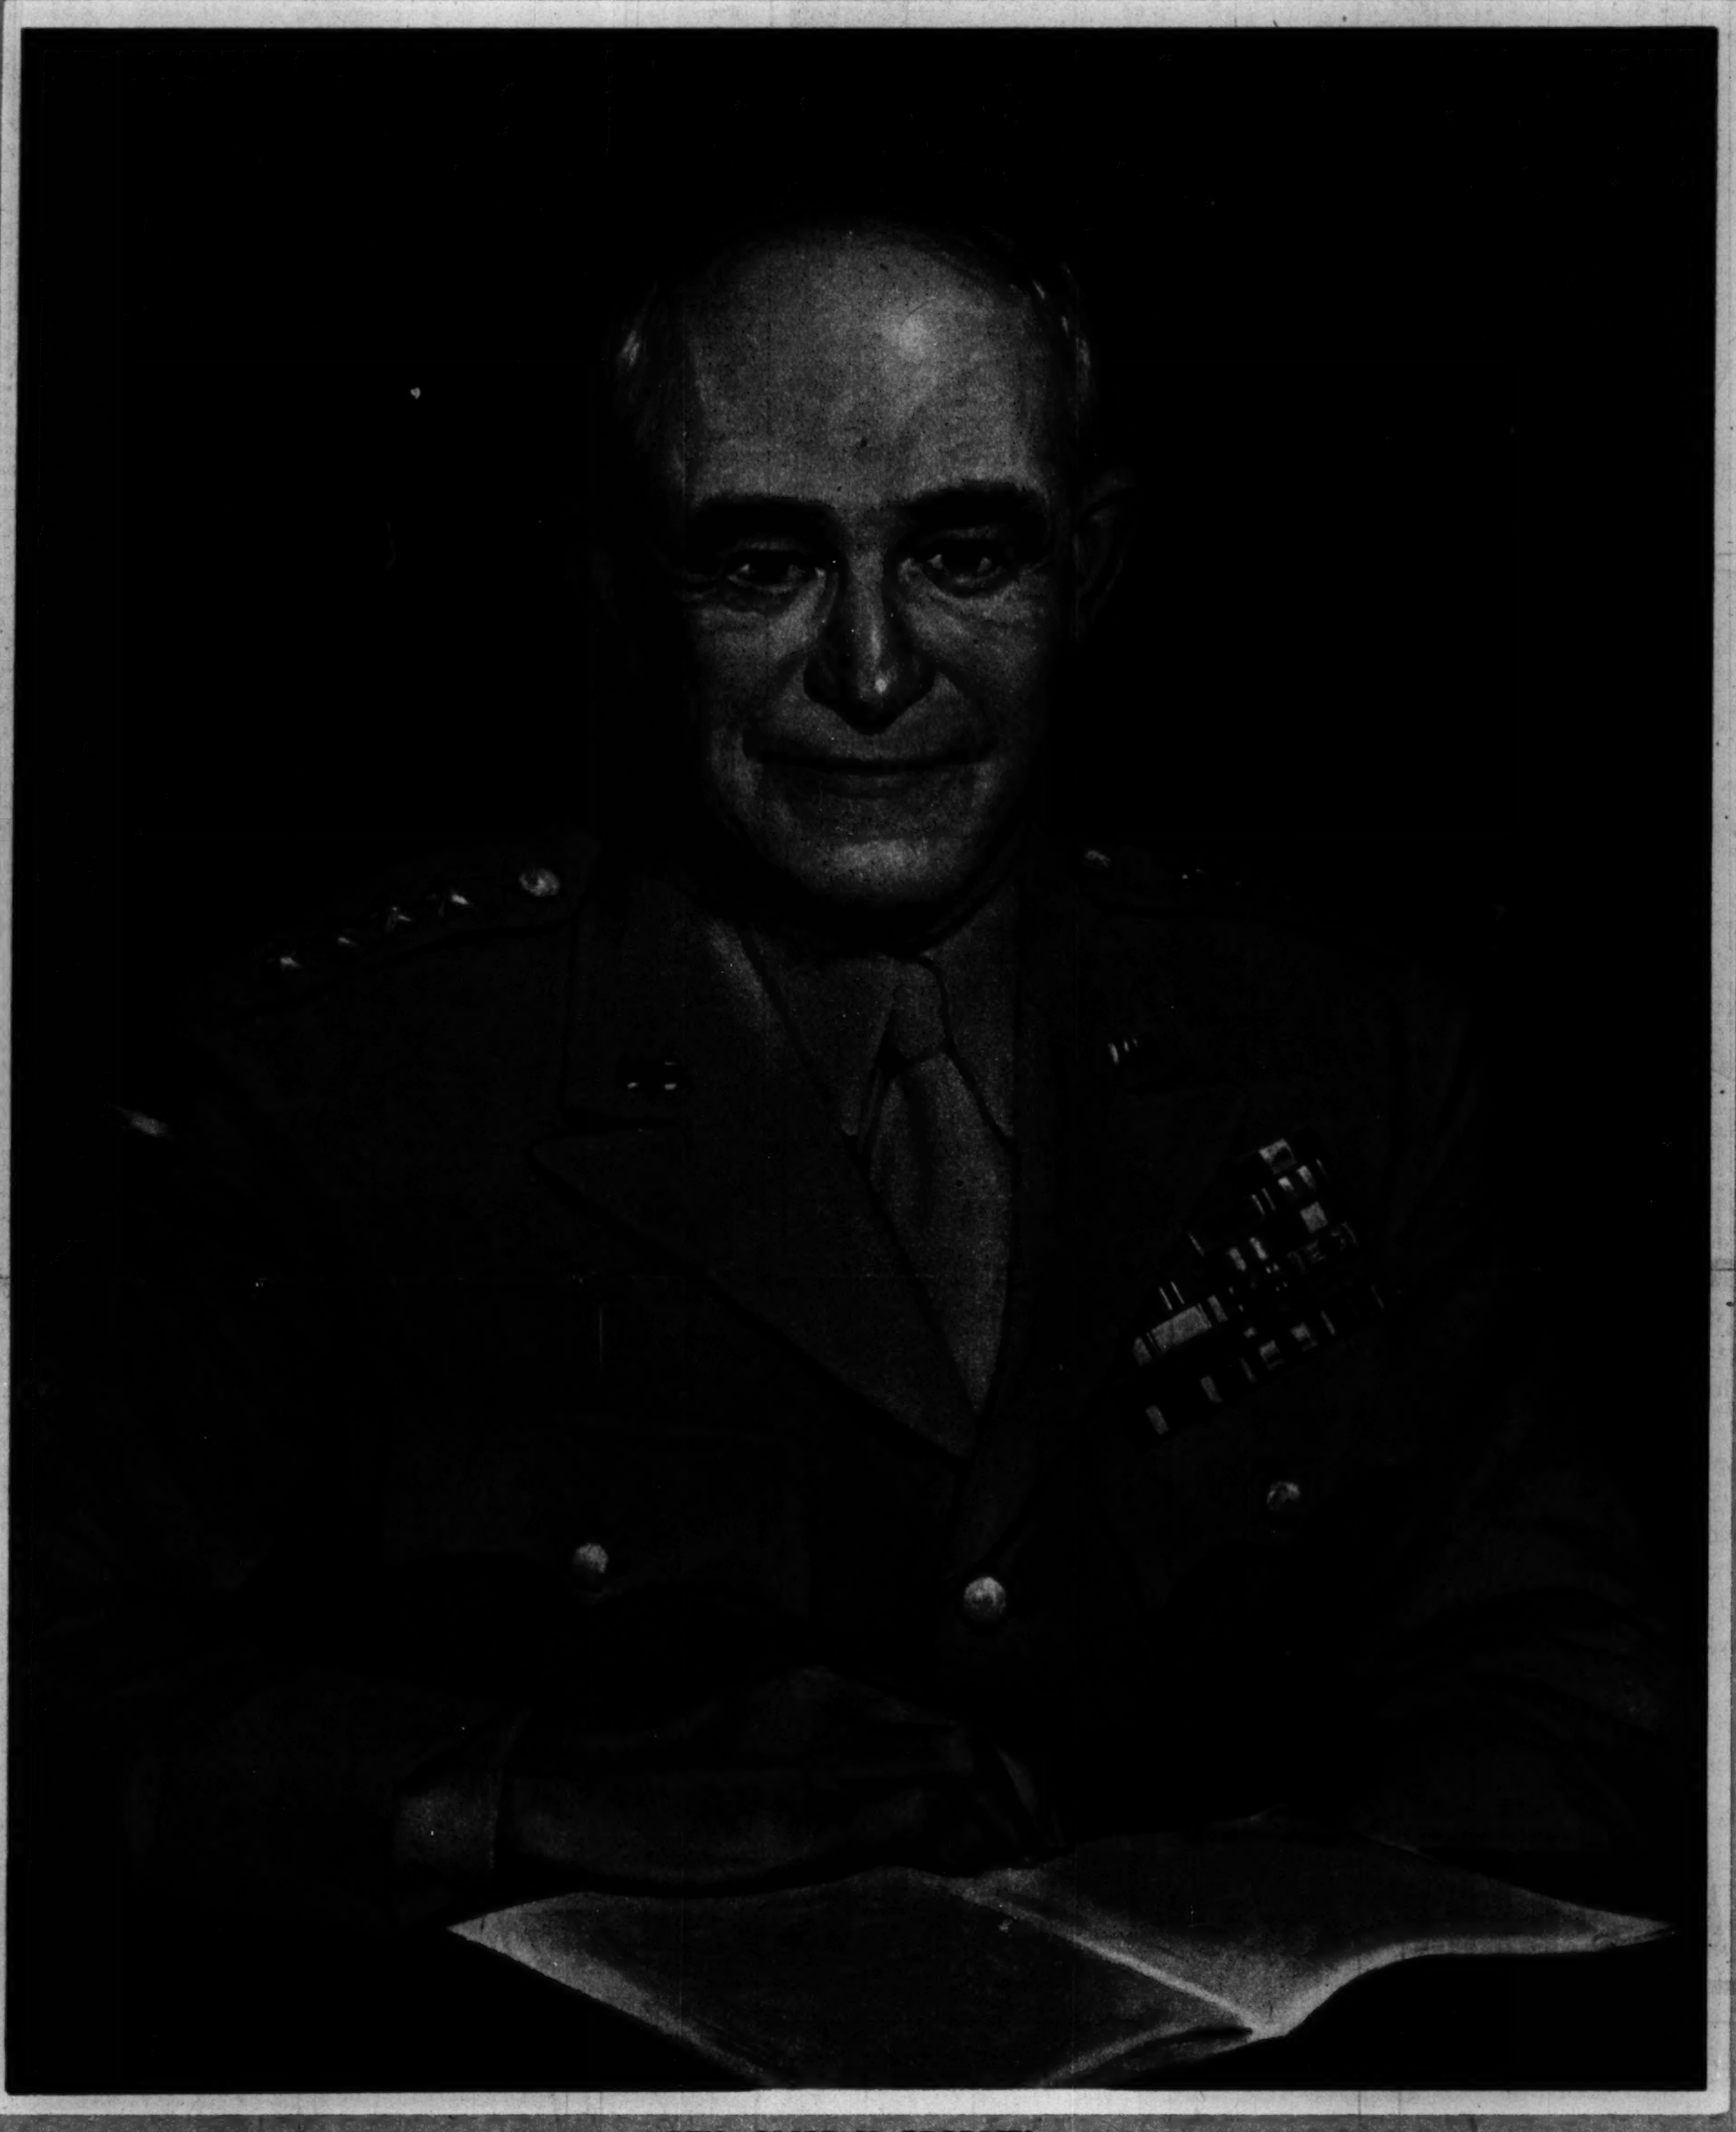
THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

★★ GENERAL OMAR NELSON BRADLEY ★★



GEN. OMAR N. BRADLEY (Painting by Gary Sheehan)

By JOHN THOMPSON

"HE WAS BORN on Lincoln's birthday. He's going to be a famous man some day." Many another American mother doubtless has boasted of her newborn son in much the same way. But these words of Mrs. Bessie Bradley, uttered in the small Missouri town of Clark in 1893, were indeed a prophecy. The 1915 yearbook of the United States military academy at West Point also was prophetic when it said of Cadet Omar N. Bradley: "Some day we'll be glad to tell our children we knew General Bradley."

It required the greatest war mankind ever has known to make those two prophecies true for Gen. Omar Nelson Bradley, the lanky, scholarly Missourian who came to command more soldiers in the field than any general in the history of the United States. Yet, such are his abilities, Bradley might well have made a name for himself in business or another profession had not his mind been turned toward a military career as the result of a chance discussion at a church social in his youth. It was these same qualities—leadership, human understanding, an inspiring personality, and clear, quick, mathematical mind—which probably induced President Harry S. Truman to appoint his fellow Missourian as the nation's new veterans' administrator. Bradley, during the campaigns of North Africa and Sicily and the continental campaign in Europe, emerged as the soundest and most brilliant of American field commanders. Most observers believe he was by far the most outstanding of all the allied generals under Eisenhower, including even the much publicized Briton, Field Marshal Bernard Law Montgomery. And in addition to his military genius there was the warm, sincere personality of Bradley the man, a quality which soon dubbed him as the Doughboy's General.

An infantry soldier himself, a commander who understood sincerely the misery of the foot soldier's front line life, Bradley as a general always sought for tactics which would save lives while gaining ground. This cardinal tenet of his military thought, and his feeling for the men of his command, gave him the respect of the common soldier, denied to many another commander. That and his known administrative and executive ability would have recommended him to the President as the man best suited to handle the tremendous task of administering the problems of millions of veterans.

Administration, whether of large bodies of men or complicated institutions, has never been a difficult task for the man who was known to his boyhood schoolmates as a "whiz at math." In two tours of duty at West Point Bradley taught mathematics and served as assistant commandant of cadets. From February, 1941, to February, 1942, he headed the important infantry school at Fort Benning, Ga., where the tactics which won battles in Europe were developed during our peace time years by such commanders as General of the Army George Marshall, Bradley, and Gen. Courtney H. Hodges, commander of the 1st army. The expansion and development of the officer candidate school was also largely the product of the Bradley mind.

And in Europe, as commanding general of the 12th army group, Bradley held the destinies of more than 1,000,000 American soldiers in the 1st, 3d, 9th, and 15th armies. This was the army group which carried the bulk of the allied fighting, which broke the German military strength in the west, which captured more towns, took more prisoners, and killed more German soldiers than any other component of General Eisenhower's allied team.

Six feet 1 inch tall, bespectacled, with a dome-shaped head on which the hair is beginning to grow much thinner, Bradley has deep-set, kindly blue eyes and the mein of a Missouri school master. This is not too strange, for his father was a country school teacher who married one of his pupils. The general's mother was 17 years old when he was born. There were so many Bradleys in that section of Missouri that the young mother wanted to be sure her son was never confused with any of the others. She believed in that Lincoln's birthday prophecy and was taking no chances. So she named him Omar. Altho many of his intimates call the general Brad, he still prefers to be known to his friends by his mother's choice of Omar. The general's father died when the boy was 12 years old, and five years later Mrs. Bradley married J. R. Maddox, who worked in the Wabash railroad shops at Moberly, Mo., which had become the Bradleys' home. Mrs. Maddox died in 1931, but the general's stepfather still lives in Moberly.

In Moberly the youthful Omar had courted Mary Quayle. And in 1917, two years after his graduation from West Point, Bradley carried out what seems to be an old Missouri custom. Like President Truman, the future general married his childhood sweetheart. Like the Trumans, the Bradleys have one daughter, Elizabeth, 21.

After determining on a military career young Bradley approached his congressman and was given an alternative appointment to the military academy. When the boy ahead of him failed to enter Bradley took his place as a member of the famous class of 1915, which also produced General Eisenhower. At the academy Bradley played left tackle on the varsity football team and left field on the baseball team. His longest heave in baseball is also the longest throw in the sports annals of West Point, and the general has always retained a keen interest in the game. Upon graduation the math whiz stood 44th in the class. Eisenhower was No. 61.

The first member of the class to reach the temporary grade of brigadier general, Bradley was a lieutenant colonel when in February of 1942 he was called to Fort Benning's infantry school, succeeding then Brigadier General Hodges. General Marshall had just appointed Hodges as chief of infantry.

The two men—Bradley and Hodges—were close friends then, an association which continued thru the European campaign, where they operated as a team. In those peace time days, with a third friend, soon to become equally famous—Gen. George S. Patton—Bradley and Hodges often indulged their favorite sport of hunting. In later years Bradley would recall that Courtney Hodges, a small man of 5 feet 9 inches beside his towering friends, was the best shot of all. "The most graceful man with a gun that I have ever seen," was the way Bradley described him.

In February of 1943, while he was in Florida, and with only one day's warning, Bradley was dispatched to General Eisenhower's headquarters in Algiers. A few weeks later Eisenhower shipped him down to Tunisia as deputy commander to Patton in the 2d corps. As soon as the American corps linked up with Montgomery's 8th army in southern Tunisia, Patton was withdrawn to organize a new headquarters and prepare for his next assignment, the invasion of Sicily. Bradley, who had become known to the war correspondents only a few weeks earlier, then assumed command of the 2d corps.

In the manner of an expert in the Louisiana maneuvers, Bradley managed to shift the entire corps north, crossing all of the lateral lines of communication, and place it in position for the last big push, without the Germans ever knowing it. The Americans were to be flank protection for the British 1st army's drive to crack the German lines and reach Tunis. But it didn't quite work out that way. The 1st army's drive bogged down, and to the surprise of the British commander the Yanks outflanked an "impregnable" German position, turned their armor loose, and pushed on to capture Bizerte. This maneuver turned the entire German line, so that it fell apart and the British were shaken loose into the German positions.

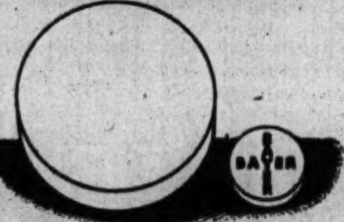
We correspondents suddenly realized that in the homespun Bradley we had a brilliant new field commander, a great leader. Already he had impressed us with his easy, informal, open manner, his willingness to discuss tactics or strategy at almost any time, his evident belief in a free and informed press. His devoted aides, Maj. Chet Hansen and Maj. Lewis Bridge, could speak affectionately of "the old man" as being another Lincoln without drawing smiles. Bradley had made his mark. We knew he was the man to watch.

In the Sicilian invasion he went ashore with the now famous 2d corps, driving it across the island, then turning east along the northern coast. General Montgomery had conceived of the American role as mere flank protection for his celebrated 8th army, which was to roll up the southern coast to Messina. But Bradley and Patton, altho able to get along well with the Briton, would have none of it, and their appeal was supported by General Eisenhower. When the 8th army failed to advance, the 2d corps battered its way thru the mountains of Sicily. Bradley conceived a small amphibious landing in the enemy's rear, an end-around play, which softened the German front, enabling his men to get on with the job of capturing Messina and eliminating the Germans from Sicily.

By this time Bradley had been earmarked for an important command in the greater invasion of France. Patton, according to reliable sources, was to have the top command in the American army, under Eisenhower. Patton was Bradley's senior. But at this time the story was broken thru censorship describing Patton's slapping of a psychoneurotic soldier in a field hospital ward. Despite public opinion at home, Eisenhower decided to retain Patton, whom he considered a valuable (Continued on page four)

WHY PAIN RELIEF IS FAST WITH 2-SECOND DISINTEGRATING ACTION!

3 STEPS INSTEAD OF ONE give Bayer Aspirin its astonishing 2-second disintegrating action!



Although aspirin powder can be purchased ready-made from outside suppliers, every grain of aspirin that goes into a Bayer tablet is made in Bayer's own laboratories. And, although normal size tablets could be made from aspirin powder in its original state, the process Bayer uses requires three steps instead of only one:

1. Bayer makes its own aspirin powder, tests it, compresses it into giant tablets (like the one above) 18 times larger than normal.
2. These "giants" are reduced again to powder—which is passed through a fine screen.
3. After the "binder" is added the familiar Bayer tablets are made.

This painstaking 3-way operation gives Bayer Aspirin astonishingly fast disintegrating action—an action so swift Bayer Aspirin starts to work almost instantly!

What does Bayer Aspirin do in water? It begins disintegrating within two seconds! It does the same in your stomach. You get remarkably fast pain relief because Bayer Aspirin starts going to work almost instantly!

Take Bayer Aspirin for reliable relief, too. No other aspirin can match Bayer's record of nearly half a century of successful use by millions of people.

Remember—only Bayer Aspirin offers you the benefits of a scientific background of more than 45 years of aspirin manufacturing experience. When you buy, always ask for Bayer Aspirin—by name!

LOOKING AT HOLLYWOOD WITH HEDDA HOPPER

Hartman Is Good to Find

DID YOU know that the man who played Andy Hardy before Mickey Rooney was old enough to wink was also the first boy soprano to sing in a movie theater in Brooklyn? He's the fellow now writing and producing Rita Hayworth's next picture, "Down to Earth"—Don Hartman, Esq.

You could call Don "the shrinking violet that made good." The annual lists of "10 best of the year" have included at least one of Hartman's pictures every year for eight years. He is co-author of two of the 10 pictures the GI's voted their most popular for last year, "Up in Arms" and "The Princess and the Pirate," and co-authored three of the 20 that the navy information bulletin named as the navy's most popular pictures of all time!

Hartman—like Moss Hart, Clifford Odets, Danny Kaye, Arthur Kober, Milton Berle, Rodgers and Hart, Johnny Garfield, and Mischa Auer, to mention a few—is a product of those fabulous summer camps scattered thruout New York and Pennsylvania. While many spurn these humble beginnings by mumbling, "Summer stock," when asked how they got their start, Hartman and Moss Hart always answer in a loud voice, "The borscht circuit!"

But Hartman really started as the first boy to sing in Brooklyn's first movie house, which his father owned. His dad also owned the adjoining bowling alley, and the boy soprano took advantage of the free lanes to become the bowling champion of Brooklyn. He wore this crown until Manhattan's champ came over, played him in an exhibition match, and gave him, as he puts it, "the worst trimming anybody ever got since Edgar Allan Poe sold 'The Raven' for seven bucks!"

After that Don took himself on tour. He became a bellhop in Chicago, night teller in a New York bank, a truck driver, speculator in the Texas oil fields during the boom of 1919, and finally branch manager for the Ohio Chemical company in Dallas. It was Margaret Douglas, now playing Dolly Bloomer on Broadway in "Bloomer Girl," who persuaded him to join the Dallas Little theater as an actor. Two seasons there gave him confidence, and he was sent to New York as the "most talented" member of their group. Hartman says he still doesn't know whether they meant the most talented or were simply trying to get rid of him.

But, for the sake of dear art, he joined Richard Boleslavsky's experimental group which later became the Group theater at $15 a week—when he got it. For a living he was social director at summer camps at $2,500 a year, tops—a job which he kept for six years.

In the winter, between stints for Boleslavsky, he wrote, directed, and rehearsed original shows for the summer. Came Decoration day, and he plunged into a schedule which would break the spirit of a Barrymore—or even a Bankhead.

Bob Hope and Virginia Mayo in "Princess and the Pirate," one of Hartman's pictures.

The summer camps are big business in a small way and mass entertainment in a big way! With such names as the Carlisle, Log Tavern, Green Mansions, etc., they entertain some 2,000 guests each over a week-end and scarcely less in between. It's up to the social director to see that it's fun and everybody's happy.

Monday was "get acquainted night," with balloon dances, songs, and stories by an m. c.—usually Hartman. Tuesday they had a campfire, with "informal" entertainment which had been rehearsed for months. Wednesday was vaudeville night, with a corny version of what was on at the Palace. Said Don: "Thursday was classical night, so, wearing tights, we played soft music and read from the classics. On Friday we gave a full-length drama, on Saturday a full-length musical, and Sunday a full-length revue. If any guest showed signs of boredom we put on funny straw hats and beards and jumped into the pool with all our clothes on."

With a staff of 30 people and a fully equipped theater, our young impresario, having been a waiter himself his first season at Log Tavern, auditioned all waiters before they were engaged by the camp. Thus he got bit players, chorus boys, and specialty entertainers, and augmented his company. He also fined the waiters $5 if they didn't dance with all wallflowers. "Everybody, regardless of weight, shape, or size, had to be entertained!" That was in the contract.

Of course, there were some mighty hitches in these pastoral goings-on which he's used in movie scripts since. But they were tragic then. Don remembers "The Crow's Nest." He was the star; the action took place in an area smaller than Hitchcock's "Lifeboat." The climax hinged on the star, trapped in the crow's nest of a ship at sea, turning near the end of the third act and taking down a lantern from the mast to signal another ship. But at the first performance, when Hartman reached for the lantern, it wasn't there. The dilemma was solved, after many frantic whispers, by having some one creep out with the lantern behind a fluttering sail. The only thing this good samaritan overlooked was the fact that the lantern threw a huge shadow of him on the canvas. So of course the audience fell into the aisles in hysterics.

In one season the Brooklyn Kid did the Noel Coward role in "Private Lives," the Joseph Schildkraut part in "Affairs of Anatole," played Billy Gaxton's role in "Of Thee I Sing," and blacked up as the colored boy in "No 'Count Boy."

DON HARTMAN

This is pretty heady stuff even for a seasoned actor, but for a young punk it might have turned his head except for the fact that after each performance the actors had to go out and dance with members of the audience, who told them exactly what they thought. In addition, many of them had seen the original companies on Broadway and knew what they were talking about. They could either make you or break you.

But Don's proud of his camp training. "After all," he points out, "the show in which Danny Kaye made his first hit, 'The Straw Hat Revue,' was a collection of stuff originally written for summer camps. 'Men in White,' a prize winning play, was first performed at Green Mansions. Some of Rodgers and Hart's hits, such as 'Manhattan' and 'Mountain Greenery,' as well as Howard Dietz and Arthur Schwartz's 'I Think I'll Have to Change My Plans,' were first written for summer camp shows."

But his camp career couldn't last forever, so in 1929, for his first professional job on Broadway, he took over Andy Hardy in Aurania Rouverol's "Skidding." Little did Miss Rouverol or Mr. Hartman foresee in those days that Andy Hardy would one day be paying L. B. Mayer's salary, plus a large lump sum left over for Metro stockholders.

Hartman saw possibilities in the movies, and he headed our way. Believing the pen would get him farther than grease paint, he borrowed money to come here. His first dream child for the screen was "Romance in Manhattan," which starred Ginger Rogers and Francis Lederer. Then followed "The Gay Deception," where he began using the movie to kid the movies, and so, with Frank Butler, he brought in the "Road to Morocco."

Hartman has specialized in originals, and, like a modern Lewis Carroll, he tells modern fairy tales, full of nonsense and an imaginative kind of comedy which can only be done in movies. The dialog between animals in "Road to Morocco," for instance. The interchange of sound track, so Crosby spoke with Hope's voice and vice versa, in the same picture, is another. His lyrics for Hope and Crosby in the song "Road to Morocco" are still being quoted. In "Road to Zanzibar" the cannibals supposedly spoke in their own language, while English titles appeared on the screen.

The trick of having Hope and Crosby make unexpected appearances in each other's pictures was promoted by Hartman. He did the first three screen vehicles for Danny Kaye, our bright new comedian. And now, after three years as Sam Goldwyn's creative right mind, he's gone out on his own to write and produce for Harry Cohn, so I thought it was time his special sort of talent got some recognition. A guy like this can't keep his talent hidden under a bushel basket forever.

Edinburgh—Capital of the Scots

This is the first of a series of articles on Scotland's important cities, written by a Tribune foreign correspondent.

By WILLIAM FULTON

Edinburgh

BUILT AROUND the storied walls and towers of an ancient castle on a crag high above the city, Edinburgh can never quite forget it is the historic capital of old Scotland. It is also the political capital, home of lawyers and professional men, a great center of culture and learning.

Edinburgh castle, which looks more like a castle than anything Hollywood ever produced, reeks with high adventure and dark deeds. Malcolm II. took it over as a royal residence at the beginning of the 11th century, but, because of repeated destruction, most of the present structure dates back only as far as the 15th or 16th century. It was the scene of bloody battles during the wars with England and civil strife among the Scots themselves. Here that lovely but sad sovereign, Mary Queen of Scots, gave birth to a son who became James VI. of Scotland and I. of England in a room so small as to seem unbefitting such an important event. The castle was last attacked during the ineffectual siege by Prince Charles ("Bonnie Prince Charlie") Edward Stuart during the uprising of 1745.

Two hundred and seventy feet below the stone battlements and turrets, across a deep ravine planted in formal flower gardens, lies the new city and Princes street with its fine shops, swaying trams, and teeming crowds. There, too, below the castle that inspired him to heights of romantic literature, is the monument to Sir Walter Scott.

Scotsmen set out for some grouse shooting.

While tastes in monuments differ greatly, to this visitor's thinking Sir Walter looks small, dejected, and a little bit ludicrous beneath the Chinese pagoda-like tower soaring above him.

Edinburgh is a charming, easy-going city of some half million people. Its principal industry is education. The University of Edinburgh and its medical school are world famous. Printing and brewing are also important. Scarcely touched outwardly by the war, except for one bombing attack which smashed a whisky warehouse and kept a portion of the populace tipsy for a few days, the city is prospering. Trade is brisk and stores are jammed with people, not the least of whom are American GI Joes here on leave for a good time or trying to trace their Scottish ancestors. Sometimes they find both.

Food is good enough in Edinburgh, a pleasant contrast to England, where the diet runs the whole gamut from B to C—Brussels sprouts to cabbage. In the Scottish capital you have jugged hare swimming in rich gravy laced with port wine, savory mutton chops off fat highland sheep, robust porridge to fortify yourself for the day, crunchy oatcakes with mouth-watering blackberry jam, roast grouse with a golden crust and air of gaminess, and finally steaming haggis, which Robert Burns called the "great chieftain o' the puddin' race!" In all fairness, however, it should be noted I found one dour Scot who turned up his nose at war time haggis. He called it "a bag o' mystery" because you didn't know these days what went into it.

With many of their own young men in service overseas, apple-cheeked Scotch lassies have been marrying soldiers and sailors from other allied nations as one friendly invasion after another swept over the country. According to official figures obtained from James Gray Kyd, the registrar general for Scotland, 10,183 marriages were contracted with men in the allied forces other than Scotsmen from the beginning of the war until June 1 of this year. This represents nearly 4 per cent of all marriages in Scotland during that time.

The United States, with 943 matings among its troops during the war years, is in third place. Canadians are first with 4,514, while the Poles, language differences constituting no bar to romance, have married 1,820 Scotch girls and are in second place. The Polish army of some 30,000 has been stationed in the Kingdom of Fife, a county north of Edinburgh and across the Firth of Forth.

You are not in this country long before you discover the Scots are still fiercely proud of their institutions and are as independent as England will let them be. They still wear their kilts and are proud of their clans. They still celebrate the '45 rebellion and worship the memory of "Bonnie Prince Charlie," who made the ill-fated attempt to recover the throne of Britain for the Stuarts in 1745. They have their own government departments, their own courts and system of jurisprudence, their own church.

While Scotland has no parliament, as Northern Ireland does, there is a secretary of state for Scotland in the British cabinet and two undersecretaries. The Scottish banks issue their own currency. The country's affairs are run thru its own departments of home, health, education, and agriculture. On the other hand, the lord advocate, who is the crown officer, and the solicitor general, answer any questions affecting the law of Scotland in the house of commons. These last two appointments are controled politically by the party in power in Britain.

Echoing the country's proud past is a small but vociferous Nationalist party, which is demanding a parliament and more home rule for Scotland. Its moving spirit is Dr. Robert D. McIntyre, a very serious minded young man of 31 with an unruly shock of black hair and dark mustache, and a scholarly approach to the whole problem quite different from the wild and bloody methods of his ancestors.

Dr. McIntyre was elected to the British parliament as the first Scottish Nationalist member last spring. He served 32 days and then was snowed under in the Labor party victory. He caused an uproar his first day in commons when he sought to upset the traditions of centuries by taking his seat without the customary two sponsors. Debate raged for an hour while Prime Minister Churchill, waiting to deliver a tribute to President Roosevelt, fumed impatiently. On the following day the cantankerous Scot agreed to let two Socialists sponsor him.

Making his maiden speech on education, the doctor asserted the basis of Scottish schooling had always been a democratic one, while English education had a caste basis. Therefore, the two could never mix and only a Scottish parliament could bring about the desired reforms in Scottish education, Dr. McIntyre argued. Subsequently he demanded figures on Scottish casualties during the war. Mr. Churchill replied it was too difficult to cull them out, since both Scots and English were mixed up in many units.

The old Scotch parliament house was completed in 1640. The laigh, or lower house, is presently occupied by the national library of Scotland, which contains more than a million volumes and many precious manuscripts. For example, it has the finest Sir Walter Scott collection in the world. Dr. H. W. Meikle, the learned librarian, circularized American soldiers to learn what display they wished most to see, and the overwhelming sentiment was for Sir Walter's. So Dr. Meikle obligingly put out the letters, original manuscripts, first editions, and other mementos in glass cases, and now hundreds of American GI's have seen the lot.

Dr. Meikle conducted me on a tour of the building. Upstairs is the old hall where the single house of the Scottish parliament met until 1707, when it joined with the English legislative body to become the British parliament. Most of the furnishings were out at the time for renovation, but Dr. Meikle pointed out the magnificently beamed roof.

"That's the finest timbered roof in Scotland," he said. Then he nodded toward a huge fireplace.

"There's the spot where Sir Walter Scott, first as an advocate and later as principal clerk of sessions, used to spin his tales," said Dr. Meikle. "Robert Louis Stevenson was also an advocate here."

The chamber is called "Salle des Pas Perdus," or "hall of lost footsteps." Here the advocates walked up and down in wig and gown, meeting solicitors and talking with clients.

Adjoining the hall are the courtrooms where the high courts sit, for under the treaty of union of 1707 Scotland retains her own legal system. The supreme courts are the High Court of Judiciary and Court of Sessions. The former administers criminal law and is presided over by the lord justice general. The latter is the chief civil court and is presided over by the lord president. Oddly enough, commander. But the No. 1 job was given instead to Bradley, and he left for England to prepare for the biggest amphibious operation in history.

The No. 1 job was the command of the 1st United States army, and later the command of the 12th army group, including Patton's 3d army. No one who had followed the African and Sicilian campaigns ever doubted the rightness of Bradley's selection. Every correspondent believed that Bradley as a commander was head and shoulders above the more erratic Patton.

Planning for the Normandy invasion was probably the finest example of staff planning ever achieved. It was a joint endeavor between the British and the Americans. It involved also joint planning between the army, the navy, and the air forces. And on the problems of supply the difficulties were on a tremendous scale. The allies planned to land masses of men and supplies over open, unprotected beaches, against a determined enemy, at a speed which they knew the Germans would consider impossible. But the "impossible" was accomplished. And, at least on the American side, the credit for the success of this operation goes to General Bradley and the staff he had personally selected.

Every key section chief had come with him from the now veteran 2d corps, bringing the invaluable experience a soldier can never find in a book. Some 35 men from the 2d corps accompanied the general to England, including Maj. Gen. William B. Kean, the chief of staff. When Bradley, during training days in the United States, had been given command of the 28th division, he consulted with his old friend, Hodges.

"I'm thinking of asking for Bill Kean as my chief of staff," said Bradley. "What do you think of him?"

Replied the handsome little general with the tanned, wrinkled face:

"You couldn't find a better man."

When Bradley took over the 2d corps he brought Bill Kean back to him quickly. Kean became his chief of staff of the 1st army, a position he retained when Hodges assumed command. That action itself revealed the bigness of Bradley's character. When he was boosted to command of the 12th army group Bradley could have taken with him General Kean and some of the other veteran staffers he'd welded into the best allied staff of any American field army. But he knew what a team they had become. He knew what a good staff means to a general. And so he left the staff intact for Hodges.

Those of us who were on the bloody "Omaha" beach on Normandy's D-day may have had our moments of doubt. But to Bradley the success of the invasion was never in doubt. A confirmed optimist, like Eisenhower, Bradley knew exactly how much power we had, and he had a fairly accurate estimate of the enemy's potential. Both had been weighed. To the American, success was never a question. This was a power play, and we had overwhelming power, concentrated in one mighty punch. There would be losses, obviously. But before the invasion began Bradley told all of his junior infantry commanders that talk of staggering casualties was "so much rot." He was right. The assault regiments on Omaha beach lost more than one-third of their personnel; those on the other beach, "Utah," almost none. Our toehold on the continent was achieved at far less cost than most observers had expected.

At one of the press conferences Bradley always called before a new phase of the campaign the general was asked by a correspondent how he felt when he ordered an attack which would inevitably result in the deaths of hundreds of American soldiers. Bradley had been laughing as he answered a previous question. Suddenly the face of the man from Missouri froze in mobility. His eyes became still and steady and he answered:

"It is not easy. But it is the thing I have been trained for for 30 years."

Some months later, when his armies were fighting deep into Germany, I asked Bradley what had been his most difficult military decision. Behind him by this time were the St. Lo break-thru, the Argentan-Falaise trap, the capture of Paris, the sweep across northern France, Belgium, and Luxemburg, the Siegfried line, the great German break-thru into the Ardennes, and the crossing of the Rhine. He didn't hesitate a moment in replying:

"When the Germans counter-attacked us at Avranches."

After Montgomery's 21st army group failed to shake loose below Caen in July, Bradley had concentrated the power of his 1st army on a narrow front at St. Lo. Behind a carpet of aerial bombs six infantry and armored divisions broke thru the German lines on the 26th, working closely together as a well knit team, and reached the Atlantic coast at Avranches. Holding open this coastal road, the 1st army allowed the newly landed 3d army to roll south and break into the clear for mobile open warfare on a grand scale. Bradley had just taken over the command of the 12th army group, and the decision was his to make.

"I was certain the Germans would try to re-form for a counter-attack, to hit us at Avranches, the shortest route to the sea, in an effort to split our forces. I could play it safe and hold the 3d army alongside the 1st, making a strong wall; or I could send Georgie [General Patton] south, let him bottle up the Brittany ports and then pivot east. It was a grand opportunity to slash into the German flanks and rear, a chance to destroy the enemy's 7th army. But if the enemy's counter-attack with armor reached the sea the 3d army would be cut off from all supplies. Georgie would be out on a limb. I believed that General Hodges' 1st army could hold a counter-attack, altho his corps after the St. Lo break-thru were all in line instead of abreast, as we wanted them now. He would still be moving them when the Germans attacked, but it seemed like a reasonable risk for us to take.

"And so I turned Georgie loose.

"You know what happened then. The Germans hit us at Avranches with four armored divisions. They gained a few miles, and then in a very bitter battle we held them with our own doughboys and tanks and guns. That was the last time they tried a big counter-attack until they hit us in the Ardennes."

Bradley had said that the decision at Avranches was the one which troubled him most. Most observers would probably have thought that Von Rundstedt's break-thru into the Ardennes, Dec. 16, 1944, sometimes known as the battle of the bulge, would have been the worst headache.

"When the Germans came thru the 1st army," said Bradley, "I was in Paris at General Eisenhower's headquarters. Bedell Smith [Lieut. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, Eisenhower's chief of staff] came in and said to me: 'Well, Brad, you've always said you wished the Germans would counter-attack so you could get them out in the open in front of the Siegfried line. Here they are.' I answered: 'That's right, Bedell, but I didn't want the whole 6th SS and 5th panzer armies in my lap.'"

Bradley, the optimist, had complete confidence in the ability of the Americans to stop the German threat, altho at the front the situation looked anything but rosy at the time.

"After all, where could the Germans get?" remarked the general. "To the Meuse river. And then where would they be? Our biggest supply installations were beyond the Meuse. We could react swiftly. We had air superiority. We had much more mobility with our better truck fleets and our large stores of gasoline."

Bradley admitted that there were several points where the German drive was touch and go, but he never doubted the capabilities of the men under his command. Hodges shuttled his divisions into position and the men held. Patton, moving very fast, shunted his troops north into the Bastogne salient. The German advance was halted by Christmas, and the American offensive, which had been set for Jan. 10, resumed about a month later.

At the time of the break-thru there was considerable wonder over certain command shifts. The 1st and 9th United States armies on Dec. 20 were placed under the 21st army group, giving Montgomery command of the northern side of the German salient. Those 1st army troops cut off by the German drive, and the 3d army, remained under Bradley.

This was not a slap at Bradley in the least, according to published statements of the high command as well as off-the-record explanations. It was a pure matter of expediency. The German drive threatened to sever communications between the northern American armies and Bradley's headquarters in Luxemburg, from which he never moved, altho the enemy reached within 10 miles of the city.

Nor was the later resumption of

CUSTARD IN CASSEROLES

This Mexican vegetable custard may be baked in individual casseroles.

By MARY MEADE

MEXICAN CUSTARD is a main dish, not a dessert. It steps out of the dessert classification by the addition of vegetables to the usual milk and egg combination.

If you haven't already tried a vegetable custard you'll find it's perfect for a luncheon main dish. A beverage, hot rolls, and dessert are all that are needed to complete the menu.

MEXICAN CUSTARD
(Serves six)

- ½ cup minced onion
- ¼ cup diced green pepper
- 3 tablespoons butter or bacon fat
- 3 tablespoons chopped pimiento
- 2 cups whole kernel corn
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 2 cups milk
- 3 eggs, slightly beaten
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper

Cook onion and green pepper in melted butter or fat for 3 minutes. Add with pimiento to corn. Add sugar and hot milk to beaten eggs slowly, stirring constantly. Add seasonings and corn mixture. Pour into a well greased 1½ quart casserole. Place in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven, 325 degrees, for 1 hour and 15 minutes, or until a knife inserted in the center comes out clean.

Carrots and cabbage may be commonplace vegetables, but this "bull's-eye" salad is a perfect example of how impressive they can be. It's a good salad to keep in mind for your next buffet party.

BULL'S-EYE SALAD
(Serves six)

- 2 large tomatoes
- ½ head cabbage
- 2 large carrots
- 2 tablespoons chopped chives
- 1 cucumber
- 1 head escarole, curly endive, or romaine
- Mayonnaise

Double an 18 inch strip of waxed paper lengthwise and then double again. Lap ends to form a circle about 5 inches in diameter and fasten with a toothpick. Cut one slice from stem end of tomatoes so they will set flat, then cut in eighths and stand up inside paper ring. Fill the center with mayonnaise and garnish with chives. Radiate greens from tomatoes to plate edge. Arrange a ring of crisp shredded cabbage around tomatoes, then place half slices of unpeeled cucumber on edge around the cabbage. Next place a ring of shredded carrots and garnish with cucumber twists. To make the twists, cut from center thru each cucumber slice. Turn one cut edge to the right, the other to the left, and fasten with a toothpick. Chill in ice water for about 30 minutes before removing pick.

Peaches Pick Potatoes

Working in teams is faster and more fun, according to Lee Sorenson, sophomore, and Doris Thompson, senior.

Elaine McNeill, Minnewauken, N. D., has filled a basket. One more basket will fill a bushel, worth 10 cents to Elaine.

By ELEANOR NANGLE

THIS YEAR the potato crop in the state of North Dakota is estimated at 23,000,000 bushels, an all-time high figure, and before the heavy frosts set in the state's farmers were in a desperate plight for pickers to save the $25,000,000 yield. On most farms the potatoes are dug by machinery but must be picked up by hand, back-breaking but highly profitable work. Pickers were recruited from all over the country, and all educational institutions in the state were asked by Gov. Fred G. Aandahl to coöperate with the farmers by excusing students from classes for work in the fields.

At the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks a number of students responded, among them the girls of the Kappa Alpha Theta house, who went out en masse to the fields in the Red river valley. At 10 cents a bushel strong, skilled workers can earn $30 a day, but the average earnings are about $18 a day.

Ann Harding's natural, groomed look is ideal for the business woman.

NEAT, not GAUDY

By ANTOINETTE DONNELLY

(Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.)

WE LIKE this new, healthy, and wholesome trend of looking "right" rather than struggling to be a glamor girl. Somehow, in our judgment, glamor is associated with evening occasions, with professional appearances, and the like.

Intrigued, we did a bit of querying and found the consensus is that the right look is achieved by wearing simple clothes with good lines, jewelry in excellent taste if you choose, cosmetics naturally applied, and becoming but not extreme coiffure.

With the employment situation again in a state of flux, women who want their jobs to continue should take careful stock of their appearance, according to Mrs. Ella B. Ranson, president of the Seraphic Secretaries of America. This unusual group is composed of secretaries to big business men, well known authors, and commentators. Its members all have made the typewriter and shorthand pad the stepping stones to well paid executive positions.

"Look smart by all means," says Mrs. Ranson, "but conservatively so. I think any good business woman definitely would avoid the tendency to 'grab' anything to wear. She'd think her wardrobe out carefully."

Miss Ruth E. Anderson, secretary to the president of the Western Union Telegraph company, says that "a well dressed business woman follows the dictates of good taste above all else. She wouldn't wear clothes that were so striking as to distract attention from the wearer."

Secretary Mabel I. Fletcher puts strong emphasis on well shod feet and a good looking hat and gloves as lending strong importance to the wearer.

The chic hair-do and the nonfrilly dress give Actress Eleanor Parker the right appearance for a woman executive.

But the super-efficient secretary look isn't considered the right look by any of this successful woman group. As several of them voice it, the day has come when the formidable black suit-white collar idea may be abandoned. Colors, if becoming, are acceptable, but selection of materials is important, since one has to go thru a whole day with them, and poor materials show wear and wrinkles more quickly than good ones.

Actress Jane Harker's dress is a date dress, and, pretty tho it is, was never intended as a model for an office outfit.

Upper bracket jobs require good clothes, Miss Dorothy M. Metzger volunteers. As an executive she feels she can wear more versatile clothes, yet she thinks black is always good, always smart, and your answer when you get an unexpected date during the day to which you go straight from the office.

To be well groomed from head to toe is accepted as essential as getting to work on time. As Secretary Selma M. the lord justice general and lord president are one and the same man. Dr. Meikle said he just changed his robes when he shuttled between one court and the other.

The court of last appeal, however, is the house of lords in London. As a result, with the passage of time there has come to be considerable common ground between Scottish and English law. The mercantile law of the two countries is the same. Principal differences lie in court procedure and the laws regarding persons, litigation involving marriage and property.

Even more so than laws or political institutions, the church is close to the heart and conscience of the Scotsman. The state church is the Church of Scotland. Scots have fought and bled to worship their own way since the days of stern John Knox. When a British sovereign ascends the throne he or she swears an oath to preserve the Church of Scotland. This is done to allay the fears of the Scots that England will try to convert them from their Presbyterianism to the Anglican church.

When the present king and queen come to Scotland for the grouse shooting they always worship in the Church of Scotland. The "kirk" is still powerful in affairs, altho Scottish newspapers these days are printing numerous letters to the editor and editorials on lack of attendance. The Church of Scotland has about 1,250,000 members. The Roman Catholic church has half as many, with its main strength among the Irish of the Clyde shipbuilding basin and in parts of the northwest highlands where it survived the Reformation.

Nothing tells the story of Scotland's current-day problems more eloquently than population trends. Migration has been nibbling away at the Scottish people for the last century. Mr. Kyd, the registrar general, has made extensive studies of this drift, and has found out that between the years 1881 and 1931 Scotland's net loss by migration was approximately 1,200,000. The loss has been proportionately much greater in the northern highlands than elsewhere.

"Scotland's greatest export is not whisky but men," said Kyd. "During the 50 years from 1881 to 1931 the population in the northern area of Scotland decreased by about 90,000. In the same period there was in that area an excess of births over deaths of approximately 410,000. Therefore there must have been an exodus of about half a million people from that area, the total population of which is now barely 1,000,000."

(He added that statistically the fertility of highland women is almost twice that of women living in counties in the south bordering of England.)

John Buchan

Various reasons are given for the exodus. For one thing, good jobs in Canada and the United States have lured many young men and women. Then wealthy Englishmen have been buying up the fertile highland glens, or valleys, converting them into hunting preserves for deer and grouse, with the result that people on the small farms are squeezed out. Also in the picturesque highlands, where many humble homes are still lighted with paraffin lamps, you will find no motion picture houses or other modern attractions for the youth. More recently many Scottish lassies have been compulsorily removed to England to work in war factories.

To see the decline of the glens first hand, Kyd and I took a motor trip of 120 miles on a great loop south of Edinburgh. Just outside the city we passed thru the hamlet of Little France, where the French retainers of Mary Queen of Scots lived while she stayed at nearby Craigmillar castle. An old stump by the roadside is all that's left of a tree planted by the queen in 1561.

Farmers were cutting lemon-colored oats in the fields, and Kyd was reminded of Dr. Johnson's contemptuous observation that oats was the food for cattle in England and the men in Scotland.

"But where could you find better men than in Scotland and better horses than in England?" asked Kyd.

The car sped by the spacious gates leading into New Battle abbey, large wooded estate of the late Lord Lothian, once British ambassador to the United States. It is now used as a labor college. Here young members of the British Labor party are indoctrinated and educated.

Farther along ancient Borthwick castle came into view down a broad valley. Cromwell tried to take this fortress but couldn't because the 13-foot-thick walls withstood his cannon. If it was too tough for Cromwell, the Scots decided, it was tough enough to withstand Hitler, and so during this war the castle has been the refuge for Kyd's centuries-old parish records on births, deaths, and marriages, as well as rare books from the national library, priceless pictures and museum pieces.

Soon the car started to climb into the Moorfoot hills, glorious with purple heather, dotted with white sheep. Kyd called attention to the abandoned ruins of cottages in the once fertile glens, now grown over in bracken, and the broken stone walls, or "dry stayne dikes," which are never mended because the art is lost.

"There you see," said Kyd, sweeping his hand across a once prosperous valley. "They used to have little farms here, keep a few cows, and then bring their butter, eggs, cheese, and honey into Edinburgh to market. Now there's nothing but sheep."

A pair of black-faced sheep ambled across the road in complete disregard of the oncoming traffic.

Now the car passed thru Innerleither with its tweed mills and crossed the Tweed river. There was a short stop at the village of Traquair to see the rust-encrusted gates, which have been closed since 1746, when Bonnie Prince Charlie's forces were beaten by the English at Culloden and the laird vowed they would never open again until a Stuart sat once again upon the throne.

Winding down toward St. Mary's loch, the road is named Paddy's Slacks, a Scotch adaptation of the original designation, Pas des Lac, or "way to lake," given to it by the French prisoners who built it during the Napoleonic wars. Skirting the edge of St. Mary's loch, the way led on thru the border town of Moffat, a wool center, with the statue of a handsome black ram ornamenting the main street.

Turning northward back toward Edinburgh, we wound thru Tweedsmuir hills, a name suggested by Mr. Kyd to honor the late Lord Tweedsmuir, former governor general of Canada, and has been accepted by the mapmakers. Tweedsmuir was John Buchan, the writer, and this is known as the Buchan country.

In the heart of these hills the road circles around the wind-swept crest of Devil's Beef Tub, where the Scotch used to hide their stolen cattle after their raids over the border into England. It is a round basin with hills rising abruptly from the floor, a wild, scary landscape. Finally we drove back thru the Pentland hills, green and unspoilt, Robert Louis Stevenson's "hills of home," and back into the streets of sophisticated, civilized Edinburgh.

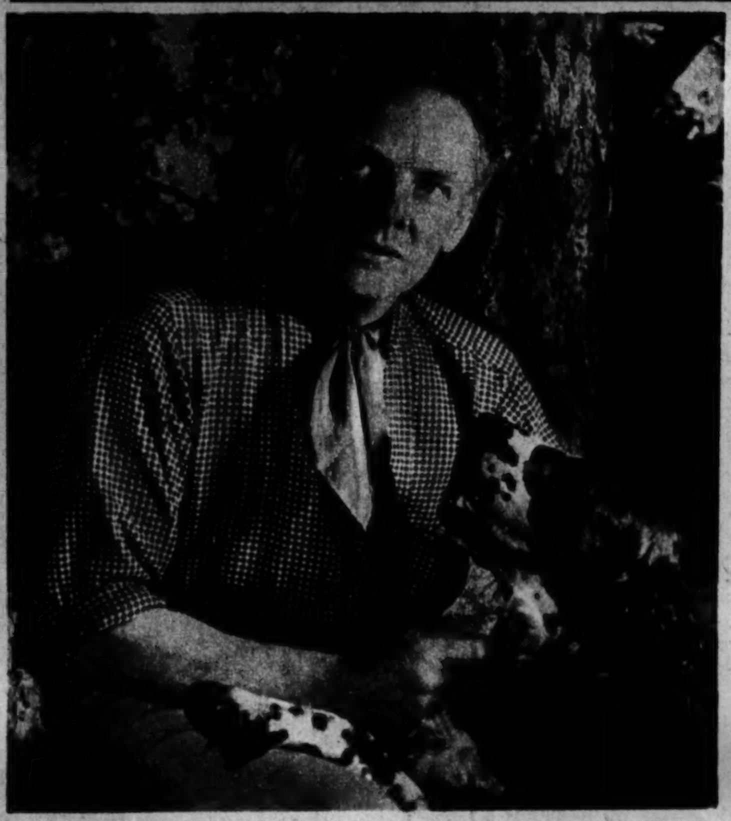
Bickford—Actor by Accident

By FREIDA ZYLSTRA

CHARLES BICKFORD is a tall, red headed Irishman who is well known for his he-man character roles on the screen. Yet he'll probably be best remembered for his top performance as the priest in "The Song of Bernadette." Bickford considers it one of his best and most dynamic bits of acting. He had wanted to play the part when he read the story, but didn't think he'd get the chance. He was a surprised man when Franz Werfel, the author, suggested him for the role.

Mr. Bickford had never intended to be an actor. He quit high school in Somerville, Mass., his home town, to become a sailor on a world cruise. After that bit of adventure he returned to his studies, and later was graduated as an engineer. He was working on a construction project in San Francisco when a burlesque producer asked him if he'd like a job as an actor. The offer appealed to Bickford, and he was with the company for a year. Then he decided to try drama. He returned to Boston, joined a company there, and played in a variety of shows for 13 years before he made his debut on Broadway as the lead in "Outside Looking In." Before he had finished his second play Cecil B. De Mille offered him a part in the picture "Dynamite." He played opposite Greta Garbo in her first talkie, "Anna Christie." One of his recent pictures for 20th Century-Fox is "Captain Eddie." He has just completed work on the picture "Fallen Angel," with Alice Faye.

Bickford has been married to Beatrice Loring since 1919, and they have two grown children. He is a good carpenter, a gardener, and a real hunting and fishing enthusiast.



CHARLES BICKFORD, one of the most popular character actors at 20th Century-Fox. His chief interest offstage is hunting. He and "Rockie" seldom miss a week-end trip.

At left: Outside his trailer, Bickford looks over his favorite gun. Altho the trailer serves as headquarters, the actor likes to push on into the deep woods and make camp.

Hollywood Camera Study by LOUIS WOLF

Below: Bickford is a good marksman. Any interest he may have had in big game hunting was ended several years ago when a lion clawed him on a movie set.

For complete enjoyment of a week-end trip Bickford combines fishing with hunting. Here he examines a landing net in the kitchenette of his trailer.

COLD GOT YOU IN BLEARY-EYED MISERY?

Do This Quick for Relief!

If you are sneezing and snuffling from a cold . . . all stuffed-up, with your nose and throat raw and sore—combat this distress, as thousands do, by gargling with new Pepsodent Antiseptic.

The reason it's recommended is this: Standard laboratory tests prove new Pepsodent Antiseptic kills millions of germs that go with colds. The very type of germs that many medical authorities say often heighten the misery and prolong the effects of a cold.

Isn't it only common sense then, to gargle with new Pepsodent Antiseptic at first sign of a cold! What better way to combat millions of germs that swarm on mouth and throat surfaces as far back as you can reach . . . back where illness often strikes first!

So treat a cold this sensible way: Get plenty of rest, avoid exposure, dress warmly, drink plenty of liquids . . . and gargle frequently with new Pepsodent Antiseptic. See if you don't relieve discomfort almost at once!

They'd always be soft hands, I promised you. And I've used my Jergens Lotion without fail.

Sometimes a girl forgets to use Jergens. Then her hands may get rough and coarse, from lack of beautifying moisture.

I couldn't let that happen to us. While your heart is mine—and, oh, darling, you say that's for always—my hands will be as you love them. No matter what work I do, Jergens Lotion will help keep my hands smooth and soft, to make a home for your heart.

How America Met the Rubber Crisis

The army's great need for rubber is illustrated by this scene in New Caledonia, where worn tires are being trucked to repair bases.

Graphic Laboratory of Popular Science

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

AMERICA went to war under a cloud of apprehension that it might not have enough rubber to satisfy essential military and civilian needs. It came out of the war with an abundance of rubber.

The story of how it met the rubber crisis is one that in all its details would require a large book to tell. A sifting of the most important features for this necessarily condensed discussion of the subject, however, discloses that America conquered the rubber problem in the main by a swift shift from natural rubber to substitute materials which are grouped under the general head of synthetic rubber.

Without this synthetic rubber, developed thru American scientific ingenuity, the country would have been in a deplorable plight as the war progressed, for rubber was one of the top-ranking materials essential for carrying on the conflict.

Synthetic rubber of a variety of types had been produced in America for a number of years before the war, but upon only a relatively small scale (less than 20,000 tons annually just prior to 1942). The abundance of comparatively low-priced natural rubber from the orient had made synthetic rubber production an unprofitable undertaking.

Few persons in this country apparently were far-sighted enough in the 1920s and 1930s to realize that the supply of natural rubber from the British and Dutch controled plantations in the east might be cut off some day, even tho in isolated cases progress had been made in developing independent rubber growing estates in various regions, including Liberia and Brazil, the last-named country the original source of crude rubber.

It was only after war had broken out in Europe and the threat of war with Japan had become more insistent that America, the world's largest consumer of rubber, began to be fully aware of its unfavorable position in regard to this commodity.

On June 28, 1940, the Reconstruction Finance corporation created the Rubber Reserve company, a government agency, for the purpose of acquiring and maintaining a reserve supply of natural rubber. The government stock pile of this rubber, at its peak in April, 1942, was 634,000 long tons (long ton = 2,240 pounds). The year before (1941) the consumption of rubber in the United States was 766,000 long tons.

"The United States might well have lost this war if, when the Japanese struck at the major producing areas in the far east," says John W. Thomas, chairman of the Firestone Tire and Rubber company, "we had not already built up a rubber stock pile of sufficient size to satisfy our absolutely essential needs while we were preparing to make synthetic rubber."

The Japanese in their conquests of Malaya and the Netherlands Indies effectively had cut off our supply of natural rubber. There was no prospect of getting any more from those countries, the world's principal producers, while the war lasted. (Of a total of 1,390,661 long tons of natural rubber produced in 1940, 1,353,052 long tons came from the orient, mainly from Malaya, Sumatra, Borneo, and Java.) This country could look forward only to small driblets of the product from sources such as tropical America, Africa, and Ceylon.

Synthetic rubber had to be the answer.

So the government embarked upon a synthetic rubber program that today has made America fairly independent of the British and Dutch rubber monopoly of the east. Not totally independent, perhaps, but to such an extent that we can get along if we have to with far less natural rubber than was consumed here in the years just preceding the war.

The program as first launched was built around four types of synthetic rubber, selected to meet the greatest requirements of the country at war. These were designated as GR-S (government rubber styrene), GR-I (government rubber isobutylene), GR-P (government rubber polysulphide), and GR-M (government rubber monovinylacetylene). The first was to represent 76 per cent of the total, being the general-purpose rubber most nearly like natural rubber and the material from which tires were to be made. The GR-I, commonly called butyl rubber, was to represent 12 per cent. The other two varieties were to represent 6 per cent each, but GR-P, known under the trade name of Thiokol, later was dropped from the program.

GR-S is made from butadiene and styrene in approximately the proportions of three parts of the first to one part of the second. Butadiene is a gas derived either from crude oil, natural gas, or alcohol. It is procured from petroleum or natural gas by dehydrogenation of a gas called butane. It is obtained from alcohol by dehydrogenation and dehydration. In these processes a catalyst is employed. Styrene, a liquid, also is obtainable from petroleum. It is produced in the following manner: First benzol and ethylene, two products obtainable in any desired quantities from petroleum, are combined to form ethyl-benzine. By dehydrogenation the ethyl-benzine is converted into styrene.

GR-I, or butyl rubber, is best adapted to inner tubes, rainproof clothing, adhesives, and the like. Employed in inner tubes, it is said to be much more airtight than natural rubber. It is made from isobutylene and a small amount of diolefin such as isoprene, it having been found that isobutylene could be cured by adding a small amount of isoprene—for example, from 1½ to 5 per cent of the whole. Isobutylene is a gas derived from petroleum. Not only is it used in making butyl rubber, but also for the production of several types of plastics. It is important in the manufacture of 100 octane gasoline. Isoprene is the material that, plus unidentified modifying agents, is polymerized to form natural rubber.

GR-M, also known under the trade name of Neoprene, is a synthetic rubber made from acetylene. In its preparation acetylene is polymerized into monovinylacetylene. This, by the addition of hydrogen chloride, is converted into chloroprene, a colorless liquid, which polymerizes to form GR-M, a noninflammable synthetic rubber, more resistant to sunlight than any other except GR-P.

GR-P, or Thiokol, which was dropped from the government program after the construction of a factory to produce it, is the best synthetic so far as resistance to oil and grease is concerned, but it is thermoplastic in that it softens in high temperatures and freezes at low temperatures. It is made from ethylene dichloride and sodium polysulphide. As a coating for fabrics for gasoline storage this synthetic is rated highly, but tests showed that other synthetics were more suitable for tire treads.

Not included in the government program at any time is a synthetic designated as GR-N, an oil and heat resistant but not flameproof product. Made of a combination of butadiene and acrylonitrile, the latter derived from alcohol and hydrogen cyanide, it was turned out in sufficient quantities by private manufacture to meet all needs.

A number of rubber, chemical, and petroleum manufacturing companies submitted proposals for the synthetic program, groups were formed to study the problems, and agreements were reached in the various fields for the free exchange of information. In initiating the program, which cost the government about $750,000,000, 40 large plants were projected and started. As the situation reached a critical stage the office of rubber director was created to carry out the program.

The government supplied the financial, administrative, and priority assistance to the industry, but all else was left in the hands of private enterprise. As the program began to shape up it was found that synthetic rubber requirements could be satisfied by 17 large plants that were completed first.

These 17 plants, which were turned over to private companies to operate on a contract basis, had a rated capacity as of May, 1944, of 820,000 long tons of synthetic rubber annually. Fifteen of the plants, devoted to the production of GR-S, had a rated capacity of 705,000 long tons, one built to manufacture GR-I was rated at 75,000 long tons, and one constructed to make GR-M at 40,000 long tons. In addition it is estimated that 150,000 long tons of synthetic were made annually by private companies, or in all the rated capacity of America's synthetic rubber plants in May of 1944 was 970,000 long tons.

It should be noted here that men in the rubber industry in Chicago estimate that unless an unfavorable labor situation persists, the over-all production of synthetic rubber in this country this year may reach approximately 1,300,000 long tons, with about 1,100,000 long tons of it GR-S. This is not far from twice the tonnage of rubber consumed in America in 1941.

The companies selected to operate these government synthetic plants were the Firestone Tire and Rubber company, 3 GR-S plants; the B. F. Goodrich Tire and Rubber company, 3 GR-S plants; the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, 3 GR-S plants; the United States Rubber company, 3 GR-S plants; the Copolymer corporation, 1 GR-S plant; the General Tire and Rubber company, 1 GR-S plant; the National Synthetic Rubber corporation, 1 GR-S plant; the Standard Oil Company of Louisiana, 1 GR-I plant, and the du Pont company, 1 GR-M plant. Rated capacities of the plants ranged from 30,000 to 90,000 tons annually.

The Story of Synthetic Rubber

turing tire casings for military and civilian needs, by far the greatest and most important needs of all in the emergency, depended upon GR-S production. GR-S production in turn depended upon vast quantities of the gas butadiene, which, as previously explained, is derived from petroleum, natural gas, or alcohol.

The government, as a matter of policy and also to speed the program with as few hitches as possible, turned to both the alcohol manufacturers and the petroleum industry for its butadiene. Butadiene had to be produced quickly and in large volume, and it may be interesting to note here that the alcohol manufacturers were the first to get their plants in operation and therefore carried the major part of the burden until the petroleum producers could get their plants in condition to supply butadiene in sufficient amounts.

Thus it was that the alcohol industry, making the liquid from grain and other raw materials, saved the day for the synthetic program.

Plants making GR-S from petroleum butadiene, according to Robert C. Dale, turn out their product at the present time at about 10 to 13 cents a pound, while those depending upon butadiene from alcohol have a production cost of approximately 25 to 30 cents a pound. Mr. Dale, from whom much of the material for this article was obtained, is factory manager for the Inland Rubber corporation of Chicago, one of the leading sources of vulcanizing tire repair sections. Inland also is one of the operators of the government GR-S plant at Louisville, Ky. It is Mr. Dale's opinion that butadiene from alcohol will not figure importantly in synthetic rubber production in the future unless its costs can be reduced appreciably.

Tire manufacturers obtain their government rubber at a cost of 18½ cents a pound, regardless of the source of butadiene. Natural rubber just before the war, for comparison, cost a fraction more than 22 cents a pound. When the greater bulk of tire rubber was procured from butadiene derived from alcohol, as can be seen, the government program was operating at a loss. In other words, the government in the war emergency subsidized the manufacture of synthetic rubber.

In the same system followed in the synthetic program, the 27 tire making companies in this country pooled their formulas and information. The government authorized them at first to make tire treads of GR-S and tire carcasses of natural rubber. Following this the government rule was that tires should be made to eight different specifications, ranging from all synthetic to a formula of 50 per cent synthetic and 50 per cent natural rubber. The ratio of synthetic to natural depends upon the size of the tire, thickness of the tread, and the load to be carried. All passenger car tires under this program are made entirely of synthetic except for the very small amount of natural rubber cement used in cementing the plies together.

Because synthetic rubber has a tendency to heat more rapidly than natural rubber in large tires, it was found necessary to employ certain amounts of natural rubber in their manufacture, depending upon the sizes of the tires themselves. The tire makers found a way of overcoming this heat tendency in part by the use of rayon cords instead of cotton cords. The rayon corded tire can be made thinner, inasmuch as rayon is stronger under heat than cotton.

According to Mr. Dale, passenger car tires made entirely of synthetic, except for the natural rubber cement used for cementing the plies, wear about 5 per cent better than all-natural rubber tires in normal usage on surfaced roads in instances where they are not abused. He says, however, that on rocky unsurfaced roads and where tires are abused the natural rubber tires are better. This is because the synthetic tires in extremely rough usage may chip off in pieces, and cuts in them have a tendency to enlarge.

With an oversupply of synthetic rubber now on hand in this country, the tire companies have been told by the government to make as many tires as they want to. This, however, does not mean tires for every one right off the bat, for it will be some time before the manufacturers can turn out a sufficient number to meet demands. Shortage of labor is one of the principal factors now restricting tire production.

Natural rubber is expected to return to the industry, and the tire of the future (that is, the next five years) is expected by Mr. Dale to contain a mixture of natural with synthetic in varying proportions. Furthermore, he believes that special types of rubber may be developed for the different parts of the tire—one for the tread, another for the side wall, and so forth.

One of the last stages in the manufacture of synthetic rubber—a conveyor belt passing the filtered rubber crumb thru a disintegrator and dryer.

Ready for use, the synthetic rubber is packaged in loaves. The "GR-S" is a government symbol meaning "government rubber—styrene type."

How long it will take for natural rubber to come back into the American market no one knows to a certainty, for a complete survey has not yet been made of the rubber plantations in the east to ascertain how much damage was done to the rubber trees during the Japanese occupation. Latest reports from the orient, particularly from Borneo, indicate that a number of the rubber plantations there were found to be undamaged. Shipments to the outside world of rubber from stores recovered in the east already have started. Dr. Herbert A. Winkelmann, technical director of the Dryden Rubber company, a Chicago company engaged in making automotive, dense, and sponge rubber, is of the opinion, however, that there will be a natural rubber shortage in America until at least the middle of 1947.

Dr. Winkelmann, who is an authority on rubber, expects improved types of synthetic rubber to be developed after the stress of war manufacturing is lightened to a great extent and private enterprise has a free hand. That, in fact, is the general opinion in the industry. With the synthetic setup as it is today, with unlimited resources for experiments and a number of large research laboratories, both government and privately owned, the prospect of developing synthetic rubbers perfect for most kinds of uses is very promising.

In comparing synthetic rubber with natural rubber Dr. Edwin R. Gilliland, former assistant rubber director, is reported by the Chemical and Engineering News to have said not long ago that "the wide use of [natural] rubber was not due to any one property, but was a result of the fact that it possessed a number of characteristics which could be exploited for different uses—for example, it combined strength with high elongation; it was elastic over wide ranges of temperature; it was extremely resistant to abrasion; its permeability to air, water, and certain other materials was low; its resistance to cutting was high; it could stand repeated flexing, and it could be easily processed and fabricated.

"In almost any one of these characteristics there is a synthetic rubber that is at least equal or superior to natural rubber. Neoprene and butyl rubber combine high tensile strength with high elongation. Buna N [GR-N] and neoprene are much more resistant to chemical attack than natural rubber. All of the polymers [synthetic rubbers] show relatively low permeability, and butyl is particularly outstanding in this characteristic. Certain of the synthetics are superior for low temperatures, others are superior for high temperatures, and still others are superior in flex resistance.

"These superior qualities have led to many improved rubber products, and they will result in many more. However, none of the present synthetic polymers is superior to natural rubber in all respects. In automobile tires a combination of properties is required, and natural rubber possesses this desirable combination to a higher degree than any other of the present synthetics. In fact, buna S [GR-S], which was not indicated as being superior in any single respect to natural rubber, is the main polymer used to replace it in tire construction. Buna S is a good all-around general purpose rubber, but it is not outstanding in any particular characteristic. The deficiencies of this polymer relative to natural rubber are not serious for the quality of small size tires. . . .

"At the present time the synthetic polymers available can replace natural rubber for about 75 per cent of the tonnage to give products of satisfactory or superior quality. Another 15 per cent can be replaced to give products of usable but inferior quality. The remaining 10 per cent require natural rubber."

Dr. Gilliland in discussing the future of the synthetic rubber industry in America points out four alternatives:

1. Continued government ownership of the plants, with operation by the government.
2. Continuation of the present plan, with the plants owned by the government but operated by private companies.
3. Lease of the government-owned plants to private companies for a period of five years, at the end of which the true value of the plants could be determined.
4. Outright sale of the plants to private companies.

Of the four plans he regards the last as the most desirable, altho he admits it offers major problems, particularly as to the basis upon which the plants should be sold.

"It is essential," he has explained, "that the taxpayers receive any true value, but too high prices will retard or prevent the development of the industry. The companies will not be interested in purchasing the plants at prices which are a high percentage of the investment. The original costs of construction were high, due to the emergency conditions under which they were built, and important developments have been made, so that today cheaper and more efficient plants could be constructed."

The broad picture of the synthetic industry, built to vast proportions in this country in about three years, as compared with the 40 years that it took to create the natural rubber industry, provides a lesson pointing to the need of preparedness in the future. Rubber and tire men are generally agreed that America never again should be caught with a rubber crisis. They desire that the situation in the future always shall be one in which America will not be totally dependent on natural rubber, and particularly upon foreign sources for natural rubber.

YOUTH ON THE CAMPUS

St. Paul, Minn.

AT THE College of St. Catherine, located in a quiet residential section of St. Paul, enrollment has increased from 18 at its opening in 1911 to something more than 600 today. It is a Roman Catholic liberal arts college for women, conducted by the Sisters of St. Joseph of Carondelet, an order of French origin which began its work in this community when St. Paul was a mere village of log cabins. It is highly accredited and has achieved some national literary distinction in recent years by the work of its pupils in creative writing and poetry. St. Catherine's was the third educational institution in Minnesota to get a chapter of Phi Beta Kappa.

St. Catherine's, obviously, is a vigorous little college, but the serenity of the place, the pupils, and the black-robed sisters is what first impresses the casual visitor. The campus is a hundred acres of orderly loveliness—sloping green lawns divided by unusual peony hedges (breath-taking when in full bloom), wooded upland, and a tiny, perfect artificial lake known officially as the Dew Drop.

Reflected in the still blue waters of the Dew Drop is the sculptured facade of the splendid Our Lady of Victory chapel, high on a hill, which dominates the campus physically and spiritually. This is an enormous and interesting structure, modern Byzantine and Romanesque in style, of Bedford travertine inlaid with brick, that immediately gives to the campus scene an old world atmosphere of rich tranquility. Academic dress of cap and gown with white collar is worn by the entire student body here for all college masses, the weekly holy hour on Friday mornings, and for all convocations.

By ELEANOR NANGLE

The chapel is connected by a cloister with Derham hall, the administration building, on the upper floors of which are residence quarters for some students and faculty; the college library is in the spacious chapel basement, and there is an additional reserve library. Mendel hall and the Health center, one for the biological and physical sciences, mathematics, and psychology, the other for physical education, are not at all old world in architecture or in facilities; both are functional and furnished with the most modern equipment. There is also a four story building, Caecilian hall, devoted exclusively to music.

Also on the college campus is a nursery school accommodating 57 children of pre-kindergarten age, where the college girls, under the supervision of professionals, supplement theory with practical experience as observers and assistants. And this year at the College of St. Catherine there are 120 nursing students, members of the United States cadet nurse corps. Thru a training affiliation with St. Joseph's hospital in St. Paul and St. Mary's in Minneapolis, St. Catherine's has both a four year and a three year program in nurse training whereby girls obtain their education in the basic sciences at the college and their clinical experience at the hospitals.

There is an admirable emphasis at this college, we thought, on the manner in which modern girls can learn to live graciously by living it that way from day to day. Basic good manners and the infallible practice of them are a requirement of every student; girls here dress presentably for all meals and do not go about the campus unkempt, neither do they screech. They rise when a faculty member or an elder enters a room, and while they're wonderfully gay of heart and happy, as girls should be, they're never rowdy about it. It's the fashion here to observe the amenities, not to disdain them.

Socially the girls at St. Catherine's have done quite well, thank you, thruout the war. St. Thomas college for men, which is near-by, and with which St. Catherine's has always held exchange dates and dances by a pleasant unwritten rule, has been well filled with navy trainees.

RECORDially yours

WILL DAVIDSON

IN A WAY this column is an answer to Alice L. Piper of Chicago, who wrote recently asking when I was going to review some records by "the King—Bing"—meaning, of course, old Groaner Crosby. In another way today's column is a birthday celebration. It was just a year ago, Nov. 12, that "RECORDially Yours" first appeared in the Graphic Section. And the subject of the first review was Bing.

So-o-o, couple all that with the fact that DECCA has issued two very elegant Crosby albums and you have a natural. I might as well say at the beginning that I've been a sucker for the Crosby voice ever since the days when he was an obscure member of Paul Whiteman's Rhythm Boys—days when Harry Baris was the star and when Bing was a pretty irresponsible youngster with heaven in his vocal cords and unimagined fame and fortune within reach. I watched him at the Cocoanut Grove in Los Angeles after the trio had left Pops and joined Gus Arnheim. Chance sent me east about the time Bing was making "Blue of the Night" famous on the air.

Bing Crosby

There is no one like Bing. Yes, I watched Frank Sinatra come up from the bandstand, and I think he still is a good band singer, with one of the smartest managers in the business, George Evans. Perry Como is swell. I liked him when Ted Weems discovered him. There are lots of good vocalists. Johnny Mercer is king of his peculiar style of singing. I could go on down a long list of singers I like and it wouldn't affect the issue. Bing stands alone. His timing, his impeccable control, his miraculous feeling for mood are unmatched. He is one of those rare natural phenoms—a combination of talents that produce greatness.

The two DECCA albums I started to mention before I went ecstatic are "Merry Christmas" and "Going My Way." If only for the fact that it includes Bing's wonderful recording of "Adeste Fidelis" and "Silent Night," I would select the Christmas album above all. It also has the great hit "White Christmas," "Let's Start the New Year Right," "I'll Be Home for Christmas," "Danny Boy," "Faith of Our Fathers," "God Rest Ye Merry, Gentlemen," "Jingle Bells," and "Santa Claus Is Coming to Town." The other album includes the songs from Bing's great picture plus "Ave Maria" and "Home, Sweet Home." My personal favorite is "Swing on a Star," but "Too-Ra-Loo-Ra-Loo-Ral" is one that should make every other singer of that lullaby lay off.

I don't think too much of Bing's collaboration with Les Paul's trio on DECCA. "It's Been a Long, Long Time" and "Whose Dream Are You" aren't bad—no Crosby effort is entirely bad. They are just pleasantly standard. But the tie-up with Carmen Cavallaro in "I Can't Begin to Tell You" and "I Can't Believe That You're in Love with Me" is superb music making. Carmen's piano is a beautiful complement for Bing's voice.

● Singles you shouldn't overlook: Woody Herman's "Put That Ring on My Finger"—"Bijou," a great Herman performance, the latter side being a jazz rumba. . . . Benny Goodman's "I'm Gonna Love That Guy"—"It's Only a Paper Moon." . . . Harry James' "Carnival"—"11:60 P. M.," with Harry showing how he works strings into a good swing arrangement. (His "Autumn Serenade" demonstrates how not to use strings.) All these are COLUMBIA labels.

JAZZ IN THE PACIFIC

DURING the Okinawa campaign "RECORDially Yours" had two avid readers and correspondents on that Pacific island—Sgt. John H. Keithly and Pfc. Harry F. Simmons (I once erroneously called him a junior, for which I apologize). Both are marines. The sergeant is now in Japan, and Simmons is on Guam. Some weeks ago I got a letter from Harry with a story about a jazz concert on Guam. He called it "the greatest show in the Pacific." It was played by a band that has become famous among service men—the 128 NCB, conducted by George Liberace. Let Harry tell the story, for it is symptomatic of what jazz fans can expect when the hundreds of excellent musicians in service get back into civilian clothes and business:

"I want to announce to the music world that the music and vocals of Bunny Berrigan are back. Last night I witnessed the most sensational band ever put together. My buddy and I were listening when this new 'Bunny Berrigan' played his first note, and we both said together, 'Berrigan!' This musician's name is Tommy Nelson. He's from Las Vegas, Nev.

"The 128 NCB band started with its own composition, 'Four o'Clock Jump,' a combination of James' 'Two o'Clock' and Basie's 'One o'Clock,' plus their own twist, which was terrific. Another of their sensational instrumentalists is Don Dalen, clarinet, alto, and vocals. He did Herman's 'Golden Wedding' and some Johnny Hodges stuff, and for my money he's a guy to watch when he gets back to the States. His vocals had a Butch Stone touch.

"Charles Hrudicka, from Chicago, played some trom that brought back the days when Lou McCarrity was with Goodman. When he played sweet it was mellow and clear—better than some well known experts. Lloyd Ellis, guitar, should give Al Casey, Allen Reuss, and a few others some competition when he returns. The drummer, Joe Fiorella, played a Buddy Rich style and really is good.

"The band's closing was a fast driving combination of Calloway, Basie, and Ellington which brought the house down. That was jamming that I wish some of the columnists in the United States could hear. If this outfit comes to the mainland as is, in my opinion it will make some of the big commercial and jazz outfits look mighty poor."

This May Be the Answer to YOUR Problem

BY SHEILA JOHN DALY
(Copyright: 1945: The Chicago Tribune)

YOU WON'T find the names of the lead characters listed in "Who's Who," you'd never see the problems written in history books, but they are problems, and they loom up as big problems, these boy-girl difficulties that crop up in every date life. You can't put them up to a board of experts, you can't work out the answers with pencil and paper, so here's a once over lightly to some of the letters from fellows and gals whose troubles end with a big question mark.

"Three weeks ago tonight I was a girl with a boy friend, and tonight I'm just a girl sitting at home with time on my hands to write a letter like this. I'm 17, and I dated a number of boys off and on till I met John. We just happened to like each other and went together for almost eight months. For the first two months I thought he was the most wonderful boy I had ever met. I even thought I loved him.

"But for the last six months I just went with him out of habit and because every one else thought I was going steady anyway. He seemed to like me too much and was jealous when I talked to or about any one else. He even sulked when I disagreed with him about something. I began to realize that it was just a case of two people who had thought they liked each other, discovered it wasn't love after all, but didn't have the courage to break it up. So I told John I didn't want to date him any more. I've spent the time since sighing with relief—and lonesomeness. Could I have been wrong? Can people who honestly like each other still get bored sometimes?"

Even Romeo and Juliet would have been twiddling their thumbs if they'd just spent all their time hanging over balconies. So perhaps you and your joe blow found each other too much of a good thing simply because you spent too much time together—and saw the same crowd and talked about the same things week-end after week-end.

Seventeen is a bit too young to exchange ideas—and hold hands—with just one character, even if he is strictly smooth. So even if you do have a few blue evenings, you'll probably be glad you made the break as soon as the other boys begin to realize you're back in circulation. The sooner you shake the star dust out of your eyes the better. It was fun while it lasted, and you know the old saying—better to have loved and lost than never to have had a date at all!

Seventeen is a bit too young to exchange ideas—and hold hands—with just one character, even if he is strictly smooth.

"We have dances about once a week at our school, usually given in the school gym by some club. Our school is small and the whole senior class has just about 100 students. We are all very friendly and these dances should be fun, but the boys just won't dance! If a couple is going steady the girl can usually persuade her boy to waltz her around a few times, but the rest of the boys just sit in one corner of the gym and the girls stand hopefully in the other."

Make your next dance a "fun affair" instead of just a dance. Appoint either a teacher or some popular joe with a sense of showmanship as master of ceremonies. Make the first dance a broom dance, lining up the fellows and girls opposite each other as partners, and give every 10th boy a broom. You know the old routine—the broom gets passed around as each boy cuts in on a dancing couple to claim a partner. Sometimes action gets pretty rough, but it's a good way to break the ice.

Halfway thru the dance (or just when the fun begins to die down) have the master of ceremonies arrange the fellows and girls in two circles, the all-girl circle inside the boys', holding hands and revolving in different directions to the music. When the emcee gives the signal the music stops and the guys and gals are facing their partners for the next dance. You may think the boys at your school are particularly smooth characters, but you'll be surprised to find that these Van Johnsons, j. g., enjoy corny fun once in a while.

"For the whole year I was overseas I wrote to a girl back home whom I had never met. She is a friend of my sister and once put a note on the end of Sis' letter to me. I took the hint and wrote to her, and after that we corresponded about twice a week. She sent me a package at Christmas and a package for my birthday. Her letters were interesting, and I just had no other girls back home. But since I have been home she considers herself my exclusive girl.

"This is embarrassing, because, having met the girl, I discover she isn't half so interesting as her letters. I have had a few dates with her, and if I don't call her every other evening she calls me. She is just too nice and has even begun to hint at getting married some day, tho I've never mentioned it. (Tho I did get rather chummy in a couple of the letters, to be honest with you.) Isn't there some way to get out of this without hurting the girl?"

There probably is no way to get out of this without hurting the girl, but there is a way to get out of it without hurting her too much. Just let the whole thing ride. If the gal is pleasant company you might ask her out for an occasional casual evening. But don't make a habit of calling her every other evening—and after a few evenings she'll weary of calling you. Keep the whole thing on a good friendship basis and she'll soon get the pitch. After all, you've been a bit of an eager beaver yourself. How do you know the young honey chile isn't also looking for a graceful way out?

Josie Maffet . . . teen-age director

FOUR years ago tall, blonde Josie Maffet of Indianapolis, Ind., wandered into the teen-age department of a large department store to shop for a new sweater and skirt to start the school year as a freshman at Arsenal Technical High school. Today the 18-year-old high school graduate, with the vitality and charm of a Donald O'Connor heroine, is assistant to the director of teen-age promotion in that same store.

Every day from 3:30 to closing time a steady stream of high school guys and gals gather in the department store's coke and records room to discuss life, love, and the latest fashions. Josie, whose job is a combination of merchandising and mothering, has the adult ability to solve any problem from making a weekly allowance stretch to pay for a new school dress to helping a worried gal find a date for the school prom. Pretty, poised, and efficient, the young careerist has managed to be both friend and director to shoppers only a year or two her junior. Between customers' conversations and the juke box rendition of "A Long, Long Time," Josie manages to write a weekly half hour radio show featuring a teen-age band and other talent from among the high school students of Indianapolis.

A rare combination of youth and maturity, Josie can understand an enthusiasm for a high school football hero or a new Harry James album like an eager sophomore and still give counsel on ambitions, ideas, and family problems like a rocking chair veteran.

Her chief interest is to watch high school fellows and girls plan, work, and grow up into the kind of people they want most to be—and in the process young Josie Maffet is developing into a rather amazing gal herself!

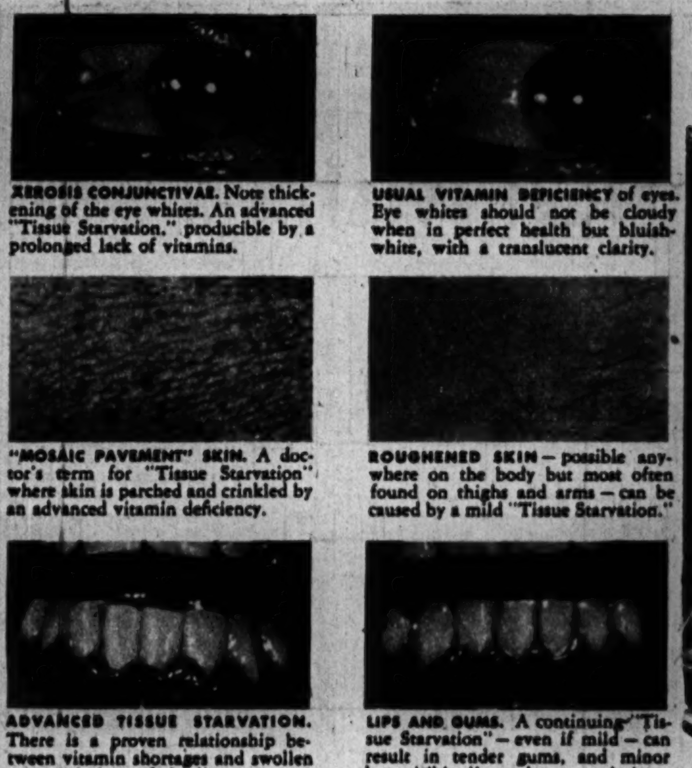
Early and Advanced Signs of "TISSUE STARVATION"



ADVANCED SIGNS | EARLY SIGNS

XEROSIS CONJUNCTIVAE. Note thickening of the eye whites. An advanced "Tissue Starvation," producible by a prolonged lack of vitamins.

USUAL VITAMIN DEFICIENCY of eyes. Eye whites should not be cloudy when in perfect health but bluish-white, with a translucent clarity.

"MOSAIC PAVEMENT" SKIN. A doctor's term for "Tissue Starvation" where skin is parched and crinkled by an advanced vitamin deficiency.

ROUGHENED SKIN—possible anywhere on the body but most often found on thighs and arms—can be caused by a mild "Tissue Starvation."

ADVANCED TISSUE STARVATION. There is a proven relationship between vitamin shortages and swollen gums—lesions of the lips.

LIPS AND GUMS. A continuing "Tissue Starvation"—even if mild—can result in tender gums, and minor but visible lip and tongue lesions.

"TISSUE STARVATION" is producible by a lack of vitamins in the living cells of your body

The Signs of Vitamin Deficiency often appear first in Eyes, Skin, Tongue and Mouth

AMERICANS have been badly misled about vitamins. Vitamins are not, as many believe, merely something we need in our food. Vitamins are part and parcel of every body tissue—and if you haven't enough of them, signs of your deficiency may appear.

You can have a "Tissue Starvation"—producible by a shortage of vitamins—even if overweight. Advanced medical opinion holds, in fact, that thousands of Americans do have this type of vitamin "Tissue Starvation."

To avoid error, look again at the column of photos of "Advanced Signs" to the left. Such severe evidences of "Tissue Starvation" are rare in American life. But the "Early Signs" shown are quite common. Look out for them!

These signs, of course, may result from such conditions as irritation, infection or other malnutrition, but "Tissue Starvation" due to vitamin deficiency is a frequent and basic cause. So help guard against this form of "Tissue Starvation" by taking One-A-Day (brand) Multiple Vitamins. You get all the known needed vitamins in One-A-Day (brand) Multiple Vitamin Capsules—A, B_1, B_2, C and D, plus Niacin, Calcium Pantothenate and B_6.

The MILES PLAN For Health Protection

1. PROPER DIET. Vitamin deficiencies may accrue gradually in the body tissues throughout your entire life. So try to eat a balanced diet every day from now on.
2. PROTECTIVE VITAMINS. Take one capsule of One-A-Day Multiple Vitamins every day.
3. CONDITIONING FACTORS. Certain conditions and habits increase vitamin needs. Protect yourself then by taking extra vitamins.
4. SEE YOUR DOCTOR—if you think you have lesions—as above—that indicate vitamin deficiency.

Special Conditioning Factors

Body tissues need the protection of extra vitamins as a result of certain conditioning factors, such as the following:

Diarrhea	Alcoholism
Food allergy	Over-indulgence
Pregnancy	Reducing diets
Certain digestive disturbances	Physical overwork
	Diabetes

When these factors are present, your daily intake of vitamins may need to be increased.

command of the American armies any slap at Monty, as much of the London press reported. The shift was made in the first place so that the 1st and 9th would be assured of communications back thru the 21st army group. It was planned then to return those commands to Bradley soon after the 1st and 3d army offensive eliminated the Germans from the bulge. The 9th remained under Montgomery, however, until the battle of the Ruhr, for the Briton, to carry out his drive into the Ruhr valley, convinced Ike's headquarters that he needed more men, in particular Simpson's 9th.

Bradley is a plain-spoken man, much like his classmate, Eisenhower. He also has the qualities of a diplomat, altho he prefers direct dealing and direct statement. And both American commanders were able to work harmoniously with the volatile Briton, generally considered by the men who work for him as a prima donna. In the field of strategy and tactics it was usually Bradley and Montgomery who championed the respective American and British views. The American point of view could have had no stronger protagonist than the man from Missouri, who believes that our military textbooks, evolved thru the peace time years, represent the soundest military thought of the profession.

There was one time in the advance across France that Monty sought to use the American and British air borne divisions. He planned for them to jump in advance of his own British-Canadian forces, seizing key communication centers. Bradley opposed the plan, contending that a ground advance would be just as successful and arguing that such highly trained, valuable warriors as our sky troops should be conserved for the greater purpose of capturing the Rhine river bridges.

Monty's plan, however, was set in motion. Drop zones were selected for the air borne operation. Their D-day had been chosen and all was in readiness. But somehow—there never were any written orders issued—Bradley's 1st and 3d armies managed to capture the air borne drop zones before their D-day. The purpose of the British plan had been accomplished, but there were a number of choleric British generals as a result.

Later Monty succeeded in employing the 1st allied air borne army—two American divisions and one British division—in the abortive crossing of the lower Rhine in Holland, at Arnhem, Nijmegen, and Eindhoven. This, too, had been opposed by the American representatives on the ground that the venture was too hazardous for any possible gains.

In another difference of viewpoint Montgomery succeeded in having the main allied effort to cross the Rhine fall within his 21st army group. Bradley's 1st and 3d armies were instructed to attack in support of Montgomery, but as a secondary effort. It didn't quite work out that way.

Bradley passed on the green light to Hodges and Patton. Hodges already was across the Rhine in the unexpected Remagen bridgehead, but the terrain, heavily wooded and hilly, was not the most favorable for operations. And Patton crossed over a day ahead of Monty. Instead of the 21st army group carrying the major power play, sweeping thru the Ruhr on the northern side, then turning south to meet Hodges, the 1st army sent an armored spearhead east for many miles, then north, to encircle the entire Ruhr valley, meeting the 9th army before it could turn south. The ensuing pocket between the two armies yielded about 350,000 Germans as prisoners or wounded or dead.

General Patton . . . got the green light.

Bradley's career in the 11 month continental campaign had one final crowning moment. It was his command which first met the Russian army, a historic juncture at Torgau on the Elbe river, when patrols of the 1st army's 69th division met Red army soldiers. Some days later, after commanders of the lower echelons had met, the tall, school-teacherish Bradley and a small official party journeyed across the Elbe to a chateau southeast of Berlin, where he shook hands with Field Marshal Ivan S. Konev.

Konev had come all the way from Stalingrad. Bradley had breached the massive German defenses of the Atlantic wall, had swept across France, Belgium, Luxemburg, and part of Holland, pierced the Siegfried line, and crossed the Rhine. It was a moment for history.

But Bradley, who bore with him our Legion of Merit medal to bestow upon the Russian, was not to be taken by surprise. He had heard of the Russian hospitality at the other banquets—the voracious eating, the powerful drinking, the devastating effect of vodka upon the unwary. Before leaving his headquarters he instructed his party to prepare for the event by a liberal consumption of milk or olive oil. The American stomachs were to be ready for "combat."

Konev's hospitality was indeed bounteous. Cossack dancers, singers, pantomimists, and an orchestra provided the entertainment. On the crowded tables of the chateau were white, black, and toasted bread, red and black caviar, cheese, smoked salmon, sardines, salami, potato salad with cream sauce, lettuce in sour cream dressing, smoked whitefish, smoked sturgeon, jellied herring, hard-boiled eggs, fresh butter, peas, onions, baked chicken with cream sauce, fried chicken, potatoes, baked pigeon, partridge, pork, beef, frozen custard, cakes, and chocolate candy. There were four kinds of wine, cognac, champagne, and, of course, the ubiquitous vodka.

Marshal Konev toasted the United States, Britain, and Russia. Bradley toasted the victorious Red army and the amazing accomplishments of American arms. They spoke of the peace won by the three great powers and pledged to keep the peace forever. The chiefs of the various states were toasted. Other generals arose with full glasses for more toasts. The afternoon wore on, and the drinking of toasts never seemed to halt.

And thru it all Bradley retained his smiling equanimity, conversing thru interpreters with Konev, a shorter, wider, rounder man with a balding head. They exchanged gifts at the end of the long noon banquet, Bradley giving the Russian a new jeep inscribed with the best wishes of the 12th army group, and Konev giving the American a beautiful bay stallion. As the party ended the lanky American commander passed the table where I was sitting with the other correspondents, dropped a hand on my shoulder, grinned, and remarked:

"Still on my feet. Guess we did all right."

VOICE OF THE MOVIE FAN

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Miss Tinée: I have written twice before with praise for the moviemakers and their methods; this time I have a complaint. I have just returned from seeing "Laura," the mystery thriller, of which I've read some good reviews. I expected it to be a first rate show, but in reality it seemed to me to be rather poor. It employed so many tricks that I associate only with B or C pictures that I was quite disappointed.

One grand faux pas was near the end in connection with his treatment of the murderer. When Waldo left Laura's apartment, MacPherson very obviously didn't give him time to get down the hall before telling Laura in a loud voice that he was the murderer and he was arresting him the next day. He apparently did not even dream of looking out the door to see whether he had really left or had come back to listen, and the audience was appropriately horrified to see the killer stop at the top of the stairs and turn back.

I have never known it to fail in any murder play that the police leave the heroine alone at the crucial moment, with the murderer in the house, and warn her not to let any one in, all of which MacPherson did, in addition to locking the door for her. I am sure the scenario writers could improve the reality of their story greatly if they would arrange not to have otherwise brilliant detectives make such stupid blunders. Is is just that they don't care, or don't they really realize it themselves? I wish some one could tell me. Sincerely yours,

M. J. I.

Clifton Webb . . . the Waldo of "Laura."

Your last paragraph refers to a time-honored custom in mysteries on the stage and screen and in books. I dunno about the sleuthing angles, but I do know a lot of people who were much enthused about the entertainment values of "Laura."

Taste a beer that's aged live and sparkling

Never permitted to go flat in the tanks

by RICHARD SEIBOLD, Meister Brau Brewmaster

...then bottled with wholesome Carbonation

Folks call me a "crank" about the way we age our beer. But I guess that's because they don't know how important it is.

We had a new man in our ageing cellars about 25 years ago. He saw me come in every day to test the carbonation in the tanks. "Why worry about that now," he said, "you can add carbonation later." I guess I was pretty rough with him, because today he watches those tanks with an eagle-eye.

No beer is permitted to go flat in the tanks. Every precious bubble of wholesome carbonation is guarded. And that prevents flavor loss.

We gain Meister Brau's flavor with expensive seedless hops—to give delicate flavor. We specially process these hops right thru the brew.

Thousands trying Meister Brau for the first time adopt it as their favorite. Taste and compare with others. Ask for Meister Brau at your retailer's. No other beer is just like this.

MOSTLY ABOUT DOGS By BOB BECKER

DOG OWNERS always have a few questions to ask about their pets' care or behavior. Here are some typical letters from yesterday's mail bag:

"I am wondering if you could tell me what is good to feed a dog so as to make his gums hard. He is about 9 years old, and lately we have noticed that some of his teeth are loose and will come out unless something is done. He is a small shaggy dog, a sort of sheep dog.—M. G., Chicago."

We do not know of any unusual dog food that hardens a dog's gums. What your dog needs now is not some special food for its gums but the attention of a veterinarian, who will determine why the dog's mouth is in such a condition and advise you what to do about the dog's diet and general care. And those loose teeth will have to be extracted, for they may lead to serious infections.

"Our bulldog has a bad habit. When she rides in the front seat of our car and the window is open she may lunge and bark at people when we slow down at intersections. If a stranger gets near the car it frightens him terribly. I have tried everything to stop her from behaving like this, even using a light switch on her. Can you make any suggestions?—MRS. W. J. P., Hamilton, O."

All your otherwise well behaved bulldog needs is a little training to mind you when not in the car and then a number of rehearsals in the car. She ought to know at least the meaning of the words "sit" and "no." That word "no" should indicate your displeasure. Your problem is simply a question of control. You apparently have not trained your dog to mind, and therefore you do not have control or she would stop lunging at people when told to. Obtain control and obedience and she will sit quietly next to you and not scare strangers.

"I am interested in the care and training of springer spaniels. Will you advise me on good books about springers? And any information you can give me on the organization and management of dog kennels will be appreciated.—LEON E. G., Green Bay, Wis."

You should find helpful information on spaniels in Maxwell Riddle's book, "The Springer Spaniel." If not on sale at your book store, try the Judy Publishing company, 3323 S. Michigan av., Chicago. It costs $2.50. We are sending you by mail some suggestions on obtaining literature about dog kennels.

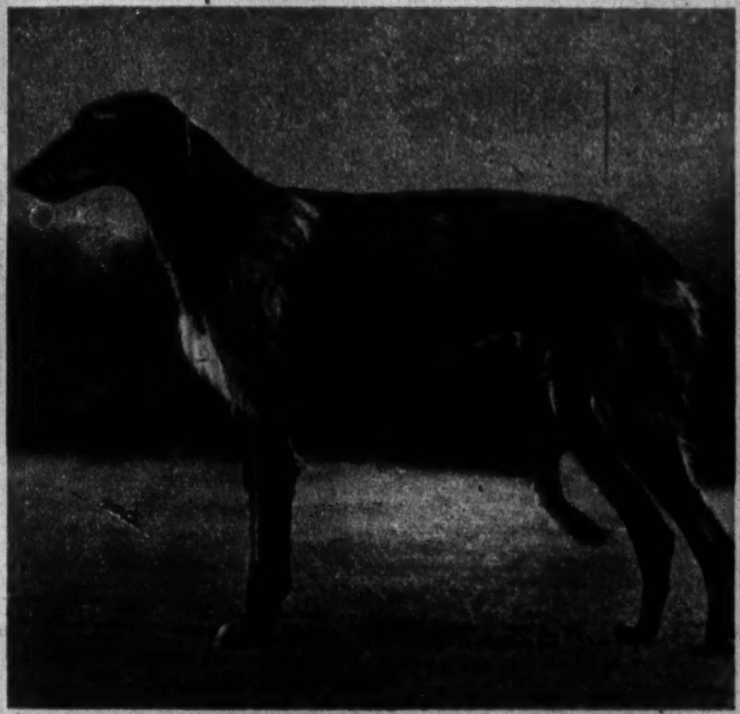
"I have a new German shepherd dog 6 weeks old. If it is possible will you send a good book on dog training, feeding, etc.? Kindly send C. O. D.—MRS. W. C. M., Delavan, Wis."

There are a number of good books available that will help you raise your puppy correctly. If you want a compact, well illustrated handbook on feeding, may we suggest "Feeding the Dog"? This beautifully illustrated 90 page book gives complete feeding instructions on more than 30 breeds, including the number of meals a day, etc. It's sold by the Tribune Public Service Office, 1 S. Dearborn st., Chicago, for 30 cents by mail. Orders with remittances should be sent to that office.

"Training the Dog" is a companion book to the one on feeding. It gives complete instructions on how to make a dog mind thru obedience training. The books show thru pictures how to teach the dog various routines. This handbook also is sold by the Tribune Public Service Office for 30 cents by mail.

"In our locality we have an unusual hatch of ticks, and our Boston terrier is covered with them. We pick them off evenings, but after a few hours in our back yard he gets another batch of them. Would a rubdown with kerosene before a bath be harmful?—FRED W., Chicago."

We suggest you get a liquid for making a tick killing dip and also a powder that is death to them. You can buy both in a pet shop. Dip your dog in the liquid and do not dry him. Let the dip dry on him. This will kill ticks and should prove some drawback to the dog's getting a new crop of them. Or you can use the anti-tick powder the same way. Either of these is preferable to kerosene.



Centuries of hunting are behind the deerhound, a breed rarely seen today as a companion dog. Males of this breed may weigh from 85 to 110 pounds. This specimen is the imported champion Platonic of Ross, owned by the Stanerigg kennels, Bethel, Conn. (Brown photo)

AMERICAN HEROES OF WORLD WAR II.

This is another of the series on outstanding American heroes of World War II. Subjects are heroes who have been decorated for valor. Illustrations are by Clara Fargo Thomas and Alexander Vernick.

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

IN THE DESPERATE FIGHTING around Bruyeres, France, a year ago last Oct. 25, American troops were crouching in their shallow foxholes and hitting back with every weapon in their possession as the Germans drove against them with heavy tanks. Critical as the situation was, the Americans gave a good account of themselves.

One of them, Staff Sgt. Clyde L. Choate of Anna, Ill., performed so gallantly that day as to win for himself the medal of honor (congressional medal), America's supreme award for valor.

Armed with a bazooka or rocket launcher, most destructive of shoulder weapons, Choate with his first shot made a direct hit upon one of the enemy tanks that was threatening to overrun his comrades' foxholes. This shot immobilized the tank, and Choate approached under its cannon and machine gun fire to fire a second time. He killed members of the vehicle's crew who attempted to flee, and finally closed in on the tank, firing his pistol until he was near enough to toss a hand grenade into its turret.

At Salzburg, Austria, last June 12, it was announced that Sergeant Choate, who had left for America the previous April, had been awarded the medal of honor, the 30th member of the 3d division thus to be honored. The presentation of the medal was made in Washington on Aug. 23 at a ceremony in which President Truman likewise decorated 27 other heroes.

Lovelier Skin in 14 days!

"My face fell every time I looked at it," says Teresa Simpson of Woodside, New York. "No two ways about it—I had a dull, oily, coarse-looking complexion I couldn't seem to fix no matter what I did. So when I was asked to try the new 14-Day Palmolive Plan, I jumped at the chance!

"1284 other women tried it, too—women of all ages—from fifteen to fifty. My group reported to a leading New York skin specialist. Some of us had dry skins; some oily; some just fair-to-middling. After a careful examination, we were given the Palmolive Plan to use at home for 14 days.

"Here's all you do: Wash your face with Palmolive Soap. Then, for 60 seconds, massage with Palmolive's soft, lovely lather. Rinse! Do this 3 times a day for 14 days. This cleansing massage brings your skin Palmolive's full beautifying effect. After 14 days, my doctor agreed my complexion was brighter, less oily, finer looking! See what the Palmolive Plan can do for you."

NOW . . . PALMOLIVE COMES IN A NEW, BIG BATH SIZE, TOO!

Try it—for tub or shower! Solid. Thrifty. Longlasting. And how a man enjoys its rich, generous lather!

DOCTORS PROVE PALMOLIVE'S BEAUTY RESULTS!

You, too, may look for these Skin improvements in only 14 days!

Less oily—clearer

"My skin became less oily," Shirley Wolcott of Los Angeles, reports. Excessive oiliness often leaves skin blotchy-looking—robs it of that clear, lovely look. Yet the 14-Day Palmolive Plan brought definite gains to 89% of 367 women who had oily skin. See if it won't help your skin become less oily—clearer.

Less coarse-looking—smoother

"Skin less coarse-looking in 14 days!" says Ethel Nelson of Chicago. The 36 doctors reported almost two-thirds of all the women tested had smoother—actually finer looking skin. Reason enough for every woman who longs for a younger looking complexion to start the Palmolive Plan today!

Fewer tiny blemishes

Tiny blemishes—incipient blackheads, often caused by improper cleansing, respond in most cases to the 14-Day Palmolive Plan. "My skin improved a lot," says Alice Musgrove of New Orleans. The doctors found finer looking, clearer skins in over half the cases tested. See what Palmolive can do for you!

Fresher, brighter color

"Skin brighter, actually less sallow!" says Mary Sullivan of New York, after testing the 14-Day Palmolive Plan. The 36 examining doctors report this same important improvement for 2 skins out of 3 among the 1285 women. See if this Plan won't bring you fresher skin—and in only 14 days!

Its longer polishing action safely BRYTENS TEETH!

● To unmask the natural sparkle of your teeth, learn this great truth!

Even in the 30 seconds most folks brush their teeth, the dentifrice disperses and loses its polishing action.

That's why you'll get such dramatic results by changing to IODENT No. 2, made by a Dentist.

It contains millions of tiny particles scientifically treated to safely polish teeth up to twice as long. They do not dissolve—but get finer, tinier as you brush. It's the way a jeweler polishes precious jewelry.

Try it! Tooth Paste or Powder. Let your own mirror tell you the new beauty of your teeth.

IODENT

IODENT No. 1 is preferred by people with teeth easy to bryten—especially children.

New double-formula discovery gives Make-up Pat natural flattery in Every Shade!

There's a special reason for the "unstagey," fresh, look of every shade of Pond's new cake make-up. The reason lies in Pond's discovery that no one-cake make-up formula works equally well for all shades! So Pond's Make-up Pat has a double formula:

Pond's lighter shades are in a featherweight formula. Their delicate colors go on soft, clear—never thick and whitish.

Pond's darker shades are in a richer formula to carry rich, rosy glow. They never go on yellow or "anemic"!

Wear Pond's new Make-up Pat every day—it protects your skin from weather and dirt! Just apply with a damp-to-wet sponge or cotton. While moist, blend smooth with finger-tips. Such an easy way to have a flawless-looking complexion! 69¢, 39¢, plus tax.

take your VITAMINS this New Way for better results!

Take them in fortified food—the delicious Ovaltine way!

Of course, the whole subject of vitamins is new. We learn more about them every day. And today, millions are learning a new and better way to take their extra vitamins—a more modern, more natural way that can do more good. Discarding earlier methods of taking vitamins alone, they now take them in fortified food!

For latest evidence shows that vitamins do not work alone. They work most effectively in combination with certain other food elements—which are absolutely necessary for best results.

This is the reason so many people are changing to Ovaltine. A specially-fortified food, it contains—besides vitamins—nearly every precious food element needed for good health. Especially, those elements necessary for vitamin-effectiveness.

For example, Vitamin A and protein are both necessary in cell-building—and they're both in Ovaltine. Vitamin B_1 and fuel-food also act together for sparkling vitality—and they're combined in Ovaltine. Vitamin D, Calcium and Phosphorus can't work fully without each other—and you get them all in a glass of Ovaltine made with milk!

So why not turn to Ovaltine? If you're eating normal meals, including citrus fruit or tomatoes, two glasses of Ovaltine daily should give you all the extra vitamins and minerals you need for robust health.

3 out of every 4 people should get extra vitamins or minerals—according to Government reports. Reasons include vitamin deficiencies of many modern foods—also loss of vitamin-mineral values due to shipping, storing and cooking.

WALNUT COOKIES

THE Dunce never gets enough cookies, especially black walnut cookies, and when he found the cookie thimble empty he began begging the Cook to make some. The Cook was too busy but the Lady of Fashion saw that the Dunce was terribly disappointed, and she promised to make the cookies if he would get a walnut meat.

Black walnuts have very thick, hard shells, and the Teenie Weenies have to crack them open with blasting powder, which the Teenie Weenie Doctor makes out of saltpeter, charcoal, and sulphur. It is very dangerous to handle blasting powder, and the General only permits the Turk or the Old Soldier to use it.

The Dunce was determined to have some cookies, and in spite of the General's orders not to meddle with blasting powder, he went into the Teenie Weenie workshop and sneaked out a cherry seed full of powder and some fuses. Next he talked Gogo, the Sailor, and the Chinaman into helping him. The four Teenie Weenies found a walnut, which they rolled under some maple bushes, and the Dunce began chiseling a hole into the nut. When he had made a hole nearly thru the shell he put in a small amount of powder, tucked in a fuse, and then plugged the hole with some moss. With his tiny flint he lit a bit of dry moss and set fire to the fuse. The four little men ran and hid behind a stone, but the powder simply burned out.

"Yo' didn't have enough powdah in de hole fo' to bust de shell," Gogo said. "It'll take more powdah to crack dat nut."

The Dunce chiseled a larger hole clear thru the shell and then he poured more than half a cherry seed of powder into the hole. This time he stuffed up the hole tightly with moss and clay, and then lit the fuse. They all hid behind the stone again, but when the charge did not go off the four little chaps went up to the nut to see what was wrong, and while they were examining it the charge exploded with a loud bang, blowing the nut completely to pieces.

It was a lucky thing that none of the little men was badly hurt. The Dunce received some powder burns, Gogo lost two pants buttons, the Sailor had the breath knocked out of him by a piece of the shell, and the Chinaman had a Teenie Weenie headache for several hours afterward. All of them were badly scared, and so they said nothing more about cookies, for they were afraid the General would punish them if he found out they had been meddling with blasting powder.

CHILDREN GET SPECIAL PLACE IN BOOK WEEK

No. Side Libraries Join Observance

Tours of the Chicago public library, displays of classic and modern books for children, a public school art students' exhibit in a Loop store, and reviews in branch libraries will mark Book week tomorrow thru Saturday in Chicago.

Observed annually since 1919, when it was suggested by Franklin Mathiews, Boy Scouts national librarian, Book week this year will follow a theme, "United Thru Books," by emphasizing the role of literature in fostering a spirit of international good will. Parents and teachers have been urged to visit libraries to discuss their problems and to hear suggestions in choosing books for youngsters. Students have received special invitations to visit displays in branch libraries.

Tours in Main Library

In the main library the Thomas Hughes room for young people will be open to children and teachers. Group tours will be conducted thru the building, and exhibits will emphasize interesting books for children. In the book section of Carson Pirie Scott and Co., art students will display paintings of scenes from old and recent books.

Representatives of 14 community schools, a boy and girl each from the 5th thru 8th grades, will attend book reviews by Catherine E. Adamson, children's librarian, in Hild library, 4536 Lincoln av., and will make reports to their classes. Fifth and 6th grade students will meet at 2 p. m. Wednesday, and 7th and 8th graders at 2 p. m. Friday.

Hild also will sponsor a story hour at 10:45 a. m. Saturday, when children will hear stories of the sleeping beauty, Giacco and the bean, and Pinocchio. Youngsters will be chosen from the audience to dramatize the tale of Giacco.

Plans at Lake View Branch

Esther Barlow, children's librarian of Lake View branch, 644 Belmont av., will have charge of book reviews similar to Hild's, for 5th and 6th graders at 2 p. m. Tuesday and 7th and 8th graders at 2 p. m. Thursday. A story hour will be held at 10:30 a. m. Saturday. Warren Best, 4110 N. Moody av., a high school student, will present a puppet show, "Hansel and Gretel."

The children's library council, composed of representatives of 12 schools, will meet at 3:30 p. m. Thursday in Hamlin Park library, 3035 N. Hoyne av., with Mrs. Audrey Faulhaber, children's librarian, in charge. There will be a book quiz between students of St. Veronica's and Schneider schools.

Miss Ramona Koenemann, children's librarian of Lincoln Park branch, 744 Fullerton av., will conduct a story hour at 10:30 a. m. Saturday. Children will hear an illustrated talk on "The Story of the Alphabet," and tales about "King Eumenes Starts a Library" and "Ah Mee's Invention."

Films of Zoo Trip

Movies in technicolor of a trip made by community children to Brookfield zoo will be shown at a story hour at 10:30 a. m. Saturday in Northtown library, 2500 Devon av. Bernice Perley, children's librarian, will have charge.

Ruth Erenberg of Sheridan library, 4869 Broadway, will conduct a story hour and book quiz at 10:30 a. m. Saturday. Altho no displays or special activities have been planned by Rogers Park library, 1731 Greenleaf av., because the building is being redecorated, Dorothea Federgreen will supervise a story hour at 10:30 a. m. Saturday.

LAUNCH ANNUAL SALES OF GIRL SCOUT COOKIES

The annual Girl Scout cookie sale, proceeds of which provide one-third of the organization's expenses, will open tomorrow and continue thru Nov. 24, with Mrs. Julien Caestecker, 2678 Sheridan rd., Evanston, as chairman.

North side assistants include Mrs. Paul Heal, 5862 N. Campbell av., and Mrs. John Zimbelman, 847 Roscoe st., city-wide planning committee members, and Mrs. Charles G. Ellis, 1823 Farwell av., and Miss Margaret Koenig, 1905 Larrabee st., district sales chairmen.

Proceeds also finance attendance of girls in camp each year. This year 72,300 packages of cookies are ready for sale. Last year 56,600 packages were available.

STUDENTS OF LOYOLA ELECT ARMY VETERAN COUNCIL PRESIDENT

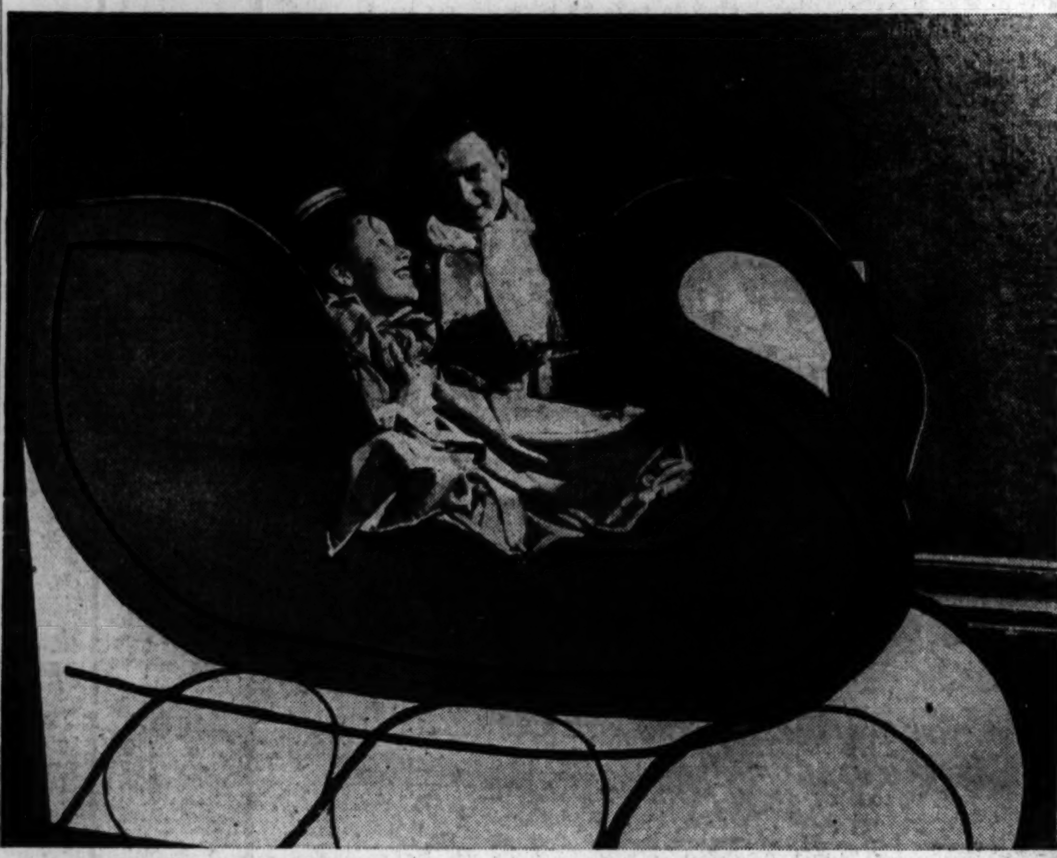
John Patrick Hanley, 6341 Sheridan rd., army veteran, who returned to Loyola university in September, has been elected president of the school's student council.

J. P. Hanley

Hanley, a junior, entered Loyola in 1941 and left early in 1943 to enter the army medical corps. George Thomas Cummings, 5716 Miltimore av., was elected vice president.

Other candidates for office included John Lemond, 525 Roscoe st., and George McKerr, Lake Forest.

Students Will Show What an Odd World It Must Have Been Back in the '90s



It may be a steal from grandma's line, but spooning in a cardboard sleigh is fun, even when an audience looks on. To the accompaniment of "Quilting Party," heroine Nellie Lovemore (Martha Kurtze) will be seen home by hero Jimmy Heartbreaker (Donald Harding) during Senn High school's "Gay Nineties Revue" Wednesday and Friday nights in the school auditorium, 5900 Glenwood av. More than 200 members of the chorus, orchestra, and band will take part.

Garbed in black sateen bloomers which shocked the decorous '90s Helen Forde as Daisy Peaches, the poor working girl, does look sweet upon the seat of this bicycle built for two. Her gallant companion is John McGahan, who as Casey later dances with her in the "Strawberry Blonde" number. The play was written by Capt. George Ostergrew, band director.

"There was ease in Casey's manner as he stepped up to the bat," but before conclusion of the broadcast, made in the parlance of the era, "Casey, mighty Casey had struck out." Frank Grillaert enacts Casey, while (left to right) Cliff Ford is the umpire, Ralph Zuccarello the catcher, and William Shankweiler the announcer. Scene opens with chorus singing "Take Me Out to the Ball Game." (Story on page 2)

Blandishing the inevitable mortgage over the head of Daisy Peaches, villian Dan Snickersneed (Cliff Ford) tries to force her into accepting his marriage proposal. Daisy is protected by ham actor Jonathan Booth (Kenneth Brinkman). It is thru the unwitting aid of Booth that Daisy is saved from an ignominious fate.

Wide eyed and alarmed, Daisy listens while villian Snickersneed tries again for her hand in marriage. But, tho she is naught but a poor working girl and he a wealthy man, Daisy spurns him. The villian scarcely has time to recover before Dick Schweizer lifts his straw hat high and goes into a dance with Betty Wall to the music of "While Strolling Thru the Park." Because they are of the bobby socks era, a little jive must creep in before the number closes.

The gifts will be distributed by the chaplain's service corps as a part of a national project. A dessert luncheon will precede the meeting. Mrs. Ted Burgess is chairman.

Tenants Fete Janitor for 18 Years on Job

It took the janitor to bring them together, and he was 18 years doing it! A wife introduced her husband to "my friend of the laundry." Another man met a friend he had known in Evanston and hadn't seen in several years. A woman checked up on why her neighbor had stopped piano practice some months before.

The occasion was a farewell party given for Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Thompson by residents of the apartment building at 7219-29 N. Paulina st., where Thompson had been janitor 18 years. Twenty couples, most of whom have lived in the building 5 to 10 years, met for the first time, and, as Mrs. E. T. Lundgren said, "learned their neighbors were mighty nice people!"

Discover Common Interests

"We'd met casually before—in the laundry, on porches, or in the street," Mrs. Lundgren said, "but this was the first time we really talked and discovered common interests. It was fun! We sang songs, danced, and talked. Every one contributed a dish to refreshments. The party didn't break up till after midnight because we had such a good time!"

Thompson, who didn't let the war interfere with his standards of work, merited the treat, said his hosts, because of unfailing courtesy and industry. "He kept the building in good condition and would make repairs during week-end emergencies as quickly as at any other time," they declared.

Buy Own Building

Thrift as well as industry was rewarded Nov. 1 when the Thompsons moved into their own apartment building at 6135 N. Paulina st. "It feels fine to own our building," declared Mrs. Thompson. "We've been saving for it a long time."

The party was given in the home of Assistant State's Attorney and Mrs. Blair Varnes, who live around the corner. Mrs. Varnes and Mrs. James McKeon originally planned a small affair, but more couples heard and asked to be included.

Secret Well Kept

"It was some trick to get out of the building without the Thompsons seeing us," laughed Mrs. Lundgren. When every one had assembled, one woman telephoned Mrs. Thompson and asked her to go to a lodge meeting, saying they would pick up Mrs. Varnes en route.

Luring Thompson to the scene was more difficult, but the group managed by sending some one to say Varnes wanted advice about a leaking pipe. The party, planned for three weeks, was a complete surprise to the Thompsons. "We don't know how the secret ever was kept," they insisted.

"We don't know either," said their hosts!

SENN STUDENTS TO HISS VILLAIN IN GAY '90s SHOW

Old Favorites Will Take Bow This Week

Grandma wouldn't believe it true—but it is! That granddaughter of hers, whose Sloppy Joe sweaters, bobby socks, and scuffies have kept her gasping, can meet the ladylike requirements of the 1890s.

Shedding her modern accouterments, she takes to long skirts, the wasp waist, and coy manners with ease. It was grandma's line, but for the nonce it is hers.

The transition comes with the presentation of a "Gay Nineties Revue" by the 200 students of the mixed chorus, band, and orchestra of Senn High school, Wednesday and Friday nights in the school auditorium, 5900 Glenwood av.

Meet Dan Snickersneed

True to its vintage, the play plot concerns the machinations of the heavily mustachioed villain, Dan Snickersneed, who pursues poor, working girl Daisy Peaches with ill intention; the inevitable mortgage, and shy Nellie Lovemore, who is won by the most heroic of heroes, Jammy Heartbreaker.

Produced against a choral background without benefit of stage settings, the 15 act show introduces the audience to their favorite gay '90s characters.

Separating himself from the chorus, Casey suddenly appears upstage. To the accompaniment of a highly dramatic narrative, which is radio broadcast [in parlance of the era], he strikes out.

Plenty of Old Songs

Heroine Nellie [Martha Kurtze] is seen home from the quilting party by Jimmy Heartbreaker [Donald Harding] in a one horse sleigh. But not even grandma can boast of such a horse as this one. Detaching itself from harness, it performs a waltz clog before finishing his sleigh drawing assignment.

The Caseys give a ball and Casey [James McGahan] dances with the Strawberry Blonde [Helen Forde].

That they've learned to sing the old songs will be demonstrated when the chorus, orchestra, and band unite in. "Bicycle Built for Two," "Jeannie with the Light Brown Hair," "Strolling in the Park," "By the Beautiful Sea," "The Band Played On," "Good Night Ladies," "Beautiful Dreamer," "Take Me Out to the Ball Game," and "Honey Boy."

See the Villain Foiled

Before the final curtain, the villain [Clifford Ford] is foiled thru the unwitting services of Jonathan Booth [Kenneth Brinkman] a "ham actor," and Jimmy Heartbreaker.

Several of the stellar roles have been double cast. Mrs. Lovemore will be portrayed by Shirley Dove and Leona Marks, and Nellie Lovemore will be enacted the second evening by Joan Alt. William Lovemore [Nellie's father] will be William Nold and William Shankweiler.

Others in the cast are Joyce Doerling as Mrs. Casey; Milton Clements of the Senn Physical education staff, Medicine Man; Alrick Jacobson, James McGahan, Robert Scherwat, and Richard Traylor, the barber shop quartet.

"Cuties" 6 Feet 6

Specialty numbers, both song and dance, will be offered by Gloria Kemp, Grace Judge, Dick Schweizer, Rosemary Miller, Betty Solomonoff, Alice M. Meyer, Jane Martinson, Roger Fautsch, Carl Nelson, Joyce Wolter, Betty Wall, Sari-Lois Goodman, and Cecele Sommerfield.

Chorus Cuties, boys whose heights range from 6 feet to 6 feet 6 inches, are Wally Askins, Dick Fairgrieve, Alrick Jacobson, Henry Miller, Robert Scherwat, George Staudenmeier, Allen Stephen, Pete Vague, William Walen, Jack Wulp, and Frank Zeller.

Dancing in the Floradora sextet will be Ethel Cholden, Shirley Dove, Rhonda Ericson, Helen Forde, Shirley Leon, Mary Mullarkey. Their partners will be Frank Grillaert, Richard Henderson, William Marrion, Bob Petrillo, George Reidle, and George Staudenmeier.

SHOWER TODAY TO EQUIP HOME OF ST. DOMINIC'S

Sisters to Show Off New Quarters

A shower to help equip the new convent of St. Dominic's school, sponsored by the Casia club, will be given from 2 to 5 p. m. today in the school auditorium, 549 Hudson av.

Thruout the afternoon, the sisters will hold open house so that visitors may view the new home.

The edifice, constructed at a cost of $50,000, was begun before Christmas last year and dedicated last March 19, St. Joseph's day. A two story red brick building with accommodations for the 16 nuns stationed at St. Dominic's, the convent replaces the 75 year old former home which was razed several weeks ago.

Allow for Expansion

Planned by Tom Higgins, architect, the edifice is so constructed that a third story may be added. This contingency may arise to accommodate the expansion of faculty to meet the growing demands of the new St. Dominic High school.

The first floor is given over to two reception rooms or parlors, a reading room, and seven bedrooms. The chapel, a community room where teachers' meetings and recreation will be held, and eight bedrooms take up the second floor. Kitchen and dining hall are in the English basement.

Funds for the convent, and its equipment, were raised by parishioners and alumni of the old school, which was founded by the Viatorian brothers. The original parish numbered 1,000 families, but has dwindled today to less than 50.

Group Plans Shower

Casia club committee members for the shower are: Mrs. Eva Shine, general chairman; Mrs. James Rowan, Miss Helen Barry, Mrs. Frank Tollstam, Mrs. George Morrissey, Mrs. Margaret Nick, Miss Betty Clair, Miss Dorothy Mae Wynn, and Mrs. George Crotty.

NEWSPAPERS GET IMMEDIATE ACTION

Name Winners in North Central Contest

Checks have been mailed to winners in the North Central association's better community photo contest, which was launched last May.

Then residents of the area—bounded by Randolph st., Diversey pkwy., the lake and the north branch of the Chicago river, as well as camera club members and fans from all parts of the city, were asked to survey the North Central district, taking pictures of bad conditions found there.

These photographs then were forwarded to the association's headquarters at 607 N. Michigan av. for verification and judging. Thru them the civic committee hoped to secure evidence of blighted spots, poor housing, recreational needs, contaminated alleyways, and fire hazards, which should be rectified or eliminated.

Traffic Cop Wins First

In addition fault finding cameras recorded the need for more police protection, zoning law enforcement violations, and poorly lighted streets.

John Wendt, 1704 Mohawk st., whose entry concerning poor housing took the first prize of $100, has worked for the last five years as a traffic policeman at Larrabee st. and Ogden av. He also won a fifth prize of $10.

Second prize of $50 and the 6th place award of $10 were won by George L. Torpe, 2358 Lincoln av. Third prize, $25, went to Arthur C. Beck, 4546 N. Seeley av.

Alton Kaste, Skokie, won fourth prize of $15 for his picture of rubbish in an alley. Kaste is a photographer for The Tribune.

Bohrer Tells Winner

Entries were judged by Kellogg Fairbanks Jr., Mrs. Thomas J. Fleming, Maj. Robert H. Reid, and the Rev. H. G. Twietmeyer. Randolph Bohrer, North Central association civic committee chairman announced the awards.

WANT TO CRASH RADIO? GET INTO N. U.'S PLAYSHOP

BY LARRY WOLTERS

One good way to get into big league radio is to enroll in Northwestern university's school of speech. That's only the first step. After you're in, try out for the Radio Playshop, which presents student written, produced, and performed shows over WIND every Sunday night at 9:30 o'clock.

Meg Haun

Sondra Gair

The Playshop, now in its 7th season, has a great record: Scores and scores [it may be hundreds] of former Northwestern students now are carving out successful professional radio careers. Former Playshoppers that come to mind at once are Sondra Gair, playing leads on the Chicago Theater of the Air over W-G-N-Mutual, and Meg Haun and Beverly Taylor of NBC.

They Work for Bergen

Claris Ross and Peggy Chantler, Playshop alumnae, are now in Hollywood writing for Edgar Bergen. Bergen also helped Actress Arlene Becker get a start in New York radio. Ruth Brooks is writing for Billie Burke; Agnes Eckhart for Irna Phillips; Carol Lederer for Les Weinrott and Associates. David Ellis and Paul Barnes are two of the best known actors to come out of the group. Don Ward is an announcer for ABC. Jeanne Shirley is singing with Harry Cool's orchestra; Julie Pitchford is with Kay Kyser.

Dozens of Playshoppers have landed jobs at stations and with the radio departments of advertising agencies from coast to coast. As an example, WBBM gave jobs to Rosalyn Freund, Peggy Montegut, Shirley Decker, and Kay Wear. Relatively few men appear on the list, mainly because they went directly into the military services from the campus. Barbara Will, a grad of the Playshop, heads the radio department of Briarcliff college; others teaching radio at various colleges are Muriel Landers, Estelle Spero, and Jane Nyvall.

How It Got Started

The Playshop was organized in 1939 under the direction of Albert Crews, then chairman of the school of speech. He became so interested in radio that in 1943 he left Northwestern to join the production staff of NBC. Armand Hunter succeeded Crews and still supervises the project.

Donley Fedderson, assistant director of the Northwestern Reviewing Stand, aired over W-G-N-Mutual, now has active supervision over the group. But the students are responsible for writing, acting, and presenting the plays. They cast the show, build sound effects, and select and arrange the music. Preliminary production problems are handled on the Evanston campus and final rehearsals are held Sunday afternoon at WIND studios. The Playshop also has done a dramatic series over television station WBKB.

$100 Scholarship Each Year

To stimulate interest in the Playshop Ralph Atlass, president of WIND, each year awards a $100 scholarship to the outstanding student. WIND also gives the time and studio facilities.

The Playshop has arranged to present tonight "Look to This Day," an Armistice day drama depicting thoughts of returning service men, written by Janet Pope and Barbara Wicoff, who consulted with veterans now on the campus on the theme.

Stan Schwarz, former air force gunner and president of Anchor and Eagle, veterans organization, will play the lead. Other veterans in the cast: Jack Ludwig, marine corps pilot; Lowell Johnson and Bob Cantrill, both overseas veterans.

Fred Allen's Guest

Monty Wooley will be Fred Allen's guest on WMAQ-NBC at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

Crime Crackers

Lon Clark and Charlotte Manson are heard on the Nick Carter, Master Detective series on W-G-N-Mutual at 4:30 p. m. Sundays.

'VAGABOND KING' NEXT OPERETTA ON AIR THEATER

Rudolf Friml's "Vagabond King" will be presented by the Chicago Theater of the Air over W-G-N and Mutual from 9 to 10 p. m. next Saturday from Medinah Temple auditorium. Bruce Foote will sing the role of Francois Villon, poet and soldier of fortune; Marion Claire will sing the part of Lady Katherine, and Ruth Slater, Hugette.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be the speaker.

Henry Weber will conduct the orchestra and chorus in all the familiar melodies of the operetta. Dramatic roles will be taken by Laurette Fillbrandt, William Everett, John Barclay, Sondra Gair, Carl Kroenke, and Norman Gottschalk.

CITIZENS SHOW AIRS SALUTE TO ST. MARY'S HIGH

St. Mary's High school will be saluted on the Citizens of Tomorrow show over W-G-N at 9:30 a. m. Saturday. Patricia O'Grady, president of the senior class, will give the welcoming address. The director of the school's glee club, Adalbert Huguelet, also will speak.

The glee club will offer "The Bells of St. Mary's," "Ave Maria," and "Holy, Holy, Holy." Annastasia McGowan, student pianist, will play portions of Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue."

Philip Maxwell, who conducts the program, will name to the honor roll Margaret Popula of St. Mary's and Reva Coffing of Attica, Ind., High school.

BORIS KARLOFF THEATER GUILD STAR TONIGHT

A Eugene O'Neill double header, starring Boris Karloff will be presented on the Theater Guild program over WENR-ABC at 9 o'clock tonight. "The Emperor Jones" and "Where the Cross Is Made" are the two dramas. "The Emperor Jones" is based on the adventures of a Pullman porter who appoints himself ruler of a West Indies tribe. "Where the Cross Is Made" is the story of a sea captain who found buried treasure only to lose it and his life thru lack of faith.

W-G-N's Youth Looks Up Hails Anshe Emet School

Youth Looks Up, church school program aired over W-G-N at 8 a. m. Sundays, today will present seniors of the Anshe Emet Temple school, 3760 N. Pine Grove av. Albert Elazar, principal, will welcome the youth program which is conducted by Philip Maxwell. Rabbi Nathan Gaynor will be heard in scripture reading from the second chapter of Isaiah. Jerry Walker will narrate the biblical story of "Two Brothers." Alvin Goldberg, 12, as soloist on the broadcast will sing "Etz Chaymi, the Tree of Life."

Jack Benny to Welcome Joe Louis as a Guest

Jack Benny will welcome Joe Louis as a guest on WMAQ-NBC at 6 o'clock tonight. Mary Livingstone, Rochester, Larry Stevens, and Phil Harris' orchestra also will be on hand to greet the "Brown Bomber."

LIBRARY PLANS FOR BOOK WEEK ARE DIVULGED

Reviews and Shows Open Tomorrow

With the opening of national Book week tomorrow, south side libraries will hold a series of programs and displays for children built around the theme, "United Thru Books," designed to acquaint them with the new books as well as to show them the contribution made by all countries to literature.

At Woodlawn regional library, 6247 Woodlawn av., several programs have been planned. Bernadine Bailey, children's author, will speak before the School Representatives club and guests at 4:30 p. m. Wednesday. Her subject will be "Writing for Children."

At 4 p. m. Thursday, members of the Young Writers, Artists, and Musicians club will hear recordings of children's books made by the Junior League of America, and at 10 a. m. Saturday a special book week story hour will be held. The program will include listening to the radio program, "Let's Pretend," which dramatizes famous children's books, a story told by Mrs. Yolanda Yates, children's librarian, and a book guessing game. A hobbies exhibit will be on display in the children's room.

Plans Told by Blackstone

Blackstone library, 4900 Lake Park av., will observe a book month with an exhibit of books relating to foreign countries and a display of dolls in foreign dress. Books on sewing and cooking will be stressed by Mrs. Beulah Hicks, children's librarian.

Programs planned for the week include a special pre-school age story hour at 10:30 a. m. Wednesday, a book quiz Tuesday afternoon after school, and a contest to pick out the best story-teller at the Saturday morning story hour. At 3:30 p. m. Wednesday Bernadine Bailey, young people's author will talk to 7th and 8th grade girls.

Stress Foreign Countries

Book week at Avalon library, 1425 E. 81st st., will see special displays of books related to foreign countries. A dramatization relative to this subject will be staged at the Drama club Saturday morning at 10:30 a. m. Miss Virginia Nelson is children's librarian.

Scheduled at Chatham library, 824 E. 79th st., is a speaker from the FBI at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday. His subject will be "The FBI Front." A book quiz will be held thruout the week in the children's department with prizes awarded at the story hour at 10:30 a. m. Saturday. New books for adults and children will be on display. Mrs. Adeline Holtzman is children's librarian.

Will Hold Open House

At Oakland library, 700 Oakwood blvd., open house will be held all week. Groups from elementary schools in the district will visit the library accompanied by their teachers, to hear book talks. The Schools Representatives clubs instead of hearing book reviews will give them before visiting groups. Friday afternoon 3d grade students from Phillips school will hold their monthly get-to-gether and also will read their own reviews. Mrs. Beatrice H. Willis is children's librarian.

One of the major displays at South Chicago library, 9055 Houston av., is built around "One God," by Florence Mary Fitch. The original photographs used in the books are on the bulletin board, and churches of all faiths have contributed symbolic items used in their worship services. At 3 p. m. Tuesday Mrs. Clara Judson, children's author, will speak to elementary school children on "They Came From Many Lands."

Will Show New Books

At South Shore library, 2505 E. 73d st., Mrs. Mabel Keefe, children's librarian, will display new books. At 4 p. m. Wednesday Dean Ligman, student at South Shore High school, amateur magician, will perform. At 10 a. m. Thursday, Mrs. Keefe will hold a program for PTA members in the district when a review of Lau Shaw's "Rickshaw Boy," will be given by Mrs. Florence Campbell. Ligman will appear again at 10:30 a. m. Saturday on the story hour.

Mrs. Lynnette Young, children's librarian at Washington Park library, 448 E. 61st st., has planned a program for 4 p. m. Friday in which the boys and girls arts clubs will participate. Members will tell the story of popular books, illustrations of which will be shown. Story hour will be held at 10:30 a. m. Saturday.

ANNUAL COOKIE SALES OF GIRL SCOUTS TO OPEN

The familiar green uniform of the Girl Scouts will be much in evidence after school hours for the next two weeks as the girls take part in their 11th annual cookie sale.

Altho Girl Scouting in Chicago is supported by private contributions and the Community Fund, approximately one-third of the organization's expenses are met thru these cookie sales. The sale also helps finance the attendance of girls from every section of the city at Camp Juniper Knoll, Elkhorn, Wis.

Committee members in charge of arrangements of the sale include the following south siders: Mrs. Sieber Nicholson, 7839 Paxton av.; Mrs. Oscar Lee, 5140 Kimbark av.; Mrs. D. H. Jackson, 8140 Eberhart av.; Mrs. C. H. Buckles, 7801 Euclid av.; Mrs. P. W. Pearson, 10700 Avenue G, and Miss Addie Bedenfield, 58 E. 70th st.

Books Inspire Young Art Students to Put Their Reactions Into Form and Color

It's both work and fun is the consensus of youngsters in south side public schools art classes who are putting on paper scenes and characters from their favorite books. Becky Ann Sorenson, 8342 Drexel av., commented that a little number, "Five on a Merry-Go-Round," was her current favorite and immediately set to work drawing a handsome white horse with big polka dots. Some of the pictures will be displayed at Carson Pirie Scott & Co., and some at the board of education library at 228 N. La Salle st.

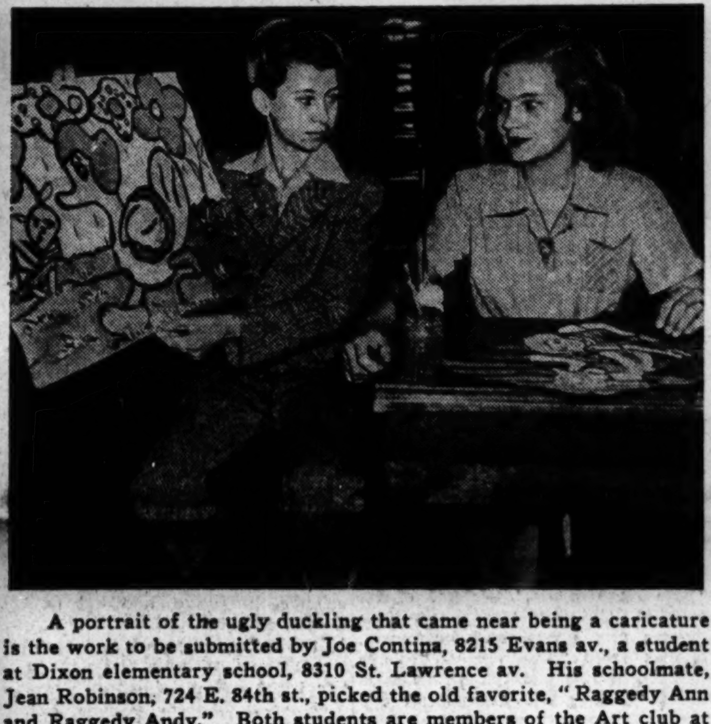
Those lovely fairy tales told children do leave an impression judging from illustrations by students at Hirsch High school, 7740 Ingleside av. Lois Kirchner, 7514 South Park av., who remembered the exquisite Chinese setting for "The Nightingale" as well as the charm and moral of the story, decided to base her mural on that. Mrs. Edythe Jane Cassady is school art instructor.



A portrait of the ugly duckling that came near being a caricature is the work to be submitted by Joe Contina, 8215 Evans av., a student at Dixon elementary school, 8310 St. Lawrence av. His schoolmate, Jean Robinson, 724 E. 84th st., picked the old favorite, "Raggedy Ann and Raggedy Andy." Both students are members of the Art club at the school which is sponsoring the program there.

Robin Hood, one of the first good bad men of story writers, in Sherwood forest surrounded by his hearty followers, was the subject of Arlene Seitzinger, 7308 Calumet av. Her mural is quite large. She has been working on it several weeks, and admits a great admiration for the famed Robin.

Many students at Du Sable High school, 4934 Wabash av., worked on a large mural depicting Howard Fast's "Freedom Road," a story of the reconstruction period in the south. Edmund Brady, 4562 Wabash av., was one of two, however, who chose as his subject, George Washington Carver. Brady's mural depicted the learned man hard at work in his laboratory, while in the background a mystical figure, a halo of light around his head, lifts a hand as if in blessing.

Another Hirsch High school student to hark back to a fairy tale for a mural is Donna Lee Sharkey, 7520 Dorchester av. She portrays "The Constant Tin Soldier," thru all his troubles with the little ballet dancer. Some students chose subjects from more modern fiction and biography, picking one's own subject being half the fun of doing it.

Hero Tribute Opens Church Series Today

Kenwood church, 4600 Greenwood av., pioneer interdenominational church in Chicago, will observe its 60th anniversary this week, beginning with memorial services at 11 a. m. today for four men from the church who were killed in service. The Rev. Alfred Lee Wilson, pastor, will preside.

A reception will be held at 6 p. m. Thursday in the church parlors following which a dinner will be served in the gymnasium. Principal speaker will be Dr. Albert Joseph McCartney, former pastor and newly appointed director of the Chicago Sunday Evening club. Three charter members of the church will participate in the celebration. They are Miss Ruth B. Steele and her sister, Mrs. William K. Fellows, both of 4530 Lake Park av., and Miss Blanche Dickinson, 1401 E. 57th st.

Pay Honor to War Dead

The four men who will be remembered at today's service include Lt. Norman F. Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Brown, 1651 E. 86th st.; Corp. Jack H. When Kenwood church was founded—Nov. 17, 1885—there were believed to be less than a dozen interdenominational churches in the United States. Today there are more than 2,500. Prior to its organization as a church in a small chapel at Woodlawn and Lake Park avs., it was a community Sunday school. The present building was purchased on the above date and following World War I., a gymnasium and other youth center facilities were added as a memorial to the six men from the church who lost their lives during the war.

Never Been in Debt

Since its early days when the management of the church established a principle that all bills must be paid from current revenue, the church has never been in debt. A Dolls House in Furor Over Hobby Exhibit

Not that it's in miniature, but the basement of Mrs. Alice Schiavon's home at 8200 St. Lawrence av. often has been called a doll house because of her collection of dolls. At times there have been 3,600 in process of repair or creation.

Her dolls literally have taken over the basement, tho at present there are but 400 of the tiny figures. Or are they so tiny? There's the girl doll that started Mrs. Schiavon on her collecting when she purchased it from an antique shop for her daughter 15 years ago. It is 33 inches high. Then there's the 40 inch doll with the short blonde hair. She wears a 6 year old's clothing.

"That one," laughed the collector, "even took a ration stamp for shoes when we dressed her for exhibition at the hobby show last year."

Will Enter Hobby Fair

Busy preparing to exhibit again this year at the Antiques Exposition and Hobby fair which opens tomorrow in the Stevens hotel, Mrs. Schiavon was bustling around dressing dolls and reminding herself to be sure and take this one and that one and "the one over there."

Her oldest doll, about 105, came from the old Dutch settlement in Pennsylvania. It has all the earmarks of a young Dutch hausfrau with its round wax face, yellow hair and big blue glass eyes. It is outfitted in its original black dress and white pinafore and has too-tiny feet carved of wood.

Then there is the baby doll with the bisque head, supposedly modeled from the head of Kaiser Wilhelm when he was a baby. This has not been verified, but most dolls of that type, the collector said, were modeled from real people and legend calls this the kaiser doll. It is about 50 or 60 years old.

Has Civil War Doll

Of course, like most collectors, Mrs. Schiavon has one very old rag doll, this one supposedly made to resemble Nancy Hanks, Abraham Lincoln's mother. She also has a Civil war doll, called a pink cluster because of the lustrious tone of its skin. It wears a taffeta gown with hoop skirt. Another old doll is a corn husk lady, complete with painted face and old fashioned bonnet.

In her foreign collection, Mrs. Schiavon has picked up somewhere, she can't remember where, several tiny birthday cake dolls, used by the Germans instead of candles. She has figures from China, and an odd little creature from Japan that comes complete with four or five wigs which carry it from babyhood to an old lady. Then there is a small Swiss figure with ball and socket joints, and a couple of dolls from Italy called the Lenci dolls. These are of felt and have rather pretty pouty little painted faces. One, a little girl with blonde hair, wears a rose colored jumper and white blouse and carries a basket of flowers.

Others to Enter Show

Mrs. Schiavon first began making some dolls of her own to take her mind off an illness. She has been making them since. When she and Joan, her daughter, talk about making clothes, friends know they don't mean for themselves, but for the family of dolls.

Other south side exhibitors at the Hobby show which will run thru next Saturday, include Mrs. Margaret Adams, 407 E. 79th st.; Mrs. Louise Boal, 7812 Rhodes av.; Dave Fisher, 4428½ Drexel av.; Mrs. L. M. Lutz, 510 E. 79th st.; Mrs. B. S. Majors, 6442 Greenwood av.; E. A. Raasch, 7132 Jeffery av.; Mrs. Agnes Signor, 7628 Cottage Grove av.; A. E. Bebee, 1180 E. 63d st.; Miss Betty Zane, 7031 Stony Island av.; Mrs. Rena Franks, 7525 Stony Island av.; Mrs. Helena Hagens, 7828 Cottage Grove av.; Mrs. Maude B. May, 121 E. 71st st.; Mrs. J. B. Miller, 5001 Blackstone av., and Mrs. Anne Ward, 3647 Vernon av.

S. SIDE SCHOOL BUILDING JOBS DONE FOR YEAR

Doolittle Will Open on Thursday

The board of education has completed its 1944-'45 school building projects on the south side, it was announced recently by James B. McCahey, president. All schools are now in use with the exception of Doolittle school, 535 E. 35th st., which is slated for occupancy Thursday.

The project included additions for Gillespie school, 93d and State sts.; Phillips Elementary and High schools, 3831 Prairie av.; Raymond, 3633 Wabash av., and Doolittle as well as a complete elementary school building erected at the Altgeld Housing project, 132d st. and Corliss av.

New School Added

A new elementary school building at 41st st. and Michigan av., with facilities for 1,400 students, was made available thru the purchase of the building formerly occupied by the La Salle Extension university. The building was reconstructed and remodeled at a cost of $200,000, and is included in those projects designed to relieve the overloads and double shifts in this area.

Plans are being completed by John C. Christensen, architect of the board, for a new addition to Dunbar Trade school, 4401 St. Lawrence av. It is anticipated that construction contracts will be awarded immediately after the first of the year. At present, enrollment at the school is 1,150 with a waiting list of 500 students. Extensive alterations will be made in the existing building, also.

An addition at the Gillespie school, constructed at a cost of $295,000, has provided 10 classrooms, an industrial arts laboratory, a home arts laboratory, a science room, library, office, and a combination assembly hall and gymnasium.

Helps Cut Overload

At Doolittle school the new building, which will relieve the overload of students there, and Oakland school, contains 24 classrooms, and two playrooms. It was constructed at a cost of $300,000.

The building at Phillips Elementary and High school has 20 classrooms, home mechanics shop, library, gymnasium, and playroom. In addition to relieving an overplus of students the expansion has made it possible to reduce high school class periods each day from 12 to 10.

Construction at Raymond school will help to relieve not only the overflow in the present two old buildings but that in the 37th and Wells sts., and Douglas schools as well. It is planned to replace the present obsolete school building as soon as possible with a new addition to the building recently completed.

STUDENTS PAINT FAVORITE BOOK FOLK FOR SHOW

Even Ugly Duckling to Be in Exhibit

Youthful imaginations have been working overtime in the art classes of south side public schools the last two weeks. Brows have been wrinkled and tongues bitten in the agony of creation as students endeavored to put on paper scenes and characters from their favorite books. Incentive for this artistic tidal wave is an exhibit opening tomorrow in the book section of Carson Pirie Scott & Co. for national Book week.

As the days and weeks passed, art rooms became a potpourri of book characters. There was Robin Hood, tall and straight as the arrow he shoots, in his famous Sherwood forest; the ugly duckling, his inferiority complex showing as near-by flowers with faces register something akin to horror at his appearance, and George Washington Carver, artist and scientist, his kind old face intent over flasks and burners in an extremely scientific laboratory.

Illustrate "Freedom Road"

At Du Sable High school, 4934 Wabash av., students have been working on murals depicting scenes from Howard Fast's "Freedom Road."

Among those students participating under the direction of Miss Ethel Nolan, art instructor, are: Edna Davis, Ollie Davis, Mary Louise Gregory, Crassious Harris, Gerald Hill, June Lee, Marion McDowell, Alice McGee, Earline Miller, Helen Montgomery, Gloria Moore, Quteta Moore, Doris Moseberry, Floy Owens, Helen Scurlock, Mildred Smith, Ernestine Spencer, Ralph Valadez, and Chauncey Wilson.

Members of the Art club at Dixon school, 8310 St. Lawrence av., decided that each would illustrate their favorite book. Two of the youngsters, Doris Madigan and Luanne Elliott, even decided to create their own stories and illustrate them. Doris came up with a picture entitled "Sweetie," while Luanne calls hers "China Doll."

Others Will Exhibit

Other Dixon youngsters exhibiting will be Becky Sorenson and her "Five on a Merry-Go-Round," after the book of the same name; Patsy Dell and "Pink Lemonade"; Louise Matthewson and "Bambi," Charles Wolfenberger and the "Jungle Book," Jean Robinson and "The Good Master," and Joe Cantino and "Mystery in the Attic."

Miss Edithe Jane Cassady, art instructor at Hirsch High school, 7740 Ingleside av., has announced her students are working on many books. Donna Lee Sharkey has been illustrating a story that made an impression on her as a child, "The Constant Tin Soldier." Lois Kirchner has chosen the fairy tale, "The Nightingale," because of its colorful Chinese atmosphere, its beauty and grace, and its moral. Scenes from "Robin Hood" were painted by Arlene Seitzinger who admitted a great admiration for the hero.

In addition to the exhibit at Carson's there also will be some of these book "reactions" on display in the board of education library, room 220, 228 N. La Salle st.

SOUTH SIDE GI HELPS RESTORE REICH SYNAGOG

A Bavarian synagog was reopened recently with the aid of a south side GI, Corp. Walter Burin, whose wife lives at 1009 Hyde Park blvd. The Nazi purge in Bad Neustadt, Germany, forced members of the congregation to abandon their synagog. They buried 17 sacred scrolls and 600 testament books in the cellar of the local Catholic church.

After American troops occupied the town, a Jewish girl, sole survivor of the congregation, requested aid in restoring the synagog. Burin volunteered, dug up the articles of worship, and found them to be in perfect condition.

Burin entered service in April, 1943, and has served 18 months overseas as interpreter of Brig. Gen. William L. Richardson in Denmark, Italy, Egypt, Arabia, Palestine, Switzerland, Holland, and Germany.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Nov. 12

At this time gardeners should cut back the tops of hardy chrysanthemums and peonies to within a few inches of the ground. It will be found that many of the chrysanthemums already have sent out numerous side growths. These are more likely to survive the winter than plants that have few, if any, growths.

It is best to protect all plants with a shallow mulch. These plants should be transplanted in spring or kept over in a frame. Peonies should be divided and transplanted in fall rather than in spring.

Tuesday, Nov. 13

Remove all old stalks from hollyhock plants and rake the ground around them, for often disease lurks in the old materials. A little extra care in autumn may rid many plants of a severe attack next year. Protect the bulbs after the ground freezes. A slight covering will suffice.

Do not neglect storing all tools and garden furniture before fall rains and snows occur. Much valuable material is ruined by neglecting this important work.

Wednesday, Nov. 14

Protect fall planted trees by wrapping the trunks with burlap. The red maple and Norway maple sometimes are injured by sun scald if unprotected. Poison ivy now can be dug.

It is excellent practice to protect azaleas and rhododendrons with a screen of some kind. Corn stalks will serve the purpose or wooden burlap covered frames. Water these plants if the soil is dry.

Thursday, Nov. 15

Lily-of-the-valley pips started three weeks ago should be coming along nicely. They should bloom in a warm room in time for Thanksgiving. Spray with warm water every day until bulbs show and they soon will bloom.

Friday, Nov. 16

Keep the azalea plant in a cool window and the soil moist. If the soil dries out the leaves fall and the plant does poorly.

Any one wishing to keep a chrysanthemum plant that was received as a gift may do so if it is cut down after flowering, placed in a cool basement or other window, and watered all winter. It likes a temperature of around 50 degrees which is usually impossible in the average home.

Saturday, Nov. 17

Flowering pot plants must not be permitted to suffer from a lack of water or their flowering period is cut short. Begonias suffer if watered to excess and the stems are likely to rot off. Some of the varieties are unexcelled for the home.

Grow a sweet potato in a bottle or start the seed of an avocado in a glass. There are any number of novelty methods of growing plants which are sure to interest the whole family.

U. OF I. BOOKLET TELLS BENEFITS OF SOLAR HOUSE

BY LOUISE BARGELT

"Solar houses" are coming in for frequent discussion these days and questions about them are being asked on all sides. The University of Illinois has issued an interesting free bulletin on "Solar Orientation in Home Design."

In this booklet many commonly asked questions are answered briefly and lucidly. For instance, the author points out that:

A "solar house" is not a glass house, but one in which glass areas are carefully placed and protected from summer sun and winter storms.

Need Large Glass Areas

Solar orientation may be applied to any kind of architectural design, but is best achieved in nontraditional types which permit the use of large glass areas or groups of windows.

Solar orientation means facing as many rooms as possible to the south in order to obtain the benefits of sunlight.

Benefits from this solar orientation include: [1] additional warmth, since the radiant heat [infra-red rays] of the sun enters the house thru the glass, supplementing the mechanical heat during the daylight hours; [2] increased daylight is provided in living quarters and southern exposure provides better summer ventilation in most parts of the United States, and [3] the enjoyment of living is increased for many people by extra winter sunlight and broader views of the outdoors.

Also a Summer Aid

There is enough winter sun to justify solar orientation since there is more sunshine during the winter months than most people realize. Solar heat is available in winter months, even tho the sun is not shining. Assuming the solar radiation on a clear day is 100 per cent, a hazy day will allow 60 to 80 per cent and a dull day 5 to 50 per cent.

All large glass areas must be more than single pane in thickness, for if they are not the gains in heat from the sunlight will be offset by excessive loss of heat thru the glass, particularly at night.

REVEAL HEROIC ACTS OF SOUTH SIDERS IN WAR

Bronze Star Winners' Deeds Are Cited

Altho his unit was under heavy enemy fire, Pvt. Norman Flanders of 7946 Dorchester av., an aidman, crawled forward 200 yards over open terrain to treat a wounded man, remaining by his patient's side without regard to his own safety.

For this act of bravery while serving with a division on Okinawa Flanders was awarded the bronze star. He previously had received the Purple Heart.

Corp. Charles E. Whinna, son of Mrs. Ida Whinna, 8253 Woodlawn av., earned his bronze star while serving as a communications man during an attack on Clark field, north of Manila. During an advance the corporal maintained continuous communications between the different units. Working many times at night, he laid wire over unfamiliar territory within sight of the enemy. On several occasions he was under direct artillery and rifle fire.

Honor Quartet for Bravery

The citation accompanying the bronze star awarded Sgt. Edward E. Herrick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Herrick of 4545 Lake Park av., told how the sergeant, seeing his platoon leader seriously wounded by enemy mortar and sniper fire, voluntarily had moved forward thru intense enemy fire to eradicate fire threatening his unit from the rear. With two other men he located the sniper and killed him.

In bronze star citations for a quartet of men, among them Corp. Alan S. Crane, son of Mrs. Bertha Crane of 1035 Hyde Park blvd., is recorded a story of bravery at sea.

An enemy aircraft crashed and burst into flames on a merchant vessel in Leyte gulf, exploding barrels of fuel and stores of ammunition. On deck many men were trapped. In the hold others lay wounded and dying where a bomb had penetrated. Using a stairway threatened by fire the four repeatedly made trips below to remove the men and administer first aid.

Major Wins Decoration

WANT TO CRASH RADIO? GET INTO N. U.'S PLAYSHOP

BY LARRY WOLTERS

One good way to get into big league radio is to enroll in Northwestern university's school of speech. That's only the first step. After you're in, try out for the Radio Playshop, which presents student written, produced, and performed shows over WIND every Sunday night at 9:30 o'clock.

Meg Haun

Sondra Gair

The Playshop, now in its 7th season, has a great record: Scores and scores [it may be hundreds] of former Northwestern students now are carving out successful professional radio careers. Former Playshoppers that come to mind at once are Sondra Gair, playing leads on the Chicago Theater of the Air over W-G-N-Mutual, and Meg Haun and Beverly Taylor of NBC.

They Work for Bergen

Claris Ross and Peggy Chantler, Playshop alumnae, are now in Hollywood writing for Edgar Bergen. Bergen also helped Actress Arlene Becker get a start in New York radio. Ruth Brooks is writing for Billie Burke; Agnes Eckhart for Irna Phillips; Carol Lederer for Les Weinrott and Associates. David Ellis and Paul Barnes are two of the best known actors to come out of the group. Don Ward is an announcer for ABC. Jeanne Shirley is singing with Harry Cool's orchestra; Julie Pitchford is with Kay Kyser.

Dozens of Playshoppers have landed jobs at stations and with the radio departments of advertising agencies from coast to coast. As an example, WBBM gave jobs to Rosalyn Freund, Peggy Montegut, Shirley Decker, and Kay Wear. Relatively few men appear on the list, mainly because they went directly into the military services from the campus. Barbara Will, a grad of the Playshop, heads the radio department of Briarcliff college; others teaching radio at various colleges are Muriel Landers, Estelle Spero, and Jane Nyvall.

How It Got Started

The Playshop was organized in 1939 under the direction of Albert Crews, then chairman of the school of speech. He became so interested in radio that in 1943 he left Northwestern to join the production staff of NBC. Armand Hunter succeeded Crews and still supervises the project.

Donley Fedderson, assistant director of the Northwestern Reviewing Stand, aired over W-G-N-Mutual, now has active supervision over the group. But the students are responsible for writing, acting, and presenting the plays. They cast the show, build sound effects, and select and arrange the music. Preliminary production problems are handled on the Evanston campus and final rehearsals are held Sunday afternoon at WIND studios. The Playshop also has done a dramatic series over television station WBKB.

$100 Scholarship Each Year

To stimulate interest in the Playshop Ralph Atlass, president of WIND, each year awards a $100 scholarship to the outstanding student. WIND also gives the time and studio facilities.

The Playshop has arranged to present tonight "Look to This Day," an Armistice day drama depicting thoughts of returning service men, written by Janet Pope and Barbara Wicoff, who consulted with veterans now on the campus on the theme.

Stan Schwarz, former air force gunner and president of Anchor and Eagle, veterans organization, will play the lead. Other veterans in the cast: Jack Ludwig, marine corps pilot; Lowell Johnson and Bob Cantrill, both overseas veterans.

Armistice Day Program Slated for Family Hour

Songs of World War I. and II. will comprise an Armistice day program for the Family hour over WBBM-CBS at 4 p. m. today. Patrice Munsel will join in an opening medley consisting of "Over There," "Long, Long Trail," and the army air corps song. The orchestra will offer a medley of World War II. selections: "Anchors Aweigh," "Infantry March," and the "Bombardier Song."

Student Artists Capture Romance of Books in Vividly Colored Paintings

Papier mache and cardboard circus figures, illustrating "The Big Top," were made by students of Calhoun elementary school, 2850 Jackson blvd., in preparation for Book week. Putting the finishing touches on a clown's hat is Donna Mae Anderson, 2800 Jackson blvd. James Sale, 2956 Adams st., places a miniature horse on a merry-go-round. Art work of pupils will be included in a city-wide exhibit to be displayed this week in the book section of Carson Pirie Scott & Co., and in the board of education library.

Illustrating "The Golden Almanac," Beverly Jones, 1664 N. California av., adds touches of summer green to her painting, "July in the Park." She is one of 32 students at Spalding school, 126 N. Ashland av., who have entered paintings for the Book week exhibit.

Patricia Buelow (left), 2701 Jackson blvd., a student at Calhoun school, captures the excitement and romance of the circus in her mural illustrating "The Big Top." Pupils at Calhoun worked under direction of Miss Helen M. Ryan and Miss Margaret Ferdinandsen. "Stand Fast and Reply," the story of a New York girl who moved to a farm when her father entered military service, is illustrated by Rena Martino (kneeling), 1534 N. Avers av. Examining her work are Frances Maychara (light skirt), 4229 Carroll av., and Carol Turnbull, 181 N. La Crosse av. The girls are students at Austin High school.

CHURCH IN OAK PARK TO MARK DEBT FREEDOM

Will Burn Euclid Av. Papers Tuesday

At an annual turkey dinner Tuesday night Euclid Avenue Methodist church will hold a mortgage burning in the community hall of the church, Washington blvd. and Euclid av., Oak Park. More than four decades of work on the part of members lie back of this achievement. The property is valued at $150,000.

The first meeting place of the congregation was the abandoned East av. station of the Suburban Railway company.

Use Frame Structure

The next place of worship was a frame edifice erected at the southwest corner of Euclid av. and Washington blvd., site of the present church. A one story stone chapel replaced the frame structure in November, 1899.

A building fund campaign begun in May, 1919, led to a cornerstone laying service for the present building on Sept. 3, 1921.

Dedicatory Sunday, Sept. 24, 1922, saw the new church filled to capacity three times. On that day $34,000 was pledged to the new building. The Rev. E. G. Schutz, recently retired and now living in California, was pastor.

The Rev. Mr. Schutz was succeeded by the Rev. H. Clifford Northcott who left in 1928 to accept a charge in Champaign, Ill.

Pastor Goes to Temple

The third pastor was the Rev. Charles R. Goff, present pastor of Chicago Temple. In 1933 the Rev. Morgan Williams became leader of the congregation. His successor was the Rev. Clarence H. Diercks, now a district superintendent.

The present pastor, Dr. Ralph M. Pierce, will have the help of four of his predecessors, the Rev. Mr. Northcott, the Rev. Mr. Goff, the Rev. Mr. Williams, and the Rev. Mr. Diercks, at the dinner.

Members of the arrangements committee are Charles R. McDonald, chairman, J. S. Macferran, Andrew S. Hurter, Floyd C. Parman, and Walter A. Gallond.

Ward Republicans to Hold Party, Jitterbug Contest

CITIZENS SHOW TO SPOTLIGHT ST. MARY'S HIGH

Tell of Other Events for This Week

Three events will commemorate Education week at St. Mary's High school this week. This afternoon a Fathers' day program and open house will be held. Wednesday afternoon, engineers from W-G-N will record the Citizens of Tomorrow program in the school auditorium, 1031 S. Hoyne av., with the broadcast to be heard from 9:30 to 10 a. m. Saturday.

Next Sunday, 42 graduating classes will be represented at the annual homecoming.

Founded by the Sisters of Charity of the Blessed Virgin Mary in 1899, St. Mary's claims to be the oldest Catholic central high school in Chicago.

Recalls Early Days

Sister Mary Gerontius, member of the teaching staff for 35 years, recalls the early days of the school when there were eight faculty members and a graduation class of 18. Now there are 40 nuns and 5 lay teachers instructing a capacity group of 850 girls.

Sister Gerontius recalled the year commercial training was introduced. The teaching profession had been most popular with the girls but in the following years secretarial positions became the goal of most of the girls. Pedagogy dropped to second choice. Today the number of girls in these types of work is indeterminable but certainly more than a thousand.

The faculty is especially proud of the 350 girls who have entered the religious life and the 90 who have entered the military service.

Will Tell Role of Music

St. Mary's will be the first parochial school to appear on the current Citizens' programs. Welcoming Philip Maxwell of THE TRIBUNE for Sister Mary John Henry, principal, will be Patricia O'Grady, 3638 N. Keeler av., president of the senior class.

Maxwell will introduce Maj. Adalbert Huguelet, conductor of the Glee club and staff member at Mundelein college and Northwestern university. Now on terminal leave, the major supervised musical activities of troops in the Southwest Pacific for the last two years. His speech will pay tribute to the part music has played in entertaining service men.

Will Honor Two Students

The names of Margaret Popula, 4404 31st st., a St. Mary's senior, and Reva Coffing of Attica [Ind.] High school will be added to the program's honor role by Maxwell. Margaret, an honor student, is coeditor of the newspaper and a member of the Marian players, Hostess club, G. A. A., social action committee, and volleyball and basketball teams. Reva is president of the G. A. A. and the Methodist Youth Fellowship and belongs to the 4-H club, Girls advisory board, and the newspaper staff.

Anastasia McGowan of 908 N. Monticello av., a pianist, has been selected as the school's outstanding entertainer. She will play George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue."

Major to Lead Chorus

The chorus, under the direction of Maj. Huguelet, will sing "Ave Maria," "Holy! Holy! Holy!," "The Orchestra," and "The Bells of St. Mary's." Ingrid Shaughnessy, 948 N. Monticello av., Red Cross chairman, will read the air edition of interscholastic news of high school activities.

Six girls who will take part in the history-music quiz are: Barbara Fenlon, Joan Stritesky, Joan Hannigan, Marilyn Slania, Dorothy Brouek, and Barbara Martin.

Church Forum to Hear Talk About Philippines

Dr. Diosdado M. Yap will speak at the forum of First Congregational church, Lake st. and Kenilworth av., at 7:30 p. m. today. He will discuss the Philippines, how they came thru the war and how they are facing the future. LITTLE THEATER GROUP PLANS TO GIVE WAR DRAMA

The tense drama, "Wings Over Europe," will be presented four nights starting Nov. 22 by the Little Theater of Western Springs in the Western Springs Village club. It will be the group's first play of the current season. Mary Cattell will direct.

Members of the all-male cast are Ralston Hannas, Ed Petrtyl, William Fitzpatrick, J. H. Knowlton, Fred Burns, Norman Owens, Ed Cole, John Kavan, and Robert Richardson, all of Western Springs; Harry Baum and George Swenson, Hinsdale; Floyd Johnston, Naperville; Fred Merritt, Brookfield, and Horton Dufty, La Grange.

Maurice Browne, co-author of the play with Robert Nichols, is the father of the Little Theater movement in Chicago and produced many plays in the Fine Arts building. It was he who brought the drama, "Journey's End," to this country from England.

While "Wings Over Europe" was written 18 months ago its message for today's audience is said to be timely. The scene is laid at No. 10 Downing st.

The Western Springs group, now in its 17th year, is back on a peace time schedule with plans for producing three plays a season. A comedy will be produced in January and there will be a final play in the spring. Mildred Purington of Western Springs is in charge of ticket reservations.

STUDENTS MARK BOOK WEEK WITH LOOP ART SHOWS

Pirates burying stolen gold by moonlight; rain lashing native shelters during the monsoon season in Bombay; sunlight stippling tropical foliage in patterns of light and shadow. These are only a few of the scenes from classic and modern literature that have been pictured by students of west side elementary and high schools in preparation for Book week, which will be observed today thru Saturday.

Some students have dipped their brushes in bright colors to recreate scenes from such perennial favorites as "Treasure Island" and "Green Mansions." Others have gone to more recent books for inspiration, picturing incidents from such modern works as "The Rains Came," "Anna and the King of Siam," or "Lost Island."

Many Paint Murals

Many of the illustrations have taken the form of murals, others have been mounted or framed. Grouped with pictures painted by students in other sections of the city, they will be exhibited daily thru Saturday in the book section of Carson Pirie Scott & Co. An additional display may be viewed in the board of education library, 228 N. La Salle st.

At Marshall High school, 3250 Adams st., students working under the direction of George W. Weisenburg illustrated such books as "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," "A Tale of Two Cities," "Prairie Years," "Lassie Come Home," and "Civil Aeronautics Maintenance."

Laud Work of Boys

The boys are producing excellent results, said Mrs. Charles D. Jackson, 1021 Pine av., captain of the drive in North Austin. "In addition to their school work, athletic activities, and part time jobs after school hours, they still find time to do an adult job and do it well," she stated. "They are making a record of which any adult might be proud."

Reasons for volunteering for the task have been voiced by some members of the troop. "This is just a preparation for the job we will have when we grow up. We intend to be helping then and we might as well start now," declared Donald Drew, scribe for the troop.

"It's part of the Boy Scout creed to be of service to the community and that's what we are doing," Terry Monsen, troop quartermaster, explained.

An older but equally enthusiastic team of workers in North Lawndale already has reached its quota.

MARSHALL HIGH TO HOLD TALKS WITH PARENTS

Youth Guidance Series Will Open Tuesday

To acquaint parents with the courses of studies and types of career training available to their children, Marshall High school, 3250 Adams st., is sponsoring an Educational week consultation service for parents and students Tuesday thru Friday. The program has been arranged by David Cole, principal.

The consultation service is designed to enable parents to check their children's progress in class work and to permit them to confer with teachers about pupils' future education and vocational needs. The conferences will take place in Marshall's library.

Aid in Consultation

On hand for consultation will be Mrs. Marie Woolsey, assistant principal; Mrs. Esther Cohn, personnel director; Miss Gertrude Quinn, placement counselor, and Dr. Milton Saffir, psychologist. Class sponsors who will interview parents are Earl Kennedy, Miss Blanche Kelly, Miss Irene Creaney, Mrs. Gatesie Fisher, Harvey Gunn, Harry Wagner, Mrs. Sarah Jacobs, and Mrs. Bernice MacCullum.

Members of the faculty serving on the education committee that has assisted in arrangements for the consultation service, are Reginald Barnett, Michael Brady, Mrs. Frances Ferrell, Harvey Gunn, Mrs. Bernice Lee, Clifford Lillya, George Weisenburg, and Joseph Zbornik.

Also serving on the committee are the following PTA members: Mrs. Max Brown, 218 S. St. Louis av., president; Mrs. George Apel, 3935 Roosevelt rd., vice president; Mrs. William Schreiber, 3125 Monroe st., and Mrs. Joseph Hutchinson, 2624 Van Buren st., secretaries, and Mrs. Bernard Glick, 3841 Congress st., treasurer.

Will Separate Classes

Because Marshall High school has an enrollment of more than 4,000 students, the program has been arranged for each yearly group. Parents of freshmen are to come on Tuesday; those of sophomores on Wednesday; parents of juniors on Thursday, and those of seniors, on Friday.

During the week there will be daily assemblies from 9:45 to 10:30 a. m. The Marshall Civic association and the high school chapter of the National Honor society are sponsoring the gatherings.

"Education to Promote the General Welfare" has been selected as the general theme of the assemblies. The same program will be presented daily, but to different audiences, beginning with freshmen on Tuesday and concluding with the senior group Friday.

Students Will Talk

Pearl Bernstein, a 4-A student, will begin each assembly program with a talk on "Three Centuries of American Education." The girls' gymnasium department, under direction of Miss Josephine Herlihy, will present folk dances. "What Armistice Means to Me in November, 1945," will be the subject of a talk by Vera Braz, 4-B student.

The boys' Glee club, led by Miss Mary Ballard, will perform. Marshall Loeb, 4-B student, will discuss "Economically We Are One World." Each assembly will conclude with a chalk demonstration by members of the art department of which George Weisenburg is director.

PROVISO PUPILS ATTENDING OUT OF TOWN GAMES

With the lifting of restrictions on chartered bus travel, several hundred Proviso High school students have been following their football team on its trip out of town. Students furnish a consent slip signed by their parents and pay a single fee covering both transportation and game admission.

C. C. Taggart, assistant superintendent, and L. W. Remley, athletic director, have taken the lead in making arrangments for the buses. A faculty chaperon is provided each bus.

The trips have proved popular with the students and are seen as a safe means for them to get to and from the games.

U. OF I. BOOKLET TELLS BENEFITS OF SOLAR HOUSE

Use of Glass Areas Fully Explained

BY LOUISE BARGELT

"Solar houses" are coming in for frequent discussion these days and questions about them are being asked on all sides. The University of Illinois has issued an interesting free bulletin on "Solar Orientation in Home Design."

In this booklet many commonly asked questions are answered briefly and lucidly. For instance, the author points out that:

A "solar house" is not a glass house, but one in which glass areas are carefully placed and protected from summer sun and winter storms.

Need Large Glass Areas

Solar orientation may be applied to any kind of architectural design, but is best achieved in nontraditional types which permit the use of large glass areas or groups of windows.

Solar orientation means facing as many rooms as possible to the south in order to obtain the benefits of sunlight.

Benefits from this solar orientation include: [1] additional warmth, since the radiant heat [infra-red rays] of the sun enters the house thru the glass, supplementing the mechanical heat during the daylight hours; [2] increased daylight is provided in living quarters and southern exposure provides better summer ventilation in most parts of the United States, and [3] the enjoyment of living is increased for many people by extra winter sunlight and broader views of the outdoors.

Also a Summer Aid

There is enough winter sun to justify solar orientation since there is more sunshine during the winter months than most people realize. Solar heat is available in winter months, even tho the sun is not shining. Assuming the solar radiation on a clear day is 100 per cent, a hazy day will allow 60 to 80 per cent and a dull day 5 to 50 per cent.

All large glass areas must be more than single pane in thickness, for if they are not the gains in heat from the sunlight will be offset by excessive loss of heat thru the glass, particularly at night.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Nov. 12

At this time gardeners should cut back the tops of hardy chrysanthemums and peonies to within a few inches of the ground. It will be found that many of the chrysanthemums already have sent out numerous side growths. These are more likely to survive the winter than plants that have few, if any, growths.

It is best to protect all plants with a shallow mulch. These plants should be transplanted in spring or kept over in a frame. Peonies should be divided and transplanted in fall rather than in spring.

All perennials are benefited with some protection and the material used may consist of peat moss, leaves, and strawy manure if free from weed seeds, which often are difficult to discover. Sawdust is being used for some plants, such as azaleas.

Tuesday, Nov. 13

Remove all old stalks from hollyhock plants and rake the ground around them, for often disease lurks in the old materials. A little extra care in autumn may rid many plants of a severe attack next year. Protect the bulbs after the ground freezes. A slight covering will suffice.

Do not neglect storing all tools and garden furniture before fall rains and snows occur. Much valuable material is ruined by neglecting this important work.

Cover the tops of the coldframes and hotbeds with boards to protect them until ready for use in spring. If permitted to remain uncovered, the sash may be ruined from exposure. Frames in which plants are stored should be ventilated on bright days.

Wednesday, Nov. 14

Protect fall planted trees by wrapping the trunks with burlap. The red maple and Norway maple sometimes are injured by sun scald if unprotected. Poison ivy now can be dug.

It is excellent practice to protect azaleas and rhododendrons with a screen of some kind. Corn stalks will serve the purpose or wooden burlap covered frames. Water these plants if the soil is dry.

If the ground is not frozen, spade the garden, first spreading a layer of manure or other organic matter over it.

Thursday, Nov. 15

Lily-of-the-valley pips started three weeks ago should be coming along nicely. They should bloom in a warm room in time for Thanksgiving. Spray with warm water every day until bulbs show and they soon will bloom.

The largest of home grown lily-of-the-valley will bloom fairly well when placed in pots of sphagnum moss, watered, placed in a dark room until growth begins and then in the window to obtain green foliage. Foliage will be whitish, with little green matter, unless light is available.

House plants occupy the attention at this time, and to see a window filled with them is so pleasant and exciting that every one should have a few.

Friday, Nov. 16

Keep the azalea plant in a cool window and the soil moist. If the soil dries out the leaves fall and the plant does poorly.

Any one wishing to keep a chrysanthemum plant that was received as a gift may do so if it is cut down after flowering, placed in a cool basement or other window, and watered all winter. It likes a temperature of around 50 degrees which is usually impossible in the average home.

In spring, the shoots that appear around the pot may be separated, potted, and the young plants kept growing all summer. A good way is to plant it in a sunny spot in the garden, but it must be pinched at least twice, fertilized, and kept growing. In fall, before frost, it should be potted.

Saturday, Nov. 17

Flowering pot plants must not be permitted to suffer from a lack of water or their flowering period is cut short. Begonias suffer if watered to excess and the stems are likely to rot off. Some of the varieties are unexcelled for the home.

A gardener recently reported having a terrarium for two years without any difficulty in its care. Watering was necessary only at long intervals for the moisture within the glass container never was allowed to become excessive, a condition that is certain to kill some plants.

Try to make a small terrarium by using any type of glass container that is at hand. Small plants can be used and the soil need only be half peat or loam and sand. Use the soil when it is moist, not dry or very wet.

Grow a sweet potato in a bottle or start the seed of an avocado in a glass. There are any number of novelty methods of growing plants which are sure to interest the whole family.

YOUTH CENTER OF ELMHURST TO HOLD DANCE

The Elmhurst Youth center will bring the Ted Weems orchestra of 16 pieces to Elmhurst the night of Nov. 23 to provide a gala night with dancing from 9 p. m. to 1 a. m., and a half-hour floor show starting at 10:30 o'clock.

Special student tickets will be sold to teen-agers of York High school. Adults will be asked for contributions and will be made patrons and patronesses of the party. More than 100 youths have served on a door-to-door solicitation committee in the youth center drive.

Back Big Dance Plan

The Rev. Chandler Sterling, chairman of the youth center committee, has suggested that a big name may be obtained each fall for an entertainment similar to the one just arranged. Richard Farrington, president of the Elmhurst Chamber of Commerce, said his organization favored the community social event.

Betty Roe and Phyllis Crawford are co-chairmen of a special decorations committee of 50 members to transform the gymnasium of York High school for the dance.

Special Lighting in Store

The decorations committee has arranged for a glittering silver cloth drape for a background to the band platform, which will be given a blue lighting. Arranged about the gymnasium will be a series of silhouettes of musical themes. Richard Shull will be in charge of the lighting effects.

Members of the publicity committee are Dorothy Lami, Mark Stephenson, Dick Seibert, Marcella Chant, David Brunton, and Marilyn Mueller.

George Kierspe is chairman of the committee of 25 captains with five workers each who will conduct the campaign.

60 to Sell Tickets

Robert Kiehn is chairman of ticket sales to students. His committee of 60 will have one representative from each home room in the high school.

John Herder is chairman of the committee for printing tickets and programs.

The new Elmhurst Youth center will be located in three basement rooms of the old Field school building, 3d av. and York st., Elmhurst. Contracts have been let for the coke bar and booth furnishings and for the center's decoration.

LEGION TO MARK ARMISTICE DAY IN LA GRANGE

Galen M. Hallett is commander and Edward J. Ptaček is adjutant.

NAZIS ARE TIRED BUT STILL ABLE TO PUT UP HANDS

Fourteen sleepy but armed Nazis surrendered to Sgt. Frank Bergant, 741 Tilden st., and a comrade during the final 5th army drive in Italy, military officials have disclosed.

The two Yanks had spent most of one night sleeping in a foxhole west of Bologna. Toward morning they decided a near-by house would be safe from gun fire.

Cautiously they pushed the front door open and beheld a roomful of sleeping Nazis, armed with light weapons. The two Americans yelled for the Nazis to surrender. The Jerries hastily put their hands in the air.

FOUR OAK PARK BUDDIES STAGE MANILA REUNION

Three Were Students at Fenwick High

Four service men, alumni of two Oak Park High schools, held an informal reunion recently when their paths crossed in Manila.

They are Sgt. Richard Carraher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Carraher, 844 S. Scoville av., Oak Park; Lt. Richard Finn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Finn, 5955 Washington blvd.; Corp. Jack Reil, son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Reil, Elmwood Park, and Corp. Tom Gavin, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Gavin, 620 S. East av., Oak Park.

Sgt. Carraher, Corp. Reil, and Lt. Finn attended Fenwick High school while Corp. Gavin was a student at Oak Park-River Forest Township. All had been close pals since early school days.

Sergeant Seen in Show

Plans were begun at the 22d replacement depot of the far east air forces, when Corp. Reil, a company clerk, learned that Sgt. Carraher also was stationed at the center.

Then Sgt. Carraher joined the cast of a local GI show, "Fall Out for Fun." This led to the meeting of the third buddy, Corp. Gavin, who went to see the show when it was presented for the 63d navy construction battalion.

A short time later the fourth of the buddies arrived at the 22d replacement depot. As he was processing papers, Corp. Reil discovered that Lt. Finn, a B-24 bombardier, was passing thru the depot on his way home.

Tell Records of Boys

Sgt. Carraher, who is in special services at headquarters of the far east air service command in Manila, has been in service 34 months, five of them overseas.

Corp. Reil also has been in the Pacific theater five months. He entered the army two years ago.

While at Fenwick Lt. Finn was captain of the basketball team. He enlisted as an aviation cadet shortly after his graduation in 1943. Ten of his 29 months in service have been spent overseas.

Corp. Gavin is with the 93d airdrome squadron of the far east air forces. He has been in service 31 months and overseas 21.

BLOOD DONORS CLUB ANSWERS VAUGHAN CALLS

To furnish blood as it is required for emergencies at Vaughan General hospital the Fifty club of the Electro-Motive corporation, La Grange, has been organized under the leadership of A. F. Croaning, Hinsdale.

More than 35 members already have responded to calls for blood from the hospital. As many as five or six have been called in a single night for urgent cases.

The club hopes to become the inspiration for similar groups thruout adjacent communities. Capt. R. Z. Schulz, chief of Vaughan hospital's laboratory, is enthusiastic in indorsing the plan.

Explains Rare Type

"In order," he said, "to maintain an ample supply of blood for patients who require rarer types, especially those with the RH negative type, it is necessary to have a large list of donors on call. Only about 15 per cent of all people have the RH negative type."

Among members of the Fifty club are:

WANT TO CRASH RADIO? GET INTO N. U.'S PLAYSHOP

Alumni Making Records in Broadcasting

BY LARRY WOLTERS

One good way to get into big league radio is to enroll in Northwestern university's school of speech. That's only the first step. After you're in, try out for the Radio Playshop, which presents student written, produced, and performed shows over WIND every Sunday night at 9:30 o'clock.

Meg Haun

Sondra Gair

The Playshop, now in its 7th season, has a great record: Scores and scores [it may be hundreds] of former Northwestern students now are carving out successful professional radio careers. Former Playshoppers that come to mind at once are Sondra Gair, playing leads on the Chicago Theater of the Air over W-G-N-Mutual, and Meg Haun and Beverly Taylor of NBC.

They Work for Bergen

Claris Ross and Peggy Chantler, Playshop alumnae, are now in Hollywood writing for Edgar Bergen. Bergen also helped Actress Arlene Becker get a start in New York radio. Ruth Brooks is writing for Billie Burke; Agnes Eckhart for Irna Phillips; Carol Lederer for Les Weinrott and Associates. David Ellis and Paul Barnes are two of the best known actors to come out of the group. Don Ward is an announcer for ABC. Jeanne Shirley is singing with Harry Cool's orchestra; Julie Pitchford is with Kay Kyser.

Dozens of Playshoppers have landed jobs at stations and with the radio departments of advertising agencies from coast to coast. As an example, WBBM gave jobs to Rosalyn Freund, Peggy Montegut, Shirley Decker, and Kay Wear. Relatively few men appear on the list, mainly because they went directly into the military services from the campus. Barbara Will, a grad of the Playshop, heads the radio department of Briarcliff college; others teaching radio at various colleges are Muriel Landers, Estelle Spero, and Jane Nyvall.

How It Got Started

The Playshop was organized in 1939 under the direction of Albert Crews, then chairman of the school of speech. He became so interested in radio that in 1943 he left Northwestern to join the production staff of NBC. Armand Hunter succeeded Crews and still supervises the project.

Donley Fedderson, assistant director of the Northwestern Reviewing Stand, aired over W-G-N-Mutual, now has active supervision over the group. But the students are responsible for writing, acting, and presenting the plays. They cast the show, build sound effects, and select and arrange the music. Preliminary production problems are handled on the Evanston campus and final rehearsals are held Sunday afternoon at WIND studios. The Playshop also has done a dramatic series over television station WBKB.

$100 Scholarship Each Year

To stimulate interest in the Playshop Ralph Atlass, president of WIND, each year awards a $100 scholarship to the outstanding student. WIND also gives the time and studio facilities.

The Playshop has arranged to present tonight "Look to This Day," an Armistice day drama depicting thoughts of returning service men, written by Janet Pope and Barbara Wicoff, who consulted with veterans now on the campus on the theme.

Stan Schwarz, former air force gunner and president of Anchor and Eagle, veterans organization, will play the lead. Other veterans in the cast: Jack Ludwig, marine corps pilot; Lowell Johnson and Bob Cantrill, both overseas veterans.

Kauffman to Be Soloist on Philharmonic Hour

Phillip Kauffman, first violinist with the Chicago Philharmonic orchestra, will be soloist when it broadcasts over W-G-N at 8:30 p. m. Tuesday. The orchestra will present the Overture to Wagner's "Rienzi" and Lalo's "Symphonie Espagnole for Violin and Orchestra." English's "An Island Festival" also will be heard.

Crime Crackers

Lon Clark and Charlotte Manson are heard on the Nick Carter, Master Detective series on W-G-N-Mutual at 4:30 p. m. Sundays.

'VAGABOND KING' NEXT OPERETTA ON AIR THEATER

Rudolf Friml's "Vagabond King" will be presented by the Chicago Theater of the Air over W-G-N and Mutual from 9 to 10 p. m. next Saturday from Medinah Temple auditorium. Bruce Foote will sing the role of Francois Villon, poet and soldier of fortune; Marion Claire will sing the part of Lady Katherine, and Ruth Slater, Hugette.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be the speaker.

Henry Weber will conduct the orchestra and chorus in all the familiar melodies of the operetta. Dramatic roles will be taken by Laurette Fillbrandt, William Everett, John Barclay, Sondra Gair, Carl Kroenke, and Norman Gottschalk.

ATOMIC BOMB IS SUBJECT OF 2 BROADCASTS

"The Control of Atomic Energy" will be the topic of the Northwestern Reviewing Stand over W-G-N-Mutual at 10:30 a. m. today. Dean Ovid Eshbach, Marshall Dimock, and Malcolm Dole, faculty members of Northwestern university, will participate.

Another of today's discussion programs, the University of Chicago Round Table, on WMAQ-NBC at 12:30 p. m., will be devoted to the atom bomb when Chancellor Robert M. Hutchins leads a consideration of "Peace and the Atom Bomb." Reuben G. Gustavson and Robert Redfield will take part.

W-G-N's Youth Looks Up Hails Anshe Emet School

Youth Looks Up, church school program aired over W-G-N at 8 a. m. Sundays, today will present seniors of the Anshe Emet Temple school, 3760 N. Pine Grove av. Albert Elazar, principal, will welcome the youth program which is conducted by Philip Maxwell. Rabbi Nathan Gaynor will be heard in scripture reading from the second chapter of Isaiah. Jerry Walker will narrate the biblical story of "Two Brothers." Alvin Goldberg, 12, as soloist on the broadcast will sing "Etz Chaymi, the Tree of Life."

Gov. Kerr Will Be Guest on M'Carthy-Bergen Show

When the Charlie McCarthy-Edgar Bergen show [WMAQ-NBC] originates in Oklahoma City at 7 o'clock tonight, the governor of Oklahoma, Robert S. Kerr, will be a guest. With Charlie and Bergen will be Anita Gordon, Ray Noble and his orchestra, and Mortimer Snerd.

CHILDREN TAKE OVER LIBRARIES FOR BOOK WEEK

Reviews, Auctions on Program

The old favorites and the current best sellers among children's books will be favorite topics with the younger set this week as it takes part in library programs celebrating national Book week.

On the northwest side workers in the branch public libraries have planned programs including book reviews, auctions of new books, the familiar story hour, and discussion periods on the effective use of library facilities. Children selected as delegates from each school will be guests at some neighboring programs, while children who took part in summer reading games will be entertained at others.

Will Give Prizes

At the Albany Park library, 3536 Lawrence av., students who participated in summer reading games will be guests Thursday afternoon while prizes are awarded for their work. Miss Charlotte Olson and Miss Lillian Goldstein, librarians in the children's department, will talk on the meaning of Book week and will display the new editions.

Humboldt Park library, 1541 N. California av., will entertain fifth and sixth grade students of neighborhood schools on Thursday and Friday programs. New book lists will be given out, and a story hour presented by Mrs. Lillian New, librarian.

Kosciuszko library, 2732 N. Avers av., will resume the fall program of presenting a story hour after school hours on Wednesday. Librarian is Mrs. Audrey Faulhaber.

Hold Book Auction

Logan Square library, 3248 Fullerton av., will display new books and present awards to participants in reading games during a Saturday morning program. New books will be distributed thru a form of auction, Miss Marie Will, librarian, said.

Northwestern library, 1615 Pulaski rd., will entertain representatives from fifth and sixth grades on Thursday and Friday afternoon programs. Miss Rose Levensen, librarian, will present a puppet show and a special story hour.

Portage Park library, 5253 Irving Park rd., will entertain students from the sixth, seventh, and eighth grades Wednesday afternoon. Display of books and a story hour in which the meaning of Book week will be told are planned in the program by the librarian, Mrs. A. J. Petri.

CREATE POSTERS

When an author leaves in the reader's mind scenes described in his book, he has accomplished one purpose. But when the reader can transform those mind pictures onto canvas, the author has produced a book which probably will move into the class of the never to be forgotten.

That is the reasoning of instructors in the grade and high schools of the northwest side as reader-artists add the last brush marks to paintings illustrating books they have read. Their handiwork will be exhibited in the book department of Carson Pirie Scott & Co. this week as a part of national Book week observances.

Artists Studied Costumes

The painting projects began with each artist reading a book, then making further research on the locality of the story and the costumes that the characters wore. Then a scene was selected from the book and tentative sketches were made of the pictures visualized. Sketches were corrected and revised with the aid of art teachers and the pictures became clearer in the minds of the artists.

In the high schools the paintings were planned as murals. Heavy sheets of brown paper were cut into 4 by 12 feet lengths and placed on the wall or floor. After the picture was sketched the tempera paints were mixed and painting was begun. Several students usually worked together.

In the grade schools students worked on one picture each.

Roosevelt High Participants

Illustrations selected by students of Roosevelt High school, 3436 Wilson av., ranged from illustrations of Bible stories to current best sellers, such as "Seventeenth Summer," by Maureen Daly.

Popular selections and students who chose them include "Thunderhead," Renee Alscher, Anita Kushner, and Mildred Robinson, and "Scenes from the Bible," Naomi Nerterud, Shirley Rapley, Irving Kuhfal, and Jacquelyn Anderson.

Other students participating include Patricia Ernst, Sandra Soldinger, Jerry Pollock, Eleanor Detty, Rita Galnick, Audrey Hildebrand, Robert Hodges, Ruth Lintz, Flora Marshall, Rita Rubin, Emily Romero, Ruth Ross, Evelyn Schmaltz, Joan Wachtel.

Steinmets Students Take Part

Bill Shain, Douglas Smith, Charles Steers, Elaine Troester, Benjamin Werremeyer, Jeanne Vothel, Ruth Weiss, Phyllis Goldberg, Jack Hakman, Irene Horvath, Dolores Hull, Inez Hull, Lolita Knitter, Ethel Knudsen, Donald Zagon, Donna Hendleman, Jeanne Steffen, and Marion Benson.

Illustrations by students of Steinmetz High school, 3030 N. Mobile av., included "Lost Island," Phyllis Conforti; "Cluny Brown," Joann Bernreuter; "Anna and the King of Siam," Ruth Reinel, and a scene from a play by Oscar Hammerstein, Louise Thompson.

Students Instill Fire and Romance of Good Books Into Their Paintings

A runaway horse, vividly described in "My Friend, Flicka," became the subject for a painting by Grace Tessman, 1700 N. Albany av., for one of the entries of Roosevelt High school in the national Book week exhibit. The murals are painted in tempera on heavy brown paper measuring 4 by 12 feet.

Ethel Knudsen, 3859 N. Francisco av., finds her work on "Robinson Crusoe, U. S. N." subject to much kibitzing from her classmates at Roosevelt High school. Douglas Smith, 4417 N. Sawyer av., and Flora Marshall, 3300 Pensacola av., take to the floor for inspection of the book's jungle scene.

An illustration from "Here Is Your War" gets a final touch from Clifford Eugene, 2220 W. North av., and the illustration from "Pram of Albania" is treated similarly by Esther Blaum, 2348 Bloomingdale av. Both are students of the Langland school, 2330 Cortland st.

To illustrate the book, "Snow Treasure," Patricia Leach, 405 N. Drake av., brings a preview of winter sports as her part in the exhibit from the Ryerson school, 646 N. Lawndale av.

A paint brush in each hand, and an extra one in her mouth keep Rita Galnick, 4653 Monticello av., well prepared for touching up her mural before it goes on exhibit. For her part in Roosevelt High school's exhibit she chose an illustration from "Black Rose."

The four reader-artists of Steinmetz High school, 3030 N. Mobile av., can be excused for admiring their handiwork for the 12 by 4 foot mural illustrating "Lost Island" is their best work. The girls (from left) are Phyllis Conforti, 3912 Paris av.; Ruth Reinal, 6120 Patterson av.; Louise Thompson, 1725 Melvina av., and Joanne Bernreuter, 5843 Newport av.

FUND CAMPAIGN IN PARK RIDGE ONE DAY BLITZ

Community Workers $167 Over Top

Workers in Park Ridge failed to stage a long and evenly paced campaign for the Community and War fund this year.

Instead, in a "blitzkrieg" attack the community oversubscribed their quota by $167—and all in one day's work following the opening of the campaign.

The chairman, Carl O. Michaelson, and his workers collected, $17,667 to top their quota of $17,500. Contributions ranged from 16 cents to $100, Michaelson reported. The smallest contribution came from an 8 year old girl who had asked permission to wait up past her bedtime until the neighborhood solicitor called at her home.

Others Share Spotlight

Committee members who shared with Michaelson the honor of being the first northwest suburb to complete the quota include John A. Walters, co-chairman; R. A. Hensen, secretary; M. A. Georgem, treasurer; Redman B. Davis, publicity chairman; J. Earl Lewis, special gifts chairman; John W. Carroll, chairman of the local merchants division, and Vincent G. Rinn, chairman of residential districts.

In the suburban districts, distribution of the funds collected will be limited to war related charities and local chests and charities.

Other early reports since the drive's launching Oct. 1 include collection of $1,465 from northwest side business firms and individuals as the contribution of the initial gifts group of the city division.

Mrs. John H. Naser, 4101 N. Kilbourn av., and Mrs. Frank G. Koehne, 5037 George st., have aided the work of the women's special gifts division in collecting more than 75 per cent of its $330,000 goal.

Of this amount, $172,000 has been set as the quota for the northwest side's city division, to be collected from house-to-house and business solicitation. The money collected will go to the U. S. O., U. S. O. camp shows, United Seaman's Service, and allied relief and refugee aid programs. BIBLE CHURCH IN BENSENVILLE PLANS TO BUILD

Construction Will Start in December

The congregation of Bensenville Bible church which has met in a feed mill building for several years is to have a new home. Plans for a new building, 80 by 36 feet, have been completed and construction will start early next spring.

The building, an old English country type church, will be erected at 1st av. and York rd. in Bensenville. Plans include an auditorium with a seating capacity of 225, a full basement, Sunday school rooms, and a church parlor.

Show Church's Growth

Bible church was organized in October, 1935, by a group of people who had been conducting Bible classes in their homes. The congregation took over a room in a building originally used as the town's feed mill but unoccupied for several years. As the congregation grew a second room was made usable and later a third.

Membership today is about 100. About 130 attend Sunday school classes.

Pastor Goes to Army

GIFT SHOP ADDED BY AUXILIARY TO HOSPITAL LOBBY

That uneasy feeling of I-should-have-brought-a-present need no longer plague the visitors in the Norwegian-American hospital, 1044 N. Francisco av.

Since last week when the Women's auxiliary opened a gift shop in the hospital lobby the time-pressed visitors are able to get that gift that is just exactly right. It may be a stuffed calico elephant to help Jimmy forget that broken leg, or a knitted sweater suit for a proud father to present to his brand new daughter. Or, for the prankish type, there can be a cook book for the new bride.

Plan Gifts Carefully

Whatever the ailment of the patient, or the finances of the visitor, the women of the auxiliary have planned their merchandise to fit the need. Moreover, so that the profits from the shop will be greater for the auxiliary's works, the majority of the gifts are handmade.

Preparatory work on the shop has been in progress for almost a year under the guidance of Mrs. R. H. Warden, River Forest, the auxiliary's president for three years. Each Friday the workers met in the nurses' recreation room to make articles for the shop. They took no time out for an elaborate luncheon. Instead, each woman brought a sandwich and had coffee in the nurses' kitchen.

The distaff side of the hospital's workers were not the only ones to give time and energy to the shop's preparation. Mrs. R. C. Williams, auxiliary member, drafted the services of her husband, an interior designer, to plan the shop's interior.

Men Paint Shop

Maintenance men of the hospital fashioned cupboards and display booths and painted the shop. Husbands were employed generally in the transport problem of getting merchandise together and lending their marketing experience to the task of buying those articles which could not be made.

And now, with the handiwork of a year beginning to bring profits, auxiliary members are beginning to think about the rewards they will reap. There will be more money for the free tumor clinic, more scholarships for student nurses, more books for the free circulating library for the patients. When summer comes there can be more furniture for the hospital's roof garden, and more money for equipment in the pediatrics and obstetrical departments.

Prospect Heights Men's Club Names Leaders

Walter Traver has been elected president of the recently organized Men's club in Prosopct Heights. F. T. Lind is secretary-treasurer. Appointed rotating program chairmen are Fred D. TRICK CYCLIST GETS NEW PUPIL AT 70—HIS BRIDE

"It's all a matter of balance," Fred F. Baader, 70, might be heard instructing his bride, the former Miss Lorna Rennack, 32, of Palatine, as he guides her first lessons in bicycle riding in the back yard of their home, 820 N. Christiana av.

Baader should know, for he's devoted 52 years to bicycle riding and has balanced six women on his shoulders and bicycle framework in his most successful stunt in a trick riding act.

Until his retirement eight years ago, Baader had thrilled audiences from coast to coast under Ringling's "big top" and on the Orpheum, Keith, and Pantages vaudeville circuits.

Career Half Century Old

Baader's career as a trick cyclist began quite by accident more than half a century ago. He was teaching riding at a bicycle school, a new fad then, down in old battery D headquarters on Michigan av. near Washington st. The 30 lessons he gave each day should have kept him busy, but he still had time to learn a few tricks from other instructors.

Later he and another teacher went to New Orleans, La., to open a school. They went on their bicycles, naturally. It took them about five days to ride the 1,000 miles.

When school closed, Baader began performing at county fairs. Then he came back to Chicago to appear in vaudeville with the Kohl-Castle circuit.

Wins Amateur Crown

Meanwhile he had won the amateur championship in the trick riding contest sponsored by the Chicago Cycle Racing association. One of his competitors was Walter Owen Briggs, now owner of the Detroit Tigers.

In 1916 he joined the Pantages circuit and appeared in theaters from New York to California. He also has had top billing with Orpheum and Keith circuits at one time or another.

The act which always brought the loudest applause, he says, was the six girl act. Attired in top hat and tails, Baader would ride across the stage while the drums rolled. One by one the women would mount his shoulders, the bicycle bar, and handle bars. Once there were nine women in the act.

A Challenge to All

In 1918 billboards proclaimed: "Freddie, better known as the 'Beau Brummel' of the bicycle world, stands alone and challenges all other bicycle riders for his wonderful performance presented in connection with his Girlie Artists."

He received the biggest thrill of his career in the Earl Carroll theater on Broadway. The audience called him back for 22 curtain bows. The best years of his career, Baader declares, were the five years he spent in Cuba appearing with international celebrities. More than once he remembers playing to five full galleries in one particular theater.

The only bicycle Baader possesses today is the specially constructed one he began riding 60 years ago, and, of course, the one on which Mrs. Baader is taking lessons.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Nov. 12

At this time gardeners should cut back the tops of hardy chrysanthemums and peonies to within a few inches of the ground. It will be found that many of the chrysanthemums already have sent out numerous side growths. These are more likely to survive the winter than plants that have few, if any, growths.

It is best to protect all plants with a shallow mulch. These plants should be transplanted in spring or kept over in a frame. Peonies should be divided and transplanted in fall rather than in spring.

All perennials are benefited with some protection and the material used may consist of peat moss, leaves, and strawy manure if free from weed seeds, which often are difficult to discover. Sawdust is being used for some plants, such as azaleas.

Tuesday, Nov. 13

Remove all old stalks from hollyhock plants and rake the ground around them, for often disease lurks in the old materials. A little extra care in autumn may rid many plants of a severe attack next year. Protect the bulbs after the ground freezes. A slight covering will suffice.

Do not neglect storing all tools and garden furniture before fall rains and snows occur. Much valuable material is ruined by neglecting this important work.

Cover the tops of the coldframes and hotbeds with boards to protect them until ready for use in spring. If permitted to remain uncovered, the sash may be ruined from exposure. Frames in which plants are stored should be ventilated on bright days.

Wednesday, Nov. 14

Protect fall planted trees by wrapping the trunks with burlap. The red maple and Norway maple sometimes are injured by sun scald if unprotected. Poison ivy now can be dug.

It is excellent practice to protect azaleas and rhododendrons with a screen of some kind. Corn stalks will serve the purpose or wooden burlap covered frames. Water these plants if the soil is dry.

If the ground is not frozen, spade the garden, first spreading a layer of manure or other organic matter over it.

Fall spading is such an important practice that it should not be neglected.

Thursday, Nov. 15

Lily-of-the-valley pips started three weeks ago should be coming along nicely. They should bloom in a warm room in time for Thanksgiving. Spray with warm water every day until bulbs show and they soon will bloom.

The largest of home grown lily-of-the-valley will bloom fairly well when placed in pots of sphagnum moss, watered, placed in a dark room until growth begins and then in the window to obtain green foliage. Foliage will be whitish, with little green matter, unless light is available.

House plants occupy the attention at this time, and to see a window filled with them is so pleasant and exciting that every one should have a few.

Friday, Nov. 16

Keep the azalea plant in a cool window and the soil moist. If the soil dries out the leaves fall and the plant does poorly.

Any one wishing to keep a chrysanthemum plant that was received as a gift may do so if it is cut down after flowering, placed in a cool basement or other window, and watered all winter. It likes a temperature of around 50 degrees which is usually impossible in the average home.

In spring, the shoots that appear around the pot may be separated, potted, and the young plants kept growing all summer. A good way is to plant it in a sunny spot in the garden, but it must be pinched at least twice, fertilized, and kept growing. In fall, before frost, it should be potted.

Saturday, Nov. 17

Flowering pot plants must not be permitted to suffer from a lack of water or their flowering period is cut short. Begonias suffer if watered to excess and the stems are likely to rot off. Some of the varieties are unexcelled for the home.

A gardener recently reported having a terrarium for two years without any difficulty in its care. Watering was necessary only at long intervals for the moisture within the glass container never was allowed to become excessive, a condition that is certain to kill some plants.

Try to make a small terrarium by using any type of glass container that is at hand. Small plants can be used and the soil need only be half peat or loam and sand. Use the soil when it is moist, not dry or very wet.

Grow a sweet potato in a bottle or start the seed of an avocado in a glass. There are any number of novelty methods of growing plants which are sure to interest the whole family.

YANK AND WIFE FETED BY 200 AT SURPRISE PARTY

A telephone call informing Sgt. George Franzak, 2305 Fullerton av., that a "couple of friends are across the street" was a stratagem used to bring him to a surprise party recently in which 200 friends welcomed him back to civilian life. The party, at Vic's hall, Oakley blvd. and Fullerton av., also marked the fourth wedding anniversary of Franzak and his wife, Lottie.

George Franzak

Overseas three years as a ground crew member of the 27th fighter group in the 12th air force, Franzak saw action in North Africa, Tunisia, Sicily, Italy, France, Corsica, England, and Germany. He holds the air medal with four clusters and has nine battle stars.

Franzak captained the 27th fighter group's baseball team to the championship of the 12th air force tactical command.

U. OF I. BOOKLET TELLS BENEFITS OF SOLAR HOUSE

BY LOUISE BARGELT

"Solar houses" are coming in for frequent discussion these days and questions about them are being asked on all sides. The University of Illinois has issued an interesting free bulletin on "Solar Orientation in Home Design."

In this booklet many commonly asked questions are answered briefly and lucidly. For instance, the author points out that:

A "solar house" is not a glass house, but one in which glass areas are carefully placed and protected from summer sun and winter storms.

Need Large Glass Areas

Solar orientation may be applied to any kind of architectural design, but is best achieved in nontraditional types which permit the use of large glass areas or groups of windows.

Solar orientation means facing as many rooms as possible to the south in order to obtain the benefits of sunlight.

Benefits from this solar orientation include: [1] additional warmth, since the radiant heat [infra-red rays] of the sun enters the house thru the glass, supplementing the mechanical heat during the daylight hours; [2] increased daylight is provided in living quarters and southern exposure provides better summer ventilation in most parts of the United States, and [3] the enjoyment of living is increased for many people by extra winter sunlight and broader views of the outdoors.

Also a Summer Aid

There is enough winter sun to justify solar orientation since there is more sunshine during the winter months than most people realize. Solar heat is available in winter months, even tho the sun is not shining. Assuming the solar radiation on a clear day is 100 per cent, a hazy day will allow 60 to 80 per cent and a dull day 5 to 50 per cent.

All large glass areas must be more than single pane in thickness, for if they are not the gains in heat from the sunlight will be offset by excessive loss of heat thru the glass, particularly at night.

Using "Living Area"

When planning the house as much of the living area as possible should be given direct southern exposure. The basic principles can be applied on any lot successfully. On a 50 foot lot the living-dining area and one bedroom of a one story house can face the sun. For narrow lots the two story house can achieve excellent solar orientation.

The book is issued by the Small Homes council, Mumford House, University of Illinois.

WANT TO CRASH RADIO? GET INTO N. U.'S PLAYSHOP

Alumni Making Records in Broadcasting

BY LARRY WOLTERS

One good way to get into big league radio is to enroll in Northwestern university's school of speech. That's only the first step. After you're in, try out for the Radio Playshop, which presents student written, produced, and performed shows over WIND every Sunday night at 9:30 o'clock.

Meg Haun

Sondra Gair

The Playshop, now in its 7th season, has a great record: Scores and scores [it may be hundreds] of former Northwestern students now are carving out successful professional radio careers. Former Playshoppers that come to mind at once are Sondra Gair, playing leads on the Chicago Theater of the Air over W-G-N-Mutual, and Meg Haun and Beverly Taylor of NBC.

They Work for Bergen

Claris Ross and Peggy Chantler, Playshop alumnae, are now in Hollywood writing for Edgar Bergen. Bergen also helped Actress Arlene Becker get a start in New York radio. Ruth Brooks is writing for Billie Burke; Agnes Eckhart for Irna Phillips; Carol Lederer for Les Weinrott and Associates. David Ellis and Paul Barnes are two of the best known actors to come out of the group. Don Ward is an announcer for ABC. Jeanne Shirley is singing with Harry Cool's orchestra; Julie Pitchford is with Kay Kyser.

Dozens of Playshoppers have landed jobs at stations and with the radio departments of advertising agencies from coast to coast. As an example, WBBM gave jobs to Rosalyn Freund, Peggy Montegut, Shirley Decker, and Kay Wear. Relatively few men appear on the list, mainly because they went directly into the military services from the campus. Barbara Will, a grad of the Playshop, heads the radio department of Briarcliff college; others teaching radio at various colleges are Muriel Landers, Estelle Spero, and Jane Nyvall.

How It Got Started

The Playshop was organized in 1939 under the direction of Albert Crews, then chairman of the school of speech. He became so interested in radio that in 1943 he left Northwestern to join the production staff of NBC. Armand Hunter succeeded Crews and still supervises the project.

Donley Fedderson, assistant director of the Northwestern Reviewing Stand, aired over W-G-N-Mutual, now has active supervision over the group. But the students are responsible for writing, acting, and presenting the plays. They cast the show, build sound effects, and select and arrange the music. Preliminary production problems are handled on the Evanston campus and final rehearsals are held Sunday afternoon at WIND studios. The Playshop also has done a dramatic series over television station WBKB.

$100 Scholarship Each Year

To stimulate interest in the Playshop Ralph Atlass, president of WIND, each year awards a $100 scholarship to the outstanding student. WIND also gives the time and studio facilities.

The Playshop has arranged to present tonight "Look to This Day," an Armistice day drama depicting thoughts of returning service men, written by Janet Pope and Barbara Wicoff, who consulted with veterans now on the campus on the theme.

Stan Schwarz, former air force gunner and president of Anchor and Eagle, veterans organization, will play the lead. Other veterans in the cast: Jack Ludwig, marine corps pilot; Lowell Johnson and Bob Cantrill, both overseas veterans.

Jack Benny to Welcome Joe Louis as a Guest

Jack Benny will welcome Joe Louis as a guest on WMAQ-NBC at 6 o'clock tonight. Mary Livingstone, Rochester, Larry Stevens, and Phil Harris' orchestra will be on hand to greet the "Brown Bomber."

Radio's 'Opening Night'

'VAGABOND KING' NEXT OPERETTA ON AIR THEATER

Rudolf Friml's "Vagabond King" will be presented by the Chicago Theater of the Air over W-G-N and Mutual from 9 to 10 p. m. next Saturday from Medinah Temple auditorium. Bruce Foote will sing the role of Francois Villon, poet and soldier of fortune; Marion Claire will sing the part of Lady Katherine, and Ruth Slater, Hugette.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be the speaker.

Henry Weber will conduct the orchestra and chorus in all the familiar melodies of the operetta. Dramatic roles will be taken by Laurette Fillbrandt, William Everett, John Barclay, Sondra Gair, Carl Kroenke, and Norman Gottschalk.

ATOMIC BOMB IS SUBJECT OF 2 BROADCASTS

"The Control of Atomic Energy" will be the topic of the Northwestern Reviewing Stand over W-G-N-Mutual at 10:30 a. m. today. Dean Ovid Eshbach, Marshall Dimock, and Malcolm Dole, faculty members of Northwestern university, will participate.

Another of today's discussion programs, the University of Chicago Round Table, on WMAQ-NBC at 12:30 p. m., will be devoted to the atom bomb when Chancellor Robert M. Hutchins leads a consideration of "Peace and the Atom Bomb." Reuben G. Gustavson and Robert Redfield will take part.

Leonard Warren Is Guest on Sunday Evening Hour

Leonard Warren, American baritone, will be guest soloist on the Sunday Evening hour over WLS-ABC at 7 o'clock tonight. His selections will include the Prologue from Leoncavallo's "Il Pagliacci," Giffes' "An Old Song Re-Sung," and Clarke's "The Blind Ploughman." Eugene Ormandy will direct the orchestra in the Overture to Kabalevsky's "Colas Breugnon," Rossellini's "Song of the Marsh," and the Prelude to Act III. of Wagner's "Lohengrin."

Kauffman to Be Soloist on Philharmonic Hour

Phillip Kauffman, first violinist with the Chicago Philharmonic orchestra, will be soloist when it broadcasts over W-G-N at 8:30 p. m. Tuesday. The orchestra will present the Overture to Wagner's "Rienzi" and Lalo's "Symphonie Espagnole for Violin and Orchestra." English's "An Island Festival" also will be heard.

Gov. Kerr Will Be Guest on M'Carthy-Bergen Show

When the Charlie McCarthy-Edgar Bergen show [WMAQ-NBC] originates in Oklahoma City at 7 o'clock tonight, the governor of Oklahoma, Robert S. Kerr, will be a guest. With Charlie and Bergen will be Anita Gordon, Ray Noble and his orchestra, and Mortimer Snerd.

Levant Plays Gershwin Tunes on Hall of Fame

Oscar Levant will play some Gershwin music when he makes a guest appearance on the Radio Hall of Fame over WENR-ABC at 5 p. m. today. Martha Tilton, songstress, will present the popular selections. She will be accompanied by Paul Whiteman's orchestra.

Crime Crackers

Lon Clark and Charlotte Manson are heard on the Nick Carter, Master Detective series on W-G-N-Mutual at 4:30 p. m. Sundays.

MUTUAL TO AIR ARMISTICE DAY VICTORY SALUTE

In an Armistice day salute to the Victory Loan drive the Mutual Broadcasting System will present a star-studded program from New York and Hollywood on W-G-N from midnight to 1 a. m. tonight.

The Army Air Forces band formerly led by the late Maj. Glenn Miller, will be heard under three outstanding conductors—Duke Ellington, Tommy Dorsey, and Paul Whiteman. Oscar Levant will be soloist during Whiteman's turn on the podium, playing George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue." Other soloists from New York include Perry Como, singer, and Martha Tilton, songstress.

From Hollywood, the Santa Ana Convalescent Center band will be heard under the baton of Meredith Willson and Bob Crosby. Soloists on this portion of the program will be Dennis Day and Dinah Shore.

W-G-N's Youth Looks Up Hails Anshe Emet School

Youth Looks Up, church school program aired over W-G-N at 8 a. m. Sundays, today will present seniors of the Anshe Emet Temple school, 3760 N. Pine Grove av. Albert Elazar, principal, will welcome the youth program which is conducted by Philip Maxwell. Rabbi Nathan Gaynor will be heard in scripture reading from the second chapter of Isaiah. Jerry Walker will narrate the biblical story of "Two Brothers." Alvin Goldberg, 12, as soloist on the broadcast will sing "Etz Chaymi, the Tree of Life."

Armistice Day Program Slated for Family Hour

Songs of World War I. and II. will comprise an Armistice day program for the Family hour over WBBM-CBS at 4 p. m. today. Patrice Munsel will join in an opening medley consisting of "Over There," "Long, Long Trail," and the army air corps song. The orchestra will offer a medley of World War II. selections: "Anchors Aweigh," "Infantry March," and the "Bombardier Song."

PLAN $225,000 CHURCH HOUSE IN FLOSSMOOR

Drive for Funds to Open Soon

(Picture on page 8)

A proposal to raise $225,000 for erection of a new Flossmoor Community church building has been approved by the executive committee of the building project.

Charles Thompson

Plans, which have been under consideration for the past year and a half, call for a stone building of Norman design, to be located on the property occupied by the Flossmoor Community house where service now are held. The community house will be razed, Wayne A. Johnston, chairman, said, to to make way for the new building which is necessitated because of growth of the church.

Sanctuary to Seat 500

The fund raising campaign, which is expected to get under way soon, will be directed by Charles P. Thompson. Construction will be started as soon as funds are on hand.

Present plans call for a sanctuary, a chapel with seating capacity for 60 persons, a fellowship hall for lectures, meetings, plays, movies and forums, a parlor, rooms for youth activities, offices, departmental assembly rooms, and classrooms for religious education. The sanctuary will seat 300 on the main floor, 100 in the balcony, 40 in the choir and an overflow of 60 in the vestibule.

Church 18 Years Old

The fellowship hall will have a stage and seating capacity for 350. Rooms are being provided for meetings of the Sunday Evening club, Boy and Girl Scouts, and Cubs and Brownies, Johnston said. The building will be available for use by community groups not associated with the church.

The Flossmoor Community church, an interdenominational organization, was founded 18 years ago and used the Flossmoor school for its first services. In 1934, the church moved to the Flossmoor community house.

Other members of the building project executive committee are Joseph K. Roberts, vice chairman; W. Robert Riggs, secretary; Hedley G. Drew, treasurer; Robert E. Zinn, plans and construction; George M. Crowson, publicity, and Dr. Robert K. Bell, pastor, all residents of Flossmoor.

NEW VETS TO BE AT FLOSSMOOR LEGION DINNER

Veterans of World War II. will be guests at the annual Armistice day dinner of Flossmoor American Legion Monday in Sanders' grill in Homewood. James Blair, junior vice commander, will be in charge of arrangements. Walter Wiles, district commander, will speak and Dick Whitney, post commander, will be the toastmaster. Herb Brostrom, vice commander, will lead the singing.

Directs Sub to Save Man in Tokyo Bay

Because he was "too busy flying," Comdr. Raymond Pflum, who recently arrived home on leave with the navy cross, four distinguished flying crosses, seven air medals, and a special navy commendation, can recall the specific details of only two missions — those on which he won the navy cross and the commendation.

Raymond Pflum

Son of Mrs. Mary Pflum, 7945 Ada st., he was commander of an aircraft patrol squadron based on Iwo when he participated in the daring air-sea rescue of a downed B-29 airman, for which he won the navy cross. He and his crew spotted the flyer, Capt. E. H. Mikes Jr., Berwyn, as they were patroling the coast of Japan looking for targets. The flyer was floating at the entrance of Tokyo bay in a rubber boat.

Directs Sub to Sight

Pflum circled the boat a couple of times and flew off to direct a sub to the airman's rescue, indulging in a little extra-curricular activities by sinking a Jap transport in a minute and a half with a direct hit on the way. He returned to find six Jap planes swooping down for the kill.

Five army planes, returning from a Tokyo bombing raid, joined the fight, Pflum recounted. Twice the rescuing sub surfaced by Mikes. Each time the Japs closed in, strafing and bombing. Once, Pflum said, the rescue was so near he saw Mikes raise his foot to step on the sub deck when the ship had to submerge.

Run Low on Gas

One army and one Jap plane were lost in this first phase of the rescue. The other Japs suddenly seemed discouraged, Pflum said. They moved to the north where they watched in safety the rest of the proceedings. The army planes, low on gas after the Tokyo raid and the dog fight, left for home.

Before the sub could surface again, however, Pflum said three more Jap planes moved onto the scene, strafing the flyer, bombing the sub, and shooting at Pflum's Privateer. The rescue was accomplished, however, when Pflum's crew shot down two of the Japs and chased the other far inland.

Aids Boat in Typhoon

The special commendation was earned when Pflum, piloting the Privateer on a night weather tracking mission in the Pacific, sighted a patrol boat low on gas in a typhoon. Altho his tanks were nearly empty, Pflum hovered over the boat, directing a destroyer escort to it by radio, until the boat was refueled.

Pflum, a graduate of Tilden High school and Armour Technical school, joined the navy 10 years ago. He went overseas a year ago and was based variously at Honolulu, Midway, Enewetok, Kwajalein, Tinian, and Iwo. He has amassed 7,500 hours in the air and flew 55 missions in this war.

Sinks 10 Ships in Day

One of the distinguished flying crosses, he thinks, was for making 27 bombing runs against Wake, Truk, and Panape. The others were for sinking shipping off the coast of Japan. Sometimes, he said, his crew sank eight or 10 boats a day. The largest he sent to the bottom was a 1,500 ton merchant ship. Near the end of the war, he said, hunting was pretty poor. The few boats they found were heavily armed.

After his leave, the first in a year and a half, he will report to the naval air station at Jacksonville, Fla., where he is assigned to the school staff.

SGT. M. J. KELLY TO QUIT FORCE AFTER 38 YEARS

Sgt. Michael J. Kelly of the Wabash av. district will retire from the police force Nov. 19 after 38 years and seven months of service.

Kelly came to Chicago in 1889 from his birthplace in Wilkes-Barre, Pa. He started on the force in 1907, walking a beat in the East Chicago av. district. Transferred to the Dearborn st. station, he was made a detective sergeant [a rank since abolished] in 1913. He later was stationed at Brighton Park, Woodlawn, and Gresham stations. Kelly earned seven creditable mentions.

After a trip with his wife "some place where it's warm," Kelly plans to return to gardening at his home, 8324 Marshfield av. The couple has a son, Robert, a machinist's mate 3d class, who now is at Pearl Harbor after serving 13 months in the Pacific on an aircraft carrier, and three daughters, Mrs. Clair Hogan, 9335 Loomis st.; Mrs. Marguerite Brown, Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Jean Grass, Atlanta, Ga.

CITIZENS SHOW TO SPOTLIGHT ST. MARY'S HIGH

Tell of Other Events for This Week

Three events will commemorate Education week at St. Mary's High school this week. This afternoon a Fathers' day program and open house will be held. Wednesday afternoon, engineers from W-G-N will record the Citizens of Tomorrow program in the school auditorium, 1031 S. Hoyne av., with the broadcast to be heard from 9:30 to 10 a. m. Saturday.

Next Sunday, 42 graduating classes will be represented at the annual homecoming.

Founded by the Sisters of Charity of the Blessed Virgin Mary in 1899, St. Mary's claims to be the oldest Catholic central high school in Chicago.

Recalls Early Days

Sister Mary Gerontius, member of the teaching staff for 35 years, recalls the early days of the school when there were eight faculty members and a graduation class of 18. Now there are 40 nuns and 5 lay teachers instructing a capacity group of 850 girls.

Sister Gerontius recalled the year commercial training was introduced. The teaching profession had been most popular with the girls but in the following years secretarial positions became the goal of most of the girls. Pedagogy dropped to second choice. Today the number of girls in these types of work is indeterminable but certainly more than a thousand.

The faculty is especially proud of the 350 girls who have entered the religious life and the 90 who have entered the military service.

Will Tell Role of Music

St. Mary's will be the first parochial school to appear on the current Citizens' programs. Welcoming Philip Maxwell of THE TRIBUNE for Sister Mary John Henry, principal, will be Patricia O'Grady, 3638 N. Keeler av., president of the senior class.

Maxwell will introduce Maj. Adalbert Huguelet, conductor of the Glee club and staff member at Mundelein college and Northwestern university. Now on terminal leave, the major supervised musical activities of troops in the Southwest Pacific for the last two years. His speech will pay tribute to the part music has played in entertaining service men.

Will Honor Two Students

The names of Margaret Popula, 4404 31st st., a St. Mary's senior, and Reva Coffing of Attica [Ind.] High school will be added to the program's honor role by Maxwell. Margaret, an honor student, is coeditor of the newspaper and a member of the Marian players, Hostess club, G. A. A., social action committee, and volleyball and basketball teams. Reva is president of the G. A. A. and the Methodist Youth Fellowship and belongs to the 4-H club, Girls advisory board, and the newspaper staff.

Anastasia McGowan of 908 N. Monticello av., a pianist, has been selected as the school's outstanding entertainer. She will play George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue."

Major to Lead Chorus

The chorus, under the direction of Maj. Huguelet, will sing "Ave Maria," "Holy! Holy! Holy!," "The Orchestra," and "The Bells of St. Mary's." Ingrid Shaughnessy, 948 N. Monticello av., Red Cross chairman, will read the air edition of interscholastic news of high school activities.

Six girls who will take part in the history-music quiz are: Barbara Fenlon, Joan Stritesky, Joan Hannigan, Marilyn Slania, Dorothy Broucek, and Barbara Martin.

FETE DANISH BORN COUPLE WED 60 YEARS

STUDENTS MARK BOOK WEEK WITH LOOP ART SHOWS

Southwest side public elementary and high school students will observe Book week this week with exhibitions of their paintings in the book section of Carson Pirie Scott & Co., and the board of education library, 228 N. La Salle st.

Made by the boys and girls in their art classes, the paintings include scenes from books which have made impressions on the minds of the artists. While many of the paintings are coöperative projects, representing the work of several students, several were painted by single artists. In the latter category fall works by Charles Michaels of Holmes school, Lois Kennedy of Parker school, and Florence Borkowski of Kelly High school.

Students Paint in Corridors

Florence, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Borkowski, 4818 S. Latrobe av., portrayed a scene from John Hersey's book, "A Bell for Adano." She is a senior.

During the preparation for the exhibits, the artroom at Kelly became so crowded students wielded brushes on papers fastened to the walls of adjacent corridors.

Among other Kelly students who painted for the exhibits are Mildred Chalupa, 5251 S. Linder av.; Dolores Dybalo, 4750 S. Rockwell st.; Betty Ann Gordeichuk, 2617 43d st.; Lucille Grubensky, 2553 43d st.; Antoinette Kakta, 4164 S. Washtenaw av.; Dolly Wallace, 4449 S. Albany av., all portraying scenes from "Tall Tale America," by Walter Blair. They are directed by Marie C. O'Hara, art adviser.

Two Paint Mural

Englewood High school entries in the exhibit will include a mural by William Merrill, senior, 6028 Aberdeen st., and Harold Bradley Jr., a junior, 6608 Vernon av., on a passage from "Dr. George Washington Carver" by Shirley Graham and George Dewey Lipscomb. The art adviser is Miss Florence Potter.

Other students there, including Delores Herman, 509 W. 47th st.; Jewell Henson, 5901 Michigan av.; Heliobas C. Hart, 6504 St. Lawrence av., and Roosevelt Hester, 450 E. 62d st., have painted interpretations from "Abraham Lincoln," by James Daugherty. The art adviser on this project is Mrs. Miriam E. Gregory.

Pupils at Holmes school, 5525 Morgan st., selected several books from which to paint scenes. Michaels completed a picture of "The Singing Tree," by Kate Seredy. COLLECTOR HAS ANTIQUE JEWELS IN HOBBY HOARD

Holds Heirlooms Dating Back 250 Years

BY EDNA CARROLL

A hobby—collecting antique jewelry—founded in childhood on her knowledge and love of heirlooms is the one Mrs. Gwyneth Meeks, 9601 Vanderpoel av., will exhibit at the show this week at the Stevens hotel.

Mrs. Meeks said she was taught appreciation of the beauty and workmanship of the heirlooms handed down to her from her parents, and on her marriage into the Meeks family, founders in the pre-Revolution days of one of the earliest factories of fine furniture, she became an antique collector in the real sense of the word.

Has Valuable Collection

Since that time she has collected, not only the rare old jewelry and furniture made a century or more ago in England and inherited from her own and her deceased husband's family, but by purchase jewelry from early America, France, Italy, China, Russia, and Hungary.

Prizes in her 300 piece jewelry collection are, of course, her heirlooms, including a gold cross pin made in England and worn by her grandmother 95 years ago, and a cameo pin surrounded with pearls, bought at Tiffany's in New York in the 1850s and worn by her husband's grandmother to the White House reception for President Arthur.

Among other pieces are a silver butterfly pin, made in China and colored with fine hairs laid in tiny cavities; an Italian lavalier of inlaid mosaic, a circular Russian tie holder with a grape cluster design of diamonds on black onyx, and an American made, heavy gold mesh bracelet. The tie holder, Mrs. Meeks had made into a bracelet.

Has Silver Funeral Stein

A ceiling high sideboard, brought to this country from Holland by the Meeks family in the 1700s and covering the east wall of her dining room, holds more family heirlooms. Among them is a silver funeral stein brought here about 1800 by her great-grandfather from Wales. It was the custom in those days, she said, to bring one's own stein to a wake to forestall a shortage of containers for refreshment.

Also on the mahogany sideboard are the dinner set with turquoise and gold trim, the Sheffield silver supper set used by the Meeks family 125 years ago, and the old family daguerreotypes. In the sunroom sits a rare, three cornered chair made in Holland, which occupied a place by the Meeks' family fireplace before the revolution.

Usually it takes only a glance for Mrs. Meeks to name the country in which a piece of jewelry was made. Italian and French artisans turned out the delicate, gay jewelry using light colored gems. The Italians were a little more ornate with their fine filigree work. In contrast, she said, the Russian and Balkan countries neared the oriental in their choice of dark mountings and elaborate design.

America Made Little Jewelry

English jewelry was more simple, she said, and inclined toward the heavy side, using wide gold bands and loops. Very little jewelry was made in America before the Civil war, she said, principally because the families who could afford good jewelry were so few. They also were well stocked with pieces brought here from Europe.

With the increasing wealth of the country, American artisans came into their own shortly before the Civil war, she said, and patterned their jewelry somewhat along English lines.

HENRY HEINER ENDS 50 YEARS SERVICE WITH I.C.

No Wrecks or Time Off on Record

Among those who will miss Henry Heiner Sr., the smiling engineer on the Illinois Central suburban line who recently retired, are residents along the right of way in whose back yards he used to throw newspapers. Heiner picked up the newspapers discarded by I. C. passengers and accommodatingly passed them along. He retired this month after 50 years service with the company.

Starting in the I. C. shops in July, 1895, Heiner, who lives in Matteson, became a fireman on the Champaign freight run after four years. Firing in those days was a man sized job, he remembered, and frequently the engineers relieved him at the shovel. When he became an engineer in 1903 on freight runs out of New Orleans, he recalled, he relieved many perspiring firemen in memory of the help given him.

Never Had a Wreck

A fireman was lots of company on those runs, he remembered, and when he became an engineer on the electric suburban line in 1926, he said, he felt lonesome in the cab by himself. After the ponderous start of the old steam engines, he said, the new electric cars seemed like they might run away from him.

Heiner is proud of his record of no wrecks and no time off for sickness in his 50 year career. He also is proud of his 30 year record of arising at 4:45 a. m. to make his run, a record he intends to break now that he is retired.

Hold Farewell Party

On the night of his retirement, several of his crew members, including Edward Gyton of Andres, conductor; Otto Fieffer, Matteson, collector, and Walter Kern, Homewood, flagman, presented him with a wallet at a farewell party in his home.

Heiner lives with his wife at 111 7th st. in the suburb. They have a daughter, Mrs. Lester Watland, Homewood, and a son, Henry Jr., technician 4th grade, now at Fort Sheridan.

GI HAS NO SLEEP AND 6 PRISONERS ALL IN 24 HOURS

Yank Is Cited for Leading Patrol Thru Line

Lt. Carl O. Sandberg, who rescued a wounded soldier under heavy enemy fire on Okinawa, was among a large group of southwest side service men to whom the bronze star was awarded recently.

Sandberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Sandberg, 7540 Carpenter st., was ordered to withdraw from an untenable position on Okinawa. In the withdrawal he discovered a wounded soldier and carried him to safety thru heavy sniper fire.

Captures Six Prisoners

Lt. Samuel Ferguson Jr., whose parents live at 1311 W. 109th st., won the medal when, after holding a position in Tribbio, Italy, 24 hours with no sleep, he captured six prisoners. He also was cited for leading a 24 hour patrol behind enemy posts observing activities and artillery fire. He is a graduate of Englewood High school.

The citation giving Pvt. Frank J. Kolar, son of Mrs. Karoline Kolar, 2325 S. Seeley av., the medal, says that Kolar, "despite his wound, continued to fight against the fiercely resisting enemy" in Germany. Later he single handedly captured a three man machine gun crew and 18 other soldiers.

Two won their medals for aiding wounded in Germany. Pvt. Robert Peckham, 6011 Morgan st., was manning a machine gun when his assistant gunner was wounded severely. Working his way thru intense artillery and small arms fire, Peckham carried the wounded man back to a medical aid station, then returned to his machine.

Pvt. William T. Friedrich Jr., husband of Mrs. Theresa O. Friedrich, 6615 Racine av., distinguished himself as an ambulance driver with the 314th medical battalion near Bad Schwalbach, Germany. Learning that several wounded men were lying in an exposed position, he loaded the casualties into his ambulance for transport to the aid station.

GOOD STOMACH, WILL TO RETURN SEE YANK THRU

Corp. Bendenski

The strong stomach that enabled Marine Corp. Joe Bendenski to eat Jap prison fare during three and one-half years of captivity he credits with saving his life. Where weaker men paled, sickened, and eventually died of starvation, the determined marine gulped down the rotten fish heads and watery radish soup and lived to tell of his experiences.

Resolved to come out alive from the moment of his capture at the fall of Wake Island Dec. 23, 1941, Bendenski obeyed [when they were looking] the iron rules laid down by the Japs, was crafty about his violations, and ate anything offered him and much of what was turned down as inedible by his fellow captors. He returned home recently weighing more than 200 pounds.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bendenski, 3227 Lituanica av. Before entering the service in June, 1940, he was employed by the Taylor Pipe and Forge company in Cicero.

Pour Soup on His Head

Despite his care, Bendenski was caught everal times and punished for infractions of rules. Once at Osaka he swiped a handful of soybean butter from a barrel destined for Jap sailors and concealed it in a grimy handkerchief. Surprised with his contraband at a shakedown on the dock where he was a slave laborer swinging a sledge hammer, he was made to stand before the captives holding out the handkerchief while the guard poured radish soup over his head. Another time, because of illness, he was late for roll call. The Jap sergeant slapped him 30 times on both sides of his face with a leather sandal.

When they surrendered, Bendenski said, they were forced to knell on the air field with a loaf of bread divided among five men and water drawn from a gasoline barrel as their food. Later, they were packed in the hold of a ship, forbidden to talk, smoke, or even exercise, and shipped to China.

Got to Play Football

While the war was going in the Japs' favor, they were relatively lenient, he said. During the two years he spent in camps in China, they were permitted self-government, to farm their own gardens, and play football.

As the Jap war prospect blackened, the prisoner fared worse. In October, 1943, Bendenski was shipped to Osaka, Japan, as a dock hand. He received three-fourths pound of unsalted rice and a dipper of radish soup a day. A special entree was the head of a fish, long dead. One day he ate his and eight others declined by captives with weaker stomachs. Frequently the prisoners scavenged for orange peels tossed by the Japs. The prisoners usually made tea of the scraps. Bendenski says he frequently ate two gallons of the peelings.

The Japs permitted only 8 per cent of the prisoners to be sick and in the hospital at the same time. When Bendenski was finally admitted to the hospital for malaria in March, 1944, the patients' rations were cut 50 per cent. At Osaka, his weight dropped to 120 pounds. He weighed 175 when captured.

Holds No Rancor

As the B-29 raids became more devastating, Bendenski was moved to a camp 125 miles west of Tokyo from which he was liberated in September.

In spite of his ordeal, Bendenski says he holds no rancor against his captors. "Their main fault is ignorance," he said. "I am for extermination of the military cult and for giving the common people a break. They just have been misled."

Now that he's home, the corporal says he hankers for "noise and excitement."

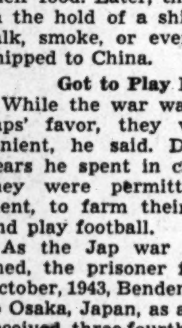
CAPTIVE OF NIPS THREE YEARS ON LAST LEG HOME



Corp. Slowiak

Marine Corp. Walter L. Slowiak, son of Mrs. Ann Slowiak, 12434 Parnell av., recently left Pearl Harbor to complete the last stage of his journey home after more than three years as a Jap prisoner.

In the marines since August, 1939, Slowiak left for the Pacific in April, 1940. He was taken prisoner at Corregidor on May 6, 1942.

"I'm trying to forget the treatment we got, especially that first winter," he said. "We were taken to Cabanatuan [Luzon] for a short time, and then brought to Osaka, Japan, where they put many of us to work as dock laborers."

Of 400 men, Slowiak said, 120 died the first winter from starvation and disease. His own weight dropped from 145 to 115, but he said he survived by stealing sugar and rice from shipments handled at the docks.

Now back to 150 pounds, Slowiak said he wants to enter a trade school as soon as he has had a rest at home.

TOPS WAR FUND GOAL HALF WAY THRU CAMPAIGN

S. W. Sider Admitted to Red Feather Order

With the Community and War Fund's Victory campaign just past the half way mark, one southwest side volunteer worker has already been awarded a special merit certificate for exceptional work in this drive, Walter P. Papecke, general chairman, announced. The recipient who won membership in the Order of the Red Feather is Max Dunn, 6545 S. Richmond st.

As chairman of initial gifts solicitation for the southwest side city division, Dunn was given a quota of $1,069. To date he has raised $1,125.

Workers Are Lauded

James R. Sterling, chairman of the city division, who made the presentation praised all volunteer workers in this drive.

"We are naturally proud of Dunn for the outstanding job he has accomplished. Before the campaign is over we hope to be able to award membership in the Order of the Red Feather to many more," he said.

Stuart W. Cochran, chairman of the suburban district, announced that Columbus Manor, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Albert Riechel, 9724 Melvina st., has oversubscribed its goal of $150 by $10 at the halfway mark in the drive.

Lauds Chicago Heights

He also called attention to another southwest suburb's work as outstanding. Chicago Heights, with the largest quota of any southwest suburb, already has raised $31,945 or 80 per cent of its $40,000 goal.

Cris D. Gregory, Chicago Heights chairman, said he expects solicitation in that suburb to be completed this week. Funds raised in the suburbs go only to war related relief and local charities.

ANNUAL COOKIE SALES OF GIRL SCOUTS TO OPEN

Two southwest side women are members of the city-wide planning committee for the two week Girl Scout cookie sale which will continue thru Nov. 24. They are Mrs. Harold Golinvaux, 2244 W. 113th st., and Mrs. Joseph Gertzen, 10921 Wentworth av.

Five others named district chairmen are Mrs. B. H. Raines, 5650 Union av.; Mrs. Alice Michels, 6122 S. Tripp av.; Mrs. Mark Sherwood, 6138 S. Talman av.; Mrs. Otto Bachman, 8957 Aberdeen st., and Mrs. Walter McFarlane, 10600 Leavitt st.

Altho the Girl Scout organization is supported by private contributions and the Community Fund, one-third of the organization's expenses are met thru cookie sale proceeds.

Proposed Flossmoor Church

A proposal to raise $225,000 for erection of a stone building of Norman design to house the Flossmoor Community church recently was approved at a meeting of the executive committee of the building project of the church. The church will be erected on the site now occupied by the Flossmoor Community house. (Story on page 1)

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Nov. 12

At this time gardeners should cut back the tops of hardy chrysanthemums and peonies to within a few inches of the ground. It will be found that many of the chrysanthemums already have sent out numerous side growths. These are more likely to survive the winter than plants that have few, if any, growths.

It is best to protect all plants with a shallow mulch. These plants should be transplanted in spring or kept over in a frame. Peonies should be divided and transplanted in fall rather than in spring.

All perennials are benefited with some protection and the material used may consist of peat moss, leaves, and strawy manure if free from weed seeds, which often are difficult to discover. Sawdust is being used for some plants, such as azaleas.

Tuesday, Nov. 13

Remove all old stalks from hollyhock plants and rake the ground around them, for often disease lurks in the old materials. A little extra care in autumn may rid many plants of a severe attack next year. Protect the bulbs after the ground freezes. A slight covering will suffice.

Do not neglect storing all tools and garden furniture before fall rains and snows occur. Much valuable material is ruined by neglecting this important work.

Cover the tops of the coldframes and hotbeds with boards to protect them until ready for use in spring. If permitted to remain uncovered, the sash may be ruined from exposure. Frames in which plants are stored should be ventilated on bright days.

Wednesday, Nov. 14

Protect fall planted trees by wrapping the trunks with burlap. The red maple and Norway maple sometimes are injured by sun scald if unprotected. Poison ivy now can be dug.

It is excellent practice to protect azaleas and rhododendrons with a screen of some kind. Corn stalks will serve the purpose or wooden burlap covered frames. Water these plants if the soil is dry.

If the ground is not frozen, spade the garden, first spreading a layer of manure or other organic matter over it.

Fall spading is such an important practice that it should not be neglected.

Thursday, Nov. 15

Lily-of-the-valley pips started three weeks ago should be coming along nicely. They should bloom in a warm room in time for Thanksgiving. Spray with warm water every day until bulbs show and they soon will bloom.

The largest of home grown lily-of-the-valley will bloom fairly well when placed in pots of sphagnum moss, watered, placed in a dark room until growth begins and then in the window to obtain green foliage. Foliage will be whitish, with little green matter, unless light is available.

House plants occupy the attention at this time, and to see a window filled with them is so pleasant and exciting that every one should have a few.

Friday, Nov. 16

Keep the azalea plant in a cool window and the soil moist. If the soil dries out the leaves fall and the plant does poorly.

Any one wishing to keep a chrysanthemum plant that was received as a gift may do so if it is cut down after flowering, placed in a cool basement or other window, and watered all winter. It likes a temperature of around 50 degrees which is usually impossible in the average home.

In spring, the shoots that appear around the pot may be separated, potted, and the young plants kept growing all summer. A good way is to plant it in a sunny spot in the garden, but it must be pinched at least twice, fertilized, and kept growing.

Saturday, Nov. 17

Flowering pot plants must not be permitted to suffer from a lack of water or their flowering period is cut short. Begonias suffer if watered to excess and the stems are likely to rot off. Some of the varieties are unexcelled for the home.

A gardener recently reported having a terrarium for two years without any difficulty in its care. Watering was necessary only at long intervals for the moisture within the glass container never was allowed to become excessive, a condition that is certain to kill some plants.

Try to make a small terrarium by using any type of glass container that is at hand. Small plants can be used and the soil need only be half peat or loam and sand. Use the soil when it is moist, not dry or very wet.

Grow a sweet potato in a bottle or start the seed of an avocado in a glass. There are any number of novelty methods of growing plants which are sure to interest the whole family.

U. OF I. BOOKLET TELLS BENEFITS OF SOLAR HOUSE

BY LOUISE BARGELT

"Solar houses" are coming in for frequent discussion these days and questions about them are being asked on all sides. The University of Illinois has issued an interesting free bulletin on "Solar Orientation in Home Design."

In this booklet many commonly asked questions are answered briefly and lucidly. For instance, the author points out that:

A "solar house" is not a glass house, but one in which glass areas are carefully placed and protected from summer sun and winter storms.

Need Large Glass Areas

Solar orientation may be applied to any kind of architectural design, but is best achieved in nontraditional types which permit the use of large glass areas or groups of windows.

Solar orientation means facing as many rooms as possible to the south in order to obtain the benefits of sunlight.

Benefits from this solar orientation include: [1] additional warmth, since the radiant heat [infra-red rays] of the sun enters the house thru the glass, supplementing the mechanical heat during the daylight hours; [2] increased daylight is provided in living quarters and southern exposure provides better summer ventilation in most parts of the United States, and [3] the enjoyment of living is increased for many people by extra winter sunlight and broader views of the outdoors.

Also a Summer Aid

There is enough winter sun to justify solar orientation since there is more sunshine during the winter months than most people realize. Solar heat is available in winter months, even tho the sun is not shining. Assuming the solar radiation on a clear day is 100 per cent, a hazy day will allow 60 to 80 per cent and a dull day 5 to 50 per cent.

All large glass areas must be more than single pane in thickness, for if they are not the gains in heat from the sunlight will be offset by excessive loss of heat thru the glass, particularly at night.

Using "Living Area"

When planning the house as much of the living area as possible should be given direct southern exposure. The basic principles can be applied on any lot successfully. On a 50 foot lot the living-dining area and one bedroom of a one story house can face the sun. For narrow lots the two story house can achieve excellent solar orientation.

The book is issued by the Small Homes council, Mumford House, University of Illinois.

WANT TO CRASH RADIO? GET INTO N. U.'S PLAYSHOP

BY LARRY WOLTERS

One good way to get into big league radio is to enroll in Northwestern university's school of speech. That's only the first step. After you're in, try out for the Radio Playshop, which presents student written, produced, and performed shows over WIND every Sunday night at 9:30 o'clock.

Meg Haun

Sondra Gair

The Playshop, now in its 7th season, has a great record: Scores and scores [it may be hundreds] of former Northwestern students now are carving out successful professional radio careers. Former Playshoppers that come to mind at once are Sondra Gair, playing leads on the Chicago Theater of the Air over W-G-N-Mutual, and Meg Haun and Beverly Taylor of NBC.

They Work for Bergen

Claris Ross and Peggy Chantler, Playshop alumnae, are now in Hollywood writing for Edgar Bergen. Bergen also helped Actress Arlene Becker get a start in New York radio. Ruth Brooks is writing for Billie Burke; Agnes Eckhart for Irna Phillips; Carol Lederer for Les Weinrott and Associates. David Ellis and Paul Barnes are two of the best known actors to come out of the group. Don Ward is an announcer for ABC. Jeanne Shirley is singing with Harry Cool's orchestra; Julie Pitchford is with Kay Kyser.

Dozens of Playshoppers have landed jobs at stations and with the radio departments of advertising agencies from coast to coast. As an example, WBBM gave jobs to Rosalyn Freund, Peggy Montegut, Shirley Decker, and Kay Wear. Relatively few men appear on the list, mainly because they went directly into the military services from the campus. Barbara Will, a grad of the Playshop, heads the radio department of Briarcliff college; others teaching radio at various colleges are Muriel Landers, Estelle Spero, and Jane Nyvall.

How It Got Started

The Playshop was organized in 1939 under the direction of Albert Crews, then chairman of the school of speech. He became so interested in radio that in 1943 he left Northwestern to join the production staff of NBC. Armand Hunter succeeded Crews and still supervises the project.

Donley Fedderson, assistant director of the Northwestern Reviewing Stand, aired over W-G-N-Mutual, now has active supervision over the group. But the students are responsible for writing, acting, and presenting the plays. They cast the show, build sound effects, and select and arrange the music. Preliminary production problems are handled on the Evanston campus and final rehearsals are held Sunday afternoon at WIND studios. The Playshop also has done a dramatic series over television station WBKB.

$100 Scholarship Each Year

To stimulate interest in the Playshop Ralph Atlass, president of WIND, each year awards a $100 scholarship to the outstanding student. WIND also gives the time and studio facilities.

The Playshop has arranged to present tonight "Look to This Day," an Armistice day drama depicting thoughts of returning service men, written by Janet Pope and Barbara Wicoff, who consulted with veterans now on the campus on the theme.

Stan Schwarz, former air force gunner and president of Anchor and Eagle, veterans organization, will play the lead. Other veterans in the cast: Jack Ludwig, marine corps pilot; Lowell Johnson and Bob Cantrill, both overseas veterans.

Why Writers of Juveniles Don'tGetRich

By Phil Stong

Author of "Censored, the Goat"

Pondering some statistics the other day, which is easier on both typewriter and author than actually doing a little work, I came upon a dazzling fact. I was looking up "popcorn" and I ran across "porpoise"—they have very funny teeth—and "Popham, Sir John"—I don't remember about him—and then "population," which gave me a start and I dashed to the World Almanac. Also Podgoritsa is the largest town in Montenegro.

Phil Stong

To get back to population, this has always been a matter of primary concern to a great many people of the upper and lower and even middle classes, but to no one, perhaps, more exigently than to the writer of juveniles. We will disregard parents and their selfish petty interests—to them population is mere offspring, but to me it means customers.

The important statistics is that almost two and a half million infants are born in this country every year.

The important matter is that with a minimum of 2,000,000 children reaching the age of eight each year, and with me writing a juvenile a year over 12 years at an average profit of 10 cents a copy, why do I not have $28,800,000? Minus taxes and my modest sustenance, of course—say $48.37.

All the books are neatly printed on good paper with excellent illustrations by Kurt Wiese and words from Webster's dictionary—nothing but the best.

The answer is, of course, sixth grade teachers. They read books to a whole lot of people all at once and instead of getting $4.00 out of this group or covey, or pack, you get 10 cents.

Just as I had this worked out I had a letter from some one in Iowa City in the fifth grade. This calls for an enlargement of the obliteration. Probably other writers have had trouble with other grades.

Still if you eliminate all the grade teachers, where do you get your readers? The illustrator—Kurt would drive up here in a Rolls-Royce and toss me a kennel ration. He would have grown fat on pictures unobstructed by an author.

I had an idea for a small land mine which would blow up a book when you turned the next to last page, but it might blow up the customer, too, and then who buys the next book?

It is a dilemma. We artists have such problems.

The Front Cover

ELIZABETH ORTON JONES of Highland Park, Ill., the artist whose work appears on the front page of this section, is one of America's leading illustrators as well as a writer of juvenile books. "Ragman of Paris" was her first published book. Later she wrote and illustrated "David," "Maminka's Children," and "Twig." She has illustrated "The Scarlet Oak," by Cornelia Meigs; "Told Under the Magic Umbrella, What Miranda Knew," by Gladys Adshead. Following publication of Rachel Field's "Prayer for a Child," which Miss Jones illustrated, she won the Caldecott Medal award. She also has done the illustrations for two recent books written by her mother, Jessie Orton Jones—"Small Rain" and "Secrets." Miss Jones studied at the University of Chicago and the Chicago Art institute. She also studied at the Ecole des Beaux Arts at Fontainebleau, France, and under the artist Lisusu in Paris. "Secrets," which she illustrated, is published by Macmillan.

Colorful World Opened to Children by New Books

By Agatha L. Shea

Director of young people's work at Chicago Public Library

A summary of the children's books of 1945 should start off, in this reviewer's opinion, with a statement of two noteworthy facts regarding the output for the lower and upper age brackets in the group.

In the first place, the year seems to point the way to a more adequate supply of attractive books for the nursery and pre-school group, with a variety of types represented, and secondly, the upper or teen-age offerings continue the trends toward practical, pressing problems, social and economic, which youth is facing today to a far greater extent than ever before. This is as it should be, for the young reader should find in his books an awareness of the problems of the changing world whose solution must lie largely in his hands.

To single out these two groups is not to say that the middle or in-between readers have been neglected, for there is, too, an excellent selection from which they may choose, many reflecting also, in a more limited way, the special interests noted above.

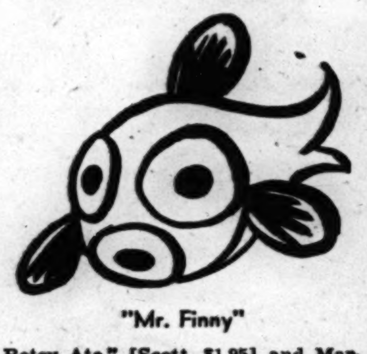
The nursery and pre-school field has always been a difficult one because of its exacting demands on the entire book, text, pictures, and format, the latter having to stand up to hard usage and at the same time be colorful and attractive. The washable cloth field is again well represented this year by the much liked little Eleska books, "I See," "I Eat," "Papa, Mama, Baby" [$1.50 each] and other titles which are designed with the safety as well as the pleasure of the littlest ones in mind, with their washable bindings and fast colors.

Clare Turlay Newberry's cloth book [Harper, $1.50] is a contribution in this field, which with its familiar animals and bright colors will prove very popular, and stand hard wear.

"Waldo"

Among the cardboard books, Dorothea Shaw's "Playtime" and "At the Zoo" [Wilcox & Follett, $1 each] and Esther Brann's "A Book for Baby" [Macmillan, $1] are but examples of numerous other usable books which will be welcomed for the nursery shelf. New additions to the Scott list are Irma Simonton Black's "This Is the Bread That



"Mr. Finny"

Betsy Ate" [Scott, $1.95] and Margaret Brown's "Little Fisherman" [Scott, $1.50]. Two animated or "toy books," H. A. Rey's "Feed the Animals" and "Anybody at Home" [Houghton, 50c each] appear in miniature format this year.

Art Inspired by Reading of Young Pupils

By Elizabeth Wells Robertson

Director of Art in the Chicago Public Schools

"I've got an idea," said Jackie, as he hurried into the 2d grade room of one of our Chicago schools. He rushed up to the teacher and with radiant eyes and excited voice, repeated: "I've got an idea." "Good," replied the understanding teacher. "Take a big piece of paper and put down your idea before you forget it."

Jackie went to work with tempera paint on rough textured paper and in no time horses were galloping over his page. When his idea had been put down to his own satisfaction the teacher walked over to see what he had been doing. "It's a picture of the 'Little Fellow,' a book I was reading," explained Jackie. All the love this boy had for horses was put into his picture.

If children are allowed to paint and draw creatively, the sky is the limit to their ideas and their expressions are startling and thrilling. Usually they use their own personal experiences of life at home, in the school, or in the community as subject matter. They paint each other playing games, going to parties, walking in the park, or going to church. These are gay, colorful expressions in the lives of normal boys and girls. They record these experiences from observation and memory.

This knowledge and understanding of life around them serve as a springboard into the world of imagination. When a child reads a book, the characters become real people which he pictures in his paintings.

Some children memorize the illustration in the book but these paintings are not creative. They are creative only when the characters and the action are so real that the reader's mental picture is vivid enough for him to reproduce it on paper. The characters and action are then a part of him.

Large paintings by the boys and girls of the Chicago public schools from the kindergartens thru the high schools will usher in Book week. They are on exhibition in the book department of Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co. and in the superintendent's gallery, room 220, 228 N. La Salle st. The public is cordially invited to see and enjoy the work of these spontaneous and sincere young artists.

TREASURES IN LITERATURE

By Maureen Daly

Author of "Smarter and Smoother."

There is a theory going the rounds of fireside thinkers and amateur child psychologists which claims that unless a child is raised in close contact with "beauty"—beauty as in rare red roses, Renoirs and ballet routines—before he is 6, he will never really "know" beauty. When he grows older he may acquire a knowledge of beauty, but he will never really know it like his more privileged contemporaries.

This is a smug and empty theory with which to blanket all the magnificent and whimsical minds of little children who can hear witches in the wind at night and see fairies in the sun on a fire escape.

Even in childhood, books are a great equalizer. Let a child know the charm of "Winnie the Pooh" and "Raggedy Ann" and the exquisite beauty of the fairies in "Whisk Away on a Sunbeam." Let him marvel at the "Mother West Wind Stories" and the Burgess' "Books of Birds and Flowers." Let him feel cozy and well-fed with "The Hollow Tree and Deep Woods Book" and shudder and feel sheltered at the footprint in the sand in "Robinson Crusoe" and he will learn to look for what is beautiful.

To a child's mind, a good book is like a worn teddy-bear, something to love, depend upon and take to bed at night. Fortunately, beauty, imagination, and sensitivity are limited to no one.

BOOKS FOR CHILDREN

Emotions Play a Big Part in Reading of Juveniles

By Paul Engle

Tribune book reviewer and author of "American Child"

The trouble with adults is that they act grown up [except under the influence of bottles, fraternity brothers and conventions]. This comes from the mistaken idea that they are no longer children. All the restraint and grim dignity with which adults cover up their real nature leads them to believe that some time in their lives they have ceased to be kids and have become men and women. This is all wrong.

The same personality that drives a car into the hedge drove a tricycle into the tulip bed. The same man who beats his glass on the table during an after-dinner speech is the same boy who pounded his highchair with a cup and howled.

The same woman who says at club meeting that "of course these turban hats are the latest thing" is the same girl who wound a diaper around her head and stuck out her tongue at the visiting playmate.

All people are children. Some are bigger and older and cleaner behind the ears than others. And that's all they are.

Every adult is simply a savage with company manners. Children don't have the manners.

Just as adults are always younger than is usually thought, so are children older than is usually thought. After a couple of years in this startling world they are aware of the old human qualities—fear, hate, love, hunger, jealousy, triumph, pride. What distinguishes a child from a grownup is not that he can't grasp these states of mind, but rather that his reaction to all of them must be the same: bawling, kicking, and pants-wetting. For that reason, children always seem younger than they actually are. Instead of being idiotic human beings, they are actually intelligent barbarians.

One thing adults always overlook in children is the intensity with which their lives are led. This intensity is, indeed, the one most universal characteristic of children. They abandon themselves to their emotions in a way which most adults have ceased to do [at least publicly; I have a harrowing idea of what they do privately]. When a child gives up to an emotion, whether of anger or despair or affection, he does so with the complete shamelessness with which Antony gave himself up to Cleopatra. This makes him appear stupid, but he is not. He is simply acting with the child's emotional violence.

Another confusion about children is caused by their small size. Because they are delicately formed, adults attribute delicacy to them. This is dead wrong, for delicacy is a slowly and painfully acquired quality, usually not found until late in life. The most fair-haired and finely-shaped child is capable of the most rending cruelty. No one, in fact, is as heartless as those very children whose little hands pluck at the heartstrings of the old. They pluck with their sharp fingernails. The whole false tenderness around children is emphasized by their clothes, dainty pink dresses soon to be drooled on, snowy diapers shortly to be defiled, fancy bedding to be kicked and soaked. The child deserves things around him as natural as his own functions and as practical as his own hungers. That should also be true of his books.

The child should be treated with some of the same attitudes which he holds. It is wrong to be sentimental toward a person who is utterly unsentimental, and no one is less sentimental than the average child. There are exceptions always, children of unworldly generosity, but watch most children snatch at their toys when another child is snatching at them.

Watch little sister's hands get slapped when she tries to pick up big sister's doll. Patience will teach some of that unselfishness into them, but with most children the snarl of the defending animal is not far below the dainty little voice.

This is about books for children. But before talking about what children read you must decide what they are, and that is complicated by the many illusions about them. Children being roughly [and I mean roughly] about what I have suggested above, what kind of books are best?

First of all, books should treat the child with respect. A bird should be called a bird and not a birdie. There should be no false tenderness in the book, no "Mummy loves her itty pretty girl." Books should acknowledge the maturity which children very early reach, their sharp awareness of the world around them. This is perfectly consistent with the child's violence, for it is that combination of emotional instability and informed intelligence which gives the child his peculiar nature. It is as if a human brain were suddenly put into a bear cub. It wouldn't make him stop using his claws; he might use them to better advantage. The children's books of the end of the century, with their overdressed children and their oversoft manners seem shockingly unreal today. But happily, there has never been a time in the world's history when there were so many books of the right kind for children.

The prose of children's books should not be fancy nor should it be sentimental. It should be clear, simple, direct and amusing.

The prose of Winnie The Pooh, for example, is right: "Pooh looked at his two paws. He knew that one of them was the right, and he knew that when you had decided which one of them was the right, then the other one was the left but he never could remember how to begin."

Books should closely mimic the child life. For that reason they should combine fact with fancy, the obvious object with the imagined substance. Most good children's books do this, and they ought to, for that is the child process. The rock is as alive as the dog which

Fifty Years of Juvenile Best Sellers

By Alice P. Hackett

Author of "Fifty Years of Best Sellers"

Children's books have a high percentage on the roll of best sellers.

Alice P. Hackett

Every year new groups of young people are introduced to the old favorites. Long established titles like Treasure Island, Little Women, Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm, Little Lord Fauntleroy and Black Beauty are passed on by older brothers and sisters and parents who loved them in their own childhood. So, not only are there many juvenile books among the all-time best sellers of America, but they are also long-lived.

Among the more than 150 titles that have sold more than half a million copies in this country in the past 50 years there are 20 or so straight juveniles or semi-juveniles —"semi" because at the time of their first big sale, when they were new, many made a hit with adult readers as well as children, tho now most of them are sold almost entirely for children's reading. Books like Pollyanna, Freckles, Penrod, When We Were Very Young are in this group.

When a favorite character or set of characters has implanted itself in a child's mind, an inexhaustible demand for more and more of the same develops. Pollyanna had to grow up, the Burgess animals extend their activities year by year. Children's series are even continued beyond the death of the original creator as in the case of the Oz books.

The Little Colonel Series, the Five Little Peppers, and even Elsie Dinsmore are other series that have gone on into volume after volume and been enjoyed by many successive sets of readers.

There have been, so far, only four Christopher Robin books, but they have sold over 2,000,000 copies in their 20 years of existence. They were among the first of recent years to become established as children's perennial best sellers.

Others that, as best sellers in our own times, have joined the ranks headed by the great 19th century classics like Hans Brinker and Tom Sawyer, are Ferdinand, My Friend Flicka, and Lassie Come-Home.

Mr. Finny a Fantasy to Please Tiny Tots

"MR. FINNY," by Kurt Plowitz. [Ives Washburn, $1.50.]

Mr. Finny was literally a fish out of water. The little people who found him on the beach of their island offered him honey, a soft bed, a trip up the mountain, and finally a boat ride, during which Mr. Finny escaped gratefully into the ocean.

BOOKS AND A CHILD

By Paul Engle

[From "American Child"]

Books were the actual world she touched and knew
Where trolls were real and friendly goblins hid
Under the bed, and gentle dragons blew
Smoke from their mouth and talked the way she did.
Wolves between the covers of a book
Wandered all day their safe, familiar land,
Brown squirrels came down from colored trees and took Imaginary acorns from her hand.
She became those books. She was the girl
Locked in a high tower in the gray Scotch highlands.
She was the fisher's wife with a crown of pearl.
And when they told her of the shipwrecked man
Named Crusoe, she became herself the island,
The beach, the footprints where the stranger ran.

Arthur Otis Sees a Parade of Immortals

By Arthur Frederic Otis

Arthur F. Otis

King Arthur stood tall and straight in his silver armor. "If Long John Silver and the Mad Hatter will postpone their argument," he frowned, "this extraordinary meeting of the Academy of Juvenile Immortals will come to order to pass on applications for membership. Will Christopher Robin call the roll?"

"An' it please your majesty," the Prince and the Pauper spoke in unison, "Billy Whiskers ate the membership list. But Friar Tuck says he can say it from memory." The Tin Woodman whispered in the king's ear just as the Headless Horseman of Sleepy Hollow galloped up on Black Beauty.

"Proceed," ordered the king.

Friar Tuck hitched the cord that held his robe and began, "Tiny Tim, Robinson Crusoe, the Little Lame Prince, Sinbad, Jason, Medusa, Ferdinand, Peter Rabbit, Brer Rabbit, the March Hare, Pegasus, Winnie the Pooh . . . "

Hans Brinker interrupted, "Is this a roll call of a dignified assemblage or a sight-seeing trip in a zoo? It's not that I object, but Topsy and Little Eva want to know."

Friar Tuck ignored the interruption. "Robin Hood, the Bi-Colored Python Rock Snake," he droned, "Launcelot, Guinevere . . . "

"They're here," explained David Copperfield, "they just went for a stroll in the garden. Galahad is chaperoning them, so it's O. K."

"Snow White, Little Black Sambo, Scrooge, Beautiful Joe, Bob, Son of Battle . . . "

"So now it's a dog show," muttered Hans Brinker.

Friar Tuck was furious. "Let somebody else do it, then," he roared. "It's time for my nap, anyway." And he hitched his robe again as his sandals slap-slap-slapped across the room.

"I'll take over," volunteered Ali Baba. "I can remember a lot more. Ulysses, Jack the Giant Killer, Sir Nigel, Beth March, My Friend Flicka, Dumbo . . . "

"Just a minute." King Arthur spoke. "Those last two are the characters seeking admission to this Academy. Of course, you're doing the job from memory, so you couldn't be expected to know."

Peter Pan flew over and made a neat three-point landing at the king's elbow. "Pardon, Sire," he said gravely, "but Hansel and Gretel and I have been talking this over with Chicken Little and Rumplestiltskin and Oliver Twist. Such people as Flicka and Dumbo and the Little Engine that Could are fine folks. I'm sure that we would all be glad to have them as members. But it's not for us to say. The only way the Academy of Juvenile Immortals can gain new members is by vote of the children of tomorrow and tomorrow and tomorrow."

A Realistic Guide for African Journey

"SOUTH OF THE SAHARA," by Attilio Gatti. [McBride, $3.]

The author knows his Africa better than the average American knows his own country, for he has spent 14 years there, mostly on the move. He has accumulated a vast knowledge of Africa's strange peoples and animals. He has written several volumes about that fantastic continent, but none more entertaining and exciting than his last. "South of the Sahara" is a close-up of Africa's most unusual aspects. The author is a capable, comfortable, and kindly guide for the vicarious voyager thru steamy, perilous jungles. Gatti's own photographs make the journey a realistic one.

Illustration from "Russian Fairy Tales"

Russian Fairy Tales Are No Grimmer Than Grimm

"RUSSIAN FAIRY TALES." [Pantheon Books, Inc. $7.50.]

Reviewed by Marcia Winn

In old Russia the folk tale was the beloved companion of the adult rather than the child. In Russian chronicles as early as the 12th century one may read that a rich man, suffering from insomnia, ordered his attendants to tickle his feet, strike up the gusli, and tell him fairy tales. Ivan the Terrible had three blind men following one another at his bedside to tell him tales. Tolstoi as a child fell asleep to the tales of an old man once bought by his grandfather because of his knowledge and masterful rendition of these, and as late as the close of the 18th century blind men advertised in Russian newspapers for work in the homes of gentry as tellers of tales.

The tales were told, in song, verse, and mellifluous prose, from generation to generation, but not until the middle of the last century were they recorded in Russian. Altho an English doctor who had been physician to the father of Peter the Great recorded 10 Russian folk tales in English on his return to England in the 1660s, this rich, thick volume issued by Pantheon as a companion piece to its complete Grimm of last year is the first comprehensive collection in English.

The reader will notice immediately that these are not children's stories, at least not the sort of stories on which American children have been nurtured. Their humor is mordaunt, their retribution stern, their cruelty and fatalism supreme. There is rich attention to nature, wonderful imagery, tart wisdom, and magnificent leaps into the imagination, but reality is always there, as with the peasant who climbed into heaven and found a roast goose, a suckling pig and "pies, pies, pies. . . . In a word: There is all that the soul desires." But he ended by tumbling out and into a bog. But the rhymed epilog says:

Now that is the miracle of miracles,
That the muzhik fell from heaven;
But this is the miracle of miracles—
How the muzhik did climb into heaven!

The reader also will notice at once that these tales are recorded as told. They have the rhythm, the flow, the ability to conjure images, of the fine story well told. He may occasionally be baffled by the ending, but it is merely the teller of the tale complaining that he was not sufficiently compensated for the telling.

Consider "The Golden Slipper," a shortened, but more colorful version of our Cinderella. The mistreated little sister ends up by marrying the prince. The teller of the tale concludes:

"I drank beer at their wedding. It ran down my lips, but never into my mouth. I asked for a cap, but received a slap. A raven flew over me and cawed, 'Flowing robe! Flowing robe!' I thought he was crying 'Throw the robe!' So I threw it away. I asked for a cap, but received a slap. I was given red slippers, but the raven flew over me and cawed, 'Red slippers! Red slippers!' I thought he was crying 'Robbed slippers!' So I threw them away."

A number of the tales are in the original verse. More are in dialogue, making them more folk drama than folk tale as in the strange tale, "The Potter," in which the potter asleep on the road with his pots is overtaken by Ivan the Terrible, who immediately proceeds to belie his fierce name.

"So you've been sleeping?" This from him called the Terrible.

"I've been slumbering, great king! Fear not him who sings, but him who takes a nap!"

"You're a bold one, potter. I love such as you."

"Thank you, great king."

"Do you support your children?"

"I do, your majesty, and yet I do not plow, I do not reap, I do not mow, and the cold does not freeze me."

"True, potter, and yet the world is not without evil."

"Yes your majesty, there are three evils in the world."

"And what are these evils, my little potter?"

"The first evil is a bad neighbor; the second evil is a bad wife; the third evil is a bad mind."

"And now, tell me, which of these evils is the worst?"

"From the bad neighbor I can go away; from a bad wife I can also go away if she agrees to stay with the children; but from one's own bad mind one cannot go away; it is always with one."

Now, this is trenchant wisdom, as well as meaty dialog, but consider the tale with which the book opens, "A Wondrous Wonder, a Marvelous Marvel."

A wealthy merchant, about to set forth on a trip, is asked by his wife to bring her "a wondrous

TRUTH—LET'S TELL IT GAYLY!

By Flora C. Rue
Author of "The Cocoa Dancer"

When a child has passed the nursery rhyme stage and has enjoyed the mysteries of the fairy tales for a season he begins to do a little wondering of his own.

Almost his first thinking question after you have read him a story will be "Is it true?" and when you answer gravely, "Yes, it is true," he will sit back with clasped hands and say, "Read some more."

A little girl will ask again and again for the story of another little girl who lives in a far away country where they wear wooden shoes.

Children want stories of other real children who live and play and go to school—"just like me."

They will listen eagerly when you read of the gentle eyed, brown skinned children who live in countries where it is always summer and who go barefoot the year around.

They may ask you if it is true that some children across the sea have bright black eyes that slant upward. And they will say "How can they read their story books backwards?" They will try it too.

It is for us to furnish these children with books that will answer their questions and satisfy their searching minds.

Children want the truth and they like their truth gay and interesting.

This story of a 9 year old native boy of the island of Dominica is exceptionally good on several counts. It portrays the customs and activities of a little known dark skinned people in a sympathetic, dignified manner. It involves a tender attachment between Ebby and his younger sister, Dodo, as they struggle to make a polisher of cocoa beans out of Ebby. The story is skilfully told and the full page color illustrations by Gladys Blackwood are certain to attract youthful readers.

Books Shared by People of Many Creeds

By Mary Alice Jones
Author of "Tell Me About God."

Religious books for children in recent years seem to have been able to win acceptance among the adherents of faiths which would find it difficult to agree upon any formal statement of common belief.

Mary Alice Jones

For example, Jessie and Elizabeth Orton Jones, in their "Small Rain," have made a contribution to children of all creeds by helping them feel joy in their common heritage of inspiring verses from the Bible; while "Secrets," the recent book by this same mother-daughter team, expresses the aspiration of all children for a sense of fellowship with God, the Creator, and with one another, as they enjoy together the wonders of the world.

Rachel Field's "Prayer for a Child," the illustrations of which won for Miss Jones the Caldecott Award, will make prayer more meaningful to children of many faiths; as will the verses by Emilie Fendall Johnson and the illustrations by the Petershams in "A Little Book of Prayers."

Because children ask many profound questions about the nature of the universe in which they live, it is important to all parents who hold a religious view of life that their children begin to think of these questions in ways which contribute to a growing response to God's love and to God's purpose that men live together as brothers.

The three books, "Tell Me About God," "Tell Me About Jesus," and "Tell Me About the Bible," are planned to help children of all creeds grow in their ability to think clearly and reverently about their place in God's creation.

Taking another tack, Florence Mary Fitch in "One God" has sought to increase understanding by presenting concrete information, largely in picture form, regarding essential worship practices of the major religious bodies in the United States.

Bravery of School Girl Told in Story of 'Melindy's Medal'

By Georgene Faulkner
Author of "Melindy's Medal."

Some years ago, when I told stories to the children on the playgrounds of Brooklyn and in Chicago schools the children called me "The Story Lady." Many Negro and white children were crowded into inadequate schools.

For colored children I felt a need for a story about a brave little Negro girl. So some way Melindy came into being—a real, musical little Negro girl, who saved her schoolmates by marching them out from a school fire.

Granny often said that "not being a boy—Melindy could never win a medal" and as granny showed her the family medals she would tell Melindy tales of the brave heroes from Melindy's great-grandfather, Mose, down to her own father, who had won his medal in World War I.

"Melindy" was written some time ago at the MacDowell colony. It was not published at that time. Recently an old friend, John Becker, asked to collaborate with me on the story. We agreed there was too much dialect. John felt the story was too long and there were revisions to shorten it. John Becker brought our story up to date. He has done an excellent piece of rewriting.

We are told that Melindy has made many friends.

Miss Weston Tells Charm of India's Tales

By Christine Weston
Author of "Indigo" and "Bhimsa the Dancing Bear."

I often think how different stories for children would be if they were spoken extemporaneously instead of being written with all the adults' obsession for form, logic, etc. The actual writing of a story changes it from the part real, part fantastic thing it should be, to something more or less cut and dried.

I remember the art of the story teller as it was practiced by our servants and friends when we were children in India.

These ayahs, bearers, cooks, and coolies could not write, but they could tell a story! "There is a peculiar old woman who lives in the pipal tree at the end of the garden. Whenever she comes down to the ground, which she does at night, she walks backwards."

These stories were invented on the spur of the moment, to keep us quiet when we were sick or otherwise troublesome. The story teller, spinning his yarn, or kehani, had but one aim in mind—to entertain his listeners. The expressions on our faces registered the intensity of our attention, and at the slightest sign of boredom the story would switch into a more exciting channel, regardless of the narrator's original intention, if he had one to start with, and he usually did not.

The stories were seldom the same, and no attempt was ever made to "spare" our feelings. As a result, we quite often had bad dreams, but we would not have missed the experience for anything. It was part of the imaginative pattern of life which child and grown-up shared in spontaneous fashion, when everything, including the awful and the absurd, was held, for a little while, before our fascinated eyes.

Artists, Writers Face New Task in Atom Bomb Era

By Jessie Orton Jones
Author of "Secrets"

This year Book week is different. It has become suddenly much more important under the challenge of the hour. Since that summer day of atom blasting on the American desert a momentous change has come about in the life of man. When he produced a new element and learned how to use it for destruction, an extraordinary moral responsibility fell upon him. The demand for a new valuation of life now confronts him.

Will the books we produce and give to our children show a realization of their needs, in view of the challenge we are passing on to them? Will authors and artists live up to the urgency of this hour in the books they create? Will publishers work with vision on the lists of the books they publish? Will libraries, schools.

Children need books that will speak to them of the meaning of the responsibility now laid upon man.

Books Shared At Fireside Unite Family

By Frances Dunlap Heron
Editor, Family Circle Department, the Christian Advocate; Editor, Family Page, the Christian-Evangelist.

"United Thru Books" as a slogan for Children's Book week need not be limited to the national or world aspect of literary influence. An entertaining book, a fireplace, and a good out loud reader can help to unite mother and dad and Mary and Junior into a happy, understanding family.

Frances D. Heron

To share laughs, suspense and a bit of philosophy is to combat juvenile delinquency today and to lay up delightful memories for the grownup children tomorrow.

It is easy after many years to reconstruct the scene of my family, chores done, gathered around the stove in our Missouri farm home, and my father reading aloud "Tom Sawyer" and "Huckleberry Finn," borrowed from the district school library. Tho we could hardly wait from night to night, no one would dare peek at the next chapter during the day.

An old favorite that is still popular for family reading is "The Wind in the Willows," by Kenneth Grahame [Scribner's, $1.50]. In 312 pages one can learn much about living from Mr. Badger, Rat, the crotchety old Mole, and the rich and foolish Toad.

Sidonie Matsner Gruenberg's selected "Favorite Stories Old and New" [Doubleday Doran, $2.50] contains tales in variety—realistic, fairy, biblical, and humorous. "The Children's Shakespeare," by E. Nesbit [Random House, $2] recounts the stories of 11 of the English bard's plays. To stimulate an appreciation for poetry a good book is "Poems for the Children's Hour," by Josephine Bouton [Platt and Munk, $1.25]. Classified by subjects and seasons, the collection ranges from Shakespeare to Kate Greenaway.

For lovers of fanciful stories Sigrid Undset has just compiled "True and Untrue and Other Norse Tales" [Knopf, $2.50]. Another new book the whole family will enjoy is "The Open Gate," by Kate Seredy [Viking, $2.50], in which a father, mother, children, and grandmother adjust themselves to farm life.

Adventure in the world of nature from Aristotle to Donald Culross Peattie as compiled by William Beebe in "The Book of Naturalists" [Knopf, $3.50], provides excellent out-loud reading for parents and older children. A book that may start members of the family off on other historical trails is "Abraham Lincoln's World," by Genevieve Foster [Scribner's, $3], an account of leaders and events thruout the world between 1809 and 1865.

Now for some laughter. Any family that has ever made the acquaintance of mysterious, unpredictable Mary Poppins is grateful to her creator, P. L. Travers. The most recent of the series of three stories was "Mary Poppins Opens the Door" [Reynal and Hitchcock, $1.75]. "Homer Price," by Robert McCloskey [Viking, $2] is full of merriment, beginning when young Homer and his pet skunk Aroma catch some robbers.

A book that came out a year ago which hasn't received its due of publicity is "Carl," by Alex Mélancon [Macmillan, $2]. Our family has roared over the escapades of the 7 year old Louisiana boy in his household of women.

"Morris, the Midget Moose," by Frank Owen [Putnam's, $1], may look like a small child's book but it's just as much fun for the adult who has to "read it to me."

No list of books for family fun would be complete without E. B. White's current success, "Stuart Little" [Harper, $2], the story of a remarkable mouse.

A Big Hearted Robin Laces Michael's Shoes

"THE SHOE LACE ROBIN," by William Hall. [Crowell, $1.]

Every pre-schooler who hears the story of Michael O'Malley's instruction by a kindhearted robin in the art of shoe lacing may not be so apt a student as Michael. But likely most small boys and girls will enjoy the simple narrative, the illustrations by Robert Lawson, and the opportunity to practice shoe lacing on the paper shoe in the back of the book.

FRANCES DUNLAP HERON

AUTHOR HAILS REVIVAL OF FAIRY TALES

By Mary Dickerson Donahey
Author of "Apple Pie Inn"

I'm so glad to have an opportunity to publicly cheer at the news that fairy tales are coming back into style!

Not that I want to write any. My first eight books were fairy tales, but since doing so many others for girls, I fear I've lost the fanciful touch—even tho I do live in the same house with my husband's well loved Teenie Weenies! It's just that I feel fairy tales are so necessary to the proper development of children—their balance, their judgment.

"They must have only the truth!" wail the earnest reformers. Nonsense! Do adults have only the truth? And if you are not conditioned against believing everything you read when you are young, how are you going to spot a fairy tale when you grow up?

If, as a youngster, you have never learned to sort out truth from fiction, how can you recognize the fairy tales that will be presented to you all thru your adult life? How to fortify yourself against the men persuading you to invest in improbable mines—the women urging upon you impossible unguents, all warranted to make you become, or remain, beautiful? Fairy tales are no mere indulgence of the infant mind. They are the first steps toward gaining a wary approach to life's problems.

Kate Greenaway's Books Retain Charm

By Mildred Bruder
Publicity director, Chicago Public Library

To many the name of Kate Greenaway is synonymous with children and illustrated children's books. Her whimsical portrayal of children has served to idealize all childhood and her quaint style resulted in a type of illustration unequaled for charm and simplicity.

Mildred Bruder

Her name became a by-word on both sides of the Atlantic and her fame was established not only because she was an artist of ability but succeeded in creating a mode which to this day is known as the Kate Greenaway style.

The hundredth anniversary of her birth is next March 17. Born in Hoxton, England, the daughter of an expert wood engraver, Kate early in life decided to make art her profession. She won her first prize at the age of 12, but did not achieve prominence until her association with the firm of Marcus Ward & Co.

From 1868 to the late '70s, while under contract to them, she created many of their finest Christmas cards, valentines, and greeting cards.

These early designs were influenced by medieval illumination and during this period she acquired the delicate facility for drawing flowers and figures for which she was later to become famous.

It was in her children's designs, however, that Kate Greenaway hit upon a style peculiarly her own. Her first book, "Under the Window," published in 1879, brought her overnight fame and introduced to juvenile readers of England and America a well-ordered countryside peopled with a new race of picture book children. Dainty, well behaved, and clothed in a style of almost pure French empire they conveyed the charm and cheerfulness of all childhood.

Hers was a simple world peopled with little girls wearing caps and bonnets. In summer they were dressed in sprigged and flowered muslins and pinafores and carried umbrellas.

In winter they wore voluminous cloaks of soft green, trimmed with brown fur, and carried huge muffs. Her little boys wore short jackets and long trousers or cover-all smocks. Imaginative as they may seem the magic of her brush and pen made them real flesh and blood children.

When Kate Greenaway embarked upon her career as an illustrator of children's books she was by no means a pioneer. Contrary to popular belief she made her reputation at a time when colored picture books were at their peak of popularity. England had experienced a century of illustrated children's books, but it remained for Kate Greenaway to bring a freshness to the field.

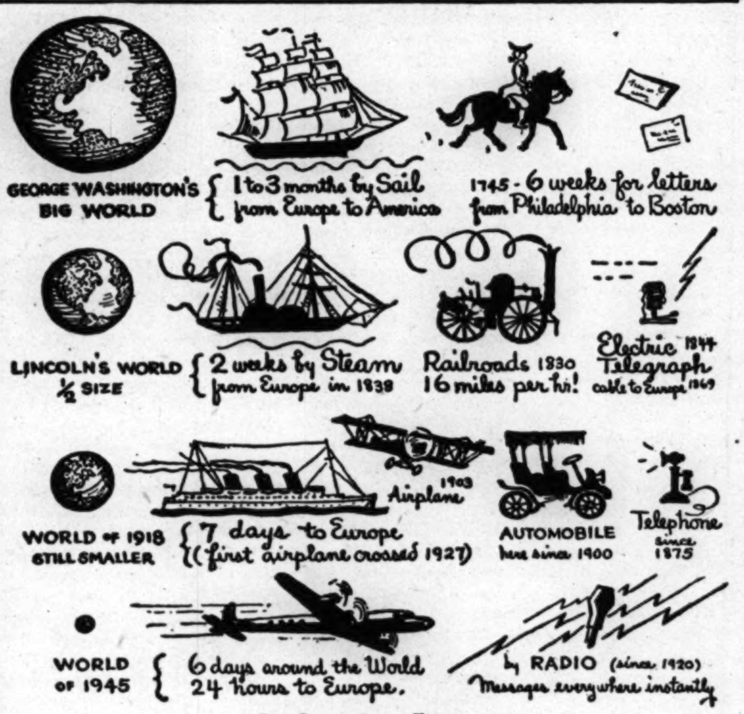
In 1883 she began publication of her famous "Almanacs," miniature volumes containing wisps of verse and the now famous illustrations. Ninety thousand copies were sold and were succeeded by an almanac every year, with one exception, until 1897.

Collectors and illustrators still argue about Kate Greenaway...did she really found a school or merely start a fashion? Her work has been read to shreds. Her tiny books sell for fabulous prices and collectors vie for complete sets of the almanac. With it all her ability to interpret youth and infancy in a distinctive and original way becomes increasingly apparent and her fame as an illustrator of children's books remains undimmed.

Little Bo-peep has lost her sheep,
And can't tell where to find them;
Leave them alone, and they'll come home,
And bring their tails behind them.

A page from a Mother Goose volume by Kate Greenaway published in London around the turn of the century by Frederick Warne & Co.

New Power in the World



By Genevieve Foster
Illustrator and author of "George Washington's World," "Abraham Lincoln's World."

A few months ago the use of a newly acquired power brought us, we are told, into a new age—the atomic age. Less than 200 years ago when we fought the war for American independence we had just entered the new age of steam.

Within the short lifetime of our country the power in steam, electricity, and gasoline have all been harnessed to increase the speed of transportation until now, measured in traveling time, the world has shrunk to but a fraction of its former size.

The accompanying chart shows our pathway from the old age of sails and horses to this new age of the atom.

What does the future hold for our children? How can they be prepared to live peacefully in this very much more intimate and therefore more explosive world? What books can we choose for them, of fiction, biography and history, that will help them to a friendly understanding of the once far away nations and races that have now become our next door neighbors?

Child of Fantasy Talks Herself Into Book Role

By Mabel Leigh Hunt
Author of "Sibby Botherbox."

"Sibby Botherbox" was originally a name invented by a friend of mine in her ingenious infancy, tucked away in my own mental hoard as a possible future title, and then forgotten. But it seemed that Sibby herself had her foot in my door.

Early in 1944 I took a contemplative peep at her, and asked her what kind of a child she really was. To my astonishment she confessed she was what grownups glibly call "an imaginary playmate." She said she must be put in a book, please, and in such a way as to make people believe in her.

I reminded her that I am accustomed to write of everyday children, and I thought she would be pretty difficult for me. "You'll be surprised to find how everyday I am," answered Sibby.

So I inquired, delicately, here and there among the youngest set, and discovered that imaginary playmates are not at all unusual. In a short time I learned the nature and the names of a dozen or so, from barefoot Velveteena, who lives in a tree, to Gracie, who has an entire village chuckling in a fond conspiracy of faith, for the sake of a small fellow citizen.

Thereupon I summoned Sibby, and together we made her story, "Sibby Botherbox," as natural and gay as we could. Natural, because imaginary playmates are the companions, unexplained and simply accepted, of an amazing number of perfectly normal children.

Offer Scrapbooks in Prize Contest

An annual prize contest to stimulate interchange of scrapbooks between children in American and English schools has been announced by Roy Publishers. The exchange of scrapbooks was organized four years ago in connection with work of the Books Across the Sea Societies. In the books the children present pictures of their own daily lives. Scrapbooks offered for 1946 prizes will be accepted up to next April. The awards are $100 first prize, $50 second, and $25 third. Inquiries may be directed to Contest Editor, Roy Publishers, room 808, 25 W. 45th st., New York.

Inquiring Camera Girl

By Maryon Zylstra

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune.]

THE QUESTION

What is your favorite book?

WHERE ASKED

National College of Education children's school, Evanston.

THE ANSWERS

Maryann Dickson, 11, of 2316 Marcy av., Evanston—There was lots of suspense in Burnett's book, "The Secret Garden." It was an adventure of three children who were all about my age. It was such an interesting story and so appealing to some one like me. I could very easily put myself into the same picture and feel that it was my secret garden.

Janice Gathany, 10, 1225 Chancellor st., Evanston—I have two favorite books. One of them is "Rusty," by Maj. S. P. Meek, and the other is by the same author but the name is "Dignity." They are both books about dogs. They are stories that could be real but are not true. I like dogs and I like stories about them.

Tico Prindle, 8, of 661 Sheridan rd., Winnetka—O, I love the books about "Bambi" and "Bambi's Children," by Felix Salten. On the way out to our farm we stop once in awhile to see six fawns and a stag. Deer are such delicate, dainty animals and I like the pictures and the story of Bambi so very much.

John Rapp, 8, of 408 Ridge, Evanston—My favorites are stories about dogs. I liked all of those books by the same author—"Silver Chief," "To the Rescue," "Return of Silver Chief," and "Valiant." I don't have a dog, but I want one and maybe I will get one when my Dad comes home from Paris. In the meantime I like reading stories about dogs.

Linda Aurand, 7, Edgewater Beach hotel—A book that had a lot of funny pictures in it was Walt Disney's "Here They Are." Just about every page had a picture on it. There was Donald Duck, Mickey Mouse, Pluto, and all the other animals that I like so well. He draws such cute pictures of all of them, too.

Rollin Stearns, 8, of 1262 Columbus av.—"So Long Ago," by E. Boyd Smith, is top on my list. I'm very much interested in prehistoric animals, and in this book it has a colored picture of a group of animals and on the opposite page an outline of the animals with their names printed on them. Then when I see them in the museum I know what they are.

History Helps Boys Going to White House

By Frances Cavanah
Author of "Our Country's Story."

Every American born boy has a theoretical chance to be President. But, according to the records, his chances are a little better if he grows up with a liking for history.

Most of our distinguished Presidents had it, and it helped to give them the perspective to see them thru their most trying years.

No men could have thought so straight as Jefferson and Madison without an understanding of the past. Books of history or stories with a historical background ranked high among the boyhood favorites of John Quincy Adams, Hayes, Garfield, Harrison, Taft, Wilson, and Coolidge, Hoover, and the late Franklin D. Roosevelt. President Truman carries on the tradition. When he began his new duties in the White House, one of the three books on his desk was a pictorial history of the United States.

Of course, the classic example is Abraham Lincoln. He had only a few books as a boy, but he read them so often and so thoroly that their influence can never be accurately estimated. It is said that Lincoln's hatred of slavery could be traced to Grimshaw's "History of the United States," which inspired him in childhood. He could also repeat, word for word, whole passages from Weem's Life of Washington, especially the descriptions of the Revolutionary soldiers at Trenton.

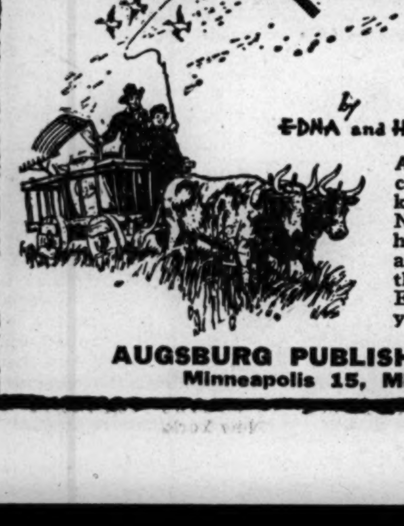
"I recollect thinking then, boy even tho I was," he said, "that there must have been something more than common that those men struggled for."

This was the book, borrowed from a neighbor, which was ruined by the rain one night when Abe left it between the logs of his cabin bedroom. He cheerfully pulled fodder three days to pay for it. The book was stained and warped, but when the owner gave it to him to keep, the tall boy walked on air.



A delightful story for children. It tells of Mikkel, who emigrated from Norway to America with his parents, grandmother, and sisters, and settled in the Wisconsin territory. Excellent for reading to younger children. $2.00

Child Guided by Book That Delights Him

By Flora Warren Seymour
Author of "Bird Girl: Sacagawea."

We hear much these days of reading "for" something. Young people must be led to read "for" democracy, citizenship, vocational guidance. Good and worthy aims, all of them. But if reading is not primarily for delight, none of these benefits will be added to it.

With good intentions elders may say, "Read this book and I will reward you." This is a fatal approach. The book itself rewards the reader. Reading should never be presented as a task. It is a door, opened with eager anticipation of the sights beyond. If parents and teachers themselves love and enjoy books, the child will have this attitude before he can decipher the printed page.

In spite of movie and radio competition books are read in increasing number by young and old. The format of children's books grows ever more and more inviting. The contents must fulfill the promise of cover and illustration.

The essential requirement of any book is that it be interesting. Lacking this, all other virtues go for nothing; it will not be read. Beauty that merely sugar coats a pill will be rejected with the pill itself.

Children can and do learn much from books—ideals, aspirations, attitudes. They learn these best when they imbibe them almost without consciousness of them, thru enjoyment of a stirring tale, thru self-identification with the young people of whom they read. From room to room, each more spacious than the last, progress should be happy. Either fact or fiction may be the magic key to open the new vistas.

But all these good things will come only if the story, fact or fiction, is first of all a real pleasure, if the boy or girl comes to the book in confident anticipation of a real happiness waiting within its pages.

Harsh Moralist Tone for Juvenile Books Abandoned

By Katherine Evans
Author of "The Ladybug Who Couldn't Fly Home."

Basic character patterns are generally believed to be formed by age eight. Hence, those who write for children have the rare privilege and the rather serious responsibility of creating that which can indelibly affect the whole of adolescent and adult life.

Early writers of children's books felt this responsibility too heavily, it seems now, resulting in blatant, or at least thinly disguised, preaching of lessons in morals or religion or, worse still, the horrors of sin and the punishment therefor.

Fortunately this moralistic trend passed and in due course children's books assumed their modern form.

Today it is conceded that the interest must be aroused and maintained by the use as principal characters of animate or inanimate forms familiar to the child. Personalization of such forms is the characteristic tendency of the child, as indeed it was for primative man.

Likewise, as the picture precedes the written word, liberal use must be made of all the devices of pictorial art in the make-up of the book "What's the use of a book without pictures?" is still as true to the child today as it was to "Alice."

Never have our bookstores offered such a variety and profusion of delightful books for children. Production is said to reflect demand and perhaps the present situation has come about as a result of the war-caused scarcity of mechanical toys. I believe that not only do books outlast mechanical gadgets but that they maintain their freshness and interest indefinitely in the heart and mind of the child.

NIGHT SKY

By Fredrika Shumway

The shining moon has gone away,
It's dark now in the sky;
I hope the moon will not forget
To come back by and by.
The little stars are on the watch,
To keep the clouds away;
They'll twinkle brightly overhead
Until they see the day.
And then they'll blink their sleepy eyes
And slowly turn about;
They'll shine for just a minute more,
Before their lights go out.

Youngsters Help a Writer to Put Life Into History

By Marguerite Henry
Author of "Justin Morgan Had a Horse" and "Robert Fulton, Boy Craftsman."

It seems to me that I expect a great deal from children. I expect them not only to read my books but to help write them.

I like to keep boys and girls about me when I write so that in a moment I can discard my adult trappings and hop onto their mental plane.

For three years I've had a whole band of children come trooping in after school and on Saturdays. Some of them volunteer to polish the windows or to scrape the carrots for supper. But the trouble is that I keep interrupting them!

"Glen," I'll call out, "do you know what nooks and crannies are?"

Glen comes dancing into my study. He stands in the doorway now, twisting the dish towel.

He thinks for a long time. Finally he gives me a disarming smile. "You tell me," he pleads.

Then I think. "Why nooks and crannies are snug little corners," I say.

Glen untwists his dish towel and fastens a look upon me that is half puzzlement, half pity. "Well, why don't you just say that?" he asks with all the wisdom and dignity of his 7 years.

But it is more than words that Glen and Jeanette and Lee and Caryl and Marian and June and Ralph have interpreted for me. They have fastened tug chains on the past so that my childhood draws up almost alongside theirs. Then, by a little extra heaving and tugging—they with their plump hands and me with my grownup's hands—we can pull the children of history into our very midst.

Much to our delight we discover that under their quaint old costumes, the long ago children were cut from the same pattern as those of today. They played marbles and "hopperscotch" and leap frog and asked riddles and popped corn on cold winter nights. And then suddenly history no longer gives off a dank and hoary breath; it comes as startingly alive as a bear that has slept out the winter.

If the books of today contribute a special feeling of actuality it is probably because writers of today have taken children into partnership.

Collie Hero of War Captures a Burglar

"PRIVATE PEPPER COMES HOME," by Frances Cavanah and Ruth Cromer Weir. [Albert Whitman, $1.25.]

Book Delivers Author from Pandemonium

By Louis Slobodkin
Author of "Clear the Track"

As this is being written our house is shaken to its foundations by the roar of a visiting fireman from Chicago. Michael's 3 year old cousin Freddy has come to spend the night.

Ordinarily, I delight in having Freddy honor our house with his presence, but it seems it is getting to be a habit that he arrives with a bang the night before I have something important to do such as giving a talk before a few hundred very wise librarians or meeting an urgent publisher's deadline.

"Clear the Track"

Then after the customary exchange of presents and hilarious pleasantries that only Freddy and Michael seem to understand and after the customary dispute and haggling over who's to sleep in which bed and the giggling and laughter has subsided the house is quiet and we're all settled for the short night.

Before the crack of dawn Freddy and Michael are up and racing thru the still darkened morning with fire trucks, locomotives, bells, and more of their sparkling chatter.

They crash into my room and stand rigidly at attention while Michael at the peak of his shrill, strong voice sings "The Star Spangled Banner" complete! Incidentally, he is one of the few people I know personally who knows all the words. Naturally, I must crawl out of bed and stand patriotically in the cold darkness lit only by the diabolical twinkle in Michael's eye.

While he noisily fills his lungs to begin the second stanza I quickly fumble around in our bookcase and then switch the light on to the pages of a brilliantly printed picture book. His "So-o-o be it ever" dies off and our Mike is flattered by cousin Freddy's request that he read the book.

Michael, who aside from his ability to recognize the letter "I" is completely illiterate, reads the book [since it is his book] to our visiting fireman.

Thus I clear the track for a blissful hour of slumber regained, lulled by their giggles and mumbling as the Chicago fireman and the Manhattan engineer settle down together in the big armchair—united thru picture books.

Peace and comparative quiet reign —z-z-z-z-z.

Eyes of a Puppy Gleam thru Pages

"WAGGLES," by Marjorie Barrows. [Rand McNally, 50 cents.]

The chief attraction of this little book is the cloth covered puppy head with the glowing eyes that pops up thru a round opening in each page. Kindergartners likely will not object that Waggles' adventures and rescue seem a little illogical.

BOOKS FOR CHILDREN

A Hurly-burly Home Feeds Author Plots

By Bianca Bradbury
Author of "Antique Cat"

Probably all writers, in their moments of frustration, dream about the ideal conditions and long to retire from the hurly-burly to an ivory tower, complete with padded cell, an absence of clocks, and utter silence.

Writers of childrens' books and stories are perhaps the only exception. Writers for children, as far as I can figure out, live in perpetual pandemonium. I know from my own experience that I cannot write for them in any environment except a combination boiler factory and zoo. I sometimes think of an ivory tower and know it is not to be, and better so. For what would I do for plots?

Our house is small and is permanently inhabited by two small boys, and the rest of the population is transient. There is some mysterious cross on our door which tells any four-footed passer-by, "Suckers Inside." The door opens and in they come, and stay, and stay, and stay. They are all mutts and alley cats, and being such, what they lack in looks they make up in personality. They earn their keep; they are as full of stories as they are of fleas. By dint of the most rigorous discipline I am keeping the census down to five now. We are a family that likes to move, and in the process of the last move we eliminated two cats, one horse, and four infant mice the size of a thumbnail. So I feel justifiably smug.

The boys are as gregarious as the animals, and in as small a house as ours you find yourself fighting not for an ivory tower but for one corner of a kitchen table out of range of footballs, spitballs, baseballs, wrestling bodies, radios, and 10 year old humor. Sometimes it drives me crazy, but usually it doesn't.

No. Ivory towers are very nice, very fine. But something tells me that if the halcyon day ever comes when I shall own one I will never again be able to write a line.

An illustration by Diana Thorne for Bianca Bradbury's "Antique Cat" (Winston).

Nursing Is Revealed as Fascinating Job

This career novel for older girls reveals nursing as a fascinating but by no means easy job. During her training Gail uses ingenuity, alertness, and kind-hearted understanding in dealing with her patients. There's a thread of romance in the story too. The author had as background the diary of a real nurse and her own experiences as a nurses' aid.

Steps in Producing a Movie Are Told

"MAKING THE MOVIES," by Jeanne Bendick. [Whittlesey House, $2.]

The author does an excellent job of combining the history, science, and production of different kinds of movies. She writes and illustrates with a deft humor and informality. Older boys and girls—and adults too—will enjoy following a movie from the manuscript stage thru processing.

Red Squirrel Gives Author A Big Surprise

By Sam Campbell
Author of "Eeny, Meeny, Miney, Mo—and Still Mo."

If it were possible, I would like to add one more chapter to my recently published book, "Eeny, Meeny, Miney, Mo—and Still-Mo." There is a certain inaccuracy between the covers which embarrasses me.

Sam Campbell

The story is about five red squirrels at our northwoods sanctuary. The one named Still-Mo is the mightiest and most venturesome of the five. It is Still-Mo who outfights, outruns, and outchatters all the others. He climbs the highest trees, swims across the lake, is always exploring, and looking for adventure—the true heroic, supersquirrel type! Hence we qualify him as the unchallenged leading male of our circus, and he is so styled in the book.

Last spring we returned to our sanctuary after a few months' absence. Eventually we located all of our pets. Still-Mo was easiest to find. With characteristic disregard for any obstacles, the little red skin had chewed a hole in our cabin wall and made a home in our attic.

But Still-Mo was not living there alone. We heard many little feet scampering about. Upon investigating we found our "Big He-Man" squirrel was a she! Without regard for what I had written and irrespective of the fact that the book was then on the press—she had raised a family in our attic.

Hearing our calls she emerged from the doorway her sharp teeth had made. While we stood amazed and for the moment speechless, out came a wide-eyed youngster—pretty and cute as ever lived. We found breath to name him "More-Mo Heavens"! Another appeared. We named him "Bromo Help"! Still another came creeping out. He was called a name with a prayer in it—"No-Mo Please"!

Still-Mo is unchanged—a rollicking, carefree, fearless, super-squirrel. The little rascal does all the things we expect—except "he" doesn't do them, "she" does!

Boy and Deer Find War Haven in Hills

"JUNGLE BOY," by Lysle Carveth. [Longmans, Green, $2.]

When Angkot, a mountain boy in the Philippines, follows the white deer god, Ogsa, down into the lowlands he masters some of the good skills of civilization. When one of its evils, war, threatens, he leads his lowland friends to safety in the mountains. The 103 page story is picturesquely told. Some juvenile readers may have a little difficulty distinguishing between legend and reality.

is, we think, one of the most appealing figures in recent literature for the young. We don't usually publish juveniles, but when MR. FINNY swam into the office, he was so captivating that it wasn't long before he had us on the hook. We're betting the haul will be a large one when he meets young readers and old—for MR. FINNY is something for every member of the family to chuckle over. We're not going to attempt to tell you the story of MR. FINNY, except to say that, beside our hero, it involves an island so small that up to now everybody has overlooked it, and some little people who live on nothing but honey. And "honey" is the word for MR. FINNY!

wonder, a marvelous marvel." He meets an old man who sells him a goose which, upon command will leap into a roaster and be cooked. The bones of the devoured goose are placed in a pile and, upon command, fly back together, feathers and all, and settle back into the barnyard to be roasted again the next day.

The enchanted merchant takes the goose home. This is a w.w., a m.m. as it certainly is. His wife is impressed. The next day the merchant goes to his stall, she summons her lover, and the two of them tell the goose to hop into the roaster and make a meal for them. The goose refuses. The wife hits him with a skillet. The skillet sticks. She sticks. Her lover tries to help her; he sticks. Soon the whole village sticks. The merchant hears the noise and emerges from his stall. He will not help unless his wife confesses, which she does. He then pulls all apart, beats the lover, beats his wife to a pulp, and says to her: "Here is your wondrous wonder, your marvelous marvel!"

Imagery, imagination—and bitter reality. It simply is not the bedtime story for a little American unless he understands the front page of the daily newspaper.

Again:

A peasant was sowing. An amiable czar passed. How much did the peasant make? "I make 80 rubles. Twenty rubles go for taxes, 20 go for debts, 20 I give in loans, and 20 I throw out the window."

The czar demands an explanation. "Supporting my father is paying a debt; feeding my son is lending money; feeding my daughter is throwing it out the window."

Is that a nice story to read a little girl?

The obvious truth is that this is not a children's book, and doubtless was not considered so in early Russia, altho a child would dance with glee at the nature stories and the magnificent names—Baba Yaga, the Bony-Legged One; Languishing Fly; Leaping Flea; Crawling Louse; Bear Thicklegs; and the three brothers, Mishka the Bandy-Legged, Egorushko the Nimble, and Ivashko Lie-on-the-Stove [And who triumphed there? Lie-on-the-Stove, of course]. There are also springs of the water of life, trees which sing, whales which talk, and a giant with enormous mustaches on which his mittens hung to dry.

It is, of course, no grimmer than Grimm—the language is merely more picturesque—and no more real than war, and children are sure to love it and not understand it. Even without the tickling of the feet, it should be sure cure for adult insomnia, and magnificent illustrations by A. Alexieff, 32 of them in full color and an extensive commentary by Roman Jakobson give added interest. No review of the book, however, would be complete without citing one of the anecdotes with which the book is dotted. The complete anecdote:

"Once a turnip said: 'I taste very good with honey.' 'Go along, you boaster,' replied the honey. 'I taste good without you.'"

FICTION GIVES HISTORY SPARK

By Louise Albright Neyhart
Author of "Henry's Lincoln"

Unfortunately all young people do not have an innate urge for history, and for those who have not had the good fortune to have a history teacher with the genius to innoculate them with the germ, an American history text book is merely a book crammed with dates, names, and events—merely a catalog of generations. It is impossible for these young people to recreate vicariously the experiences and struggles of their forefathers and weave the story of American national life from its beginning.

Books with historical and biographical significance can often do much to arouse a spark where interest in history has been dormant. Whether fact or fiction, a story about an historical event or hero, can do much to unfold a picture of life as it was lived in America in the period in which it takes place.

By telling our children the tales our grandmothers or grandfathers told us about near-by places that figure in local history we are sowing the seeds which are the foundation for an acquaintance with our history. If children see "long ago" as part of the living present, and the living present as the "long ago" of the future; then history will always be meaningful to them.

Those children will have an early consciousness that democracy is based on the strength of individual citizens, that the "Golden Rule" is a way of living, and that the great American experiment is worth preserving.

Tiniest Babies Get a Share of Latest Books

By Lucile Pannell

Author of "Chuggety Chug"

This is baby's year for books. Whatever the reasons for recent neglect in this field, paper and cloth restrictions, production difficulties, it doesn't matter now—the books are here! The pink bundle can have lullabies and cradle songs on arrival.

When baby reaches the nine months' birthday and first becomes aware of those magical objects, the spoon, the orange and the ball, there is a sturdy cloth or board book with bright pictures of them to be fed along with pablum and prune juice.

As he grows a little older, those fascinating creatures, kittens, puppies, chicks, ducklings, every variety of animal babies can be had in floor books and panoramas [to say nothing of the comfortable cloth kinds that can take a little chewing] to keep the child company in the play-pen or high chair. And of course Mother Goose is not forgotten. She comes in large sizes to read aloud and small ones to carry—with lovely pictures to suit every taste and prices for every purse. There are lots of good stories to read aloud; the old favorites that grandmother read to her children and gay, exciting ones of today. They are all new to the baby.

Songs, pictures, stories, and rhymes — share them with your child. Select them carefully but give him a wide choice and see how quickly the baby develops discrimination. Save the beautifully bound volume for clean hands and the special occasion but see that he has plenty of sturdily bound books with which to grow. If a favorite wears out, replace it. Books will enrich all his experiences and the best of the old with the outstanding new books now will bring rich dividends in the future.

Make Believe Chums Live in a Sheer Cliff

By William Hall

Author of "Shoelace Robin"

Our house is built about 50 feet in front of a sheer, rocky cliff. When we moved in several years ago the cliff was a source of great interest to our 3 year old daughter Susan.

She soon had it populated by two characters, Mac and his brother, Googi. These two products of her imagination kept Susan, not to mention my wife and me,—constantly amused. In the mornings she looked out at the cliff and asked them how they felt that day.

If it rained or snowed she would invite them indoors. We heard lengthy stories about their daily doings. Sometimes they were at work and sometimes at play, but never dull.

One day following a visit by a newly drafted friends of ours Susan, who had overheard the conversation, announced that Mac and Googi, too, had been drafted. We have never heard of them since. But with the boys coming home we expect any day to hear about their experiences in the war. We hope so because we have missed them.

For the in-between group, ranging in age from eight to 12 years, there is, as usual, a large range of interests covered. Among the ever favored animal stories are Helen Watson's "Shavetail Sam" [Houghton, $2], Delia Goetz's "Burro of Barnegat Road" [Harcourt, $2], "A Donkey for the King" by Olive Price [Whitlesey House, $1.75] with lovely illustrations by Valenti Angelo, and "Ponies on Parade" by Margaret Self [Dutton, $1.75].

For those who like to chuckle as they read, one can recommend "Artie and the Princess" by Marjorie Torrey [Howell Soskin, $2], "All Those Buckles" by E. R. Gaggin [Viking, $2], Margaret Scoggin's "Chucklebait" [Knopf, $2.50], and Myra Richardson's "Mule Skinners" [Viking, $2].

On the other hand, "Two Young Corsicans" by Anne Bird Stewart [Lippincott, $2], "Yu Lan, Flying Boy of China" by Pearl Buck [John Day, $1.50] and "Orange on Top" by Henrietta Van der Haase [Harcourt, $2] tell of other children whose customs and language are different, but with whom American boys and girls find much in common.

Altho war stories may lose something of their interest for young readers now, books on aviation such as "How Planes Get There" and "Planes in Action" by Aviation Research associates [Harper, $1 each], "Seabees" by Henry Lent [Macmillan, $2], and "This Is the Navy" by Critchell Rimington [Dodd, $2.75] with its many fine photographs, are always in demand.

Geography in its new form such as "The Gulf Stream" by Ruth Brindze, with its colorful pictures by Helene Carter [Vanguard, $2], and Vernon Quinn's "Picture Map Geography of the Pacific Islands" by Arensa Sondergaard [Little, $2] is popular for leisure time reading. "Fun with Chemistry" by Mae and Ira Freeman [Random House, $1.25] has a place on the hobby shelf, as has "Things to Make from Odds and Ends" by Jessie Robinson [Appleton-Century, $2].

Inspiring stories of great Americans who set the goal high for young people today are "George Carver, Boy Scientist" by Augusta Stevenson [Bobbs-Merrill, $1.50], "Born to Command" by Helen Nicolay [Appleton-Century, $2.50], the story of Gen. Eisenhower, and "Henry's Lincoln" by Louise A. Neyhart [Holiday House, $1.50].

John J. Floherty's "Behind the Radio" [Lippincott, $2], "Electronics for Boys and Girls" by Jeanne Bardick [McGraw Hill, $1.50], and "Rockets and Jets" by Herbert S. Zim [Harcourt, $3] are factual books looking toward the scientific future of the world in which these young readers will live.

Rich Art Poured Into Books to Delight Young Readers

By Helen D. Putnam

If one wonders what becomes of the hundreds of art students graduating from our art schools each year, a peek into the present storybook world would likely reveal the whereabouts of some of the brighter ones.

Juvenile book illustration today brings small art galleries to storybook land. It seems more interesting to me to see a picture hung in this storybook art gallery than in the real galleries to which people go to on Sunday afternoons.

The artists' work for the children seems to be a labor of love with the enchanting memories of their own childhood to inspire them.

The humor, tenderness and beauty of the juvenile book illustrations are matched by the rich variety of techniques and mediums used. Water color wash drawings, crayon, pen and ink, drybrush, woodcuts and ingenious combinations of techniques are employed, always with the consideration concerning the effectiveness of technique to the subject matter of the story.

Many juvenile book illustrators have developed a style that is very appealing and suitable for young children. One artist illustrating a late book has created figures with a resemblance to animated rag dolls. The little figures in the story move in a childishly charming way across the pages, without the wooden jerkiness of puppets.

Fine draughtmanship and sensitive line abound in the illustrations. The puppies are silky and saucy and drawn with joy and abandon. The cats are drawn with a liquid grace that is especially their own.

The color in the juvenile books has been generous. Sometimes rich and gay — sometimes with a fairy delicacy the artist wields his brush like a magic wand.

The children are lucky these days to be able to merely turn pages and see these fine miniature art galleries. The artists are fortunate, too, to have their pictures hung before the most eager eyes and the most impressionable minds in the world.

U.S. Liberty Accented in History Books

By Clara Ingram Judson
Author of "Petar's Treasure [They Came from Dalmatia]"

To one who knows American history, the idea of varied races and cultures working together is no utopian dream. This feat has already been done in America and in our own Chicago—done so naturally that we are hardly aware of the miracle accomplished.

Think for a minute, who is an American? All of us came here from overseas because we, or our ancestors, thought America was a good place to live.

In America, as nowhere else on earth, differences have been adjusted to the business of everyday living. When you walk thru Chicago's loop you are not conscious of Swedes, Serbs, Ukranians, Italians, Poles, Spaniards—you see Americans. But if you followed people to their homes you would find cultural diversities of music, literature, food tastes, and backgrounds and you would see that each home brings its own contribution to our rich heritage. Did you know that one branch of the Chicago public library serves 38 nationalities—all now Americans?

Several Chicago writers for children, as you see by this issue, are bringing to our future citizens a wider knowledge of our history. My own work these last few years has been to interpret the culture and fine character brought to America by families who left the old world to find freedom and opportunity in the new. We believe that an understanding of the history and background of our country will give us skill and courage in making a better world.

Emotions Play a Big Part in Reading of Juveniles

also looks like a lump on the ground. It is natural for trees to talk because they make sounds. Animals should have all human qualities because they have the same habits such as eating and sleeping. One reason for the enormous success of the Babar books [which I would suggest as the most successful children's books of the century] is their natural and easy combination of the simple daily things with the imaginative. The elephants live like people, accusingly and amusingly like people, and yet they do the impossible, and do it with grace and conviction.

They miss Santa Claus and so it is natural that one should go to the north pole and fall into a toy workshop. It is natural for Zephir, a monkey, to ride in the front seat of a car and say to the elephant who is driving, "Let's go! Step on the gas!" It is this confusion of the human with the natural world which is one of the great delights of childhood, which gives the child so much larger an environment to live in than that of so many adults, whose lives have shrunk to the small area of family and a few friends. For a child, the world's the limit. In one of the finest children's books, Ola and Blakken, the excitement of the children in Norway over the troll-cock who comes to destroy them is very real and terribly communicating, so that the child listening to the story is right there in the forest crouching behind a tree sweating it out. The legend and the factual story join in the child in one new and believable world.

Another aspect of children's books is the rhythmical quality of the language. Even in simple prose this is necessary. One reason for the continued enormous success of Little Black Sambo is the repeated phrase, "Now I'm the grandest tiger in the jungle," and of the rich names Black Mumbo and Black Jumbo. There is also the accumulated force with which the book ends, the counting of the pancakes eaten: "And Black Mumbo ate 27 pancakes. And Black Jumbo ate 55. But Little Black Sambo ate 169 . . . because he was so hungry." Nonsense words have a great attraction for children. [This may be because so many of the ordinary words sound so ridiculous and dull, whereas the nonsense words sound beautiful.] "Fe, Fi, Fo, Fum" is as powerful an incantation as any child could want, and "Diddledy, iddledy, dumpty" is gay. There are the refrains of Mother Goose which are not only easy to remember because of their repetition and their strong rhythm, but which are highly imaginative as well:

> And when you heart begins to bleed,
> You're dead, and dead, and dead indeed.

Children always love human weakness in books, like Tigger in the Pooh book, who tries all kinds of food before he finds what he wants, and like Walter, the Lazy Mouse, in the book of that name by Marjorie Flack, in which Walter finds it very fine to try a frog's way of living for a while, shirking all his mouse-responsibility. The virtue of The Wind in the Willows by Kenneth Grahame is that all the animals are so decidedly human, talking often a more humanly revealing way than many actual characters in many novels. Badger asks, "How's old Toad going on?" "O, from bad to worse," said the Rat gravely. Both sound like a child trying to be grown up. Each animal is completely himself, so that when the Mole inquires, on a cold winter day, where the Badger is—"The master's gone into his study, sir," replied the Hedgehog, "and said as how he was going to be particularly busy this morning." The rest of the animals understand that "in the usual way" means that Badger is going to sleep all morning. This bit of animal frailty is so undeniably human that even a small child perceives it.

The illustrations for children's books are many of them remarkably fine today. Children especially like huge figures and very tiny ones, the big ones because they seem impressive and the tiny ones because the child can have the pleasure of finding and identifying them and feeling superior over such small things.

Words of all kinds are needed, especially big ones that the child does not know, and not a bare vocabulary. Never underestimate the responsiveness of a child, who loves to find new sounds and new meanings and will go around all day making a song out of some ridiculous and meaningless tag or out of some single word. I once heard a child make a very fine song out of the rich sounding word "umbrella." It was called the umbrella song, and consisted of chanting the word over and over with many Oh's and many variations in emphasis on the one word, so that it sounded like many words in a strange and handsome language. I was driving on a frequently turning country road the other day when my five year old daughter said, "This road reminds me of a swan's neck." "Why?" "Because it curves around just like a swan's neck."

That's the kind of association which makes a child's mind capable of many attitudes which the age-enfeebled adult's mind does not grasp. It is the kind of thing which makes the child naturally accept the strained and imaginative figures of poetry where the adult will often find them ridiculous.

The books that come to a child are terribly important, for the cast of his mind will be shaped by them, just as it will be shaped in a certain way if he has no books at all. For the child lives in a broad and turning world, with deeper shadows and stronger lights than the adult world, with everything in it alive and moving on urgent business, as the child moves. Books will expand that world and make the child more a child, which is what you want. The child will grow up soon enough into the half-creatures living in their half-world whom we call adults. Give books, share them with the child, and you will see a very short way into the full and forested world. And in it you will see your child.

A STORY TO SET MANY TONGUES WAGGING

Career Girl Finds a New Love Better

"DAISY KENYON," by Elizabeth Janeway. [Doubleday, Doran, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher

The author of the surprise first novel best seller, "The Walsh Girls," has, in her second book, something on the order of the Comstock lode. Before publication it started its golden yield by a sale to Hollywood for $100,000. It is destined for best sellerdom outdistancing its predecessor. It is controversial and will offer the neighborhood gossips hours of fruity argument—all of which wil compound its sales the way a chain letter compounds interest. It is an intimate book about a woman and the major interests of most of womankind—love and marriage, sometimes not synonymous, as any woman will admit, if she is in love and/or married.

"Daisy Kenyon" is the story of a girl who thought she was in love, had thought so for many years. As the book opens, Daisy had been the mistress of a brilliant man, but she had lived her wholly self-dependent life as an illustrator. She was in her 30s and not looking into the next decades with happy serenity when the young art director of a magazine jolts her out of her comalike love affair into matrimony, only to have the war jolt them out of their modern Eden.

What Mrs. Janeway's story lacks in breadth of scene and population [there are only three characters of any motivating importance at all], it makes up for in the depth of emotion. Whatever there is to know or tell about the emotions of love in and out of matrimony Mrs. Janeway has told with sometimes an almost cathartic thoroness, sometimes an almost scientific detachment. All that is good as well as bad, all that is beautiful as well as ugly she sees and records. If any one has ever written a more tender idyl of married love than the record of Daisy and Pete Lapham's summer together before he leaves for his training as a soldier, I have not read it.

And yet there is no more sentimentality about either the living or the telling of it than there is about cooking a good dinner. The result of an inspired cook's labors may be delicious and nourishing and the source of deep emotions on the part of those who partake of it, but no cook lyricizes over the ingredients which she compounds into a masterpiece. Elizabeth Janeway has somehow managed to give her characters a hard boiled crust of ultra-sophistication which the rest of the world thinks is typical of New Yorkers, and a cynicism about emotion, but these characteristics only emphasize the lyric idyllic beauty of love in marriage between these two adults, who are often brutally honest with themselves.

But that love is only part of the story. That love is preceded by and threatened by another love, which is almost as frankly and as deeply probed by the author. A final incident of that relationship will set the kaffee klatches buzzing, and how the movies will film it is as much a mystery as how they'll get the multiple bedding downs of "Forever Amber" onto censorable celluloid. The conclusions of the heroine about her own emotions will also give Mrs. Janeway's feminine readers much to argue over. And they'll all love the argument!

"Daisy Kenyon" is subtitled "a historical novel 1940-1942." As an analysis of America and her temper in those fateful years it is too meager a picture to be interpretive.

Elizabeth Janeway, whose new novel, "Daisy Kenyon," is reviewed today by Fanny Butcher.

Aldanov Makes New Novel a Parable for Reformers

"FOR THEE THE BEST," by Mark Aldanov. [Scribner's, $2.50.]

Reviewed by James Gray

In "For Thee the Best," Mark Aldanov has written a parable of reformers. The time is the early 19th century; the narrative pattern is concerned with the intrigues and betrayals of the post-Napoleonic chaos in Europe; the theme is the pretense of leaders that they wish to create an ordered and just human society when really they wish only to continue to scheme and betray according to the old routine.

The poet, Lord Byron, emerges as the embodiment of the spirit of his time. Gifted, shrewd, restless, he undertakes, in this brilliant re-creation, to justify his life by going on an expedition to free the Greeks from the Turks. But his mission is foredoomed because it is enacted against a background of cynicism and hostility which casts the shadow of worldly contempt on all idealism. Byron himself believes less than half in his own enterprise. Bored with the vulgarity of his own showy talent, satiated of all his sophisticated pleasures, he goes to Greece seeking a grave and little more. When his expedition blows up in the atmosphere of opera bouffe, with spies, amateurs, adventurers and incompetents tumbling grotesquely across the scene he is not surprised. The cynicism of the day, the language of which he understood so well, had warned him in advance that it must be so.

The larger implication of the parable is that reformers always have their tongues in their cheeks. The leaders met in the Congress of Verona, espousing lofty principles of unity and brotherhood, meant really to sabotage all those supposed purposes. The renegade liberal, Emperor Alexander of Russia, bored, like Byron, with the complexities of ideals, tossed them into the discard in the belief that to disturb existing conditions of society would be to run the risk of creating worse ones.

Aldanov, an exile from his native Russia, has, it seems to me, glanced slyly over the shoulders of the leaders of the 18th century to look scrutinizingly at the leaders of our own time. He seems to offer the warning that history will repeat itself once more now that at San Francisco and at London we talk of world unity.

The book is brilliantly and charmingly written. It is the work of a disillusioned liberal who seems to suggest with a kind of genial, undismayed and quite merciless pessimism that, in a world like ours the civilized man can do nothing but wait patiently for inevitable doom. His book should be read as a footnote to past disaster and, I think, should be rejected as a prophecy of what is to come.

Thoreau Centenary to Be Marked Here

Sponsors are the Boswell society, the Thoreau society, the Civitan club, and International house. The meeting will be open to the public. This year marks the centenary of the beginning of Thoreau's "adventure in living" at Walden pond.

Three New Books to Please Supernatural Story Reader

"THE MAZE," by Maurice Sandoz. Illustrated by Salvador Dali. [Doubleday, Doran, $2.50.]

"THE LURKER AT THE THRESHOLD," by H. P. Lovecraft and August Derleth. [Arkham House, $2.50.]

"H. P. L.: A MEMOIR," by August Derleth. [Ben Abramson, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht

"The Maze" is the work of a French writer best known in this country for his "Fantastic Memories," but it finds its perfect setting in an old castle in Scotland. This is the type of supernatural tale in which suspense and terror are developed by continual reference to strange happenings but without ever giving the reader the remotest hint as to the cause; and nobody has ever done the job much better. Some of the 18th century people who used this method—even the great Mrs. Radcliffe—often let their readers down at the end by "explaining" all their wonders naturalistically. M. Sandoz does not make that mistake, tho it must be admitted that his solution, tho undeniably supernatural, is not particularly interesting or fearsome; neither is it—in the special sense in which one uses that term in connection with this kind of story—very convincing.

"The Maze" has been handsomely gotten up, with many illustrations by the most gifted and most perverse of contemporary painters. Mr. Dali's drawings are very satisfying compositions; that they are also, as the publishers claim, interpretations of the story is more doubtful.

"The Lurker at the Threshold," which Lovecraft left unfinished at his untimely death, and which Mr. Derleth has now brought to a conclusion, is a far more elaborate affair, a narrative as highly wrought and intricately developed as a detective story by Dorothy Sayers or Michael Innes.

This book belongs to the Cthulhu mythos, the fundamental idea of which is that the world was once inhabited "by another race of beings who, because of certain dark practices, lost their foothold on earth and were expelled by 'elder gods.'" There is a fearsome world of otherwhere, inhabited by beings unutterably evil; and these lurkers at the threshold can, under certain conditions, invade this earth to the vast discomfort of its present inhabitants. In this novel a terrifying channel is provided for them, thru certain members of a Massachusetts family, from colonial times to the present.

It is a tribute to Mr. Derleth's skill in fostering the Lovecraft cult that interest in the late master should now have reached the point where a biography becomes necessary. Most readers will leave "H. P. L." with the feeling that Lovecraft was a man who, being unable to "face life," took refuge in a wonder world of his own creation. I am not sure myself that I know what "facing life" means; "life" is much bigger than even the omniscient psychiatrist's definition of it; neither do I understand how a man who remains in the world and earns a living there can quite avoid "facing life."

Lovecraft probably inherited both frail health and a tendency toward the neurotic; but his outlook on life was healthy, and in all moral matters his principles were as strict as possible. He had lost the theology of his Puritan ancestors, however; he was a materialist in philosophy; he even argues that the writer of supernatural stories must be a materialist! I wonder how he reconciled this feeling with his admiration for Arthur Machen. This seems to be one of the many fields in which dogmatism is unprofitable. Good weird tales have been written by sceptics and believers alike.

Portrait of Quaker Life In Indiana

"THE FRIENDLY PERSUASION," by Jessamyn West. [Harcourt, Brace, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Richard Sullivan

There are 14 rich, sound, and intensely beautiful stories in "The Friendly Persuasion." Each one is in itself a fresh and unusual accomplishment in prose. Taken all together, added one to one like glittering beads on a fine strong chain, they have almost the effect of a novel, rendering in full the good substance and meaning of life as lived by the Birdwell family, "birthright" Quakers, during the whole second half of the past century, in southern Indiana.

Jessamyn West

Jess Birdwell is a man who sees himself as "jolted from daylight to dusk with pleasing ideas." His wife, Eliza, is "a little, black-haired, glossy woman," whose wedding ring makes "the constant light clatter of gold against glass and silver that said, I'm a lady grown and mistress of dishes and cupboards."

These two and their children — Mattie, Labe, and Josh in particular — are vividly realized characters, human beings of integrity, force, and humor. [Incidentally, the amazing goose Samantha and the fast mare Lady — who "wasn't hung together right. She looked like she had cow blood in her, or moose blood, or buffalo blood" — are wonderfully realized creations on their own subhuman level.]

But perhaps the single mark which makes the Birdwells extraordinary in the fiction of our day is their warm and profound piety. These people see God in things. For them spring is "a season with the Lord's thumbprint fresh on it." And the land in which they live is for them precisely the land "that floweth with milk and honey."

The events of the various stories, the bare subjects stripped of the lovely words and the remarkable insights, amount to nothing much more exciting than the purchase of an organ, the installation of gas lighting, the digging up in an old cellar of a buried page from Great-Uncle Jerd's Bible, the worry of an aging man about death. But seen into — and the author's gentle penetrations often go very deep — these simple involvements reveal strange, bright, elusive implications about the grave and comic scope of man on this fair planet.

Non-Fiction Titles

The November-December list of Houghton Mifflin includes the following nonfiction titles: "Elizabeth and Leicester," by Milton Waldman; "Gumbo Ya-Ya," a book of Louisiana folklore by Lyle Saxon, Edward Dreyer, and Robert Tallant, and "More Lives than One," by Hebert Douglas Skidmore.

Tale of Returned Veterans Is Told in Uncertain Verse

"GLORY FOR ME," by MacKinlay Kantor. [Coward-McCann, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Paul Engle

Three strangers meet at an air field where planes are returning discharged men home to various parts of the United States. They are an air force lieutenant, an infantry sergeant, a sailor. They find that all are going to the same home town, altho they had never seen one another before. This book tells, in rapid and awkward and idiomatic verse, the story of the struggle they all had after getting home. The sailor is semi-paralyzed on one side and his face and hands twitch from a torpedo explosion. The sergeant sees behind the people intent on their soft and selfish living the men of his platoon who died, and the ways they died, in order that the soft life might go on. The lieutenant finds all his jobs trivial and dull as he thinks of the parachute he saw falling over the French city, a parachute on fire and dropping one of his friends to death. The story has relevance and force and often excitement.

It is hard to understand why Kantor wrote this perfect movie story in verse, for he writes it badly. The lines puff and drag at times, and at other times jump and squirm and refuse to sound like verse at all. The images are trite in a book where all should be fresh and taken from the war and the machines and men who fought it. An enormous triteness invades the most emotional scenes, as when the lieutenant sees a girl he loves:

She shone
More beautiful, more charged with limpid life
Than all the courtesans of history.
She wasn't a courtesan. She was a nice girl in Des Moines.

The book is all that way, a curious mixture of tough talk and sentimentality. The countryside cannot even escape it:

Young Homer Wermels now beheld
A haze, a verdant hymn of afternoon.

Stripped of its false rhetoric and its impossible thought [Al, the tough sergeant, thinks: "'Oh what's the joy in any such promotion, When I know his soul is sick, And mine is not revivified?'"] the book has a genuine merit of carefully contrived story and motive.

The character of the miserable wounded sailor is the finest thing in the whole poem, for he is unsentimentalized and honest. The lieutenant might be any of ten thousand baffled men, trained to a fine pitch of accuracy at bombing, but knowing that their skill has no use in the ten thousand home towns of America.

The sergeant, a rich banker before entering the army, is the most unreal character, there being no explanation offered as to why he should have made his profound revolt against the meanness and greed of some civilians. He had been to the war, but that seems not enough argument, for why did he have the capacity to be changed by it? What had there been in his life before the war that made him able to oppose the whole comfortable system into which he had been born?

There are various verbal tricks used to smooth out the verse. The author constantly follows a verb by an adjective, "Holding proud a covered dish," "And Mr. Jacobson drove deep a stake." It's wrong and it's crude. Mr. Kantor splits an infinitive with all the joy of Abe Lincoln in his young manhood splitting rails: "The noise of past America . . . To never boom again."

The right medium for this story would have been a good, hard, clean, simple prose, not this inflated and falsely poetic language. The complications of the story push it on and there is a conviction about the episodes which makes them seem right. There are good scenes, such as the first evening they are all three back in town and all of them are driven by their restlessness out of their homes to a bar where they keep alive a little longer, against the force of civilian life, the sense of group effort they had known in service.

The air force details are authentic, much the best part of the book [Mr. Kantor flew as a correspondent in England]. The personal conflicts of the men are very believable, but the author cannot do as well with emotions, for when he handles them he has his characters drooling like sheep. Would these lines properly fit the returned sailor as he lies on a bed lost and sick?

O soft, O warm and comforting,
A mother lap, a tender lap, a sweetheart place,
A cleanly cloth to spread his tears upon!

The characters talk like men, but they think in the language of a worn-out 19th century poetry. It was a 20th century war, but it is in this book as a mixture of new terms of flight and old terms of tears and sentiment.

The book will be a popular success, the movies will film it [after some hard boiled script writers have knocked the fake poetry out of it] and Mr. Kantor will make enough money to buy a Piper Cub and fly away.

In spite of its faults, this is a solid effort, with a genuine sense of the life of the ordinary American city, the kind of people in that city and the way they speak. Even the dogs are real.

"THE ONE THAT GOT AWAY," by Helen McCloy. [Morrow, $2.]	Boy adopted by author and wife in Scotland after German bombs destroyed children evacuees' refuge developed habit of running away from home and disappearing in moor. Peter Dunbar, American psychiatrist on leave from navy, searched for reasons and found startling answer in climax of murders.	Cleverly original puzzle plot in admirably written and seriously composed novel, altho many mystery readers may resent dragging approach to drama thru first half of book.
"MARKED FOR MURDER," by Brett Halliday. [Dodd, Mead, $2.]	Beating and shooting of Tim Rourke, Miami reporter crusading against gambling racket and unsolved murders, brought Michael Shayne back to old stamping ground for tempestuous adventure with dazzling but dangerous blondes, and venomous but successful tilt with Chief Painter.	Shayne fans will welcome him back in old surroundings and among old enemies, at work with revived "surge of strength and assurance." He does one of his keenest detective jobs in one of his sharpest puzzles.
"THE YELLOW ROOM," by Mary Roberts Rinehart. [Farrar & Rinehart, $2.50.]	When Carol Spencer arrived to open family summer home in Maine, she found corpse of murdered woman in linen closet. Maj. Jerry Dane, recuperating nearby, was chiefly responsible for unraveling involved details of family scandal.	Author's established skill for weaving a murder puzzle somewhat overworked in producing confusing complications in this tale. Enjoyable, but laborious for the reader.

THE LITERARY SPOTLIGHT

by Fanny Butcher

ARTHUR MEEKER JR., whose "The Far Away Music" is sure to be one of the season's most popular gift books, himself had an unexpected gift a week ago yesterday. . . . That afternoon he autographed copies of the new book in the book department of Marshall Field & Co. . . . Rose Oller Harbaugh, the head of the department, gave a luncheon in his honor preceding the autographing and at it a huge cake with "Happy Birthday" was set before the surprised author who had no suspicion that any one knew it was his as well as his latest book's birthday. . . .

An honored guest at the luncheon was Mr. Meeker's aunt, Mrs. David Shields Cook, from whose interest in and records of the family history her nephew had gathered the factual data for "The Far Away Music." . . . For it is a fictionization of family lore. . . . Its hero is Mr. Meeker's own great-grandfather, who also listened to the far away music and went west during the gold rush and returned, as did Jonathan Trigg, only to disappear again, permanently.

Mrs. Cook told the luncheon guests that on Nov. 3, 1902, she and her three small nephews were traveling in Germany when they had word of young Arthur's birth. . . . The Arthur Meeker house at 1815 Prairie av. was being redecorated and the Meekers were temporarily living in the home of the three little boys at 1726 Prairie av. . . . They were all convinced, she said, that since the stork had left the baby at their house, he must be their brother.

Arthur Meeker Jr., in listening to the far away music of the urge to write instead of becoming a successful business man, is neither brother nor son nor grandchild nor even great-grandchild of any of the now vast family, the members of which ever since the 1850s have been social and economic pillars of Chicago. . . . Unless perhaps by the persistence of genes atune to literature in a family thru his great-grandfather Griggs, who went to California in the gold rush and found the gold of intellectual happiness in running a bookshop in Sacramento, Cal.

A Secret in the Family

"Ever since I first heard the details about my great-grandfather's life [and it wasn't until 10 years ago that I did, which shows you how they love to hush up unpleasantness in the tribe], I knew I'd have to make a novel of them," Arthur Meeker told me. . . . "Fundamentally everything in the book is true. . . . Life in Hebron [which is really Lebanon Springs, N. Y.]; the experiences of the family there; the pilgrimage to Chicago; the entire tale of Jonathan and Julia and their marriage and how it went on the rocks," Mr. Meeker once wrote me. "My grandmother's love story is true, too. . . . I reconstructed it from a packet of old letters 'Ted' wrote in after life, in which he referred many times to the summer in Naperville. I believe up to almost the last minute she could not decide which man to marry! . . . Even the little white house in State st. was real; it stood just where Kranz's candy store is now—that seems the most incredible part of it when you think of it. . . . What I am hoping above all is that some reader of the book will write to me and say he knows where Grandfather Griggs is buried. He disappeared into air. . . . We have no idea what he did after he left Chicago for the second time, where he lived, or when he died. . . . I'd rather like to lay a wreath on his grave—tho of course 'The Far Away Music' is a kind of wreath, too." . . . And that, almost precisely, is what the book is—a tender tribute to the past, a wreath of literary immortelles.

Material for Historical Novel

Mr. Meeker has spent his summers in Europe ever since his college days. . . . Seven of them just before the war, gathering material for his long novel of 17th century France, "The Ivory Mischief," the first novel by a Chicagoan chosen by the Book of the Month club. . . . He is at work now, gathering material for another novel of the same period in long-ago France. . . . "I've over 400 pages of notes on the Montmorencies and their times," he confided to me last summer. . . . But his native Chicago also lures him creatively, and "The Far Away Music" will be followed some time by a novel of the generations following it chronologically, a tale of the great days of "Prairie Avenue." . . . Frederic Babcock introduced Mr. Meeker at the autographing party and, despite the strike at Marshall Field's, there was such a line of autograph seekers that Mr. Meeker was still signing books at 4:30.

On from New York to join in the birthday festivities of book and author was Hardwick Moseley, vice president of Houghton Mifflin company, which published "The Far Away Music."

Homer Croy Can't Forget Rural Youth

"WONDERFUL NEIGHBOR," by Homer Croy. [Harper, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Kelsey Guilfoil

Homer Croy

Of all the farm boys who have made good in the city, Homer Croy is least likely to forget—or let you forget—that he once milked cows and pitched hay. The smell of the soil still lingers in Homer Croy's nostrils, and to him it is richer and more fragrant than spices of Araby.

This love of the land, coupled with the fact that he shook the plow dust off his shoes at an early age, makes his nostalgia all the warmer. And in "Wonderful Neighbor" he has again re-created those scenes so dear to him in retrospect.

It is not a novel, nor yet a biography. It might be called "Homer Grows Up," for it tells a good deal of the author's boyhood experiences. But the "wonderful neighbor" of the title was Newt Kennedy, a sagacious farmer who was to young Homer the embodiment of all that was good in the land and in farming.

The story [for it is a story] of Newt and his family and his neighbors accomplishes something that many books about farm life fail to do: It shows clearly the gulf between the farmer and the townsman, how each is likely to regard the other as a bit touched in the head for preferring his way of life. The true farmer can't see why any one should not prefer living close to the soil, and the townsman can't understand why any one can put up with the loneliness, the hardships, and the inconveniences [as he sees them] of living on a farm.

Of course, things have changed since Homer was a boy, as he indicates in this book. Many farmers of today live as comfortably as their city brethren; more so, probably, if they supply most of their own food. The farmer has a wider outlook and is less isolated today. He isn't reading by kerosene lamps and depending on a party line phone and a village weekly to bring him news of the world.

The rich flavor of country life is still there, however, and is fully realized in this slender volume by Homer Croy. There are many things in it to enjoy. Anton Delinsky, a Russian or possibly a Pole, slowly becomes Americanized, and, more than that, a good American farmer. Ida, the pretty and popular daughter of the Kennedys, falls in love with the wrong sort of men and has to be rescued by the wise and patient Newt. For most readers whose memories include rural scenes the principal delight will be the intimate details of life in the country.

It is a small thing that Homer Croy has done, and it doesn't measure up to the best of his work, but it's a genial little book that lovers of country life will cherish.

Chicago Writer Finds New York Welcome is Not Cold

By Harry Hansen

New York

GEORGE VICTOR MARTIN of Chicago, who came to New York with a manuscript and the hope that he wouldn't be kicked down stairs, has completely changed his view of this city. "I thought it was a cold place where young people became broken-hearted," he said, "but instead I've met a lot of kindness and have had a wonderful streak of luck since I came." Biggest luck, of course, was the reception of the motion picture made from "Our Vines Have Tender Grapes," which seems to be sending some spectators into the bookstores, but the most satisfying luck was the fine edition of this novel that Grosset & Dunlap have made for their Film Classics library. In addition Mr. Martin found himself invited to bring his manuscript to two publishing houses, found a movie audience for another project and agreed to write the book of a movie that didn't start as a novel. The Film Classics library is really a handsome job. "Our Vines Have Tender Grapes" started with an edition of 15,000, which went in no time, and another edition of 15,000 is just off the presses. And that is very different from the way the original edition modestly made its way into the bookstores, with few customers until Arnold Gingrich turned on the heat in Chicago.

George Martin tells me that his chief occupation was playing the piano professionally before he wrote this book; he was also called on to accompany artists often. He is enthusiastic about the movie, which features Margaret O'Brien, and not a bit miffed because he is not in the money. Since his original edition was not a big seller, he parted with the motion picture rights for a small sum to an agent who was willing to gamble. "It was perfectly all right with me," he said. From now on, however, he is in a position to drive a bargain—that is, if he writes another book as good as the first.

Six Novels in Film Classics

The four novels that made their appearance simultaneously in the library include "State Fair," by Phil Stong; "Love Letters," by Chris Massie, and "Week-End at the Waldorf," novelized by Charles Lee from the screen play by Sam and Bella Spewack. It seems appropriate that Grosset & Dunlap turned to a Philadelphia critic to write the book, for out-of-towners see more of our hotels. The two novels since added are "Tomorrow Is Forever," by Gwen Bristow, and "And Then There Were None," by Agatha Christie. An interesting story is going the rounds about the latter. It seems that "Ten Little Indians" and "Then There Were None" are two movie versions of the same plot, the Indian title stemming from the play, which had a most successful run on Broadway, and the other title from the book. How this came about I don't know, but evidently Hollywood is quite satisfied, because people are streaming to both films. Can it be that two versions can appear successfully at the same time? Apparently. You figure it out.

Discovery of Navaho Boy Artist

That altogether lovely book called "Spin a Silver Dollar," in which Alberta Hannum describes the discovery by Bill and Sallie Lippincott, at Wide Ruins, N. M., of a Navaho boy with a real talent for drawing, should not be mistaken for a juvenile. It is definitely an account for grownups, altho the drawings, in color, will delight children no less than adults, because they deal with the little animals and big horses that the Indian lad knows. Miss Hannum lives in Wheeling, W. Va., and is visiting in New York. She says that Bill Lippincott, who went into the navy in 1941, will be demobilized soon. The articles that Miss Hannum wrote about the boy artist for Collier's, and the book, have decided the Lippincotts—they are not going to their new ranch in California after all, but will reopen the general store at Wide Ruins, on the Navaho reservation, and apply some of the anthropology they learned at the University of Chicago. The boy artist, whose nickname, Little No-Shirt, seems to me much more pat than his real name of Beatien Yazz, is, unfortunately, no longer a little boy. He is nearly 17 and has long since put on a shirt.

Marjory Gane Harkness, whose experiences as a real estate dealer in New England resulted in a merry book, "'A Brook of Our Own'"—double quotes, please, the lady is quoting the customers, ironically—hangs out her shingle in Tamworth, N. H. I must confess that nowhere in her book did I encounter the term "realtor," which Sinclair Lewis once tried to abolish by ridicule. But on her letterhead—there it is! She's a realtor, without quotes.

Cocktail Parties Going Strong

Things are certainly booming on the cocktail front, John Day company had a party for Margaret Mackey, author of "Lady with Jade" and other books, at the Gotham; she has just returned from six years in Honolulu. Reynal & Hitchcock introduced three authors: Karl Shapiro, Arthur Miller, and David Cornel De Jong at their spacious offices. A tea for Elswyth Thane was given at the Coffee House club by Duell, Sloan & Pearce, Wednesday. Mavis McIntosh and Margot Johnson of A. and S. Lyons, Inc., had cocktails for Newt Brown Wednesday. Dodd, Mead & Co. invited the literary world to meet the winners of the Intercollegiate Literary Fellowship Award, Maureen Daly, Catherine Lawrence, Constance Beresford-Howe, Barbara Bentley, Mary Vardoulakis, and Karon Kehoe, at a reception at the St. Regis. Since it has not been held as I write this report I'll describe it later. By the way, sometimes a correspondent inquires whether "all you people in New York do is to go to cocktail parties?" Hardly. Different faces show up at different parties. We have work to do, too. The biggest gathering of publishers and editors probably will take place at tomorrow's luncheon opening Children's Book week, at the Hotel Astor.

Julie Bascomb — one of the healthy, wealthy, and energetic Bascombs — had married Jonathan Trigg, a foot-loose man who listened to the far away music of the westward trek — not to the pieces played by ladies on pianofortes, nor the music of money coming in.

Chicago in the 1850's is the setting of this story of a large and prosperous family whose black sheep has too much charm to conform to their ways. A novel of many characters drawn with a shrewdness which is always gentle but which is never deceived.

BOOKS ALIVE

by Vincent Starrett

IT is interesting to remember that many of the great children's books were not originally written for children, but for adults. The children, discovering that they were good stories, simply took them over and made them their own. Perhaps the most notable example of this paradox is "Robinson Crusoe," but almost equally famous instances are "Aesop's Fables," "Gulliver's Travels," "Pilgrim's Progress," and the "Arabian Nights." Similarly, such medieval romances as "Robin Hood" were seized by the infants and added to the juvenile shelf, and such handbooks for liars as "Baron Munchausen" became prime favorites of childhood. Later, books for children were deliberately patterned after these masterpieces, and a great convention was inaugurated.

One of the first books, if not the first, written specifically for children, was the work of a Moravian bishop with as much interest in children's minds as grownups' souls. He was Jan Amos Komensky, better known as John Amos Comenius, whose comment, "Pictures are the most intelligible books that children can look upon," should give him high standing among the pioneer advocates of picture books containing a minimum of text. He compiled the first picture book for use in schools, a work in which, it has been said, "for the first time the element of enjoyment was recognized as being a desirable factor in the approach to the minds of the young." Translated into English, in 1658, "Visible World: or a Picture and Nomenclature of all the Chief Things that Are in the World" ran thru innumerable editions.

But there were virtually no children's books, as such, until the 18th century, in England and America anyway. Whatever may have been the intention of the Puritan writers, before that time, their tales for young people were better calculated to terrify than to cheer. Thus it came about that children read what came their way, as they still do; and thus it was that Crusoe, Gulliver, Christian, Aladdin, et al, became the first great heroes of a literature we now call juvenile. Some of the adventures had to be expurgated, to be sure, before they were formally canonized by the elders, but no great harm was done. It is always the duller parts that are removed in such operations. We don't miss them, or even know about them, until childhood is past, and then we wonder what all the excitement was about.

Fairy Tales from France

Fairy tales came to England from France about the beginning of the 18th century, notably the delightful stories of Charles Perrault and the Countess d'Aulnoy. To these writers for the children of the French court we must be forever grateful for the familiar versions of "Cinderella," "Puss in Boots," "Blue Beard," and other classics of the nursery.

Tales of the Moralists

Inspired by Rousseau's educational schemes in "Emile," the moral tale for youngsters came along, late in the 18th century, with the books of Thomas Day, author of "Sandford and Merton," Maria Edgeworth, and such forgotten practitioners as a certain Mrs. Sherwood. Their works were cautionary, improving, and sometimes appallingly instructive, as witness the following episode from Mrs. Sherwood's "Fairchild Family." The Fairchild children having quarreled, their father—remembering that anger is murder—takes them to see "a gibbet, on which the body of a man hung in chains; it had not yet fallen to pieces, altho it had hung there some years."

"The body," continues the ruthless author, "had on a blue coat, a silk handkerchief around the neck, with shoes and stockings, and every other part of the dress was still entire; but the face of the corpse was so shocking that the children could not look at it.

"'O! papa, papa! what is that?' cried the children.

"'That is a gibbet,' said Mr. Fairchild, 'and the man who hangs upon it is a murderer—one who first hated, and afterward killed his brother! When people are found guilty of stealing, they are hanged upon a gallows and taken down as soon as they are dead; but when a man commits murder, he is hanged in iron chains upon a gibbet, till his body falls to pieces, that all who pass may take warning by the example.

"Whilst Mr. Fairchild was speaking, the wind blew strong and shook the body upon the gibbet, rattling the chains by which it hung.

"'O! let us go, papa!' cried the children, pulling Mr. Fairchild's coat.

"'Not yet,' said Mr. Fairchild; 'I must tell you the story of that wretched man before we go from this place!'"

After this experience, nobody will be surprised to hear that the children knelt down and prayed for new hearts.

Moralists in general profess a distaste for fairy tales; they think them subversive and fantastic. To all such I commend the works of Mrs. Sherwood and her kind.

Some Rare Juvenilia

One of the great names in the history of children's books is that of John Newbery, a London publisher, who—along toward the middle of the 18th century—began to print pocket size books especially for the young. His influence extended to the American colonies, and many bits of juvenilia, now desperately rare, inaugurated the flood of children's books that continues to this day. Newbery's books, illustrated by crude woodcuts and bound in colored papers, are very charming and are much sought after by collectors. It may be mentioned that the honest fellow also kept a "medicinal warehouse" and dealt profitably in salves and nostrums, including a best seller called "Dr. James' Fever Powder."

John Harris, one of his successors, produced delicious color books and maintained a production line of children to lay on the color. They sat around a table, says A. W. Tuer, each with his little pan of water color, a brush, a partly colored copy as a guide, and a pile of printed sheets. One child would paint on the red, where it appeared in the copy, another the yellow, and so on until the task was finished.

How Did Elsie Turn Out?

The history of children's books is long and fascinating, but I have run out of space. I conclude with my favorite quotation from "Elsie Dinsmore," a best seller of the American '60s, and still—I am told—a classic of American girlhood. Elsie is speaking.

"'I did not mean to be naughty, papa,' she said, struggling to keep down a sob, 'and I will try never to ask why again.'"

Can some reader of the other 142 Elsie books tell me whether Elsie kept her word? It was a reckless promise. How did Elsie turn out, anyway?

BOOKMAN'S HOLIDAY

By Delos Avery

A MR. WILLIAMS has suggested that since the season for giving books to children is here it might be well for Bookman's Holiday to recognize the fact and do something about it.

So—

Once upon a time [circa 1934] we gave a 39 ounce book to a 13 year old boy, and we shudder still at the memory of the aftermath.

It was a book with bright red covers, we recall, and a black back, lettered in gold. Its pages were rich with Useful Information and brightly adorned with comical pictures. We remember one series of three, showing a Hot Potato and a Hot Dog. Both were wearing shiny black top hats.

In the first picture the Potato and the Dog [we mean a frankfurter, of course] were emerging together from a boiling kettle, both the same temperature, 212 fahrenheit [at sea level]. They looked most uncomfortable.

Well, in the second picture the Potato was still suffering from the heat, while the Dog was as nonchalant as the word nonchalant ought to mean—cool. And in the final picture the Potato was hot as ever and the shivering Dog was trying to warm himself up with mustard.

There were two morals: "Things that heat up slowly stay hot for a long time, while things that heat quickly are quick to cool." The other was: "Beware of Hot Potatoes—they'll scorch your mouth."

The boy we sent the book to was living in Paris in those days and we thought he might need the warning. Years later he came to Chicago and was soon enveloped in an aura of mystery. He was thru with college and he had a job somewhere on the south side, but he never talked about it. He also had a wife and she had a similar job and she never talked about it either. They were the most reticent couple we ever knew. When we called on them all we did was play chess and all we said to each other was "Check" and "Good night."

But one day last summer it was suddenly different.

"Remember the book you sent me in Paris?" the boy said.

"The red one?" said we.

"The title," he said, "was 'From Galileo to Cosmic Rays.' It was by Harvey Brace Lemon. I read it all. It was the book that started me. I've been studying physics ever since."

In another minute the whole truth was out. The mystery cleared like a sun-beaten fog. The boy—and his wife too, a chemist—had been working on the atomic bomb!

Now that is something to remember the next time you have a reckless impulse to give a book to a child. You may be starting something that will menace mankind, topple civilization, vaporize the planet. And if the planet is vaporized, what will happen to the solar system? With the pull of the earth gone, will all the other balanced forces that hold the celestial bodies in their orbits go crazy, tossing the stars and moon about like soap bubbles in a storm? Will there be a chain reaction reaching from uranium to Uranus, a couple of billion miles or so from the sun?

Maybe it would have been better to let all the children in the world scorch their tongues with hot potatoes.

Children are too smart. They ask questions nobody else can answer—so they answer them themselves. They educate themselves, and with malice. Unless closely watched they turn into quizkids [a word we recommend for the next edition of Webster, probably in the same column with that other new one, quisling, spelled without capital letters.]

We remember one who became a famous man, tho at the moment we do not recall his name. The story is that in babyhood, enraged by the negligence of a nursemaid, he lay brooding in his crib and resolved that he would learn to speak English, so he could tattle on her and get her fired.

And do you remember Lady Mary Wortley Montagu? Before she was 10 years old she hid in her father's library and secretly learned Greek, for no better purpose than to find flaws in Alexander Pope's translations and make him miserable.

Children do have some usefulness, perhaps. Many of them function rather well in the task of reëducating their parents. Bachelors may forget their algebra and their Latin. But fathers of large families learn mathematics and the classics all over again every time one of their progeny reaches high school age. We know a man whose reputation for scholarship is based on the fact that he has read Vergil nine times, once for himself and once for each of his eight children.

On the whole, we think, the best thing to do about literature classified as "books for children" is to buy them, hide them from the young, and read them yourself.

BYGONE GLORIES OF LOUISIANA

"PLANTATION PARADE," by Harnett T. Kane. [Morrow, $3.50.]

Reviewed by Walter Havighurst

To his other appealing books on Louisiana, Harnett T. Kane has added one more absorbing still, the story of the great plantations that once lined the Mississippi for a hundred miles above New Orleans. Spacious and serene, pillared and porticoed, flanked by outbuildings and inclosed by lavish gardens, dominating vast acreages of cane and cotton, the planters' mansions symbolized the grand manner that flourished in Louisiana a hundred years ago.

Harnett T. Kane

Mr. Kane describes them graphically, as they were and as they stand, some in dignity and more in ruin, today. The descriptions are tantalizing, and the photographs in this volume are superb, so that one wants to know who lived behind those colonnades. In a series of detailed and engrossing chapters Mr. Kane goes on to tell about the plantation families, the French aristocrats and the American gentlemen, the gracious and the ruthless women, the pattern that the generations followed—usually from power to decay.

Life on the lower Mississippi has changed vastly from the times that produced this splendid feudal regime. But the mood lingers, partly because the river still dominates the area with lordliness and recurrent violence, partly because the hot heavy climate and the lush growth make it a land of shadows and excess.

For many readers Mr. Kane has added to the value of his book by listing a generous number of the old mansions, like serene Ormond, dignified Nottoway, imposing Madewood, ruined Woodlawn, stately and decaying Belle Grove, with directions for reaching them by the highways of today.

Miss Bankhead to Open Nov. 19 in "Foolish Notion"

June Havoc Also Arrives Same Night

By Claudia Cassidy

Declaim all you like that the play's the thing, for sometimes that's true. But at the moment the main topic of theatrical conversation is not "Foolish Notion," but that it's bringing Tallulah to town. Aside from the unexpected descent of the Lunts from their Wisconsin haven, I doubt that any other star bait would cause quite such agitated nibbling on the playgoing line. For Miss Bankhead of Alabama has that magnetism we call glamor, and she hasn't been here since "The Little Foxes." In between she played the remarkable Sabina in "The Skin of Our Teeth," the mink coated correspondent of diamond bracelet fame in Hitchcock's "Lifeboat," and one of Russia's Catherines, and here she is back with two leading men and a Mainbocher wardrobe. There isn't much doubt about where the town is going the night of Nov. 19.

As of course you know by this time, the Theater Guild has done a good deal of work on "Foolish Notion" since it played New York last season. Philip Barry rewrote some of it, and John Emery is considered a sizable improvement over Henry Hull as the husband who returns, Enoch Arden style, to attempt to wrest Miss Bankhead from Donald Cook. Mr. Emery, I understand, plays a highly theatrical part with a wide streak of ham, for which the role is grateful. For this is a play about actors and its whole point is dramatizing the husband's return as each character visualizes it, and finally as it actually happens. Miss Bankhead is supposed to have a Studebaker gown to match each mood, which is nice going, even for Mainbocher.

"The Ryan Girl" also sets up shop Nov. 19, with the Blackstone as its show window, and the night of Nov. 20 brings the Civic Opera house the first local revival of "The Desert Song" since its original production at the Great Northern more than 15 years ago. "The Ryan Girl" came out of Hollywood with Edmund Goulding as author and director, and it co-stars June Havoc and Edmund Lowe in a cast which also holds Doris Dalton, Una O'Connor, Curtis Cooksey, and Calvin Thomas. It is a melodrama about what happens when a criminal wants to use his hero son as a shield from prosecution despite the fact that he abandoned him as a child and the boy is ignorant of his unsavory background. Miss Havoc, who once played Crystal in our company of "The Women," and more recently was Sadie Thompson in the revival of "Rain," plays an ex-Follies girl who is the boy's mother.

"The Desert Song" is Edwin Lester's highly praised production, with Walter Cassel and Dorothy Sandlin in the roles first played here by Alexander Gray and Charlotte Lansing. Sigmund Romberg's score holds such favorites as "One Alone," "The Desert Song," and "The Song of the Riffs," and for this revival he added a new dance number called "Tropics." Boris Aronson designed the production, and the book is staged by Sterling Holloway.

This week's only theatrical newcomer is Louisa Horton, who plays K. T. Stevens' part in "The Voice of the Turtle" for a month starting tomorrow night, and thereby gets in trim for the Boston company opening in January. If an adventurous background means anything in theater, Miss Horton is going places. She was born in Peking, China, brought up in Quantico, Va., and lived in Haiti for five years, all because her father is an officer in the marines. The sight of Eva Le Gallienne's "L'Aiglon" made her want to know more about theater, so she studied in New York, then joined Philadelphia's Hedgerow theater and later played the Hepburn role in "The Philadelphia Story" at the Strand theater in Stamford, Conn. Her Broadway début was in "Love on Leave."

Busy as she is with "The Two Mrs. Carrolls," Elisabeth Bergner is making plans for a two play repertory next season. One will be "The Duchess of Malfi," long since announced for revival, and the other Jean Giradoux's "Undine." For that matter, Miss Bergner could revive plays from her extraordinary theatrical past and keep herself busy for seasons to come.

Herbert Graf, stage director of the Chicago and Metropolitan operas, is looking over the horizon into a busy summer. He will stage Benjamin Britten's "Peter Grimes" when Serge Koussevitzky and Eddie Dowling launch the opera at Tanglewood, and he already has been in conference with officials of the Central City theater which will be reopened after several seasons of war time darkness. Mr. Graf also has dreams about that other Colorado theater, the wonderful amphitheater called Red Rocks, near Denver. He wants to do "Die Walküre" there, as does every other operagoer who sets dazzled eyes on that magnificent eyrie.

Your really creative press agent is one who denies things before any one invents them. For example, Billy Rose's local courier hastens to tell me that Mr. Rose has scotched such canards as putting on "Carmen Jones" next season under canvas with Joe Louis featured in the boxing finale, or producing "Faust" with a book by Oscar Hammerstein II. and with Paul Robeson as Mephisto.

Devi-Dja and her gallant little dance troupe, who took to the restaurant business when war time transportation difficulties ended their concert travel, will go back home after the first of March, probably playing some Australian dates on the way. They will leave a few people here to keep the Sarong up to its Bali-Java standard.

Breakfast Without Bedlam with Olsen and Johnson

BREAKFAST with Olsen and Johnson is a startlingly normal affair once you arrive at the place of dispensation. They were both playing straight when I arrived half an hour late, crossing their hearts they hadn't ganged up on me by advance information that Mr. Olsen lived at what turned out to be the tintinnabulous hostel which in truth is Mr. Johnson's abode. What happened because of that misdirection would fit nicely into "Laffing Room Only," if there were room. It was a bedlam of frustrated inquiry in which no less than three hotel clerks assured me no Ole Olsen lived there on any floor, and seemed to think Olsen and Johnson were transients, perhaps in the garment trade. "Do you mean to infer, or even to imply," I demanded at baffled last, "that you can have either half of Olsen and Johnson on the premises and not know it?" Obviously, that was a facer not to be contemplated even by a hotel clerk, so I got there along with the eggs, sausages, hashed brown potatoes, toast, coffee, and the pot of tea for Ole. They couldn't get any ham, having recently cornered the market on that succulent subject, to beat the critics to the draw.

Well, it was a fine breakfast. Frank Libuse didn't come, and if you think those two remarks irrelevant, you don't know Libuse the demon waiter. Ole was backed up by 81 year old Mother Olsen, who thinks everybody else is as nice as she is, and calls the night maid the night nurse so as not to hurt her feelings. In Chic's corner was jolly Mrs. Johnson, who explained that when they took the suite the juxtaposition of church bells seemed rather pleasant until they really began to chime at seven o'clock of a Sabbath morning, causing Chic an inadvertant lapse into the late Herb Williams' vaudeville act, the anguished part beginning, "O, them bells!"

But Mr. Johnson can take it. Time was when a lifetime of being Mr. Olsen's partner had him on the ropes and Hollywood almost caused him to toss in the towel. How? By mistaking him for a matinée idol and pulling four of his best front teeth to make him prettier. It wasn't so much what he lost as what he got in return. The plates drove him crazy and he shed them in ivory confusion over the land, usually forgetting to take the current set out of the glass of water each morning until he found himself sleepily requesting "Woom tervithe, pleathe."

Chiczapaintin'—or an Easel Hobby

This was giving him a Hamlet complex until Lew Lehr, who makes those rubber faces at the camera, gave him a tip on how to be sane, tho comic. Mr. Lehr got away from it all with his palette and paint brush and now the Johnsons have to carry an extra trunk for the easel. At the moment Chic is working on a sunset scene somewhat in the mood of his blue and white checked lumberjack shirt with orange galluses, but that's just a whim, not Johnson's orange and blue period.

Aside from working for the Shuberts and helping plan next season's show, Artist Johnson is getting ready to open a restaurant ["Eggsapoppin'" or "Stuffsacookin'"] on his eye filling Winter Garden Farms on Long Island, and samples of crockery design hold Chic himself being pulled across a plate on a sleigh drawn by other chicks, just hatched. But before he starts being host, he will be guest of honor next Thursday noon at the Englewood Y. M. C. A., which the luncheon committee says is just "spittin' distance" from his birthplace at 65th and Union. That committee couldn't stand it another minute that Indiana is always having homecoming parties for Ole, while its favorite son is neglected. What, it demanded, has Indiana got that Englewood hasn't?

But don't sell Ole short without investigation. He has a mother who comes visiting with two bellboys' worth of luggage which turns out to hold more fried chicken and home made preserves than wardrobe, and his most prized birthday present last week commemorates his habit of opening speeches by comparing himself to a big stuffed fish he once saw mounted on a wall, remarking, "Well, like that fish, I wouldn't be here if I had kept my big mouth shut." The birthday fish, handsomely sculpted in papier maché, wears Ole's head and Ole's caption.

More Laffing Room—Only with Jeeps

Comes June, Olsen and Johnson will be bustin' out all over in the throes of preparing a new show they may call "Laffacade." It's an arena project scaled to fit in our Stadium and similar cozy corners over the land, and it will carry its own steel stage from whose lower regions by way of ramps will come some of just about everything that goes to make up show business—vaudeville, ice skating, fancy diving, carnival stunts, circus thrillers and, of course, the audience. It isn't an Olsen and Johnson show unless the audience gets mixed up in it. But this time, says Ole, it has to be a family show, a clean one, with prices to fit family pocketbooks. Just to hear them talk about it makes you realize they are barnstormers at heart and that theaters cramp their style. The new show will be gargantuan, colossal, stupendous with loud speakers, and you ought to see their faces when they gaze blissfully into that fabulous fiesta, saying, "Boy, we can come right up that ramp with jeeps." Warning to contractor: Please reinforce steel.

But about that time the clock pointed to matinées, so we piled sedately in the elevator, a dignified group while it lasted. But in a crowd Ole suffers from spontaneous combustion and Chic plays straight. Ole went into his act about organizing a club to keep men from having to take off their hats in elevators, bashing his hat and several chuckling bystanders in the process. Just as we reached the lobby he clapped one unsmiling hat wearer on the back and congratulated him for his courage. The man scowled blackly and strode off, Chic solicitously beside him. He returned in a gale of snickers, reporting, "I said to him, 'My, wasn't that man rude?' and he said, 'Who the so and so was that blinkety blank fool?' and I said, 'I haven't the slightest idea'." Whereupon Ole and Chic gathered up their womenfolk and went off in the general direction of the Shubert, laughing their heads off.

I went to the opera and was the most surprised person there when I took off my coat. It didn't have a new label saying "Stolen from Olsen and Johnson." Greater love hath no comedian than that he gives up his gags for his friend.

Opera Enters the Last Week of Its Season

By Albert Goldberg

Hans Lange, whose activities with the Chicago Symphony orchestra thus far this season have been limited to an unannounced appearance as conductor of a Saturday night "Pop," will direct all three of the orchestra's concerts this week. At the opera, only a few cast changes give news interest to the final week of the season, all the works having had earlier hearings this year, with the two box office dependables, "Carmen" and "Il Trovatore," winning the repertory race with third performances.

William Kapell, the young American pianist who played at last week's Thursday-Friday concerts, will be Mr. Lange's soloist at the second of the Tuesday programs. He has selected as his vehicle the so-called second of Beethoven's great quintet of piano concertos, which actually was composed before the one now numbered as the first of the series. As the least performed of Beethoven's concertos it has, according to existing records, been played only twice before at professional concerts in Chicago—once on a Chicago Symphony program by the late Harold Samuel, one of the two occasions here when that Bach specialist departed from his chosen field, and once on an Illinois Symphony program. [And speaking of memories, this column stands corrected before Benedict Saxe's elephantine recollection that, in addition to performances by Cortot, Horowitz, Kapell, and the composer, Rachmaninoff's third piano concerto also was played at a Tuesday concert of the Chicago Symphony orchestra by Benno Moiseiwitsch on Nov. 27, 1934.]

Mr. Lange's program also includes another piece in B flat major that is as rarely performed—Schubert's Second symphony, which has not appeared before on the orchestra's downtown programs, but which has been played twice at Ravinia under the direction of Willem van Hoogstraten and Alfred Wallenstein. The remainder of Mr. Lange's Tuesday list consists of Gluck's "Alceste" overture, and the Prelude and Love-Death from "Tristan and Isolde."

No soloist will appear on the Thursday-Friday program. Mr. Lange has discovered for this concert another symphony that has never had an Orchestra hall performance—Dvorak's Fourth, in G major, tho it has become almost a Ravinia staple, with three performances under as many conductors, Rodzinski, Beecham, and Szell. Entirely new to the programs will be four of Henry Purcell's delicate "Fantasias" for strings, played in commemoration of the 250th anniversary of the death of the great English composer. Mendelssohn's "The Lovely Melusina" overture amounts to a revival, since it has been played only once in a score of seasons, and the concluding number of this program, Reger's Variations on the theme that Mozart employed for similar purposes in his A major piano sonata, may likewise be classified.

Saturday night's "Pop" concert lists Massenet's "Phèdre" overture, Beethoven's Fourth symphony, and three Wagner compositions: the Prelude to "Lohengrin," the Bacchanale from "Tannhäuser," and Siegfried's Rhine Journey.

The Chicago Opera winds up its six weeks season with repetitions of works already performed. Monday night's bill, so long held open with the promise of surprise, turns out to be the season's third "Il Trovatore." Stella Roman, who heroically saved Bruno Walter's production of "La Forza del Destino" when Zinka Milanov fell ill, will sing Verdi's other Leonora, vice Selma Kaye, who had the role in the earlier performances. Alexander Sved replaces Leonard Warren as the Count di Luna, and Margery Mayer, Kurt Baum, and Virgilio Lazzari repeat their earlier roles.

Wednesday night brings the second performance of the double bill, "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "I Pagliacci," with Mario Berini joining Ella Flesch, Inge Manski, Doris Doe, and Stefan Ballarini in the cast of the former, and Richard Bonelli's Tonio new to the company of Giovanni Martinelli, Carole Stafford, and Louis Sudler. Fausto Cleva conducts both operas.

Lily Djanel, French mezzo, will be the season's third Carmen on Friday night, with the previous cast of Giovanni Martinelli, Richard Bonelli, and Elvira Helal unchanged, Mr. Cleva conducting. Saturday's matinee will be a repetition of "The Marriage of Figaro" with Bruno Walter conducting a cast consisting of Stella Roman, Jarmila Novotna, Margit Bokor, Ezio Pinza, John Brownlee, Virgilio Lazzari, Rosalind Nadell, and Alessio de Paolis. The final performance on Saturday night will be "Aida," more customarily a season's opener. Gertrude Ribla, Frederick Jagel, Alexander Sved, Nicola Moscona, Ralph Telasko, and Margery Mayer will sing under Mr. Cleva's direction.

The Arts club will present Ellabelle Davis, Negro soprano, in her first Chicago recital next Sunday, Nov. 18, at 9 p. m.

TO SING 'CARMEN'

Theater Needs a Good $2 Comedy, Says Ex-Critic

Public Craves Happy Plays, Mantle Finds

By John Chapman

NEW YORK [Special]—A disastrous month or more of the Broadway stage season has passed, which means that it is time for a communication from Burns Mantle. No longer faced with newspaper deadlines, Mantle can see his plays, digest them or disgorge them, and at his leisure give one the long view of the whole mess. Here, then, is a message from the most experienced of drama critics:

"Dear John: I have just been telling my radio listener [she lives in Brooklyn where there must be quite a lot of listeners to those who broadcast on one of these 'river-to-river hookups,' as Harry Hershfield calls them] that what the theater really needs right now is a good new $2 comedy.

"You know, there still are a lot of things about the theater and its overlords that I do not understand. In retirement I have a lot of time to think of them. You know, and I know, that the constant craving of the human race is for happiness. The one thing for which they are willing to make sacrifices; the one thing they are willing to spend all their spending money on, or for, is something they expect to make them happy.

"Follow the theater seasons, one after the other, and you'll find it is the happy shows that do the biggest business and play the longest engagements. This is so obvious that it is positively bromidic. And yet week will follow week, and oftentimes month will follow month, when it seems that play producers are bent on producing nothing but unhappy plays, usually about unhappy people.

"Why is this? Of course I know the answer, but it's fun to ask a critic. It's because they cannot find the happy plays. Or because the plays that they think are going to turn out happily just don't. And oftentimes it is because there are many producers who don't recognize comedy possibilities when they read the scripts submitted, which in turn is because there are a lot of play proucers who just haven't any sense of fun in their makeups.

"I suppose I was switched into this particular train of thought by the failure of Mary Chase's 'The Next Half-Hour.' And the failure of the usually cheerful and inspiringly happy Fay Bainter to save that play, or it may have been the whole October list of new plays that started it.

"You probably don't remember Miss Bainter as we older fellows do, John. She always has stuck in my mind as the young girl who came to the gates of Broadway four different times before anyone would let her in. She would, figuratively, rattle the latch and shout, and no one would pay the least attention. She would hang hopefully around the outside until her money gave out, and then she would toss her head defiantly and go back to one of the jobs in stock that she knew she could always get in the middlewest. She played stock in Toledo, Des Moines, and Omaha. The closest she ever got to Broadway was a season in Albany. Or perhaps it was Rochester.

"Then her chance came — in 'Arms and the Man.' And, to keep the story in the tradition, she was practically an overnight success. She seldom missed after that. And all her plays were happy plays. "The Kiss Burglar,' 'The Willow Tree,' 'East is West,' and so on. She even played Topsy, I recall, in a Players' club revival of 'Uncle Tom's Cabin,' with Otis Skinner [can you imagine?] playing old Uncle Tom hisself.

"Ten years in Hollywood, and they bring her back in what? A dated melodrama about a bemused Irish-American which Mrs. Chase had written before 'Harvey' and failed to sell. And who brought her back? Max Gordon, of all people. And he with about as much knowledge of Irish folk ways as I have of Sanskrit. And who directed her? George Kaufman, who probably has no more sympathy with, nor understanding of, the whispering voices and the didoes of the little people and the wall of the banshees than he has with the mystics of Tibet.

"And then there's that other curious example of the way a showman's mind gets off the beam, the production of his 'Beggars Are Coming to Town' by the man who has made most all his money from 'Life with Father.' Why, do you suppose, Oscar Serlin would want to waste time and surplus on a dated study of the psychological reactions of a couple of gangsters?

"And 'The Assassin' and 'Therese!' and 'Live Life Again!' and but why? I repeat, what the theater most needs right now, Mr. Chapman, is a good, new $2 comedy, for which folks will be glad to pay $3 if and when they hear it is all right.

"What's happening? Are they who live by the theater trying to kill the theater? Are they, too, staging a slowdown, boost prices demonstration, trying to get their share of the country's savings before the Victory bond sellers get it? Without taking into account the effect they are having in crushing the interest of a new playgoing public just now intent on the discovery of something in the entertainment line besides the movies?

"You don't mind night spots gypping the new spenders. After all, that's a matter of spenders' choice. But you do hate to see an institution that stands to profit for a generation or more from the patronage of its new friends, taking time out to slap them in the face, as well as the pocketbook.

"O, well! Being on the sidelines I suppose I should keep quiet, preserving the dignified silence of an emeritus, and letting nature have its way with playwrights and play spoilers. But—if you get a chance—see if something can't be done to encourage a few of the happier exhibits.

"Write a line to Miss Bainter telling her that all is understood and forgiven, and that she is personally just as welcome as tho she had entered laughing.

"Send a card to Kaufman asking him please to go back to the original comedy line he understands so well and writes and stages so inspiringly.

"Tell Max Gordon to leave the Irish and the Poles alone for awhile. They can get into plenty of trouble without his aid."

Ban Overlapping College Courses, Educator Urges

Proposes a Cut in the Number of Electives

By The Rev. John Evans

Most college curricula are a hodge-podge that has grown up thru over-zealous departmental specialization and promotion, President Laurence McKinley Gould of Carleton college said in his inaugural address as fourth president, succeeding Dr. Donald J. Cowling, who has retired to become president emeritus. The courses generally are incoördinated, overlapping, and regarded of equal importance, he added.

Dr. Gould urged that these areas of specilization be broadened and that in place of 30 majors offered by various departments perhaps a third of that number would suffice. He also recommended reduction and elimination of courses in the elective system; a reform long overdue, he claimed.

"It is patently absurd to expect that the student who is a complete amateur in education is in a better position to decide what constitutes a liberal education than those who have spent their time in the profession," Dr. Gould said.

The need for redefining methods and aims of programs of college and university training in the liberal arts has been apparent for years, Dr. Gould continued, but he said it was difficult to see how an integrated program could be worked out where both college and university had common faculties.

"What the university or even the very large college aspires to do the small liberal arts college actually can achieve. This is its peculiar function; this is its mission; this is its birthright, which it has nearly lost in its attempt to ape the university," Dr. Gould concluded.

Plans for a student memorial center at Ohio Wesleyan university, Delaware, O., have been announced by President Herbert J. Burgstahler. A $250,000 campaign is afoot for a four storied structure with an adjacent memorial chapel in honor of 2,628 men and women who fought in World War II., 75 of whom perished. For these latter, special units within the building will be designated by parents and friends as memorials to particular individuals.

Lt. William C. Bradbury, former instructor in sociology at the University of Chicago, has been appointed to the faculty of Shrivenham American university, Berkshire county, England. He will teach in the liberal arts section of Shrivenham, which opened its fall term with an enrollment of 4,083 soldier students.

George Olsen Brings Band to Empire Room Thursday

Hotel Sherman Brings Krupa Back Friday

By Will Davidson

There'll be a lot of activity toward the end of the week, with the Palmer House starting it off by returning George Olsen to the Empire room bandstand on Thursday night. George will provide the music for the annual holiday revue, in which Merriel Abbott has scheduled the ever-popular Borrah Minnevitch Harmonica Rascals, starring the little laugh genius, Johnny Puleo; Estelle Sloan, a fine dancer; Bill Baird, the magician; the Three Swifts, Indian club jugglers with a humorous twist, and her own dancing darlings in two new routines, one of which features Baird, the other Marilyn Marsh, ex-Abbotteer.

Evelyn Dresden

On Friday the big drums of Gene Krupa return to the Sherman, and the College Inn will be jumping with joy. Gene will feature his great jazz trio, including himself, Charlie Ventura on sax, and Teddy Napoleon on piano. Paul Nero will prove again that a fiddle can be hot even if Rome isn't burning.

That same night Sherman Hayes takes over the band duties at the Bismarck hotel, in the Walnut room. He comes highly recommended and if nothing else his handsome features should win the gals.

And while we are on the subject of the Bismarck I want to add a few comments to those I made last Sunday about the change in bands. I was pretty critical of a friend of mine, Emile Petti, for having momentarily let his indignation at the action of the Walnut room crowd get the better of him. It was unfortunate and unwise, but there IS another side to it.

Even tho a band leader or an entertainer should not let temperament show, there all too often is plenty of cause for irritation on the part of show folk. The trouble is that cafe goers have two purposes in going out to their favorite spots—one is to eat and drink, the other to see a show. Naturally, there is a division of interest, which does not exist in the theater. For that reason cafe crowds are harder to hold.

I have never been able to understand why the management of some night spots spends money on shows in order to attract customers, and then seemingly makes no effort to let the customers see those shows under the best possible conditions. Many a noisy person doesn't realize he is bothering others—I know I've been unintentionally guilty—and only the boors who like to throw their weight around would object to being hushed in a nice way by a captain or the headwaiter.

There are plenty of those boors, of course, and I don't envy any headwaiter or captain his job. But it IS his job; and the performer, who is expected to give his best effort, and the other guests, who pay to see the show, have a right to some protection at least from the obnoxious minority.

None of this, of course, has any reference to those fortunately few overweening egos in show business who attempt to cover their lack of real talent by an imperious demand for abject attention on the part of the customers. They are freaks for whom I have little respect.

But back to the revisions in revues. The Vine Gardens now is featuring Norman Nasaar, dancer and emcee, Ellen Carey, ballerina, and Jacquie and Bino, hand balancers, in the show that stars singing Joe Morrison—a lad who should get a chance at one of the loop cafes. The Edgewater Beach hotel is featuring Senor Wences, ventriloquist extraordinary; the Del Martins, acrobats; the Dorothy Hild dancers, and Emil Vandas' orchestra, with Nancy Evans singing. Vandas, incidentally, has just become a father again.

The Blackhawk restaurant now has Beth Farrell, 4 foot 9 inch "fold up" girl doing her amazing acrobatics in the show that features funny Joey Rardin, Jeanne Shirley, and Harry Cool. Virginia Crane, mezzo soprano, is the new singer in the La Salle hotel's American room, where Florian Za Bach's music and the dancing of Zarco and Beryl are featured attractions. The 51 Hundred club is holding over comedian Jan Murray and the singing trio of Day, Dawn and Dusk for its current show. It has added Isabelle Johnson, dancer, and the Florence Sullivan line of girls. Willie Shore is being held over at the Rio Cabana and Cabot and Dresden at the Chez Paree. The latter, one of the most enjoyable dance teams in the business, will have played 15 weeks at the Chez, something of a record.

Jose Cabot and Evelyn Dresden are hard working youngsters, and two of the friendliest persons you could ask for. They have no pretentions about their art, and are constantly trying to improve, for two reasons—their own sense of well being and their position in the dance world. Jose is an accomplish camera fan, and has many reels showing their various routines. These are used to check their performances and point up spots where a lift, a whirl, or [as Charlie Dawn might add] a spin could be improved.

Boswelling the Bistros:

Winnie Hoveler, whose great dance troupe was featured in a color picture in a recent Esquire, has been forming a line for Florida. . . . And remember Toni Darnay, who danced with Winnie several years ago at Harry's New Yorker? For two years she's been a radio actress. . . . The Jan. 17 show in the Empire room of the Palmer House will not feature Hildegarde and her cornette, but may star one of two famous band leaders just returning from the navy. . . . Adele Scott now is playing the electric organ in the Pompeian room of the Congress.

Henry Moeller, better known as "Louie," is celebrating the 12th anniversary of his employment as an entertainer at Old Heidelberg restaurant. . . . Myrus, the mentalist, did such a great job in the Mayfair room of the Blackstone hotel that he will be brought back, probably in March. . . . Harry Cool, the hottest thing the Blackhawk has had on the bandstand for a long time, has signed to record for Signature records, an outfit heretofore devoted almost exclusively to jazz. It is said to be a bountiful contract, and will be welcome news to the Cool fans, who've been waiting months for his recordings. . . . Next Friday night features a party celebrating the 25th anniversary of This Week in Chicago, which has certainly made its Odmark in the world.

And, as the British soldier said as he started off to fight the Arabs, so to Bedouin.

IN MARINE ROOM

Emil Vandas has returned to leadership of the band at the Edgewater Beach hotel, where he plays in the Marine dining room for dancing and for the Dorothy Hild shows.

FRENCH BARITONE

Jean Sablon is the personable French baritone who now is starring in the Mayfair room of the Blackstone hotel. Ernie Hecksher's orchestra provides the dance and show music.

Vaudeville

Oriental theater — Allan Jones, noted tenor of stage, screen, and radio, is headlining the stage show for the third week with favorite vocal selections. Sharing the bill are Consolo and Melba, sophisticated dance stylists, recently returned from European U. S. O. tours; Gil Maison and his "Dog-Gone Nonsense"; the Juggling Willys, and the Nonchalants in their "Comedy Knockabout" set. Ray Lang and his orchestra provided the musical backgrounds.

Allan Jones

Chicago theater—Glenn Gray and his Casa Loma orchestra share top honors on the bill with Glenn Miller's Modernaires, starring Paula Kelly, and Prof. Backwards, "Dean of Laughology." The Casa Loma band features the singing of Skip Nelson, Betty George, and "Fats" Daniels, and the trumpet playing of Bobby Hackett. Also in the show are Tucker and Tremaine in "Ballet Laffs."

Drama Notes

The Northwestern University theater, housed in the speech building on the Evanston campus, opened its 18th season last week with the Russian comedy, "Squaring the Circle," and lists the following productions to come: Paul Vincent Carroll's "Shadow and Substance," Dec. 4 thru Dec. 8; Molière's "The Would Be Gentleman," Feb. 5 thru Feb. 9; Lennox Robinson's "The Far Off Hills," March 5 thru March 9; André Obey's "Noah," April 30 thru May 4; Noel Coward's "Blithe Spirit," May 28 thru June 1. Curtain time is 8:30.

"The Student Prince" has added two performances to its Studebaker schedule, and will play next Sunday afternoon and evening before taking off on its tour to the coast.

New York has nosed out Chicago on Theater Guild subscription figures, as well it might, considering the relative quality of the bait. General subscription has risen to almost 110,000 and the Guild expects it to reach 150,000 by the end of the season when Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle, and Kansas City report. At the moment, leading cities are New York with 16,000 subscribers, Chicago with 15,500, Boston with 14,000, Washington with 13,500, and Philadelphia with 13,000. Cleveland and Cincinnati were the only cities to register a drop in sales.

"Life With Father" reported almost $9,000,000 had poured into its coffers by the time the comedy began its seventh year in New York last week. Just in case anything happens, Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse, the adapters, have what looks like a new hit in "State of the Union."

"Anna Lucasta" plays a special matinée at the Civic Sunday, Dec. 2, to benefit the bond drive. Ticket sales will be supervised by a committee made up of officials of the treasury department and the South Center department store, and representative business men of the south side.

The Theater Guild has engaged Tyrone Guthrie, the English producer and director, to direct a new production of "He Who Gets Slapped," which Judith Guthrie, his wife, has adapted from the original by Leonid Andreyev. The play was first presented by the Guild in 1922, with Richard Bennett as "He" and Margalo Gillmore as "Consuela," and it ran for 308 New York performances. No casting has been announced for the revival, but it probably will interest Romney Brent of "The Winter's Tale," who appeared in the original. Mr. Brent got his start in that production for no better reason than that he went to the theater with a friend who had been hired to play offstage music, and the director asked him if he wanted a small part.

Post-war reconversion turns the Chicago Victory Players into Theater, Unlimited, and the first production under that ambitious title will be Paul Osborn's "The Vinegar Tree," in Kimball hall next Friday and Saturday at 8:40 p. m.

Players at the University of Chicago will present Maxwell Anderson's "Winterset" in Mandel hall Nov. 16, 17, 23, and 24, starting at 8:30.

Among the plays chosen for the army's program to reëducate the German people are "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," "Arsenic and Old Lace," "Awake and Sing," "Ethan Frome," "Knickerbocker Holiday," "On Borrowed Time," "Our Town," "The Adding Machine," "Three Men on a Horse," "The Voice of the Turtle," "Thunder Rock," and "Yellow Jack."

The Chicago Group Theater, Inc., with headquarters at 640 N. State st., will present "Ladies in Retirement" tonight, and next Friday, Saturday, and Sunday nights.

JAMES HILTON author of

"RANDOM HARVEST" "GOOD-BYE, MR. CHIPS" "LOST HORIZON"

has written a new sensational best seller

THE Story of a Man who Loved His Wife TOO MUCH!

LIVIA was the aristocratic daughter of a great industrialist—and when she married George Boswell no one was more surprised than he! But after their baby died she tired of George and his small town pride—and left him for the playboy son of a prominent statesman. Selfish, possessive, she betrayed him too, in a crisis. Her second husband was captured and imprisoned—she knew little about his situation—and seemed to careless! Then she came home—and in another selfish frenzy tried her utmost to prevent her son's marriage to the only girl who seemed able to heal his battle-weary mind and his war-torn body!

Again in "So Well Remembered" James Hilton has scored a triumph! The author of "Random Harvest," "Good-bye, Mr. Chips," "Lost Horizon," and other great novels now tell the story of a man you will "so well remember" — and of a woman you won't be able to forget! "So Well Remembered," this season's sensational best seller, is on sale, in the publisher's edition, at $2.50—but by becoming a member of the Literary Guild Book Club now you may have a copy absolutely free, as explained below.

LITERARY GUILD MEMBERSHIP COSTS NOTHING

Literary Guild membership is free—there are no dues or fees. Each month you will receive your copy of "Wings," the Guild's illustrated book-review Brochure, which contains articles about the Literary Guild selection to be published the following month. From these articles you decide whether or not you care to receive the Guild book described. If not, you simply return the form supplied and no book will be sent to you that month. If, however, the Guild selection is one you don't want to miss, it will be sent to you on publication date.

Save Money On New Books

Literary Guild books are selected by our Editorial Staff from proofs submitted by leading publishers long in advance of their publication date. Because the Literary Guild is the largest book club in the world, a huge special edition is printed at a tremendous saving in cost. This saving is passed on to members. The Literary Guild edition is manufactured at the same time as the publisher's edition, yet Guild members pay a flat price of only $2.00 for each Guild book accepted, instead of the higher price charged for the same book sold at retail in the publisher's edition.

"Collector's Library" Bonus Books Free

In addition, Guild members receive a beautifully printed, handsomely bound copy of one of the "Collector's Library" volumes—heretofore available only in a limited edition at $10 per copy—as a bonus for every four Guild books purchased! To be a "member in good standing" merely requires that you accept a minimum of only four Guild books a year out of the 12 or more new and important fiction and non-fiction Guild books to be published. It is not necessary to accept a Guild book every month.

Send No Money—Mail Coupon NOW

The convenience, the enjoyment, and the saving of about 50% of your book money will, we hope, prompt you to become a member of the Literary Guild at once. As a special inducement for joining now instead of "later" you will be sent—FREE—a copy of "So Well Remembered," which is being sold currently in the publisher's edition at $2.50. As a new member you can now buy any of the following recent Guild selections for only $2.00 each. See coupon.

BAD MEN OF DELIGHT

By FREDERICK R. BECHDOLT

(Copyright: 1945: Frederick R. Bechdolt)

INSTALMENT V.

MOST murderers set traps for themselves as soon as they begin to plan their crimes. The man called Vilas was one of those fortunately rare exceptions who are unhindered by emotions or stupidity; and as he hurried back thru the silent streets of Delight, he considered the project of slaying a fellow being as methodically as if it held no more hazards than an ordinary business venture.

It was not his first experience in mapping this sort of cold blooded strategy. The possibility of the emergency which he was facing tonight had been in his mind ever since he had come to the big house on the ridge, and when he staged this disappearance he did not intend to leave a confidant behind—or take one with him.

Time had hung heavy on his hands during these years of enforced inactivity. He had found occasional relief from the tedium for a while by making careful preparations for the liquidation of Bill Pope, if and when necessity for flight arose. And after their completion he had discovered a new diversion.

There was a small new model safe under the floor of the windowless room where he spent most of his days. It held several hundred thousand dollars in currency and the simple apparatus of destruction which he had managed to secure. It became his pleasure to draw a chair over that spot whenever Pope knocked on the door. During their daily conferences Vilas found mild enjoyment in letting his mind rove to the deadly stuff which was secreted less than two feet beneath his guest's posterior. From time to time he further amused himself by wondering what changes would come into the face which he was looking at if Pope were able to read his thoughts, but as the months wore on his jaded senses had responded less and less to these unhealthy stimulations.

Tonight, while he was hastening up the wide main street and detouring around the Antelope Mesa stage station, he was getting a brand new thrill. This was going to be the real thing and his knowledge of the hazards which he ran, if his plans miscarried in the slightest, was more potent than strong liquor.

A general idea of what he had to do had begun to dawn on him immediately after he came out of the house on the ridge and discovered Martin. Details had slipped together, piece by piece like a jigsaw puzzle, while he was eavesdropping on the pair before the cold stone building. As he saw it, the only drawback to the plan was its failure to eliminate both of them completely. He regretted this deeply, but after he finished with one, the other would be out of circulation for some time—perhaps for good. And as soon as the news of what happened to those two got abroad, the rest of the gang would scatter like a covey of scared quail. Of that much he was dead sure.

He had gotten a break, so he told himself, when Martin had taken the short cut from the big house on the ridge to the road in front of the Antelope Mesa stage station. For in all likelihood the man would pick the same route on his way back, and the loop of the path brought it conveniently close to the doorway of cabin 16. Vilas had been walking fast, for he needed a little time before Martin's arrival. His heart was racing when he neared the cabin which, according to Bill Pope, had been assigned to Leola Burke.

He halted briefly here and looked about him. The darkness betrayed no sign of any one. Lights glowed in the windows of two other cabins, but they were far down the hill, and he heard no footfalls. Assured of these things, he went to the door and tried the knob. To his relief, it turned and the door swung open.

He stepped softly within and closed the door behind him. He groped thru the darkness to a pair of windows and drew the draped curtains together, then back to the door and fumbled along the wall beside it for the electric switch. The lights came on.

It was very silent in here. He was wondering as he looked about him what sounds would come from this room later on. He saw an opened leather bag on a chair, another chair beside the bed, a pair of blue slacks lying over its back. And luck was coming his way, for he discovered that the cabin was equipped for housekeeping. He went into the kitchen and found what he was hoping for in a table drawer. It was one of those short bladed knives which are used for paring vegetables and, passing his thumb over the blade, he felt a reasonably keen edge. He tucked the knife into a trousers pocket, turned off the lights, drew back the window curtains, and hurried outside.

A mockingbird was singing far up the hill. The liquid notes floated down thru the darkness and there was no other sound until a car passed along the highway. He watched its headlights while they disappeared around a curve. A few moments later he heard voices below him and he was cursing their owners, for the accident of intruders was the one mishap which he dreaded now. But the voices grew fainter and suddenly the windows of another cabin near the stage station glowed like yellow jewels. The mockingbird had ceased singing, and the slight stirring of some clumps of bear grass seemed louder than it was.

Vilas was wondering where Leola had picked up Martin and what she had offered him for his part in the business, when the rasp of footfalls on the sunbaked earth interrupted his thoughts. It had come with startling suddenness, as if the man who was climbing the twining path had been dropped a few yards below out of the air. He was taking it slowly when Vilas stepped out from behind the trunk of a giant cactus tree and confronted him.

Neither of them moved or spoke for a second or two. And while they stood there in silence Martin realized who it was that blocked his way. The moon was shining on his face and Vilas saw it change. His heart jumped as he thought of the greater change which would come if Martin knew that the years of life which had been allotted to him were within a few minutes of their end. And he noted, with some relief, that in this moment when he had been so abruptly confronted, Martin's hand had remained at his side. Evidently there was no weapon to complicate the situation.

The wise face of the little man on the downhill side had regained its composure. He regarded the big face above him thru half closed eyes. He was thinking fast, but it did not occur to him that the spot where he was standing marked the end of a long trail. The trail had many crooks. It had started a year or so ago at Las Vegas, Nev., and it went eastward as far as El Paso. It doubled back west with occasional detours to Agua Prieta and Nogales and several smaller towns along the international line. It swung northward to the big house on the ridge behind Delight.

Las Vegas was booming on the hot spring morning when Leola Burke had called on Martin in his office. Bartenders and bell captains and taxi drivers were getting rich pickings from transients who wanted to make whoopee and didn't know where to find companions to step out with them. The inevitable byproducts of indiscriminate alliances were bringing a lucrative business to the private inquiry agency which Martin was conducting. But the story Leola told him had intrigued him, for one of its salient details was $400,000, every dime of it "hot money."

The bear grass whispered to the faint breeze. The stiff branches of the giant cactus trees stood out black against the luminous sky. Somewhere among the cabins at the foot of the hill a girl was laughing. The music of her laughter died. Vilas said:

"You're out late, Martin." And he watched the changes in the face which was looking up into his. It was exactly as a motionless cat watches the movements of a mouse which it has caught, baiting the unlucky victim with apparent opportunities for escape before allowing enjoyment to reach its climax at the kill.

The wise eyes widened briefly. They roved from side to side. They returned to the placid face which was regarding them and the lids contracted again.

"This," Martin said, composedly, "is a surprise. You're getting better fast, Mr. Vilas. I wouldn't of believed it was you if you hadn't spoken."

And it came to Vilas then that he was dealing with a different breed than Bill Pope. The little man before him had been taken aback but he wasn't going to miss a bet.

"The name," he announced abruptly, "is Henderson." Martin smiled and his eyes did not waver.

"So what?" he countered quietly. And for just a moment Vilas was vexed. Until it occurred to him that his own immediate intentions were a secret, and as yet Martin's mind hadn't caught up with any such idea as murder.

"I was," Vilas went on pleasantly, "listening in while you were talking things over with Leola."

It had, he reflected, caught the other flat footed. The eyes which remained fixed on his own widened again, and a little line crept between the brows. He lost no time in following up his advantage.

"I don't know what your cut was to have been, but that's out now. I don't figure on waiting here until they move in on me, of course."

"Yeah?" Martin said, and Vilas repeated the word, but it was as an announcement, not a question. And he added:

"There are other ways of leaving here besides that car she's watching. Your lady friend is out of luck. It's up to you whether you are or not."

Martin said nothing, but the light that flickered in his eyes was eloquent.

"Your case is closed," Vilas reminded him. "I heard you say that you've carried out your end of the bargain. It isn't your fault that they can't carry on. I wonder—would you be willing to take on another client now?"

"If it was you," Martin replied evenly, and the flash of greed in his face gave Vilas the first real thrill of enjoyment which he had gotten since they began. "I would want——"

"Cash down?" Vilas murmured. And Martin nodded.

"Might be we'll get somewhere," Vilas continued quietly. "You don't mind telling me how you located me, do you?"

"The trail was plain," Martin said, "but I'd been a year on the case before I saw it. All I had for a lead was some road maps."

"Ah! Road maps." Vilas sighed. "I thought I'd burned them up."

"She'd seen them in your desk drawer," Martin told him. "They had started her to thinking. And when you took a powder, they had disappeared. But she had looked them over and it seemed as if you'd come this way. It was Pearl Harbor gave me my first good lead."

"Pearl Harbor?" Vilas shook his head. "You interest me, Martin."

"I was thinking things over one day," Martin said, "a couple of months ago, and I happened to remember the date of a newspaper story—I always keep clippings on file if they look like business. And this one did. The mayor of Missouri City drops out of sight, and the district attorney starts investigating. He says the mayor has several hundred thousand dollars with him and that the money has come from underworld pay-offs. He slams a bunch of big shot gamblers in jail, but that's all the farther he gets.

"That story was datelined Dec. 5. Pearl Harbor was two days later. And the road maps showed that you could of been heading for the border. On the morning of Dec. 7, and from then on, there wasn't a town between El Paso and San Diego where a yellow dog could have crossed the line without having his standing checked on.

"That gave me a hunch and I thought of another date which would stand checking. I had to go to the public library and read the newspaper files before I found it. I remembered the top line of the head, Pope's Castle. The time seemed just about right. I thought I might have a real lead then. So I came to Tuscorora and nosed around—"

"I was stymied at Nogales," Vilas said. "And Bill Pope's latest racket had flopped because the tourist trade was over. He happened to run against me and we recognized each other. He used to own a back room crap game in the Grand hotel and there's an indictment still standing against him for trimming an Oklahoma oil man. The district attorney is holding the cogged dice for evidence. You see, it was a case of mutual convenience." He sighed.

"And now how much do you figure on shaking me down for, Martin?"

"I do not go for shakedowns," Martin said. "I operate inside the law. Tell me what you want to know or want me to do—and pay me one hundred thousand dollars, cash down, before we say good night."

"It has been nice to talk with you," Vilas said. He was smiling when he struck. Martin's head was tilted back slightly for he was on the downhill side, and his chin was up. Vilas had plenty of time to gauge the blow and the weight of his body was behind his clenched fist. For the fraction of a second the stricken man remained on his feet, then his knees buckled and Vilas caught the inert form as it sagged forward.

It took considerable maneuvering, and he was very careful about this for he wanted no signs of disturbance left on the hard earth here, but he managed to shift his hold to one arm, then to the other, and after an effort which shortened his breath, he got Martin upon his bent back. He was panting before he reached the door of cabin 16 and the sweat was running down his face. He dumped the limp form into the easy chair beside the bed. He stepped behind the chair and got the little kitchen knife from his pocket. Martin was making choking noises in his throat. The sounds ceased, and the peculiar musty scent of fresh blood filled the dark room.

The picture of the room, as he had seen it a short time ago, was still in Vilas' mind. He took two paces and advanced his right foot slowly. It contacted the open bag. He dropped on one knee and lifted a handful of flimsy lingerie. He let the knife fall into the bag and left the garments covering it. His fingers were sticky with blood and he delayed here long enough to rinse them beneath a kitchen faucet before he left.

He opened the front door; he stood within the threshold looking forth, listening. Then he stepped out and closed the door noiselessly. It was up to Bill Pope to carry on now. Vilas was thinking of the instructions which he would give, while he hurried to the big house on the ridge.

Driving out to the horse ranch with old Jim Curry, Harvey Furlong had taken the dirt road at a pace which aroused his passenger to remonstrance. With complete forgetfulness of his own wilder rides in the saddle during bygone days, the latter had growled:

"You're breaking the law, kid." And after they had bidden each other good night at the ranchhouse, he had watched the headlights swoop and vanish with a feeling of mild resentment at youth's recklessness which stayed with him until he went to bed.

Harvey had been away from the stage station nearly an hour and Barbara was beginning to wonder what had happened to detain her boy friend, when he returned. With the refreshing candor which has been a never ending source of astonishment to survivors of a more punctilious generation sitting on the side lines and watching young lovers in these 1940s, she went straight to him as soon as she saw him in the doorway, and she said:

"I was afraid that you had passed me up this evening." And with the same refreshing directness he replied:

"Not a chance. What say we get out of this prayer meeting?"

"I'm all for it," she told him.

But altho their complete lack of coyness was of the 20th century, the impulse which took them away from the lounge was as old as Genesis, and when his car reached the wide main street which was empty of others than themselves, the full moon was in its glory.

Their reaction to this ancient phenomenon was as time worn as romance. He withdrew one hand from the steering wheel and slipped his arm around her. She nestled her head against his shoulder. And their one desire was to be alone with each other.

The speedometer needle hung to the 10 mile mark while they passed between still walls which had echoed to the uproar of booted cowboys and burly miners and the thumping piano music of the hurdy gurdies during the hectic nights of long past years. They turned into the side street where they had listened to La Golondrina that afternoon, and when they were opposite the darkened adobe where the Mexican had been strumming his guitar, a great puddle of silver light lay beside the roadway. Harvey said:

"The moon's up." It was the first word that either of them had spoken since they had left the lounge, and as if it had broken the spell of solitude, a cacaphony arose out of the sable shadows. A pair of ragged drunkards appeared within the pool of silver radiance. Their arms were entwined and their voices mingled as they wandered aimlessly out of the softer light into the glare of the car's headlamps.

They were speaking in the border Spanish, but it was evident to all the world that their sudden outburst was the resumption of an argument, and they were so completely engrossed in their disagreement that, if Harvey had not jammed down both feet, they would have been run over. He was about to ease off the footbrake and let in the clutch again when they became aware of the impending bumper. They seated themselves upon it immediately and their quarrel was forgotten now. One of them threw back his head and started singing; the song was La Cucaracha. Harvey left his seat to eject the duo and returning after the intruders had departed he growled:

"Let's find some place where traffic isn't so thick." And as an afterthought, "If you want to take a walk, I'll show you the real Antelope Mesa stage station, the one that the company named that dude ranch after. There's an old telegraph pole standing in front of it where the miners lynched a bandit in 1880. The Mexicans claim his ghost still shows up there."

They left the car and found the narrow road which turned off at the foot of the hill. They followed its windings among mesquite thickets where the patches of moonlight were patterned by black traceries of shadow. Occasionally the broken summit of a roofless adobe wall appeared above the spreading branches.

The pair of low stone buildings which faced each other across the road had not yielded to the erosion of winter rains like the adobe walls in the neighborhood. The windows of the long stage station on the left hand were hidden by blind wooden shutters and the faded lettering of the Wells Fargo Express company sign at its lower end was still legible.

"But no ghost," Barbara said. "I'm disappointed."

"Maybe he'll accommodate us if we stick around," Harvey suggested. "And anyhow I can show you the stage that he robbed. It's stored in the shed across the way and it was held up several times on the road between here and the old San Carlos agency."

What Has Gone Before

Barbara Curry is herding sheep in the Utah uplands, struggling to prevent foreclosure of the ranch her father left her. A stranger, a soldier on leave, brings news that she has a benefactor who arranged with him to open an account for her at the local bank. She is to visit Delight to meet her benefactor. About to board a stage for Delight, she is thrilled to have pointed out to her a famous western character, Bill Pope. Bill is sitting in a chauffeur-driven sedan beside a man in a wheel chair. The man recognizes a woman wearing blue slacks and about to enter the stage and orders Pope to follow her and get rid of her. A flash flood engulfs the stage. Pope mistakes Barbara for the woman and attempts to drown her. Harvey Furlong, the stranger, rescues her. As he shows her the town a bullet barely misses her. Pope explains the bullet as a Mexican's careless shot. Harvey arranges for Barbara to stay at the stage station and meet Jim Curry, Barbara's grandfather, formerly known as Brazos. Pope reports to Vilas at the big house on the ridge. An invalid only in public, Vilas steals out disguised as a mechanic and follows Martin, his chauffeur, whom he suspects of aiding Leola Burke in trailing him.

Horse Show Gives Aid to Legion Fund

By Thalia

The Chicago Horse Show, whose ten-day spectacle allured thousands of Chicagoans and added thousands of dollars to the returning war veterans fund of the American Legion, gave the 46-year-old Coliseum a face lifting. Flags of all the united nations made the aged skeleton-like rafters seem young and gay. The arena had daily beauty treatments of bright colored sawdust dusted over it in trick designs.

Chrysanthemums and a huge horseshoe of red roses "like the kind sent to dead gamblers," as one observer commented, gave an extra and appropriate fillip to the Coliseum's rejuvenation.

The first formal event ever held in the Coliseum was a horse show, so horse show enthusiasts claim, for, altho the G.A.R. officially held its encampment there in midsummer, 1900, the building wasn't really finished until the autumn and just in time for a gala horse show.

John F. Cuneo was chairman of this year's board of the Chicago Horse Show and an exhibitor with some of the most spectacular entries, among them a beautiful six-in-hand of coal black Clydesdales. Paul Butler is president of the association.

The opening night of the horse show was also the opening night of the Ice Follies, an event [for the past four years] taken over by the Service Club for the benefit of its charitable projects. This year every one of the 4,500 seats was sold and the proceeds, well over last year's $1,800.

The winter hat, it seems, like spring, is bustin' out all over. Some of the headgear at both the Ice Follies and the Horse Show would put the Floradora sextet cartwheels in the miniature class. One cynic observed that everything is so high and/or wide that periscopes will soon have to be rented with the programs.

Chicago's past has been much in the limelight recently, with exhibitions and the publication of a novel about the city's past by a member of one of its old and prominent families. Arthur Meeker Jr., whose forebears came to Chicago in the 1850s, chose it for the setting of his latest novel, "The Far Away Music." With the same meticulous historical accuracy with which he recreated seventeenth century France for his best seller, "The Ivory Mischief," he set the scene of Chicago, Ill., 1856, and he peopled it, I understand, from real life, from the vast Meeker-Bentley-Wrenn-Murray-Walker-Cook family trees. It certainly will give old Chicagoans something to talk about, trying to figure out exactly who is who in it. No one can be stirred to libel suits over maligned forebears, however, for no family skeletons are rattled, altho the leading character, Jonathan Trigg, is considered a scoundrel by the staid Bascombs in the book because he had listened to the far-away music of freedom.

The freedom-seeking Jonathan was forebear to many of the most prominent and solidly staid Chicagoans, for he is a recreation of the author's great-grandfather, Edwin Eugene Griggs. The Uncle Charles of the book might be his great uncle by marriage, Charles Walker, who was the first president of the Chicago Board of Trade.

Mr. Meeker's book is dedicated to the memory of his great-grandfather and to his aunt, Mrs. David Shields Cook, whose interest in the family history and its records was responsible for some of the book's special color. One of the author's other kinfolk was John Wrenn who built the huge house on Burton and Astor sts., later owned by Cyrus McCormick, and who owned the famous Wrenn library of first editions, for which Mr. Wrenn paid great sums in perfect good faith. But

Legion Women Will Assemble Here Sunday

By Irene Steyskal

State delegations assembling here for the convention of the American Legion auxiliary will come bringing the banners that, together with pomp and pageantry, have been folded away thru the grim years since Pearl Harbor. Next Sunday night under the floodlights of the Grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel, borne by pages dressed in white, they will appear again on the silver anniversary convention scene — 48 department banners flanking that number of American flags—in a triumphant procession of victory and thanksgiving.

Other traditional ceremonies and functions are to be revived, one of them the States dinner, which was the most festive of the social events of pre-war conventions. Another gala party will be a silver anniversary luncheon. Congested transportation and hotels still impose limitations, and meetings and parties must be scaled down accordingly, but the delegates are looking forward to an assembly imbued with much of the color and spirit of former conventions in Chicago.

Concurrent with the American Legion convention, the auxiliary meeting will continue from Sunday night thru the following Wednesday, which is the eve of Thanksgiving. This will be the fourth Chicago convention, the 1933, 1939, and the streamlined war meeting of 1944, having been held here.

Provision is being made to seat 1,500 at the States dinner on Monday night, the 19th. Officers and guests both of the Legion and auxiliary will attend that party in the Grand ballroom. Mrs. Norman L. Sheehe, national publications chairman and former Illinois department president, who was convention chairman for last year's meeting, is in charge of arrangements for the large dinner assembly.

The anniversary luncheon will be held on the following day. Attendance will be limited to those delegates and officers who have been auxiliary members continuously thru the 25 years. Mrs. Bessie Stuart Smith, a pioneer auxiliary leader and a former national vice president, heads the committee for that event.

The silver anniversary will bring into the spotlight the auxiliary's first president, Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart of Cincinnati, O. One of the organization's outstanding personalities, Mrs. Hobart has left the unmistakable imprint of her character and views on the organization. She is the only woman who ever has held the national presidency of the two largest patriotic organizations of women in this country—the Legion auxiliary and the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Mrs. Hobart already was a prominent figure in the D. A. R. when in 1921 the Legion auxiliary held its first convention in Kansas City, Mo., and elected her president. Under her leadership the original membership of 131,000 was doubled, and she inaugurated many of the procedures and activities which set the pattern of the world's largest women's organization. Today the membership stands at 623,000.

The D. A. R. elected Mrs. Hobart president general of the society in 1929, and during her tenure she presided in 1930 and again in 1932 at the Women's Patriotic Conference of National Defense, then held under joint sponsorship of the auxiliary and the D. A. R.

In 1938 Mrs. Hobart was elected the American vice president of the Women's auxiliary of Fidac, interallied veteran's federation, and she was a strenuous worker with that organization in its efforts to avert the second world war. The war found her advanced in years but still possessed of the vigorous qualities of leadership which had characterized her career in women's organizations. She was appointed and served during the war on the

Fresh from the Hills . . . . . By Marge of Sunrise Mountain Farm . . . . . Blurton Baskets

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

DOWN here in the Ozarks we are never in much of a hurry about things. However, last week it suddenly dawned on me that the chair I had ordered from Kerwin Blurton's Ozark Handcraft shop for Lena Skirk's Christmas gift hadn't come yet. Last November Kerwin sent me a postal card saying the chair might be delayed a bit, and since Lena had other chairs, I didn't like to rush the lad.

But a year's delay—now that's likely to grow into something permanent, so I drove over to Van Buren, Mo., to see about that chair. Kerwin's wife, Pauline, said Kerwin had gone out with some of her kinfolks to help them find a farm in Camden county. Then we got to talking about their new cistern, which they were building when I ordered the chair. It had turned out to be such a fine water holder that Pauline says she takes two baths a week whether she needs them or not! That is a joke, because Pauline is cute as a button and definitely the bandbox type. We got so far off the chair subject we never did get back.

As I drove homeward, I stopped at the other Blurton Handcraft shop to tell Dad Blurton what I thought of his son's dilitariness! I got scant sympathy from Dad and Kerwin's brothers, Frank, Arnie, and Junior, who was getting back his knack at shaving splits while vacationing from his Detroit job. Kerwin never did like to work, they said. And anyhow, no Blurton likes to make chairs.

The Blurtons are probably one of the last of the Ozark basket making families. Right at present, the demand for hand made baskets is so great that chair making, a tiresome job at best, is shoved into the background. Perhaps after Lena's chair, there will be no more Blurton chairs, but for the sake of every one who likes handcraft, I hope there will always be Blurton baskets. It is possible we can always get them. Kerwin, who never got into service, and Frank, just home from the navy, will probably carry on the work. Arnie, 6 feet tall at the age of 15, has airplanes on his mind.

Dad Blurton and the boys can be found at the left of highway 60, just before you reach Van Buren. Near the next town, Elsinore, on the same highway, you find Kerwin and Pauline. Don't feel bashful about going into either place and asking how to make baskets. Any Blurton will tell you. Apparently they have no fear of competition. Probably because the instructions begin:

"Go out into the woods and cut down a couple of trees. One must be white oak and the other hickory!"

Probably the novice couldn't pick out a white oak or hickory from the proverbial load of poles, much less find it on the hoof, so to speak. Then there is that joker in the instructions which says that both must be of second growth. That means they must be trees which have grown up after the original forests have been cut off the land. They are tough, leathery woods, which enable the Blurtons to make baskets that stay flexible and pliable for years, the test, incidentally, in a fine basket. Neither will grow into big trees, but the white oaks make fine fence posts. For that reason they are valuable to farms.

The Jedge would take a pot shot at any one caught cutting down one of our white oaks, and other farmers feel the same way. That makes it tough for Dad Blurton, who has long since used up his own supply. Right now he is driving 25 miles to get truck loads of tree trunks from a farmer who doesn't mind giving up potential fence posts and the food supply of the squirrels on his place. But there are many Ozark hickory trees for squirrels!

After you have cut down your trees, you haul them to the work shop, which is a simple barn-like building, with a dirt floor. There, knee deep in shavings and with the pungent fragrance of clean, fresh-cut wood about you, you split the tree trunks into lengthwise sections with a sledge and wedge. Then you take your froe and rive it into long, thin rails, rough and splintery. Such words of "froe" and "rive" may be new to you, but pioneers in these United States rived all the shingles they put on their homes in early days. In fact, a few years ago our neighbor, Uncle John Tamsett, rived the shingles for his house, putting them on in the dark of the moon so they wouldn't curl up.

Your next task in basket making is to take a good sharp hand axe and hew down all the bigger bumps and uneven spots on those long, thin rails. Then to cut the rail down to even thickness from one end to the other, you put it in the shaving horse and go to work on it with a drawing knife. The shaving horse is something only a basket worker could dream up when he yearns to do his work the hard way. It is a combination of the old cobbler's bench with long legs and a middle section in which a clamping device is operated with a foot pedal.

You straddle the horse at one end, facing the middle, and adjust the rail under the metal clamp. Then you thrust out your right foot and brace it against a pedal which pulls the clamp down and holds it as long as you push with your foot. Next, you grab up a long sharp knife with a handle at each end and draw it along the splintery wood, slicing off all the bumps until you have a smooth section of wood about an inch, or possibly one and a half inches thick, and four or five feet long. If you also have all your fingers, that proves you are on your way to becoming a basket maker.

Now you are ready to cut the splits which will be woven into a basket. You take the rail over to the split rack, which looks like a carpenter's saw horse with a two board top. You slip the rail between these two boards with the edge uppermost, and clamp it in place. Then you take up a split knife which is a razor-sharp blade held into a wooden frame with U-bolts, and draw it along that edge, slicing off a neat ribbon of wood as wide as the rail's thickness and as long as the rail.

The hickory splits come off creamy white, pliable as a leather belt, and smooth as satin. The white oak splits are equally pliable and smooth, but they are grayish tan and have a distinct grain, like the boards in your oak floor. Under Frank's hand, the work looks easy as unrolling ribbons from a bolt, and probably it won't take more than 10 years for you to get that same feel of the knife, plus Frank's ability to guide it along that narrow edge so deftly every split is exactly uniform, and each is of the same thickness from end to end.

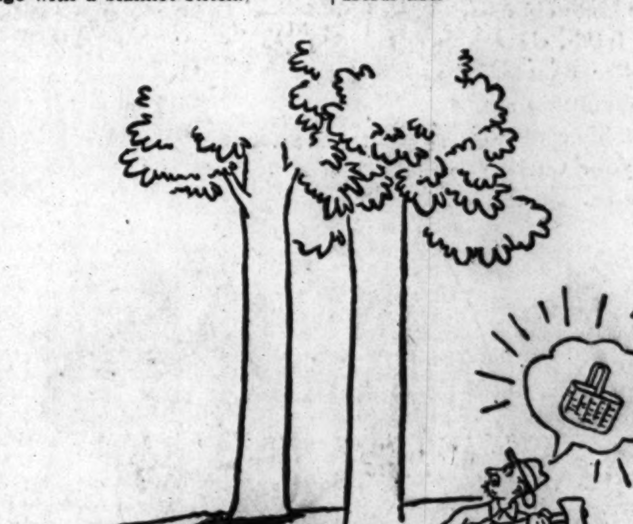
Now you are ready to weave your first basket, using alternate strips of hickory and white oak. If you decide on a square basket, you can put a form on a "turn around" and weave the basket on that. But if you're making an egg basket, clothes hamper, or one of the other innumerable shapes in which Blurton baskets come, you use hand shaping. Then, if the basket is not a waste basket, it must have a handle. Frank will show you how to do that.

He takes a thick bar of wood, clamps it into the shaving horse, smooths it down until it is narrower, thinner, and exactly the same thickness at every point so it will bend into a true arch. Next time you have nothing to do, try a little whittling with a 12 inch knife, equipped with a handle at both ends. After the handle is slipped into the basket sides, Frank makes a couple of half-rounds, which are really thicker splits, with the corners taken off, and finishes his work at the split rack by making a long, flexible sewing split. He sits down with the woven basket, puts one of the half rounds on the inside and the other on the outside rim, and then deftly weaves the sewing split over and under until the whole rim is neatly bound with it, just as a seamstress would finish off a raw edge with a blanket stitch.



Waste baskets and some of the narrow shopping baskets which are so handy for use in cars, have solid bottoms, and this calls for another Blurton touch. All of the solid bottoms are bound at the base with a thin strip of hickory, tacked at intervals. Soon that binding becomes hard as iron, and the basket can take all the kicks and vacuum cleaner knocks it will get in a long, useful life.

The finishing touch is one that Dad and the boys detest! A "design" in bright red and green is painted on each basket side. The public demands it, say the Blurtons, and after all, the baskets are made to sell! Dad Blurton's father, who taught him the art of basket making, never insulted beautiful wood splits with gaudy paint and the Blurton boys wish they could do as Grand Dad did! They still use the old Blurton method of protecting baskets from termites by promptly peeling the bark from every piece of white oak, for termites start in the bark. And they can't live in thin strips of hickory, so no thick hickory strips ever appear in a Blurton basket.

Wood destined to be used in chairs is treated with coal oil. That brought us back to the subject of chairs, and Dad Blurton told of the chairs he had tailored for large people, invalids, and folks who just liked chairs of their own. He would measure the point at which a person's back touched the chair and start the bend of the chair back at that point. Then he would carefully measure the distance from the person's knee joint to the floor and from the knee back to the bend of the hips, to get the chair seat the right depth and height. Then he would measure the sitting width, and the point where the person's head rested on the chair back to get the seat wide enough and the back sufficiently high.

When he assembled the chair, he would use bone dry rounds and half cured posts, using neither glue nor nails. When the posts dried out, they would shrink and hold the rounds for a life time.

"I had to charge like everything for those chairs," says Dad Blurton, "Sometimes as much as $12.50!"

With chairs on everybody's mind, I resumed my complaint about Kerwin and Lena's chair. But every Blurton was suddenly very busy with sledges, axes, and other noise making tools. Perhaps Lena should write a letter to Santa Claus. I'm getting nowhere with the Blurtons.

among them were some fifty volumes which were recently proved to be the most fabulous forgeries of modern times. They were "authenticated" by the late Sir Edmund Gosse, one of England's most eminent critics and printed with such skillful dupery that only a generation after their forging was their spuriousness tracked down. The Wrenn collection, now the property of the University of Texas, has ironically the unique distinction of being the only one in existence which includes all of the forged volumes.

At the Chicago Historical Society there is now on exhibit a group of costumes worn by Chicagoans when they were presented at court.

A few of the guests at the private opening of the exhibit themselves remembered their hours of coaching for the unwonted social gesture of the court curtsy, the endless fittings and fussings about the regulation head dress of three white ostrich plumes and veil and the presentation gown with its specified long separate train, the hours and hours of waiting in cabs [nibbling a sandwich to keep up one's strength and courage but not daring to rest the beplumed head against the cushions] and the so-soon-over climactic moment.

The preview of the exhibit of court presentation gowns at the Chicago Historical Society was an extra bouquet at the tea which the president and trustees gave to meet the new director of the society, Paul M. Angle. The president, Edward A. Cudahy, received not only words of congratulation over securing the services of the distinguished new director but heartfelt good wishes over the newest romance in the family. The engagement of Mrs. Cudahy's daughter, Nancy Cochran, and Mr. Cudahy's son, Edward Jr., had been announced the previous day. They have been friends since childhood, their summers on Mackinac Island working its romantic spell.

No preview of an art exhibit for many years has created such interest among old Chicago society as the "varnishing day" of the work of Anne Harvey at the Albert Roullier galleries. To it Miss Alice Roullier invited the friends of the young artist's parents and grandparents and half of old Chicago society accepted. The brilliant young artist who had her first American showing in the town in which she was born is the daughter of the Harry Harveys, who, before they went to New York and later to Europe to live, were one of Chicago's most popular couples. Harry Harvey was an amateur singer of professional quality and one of John Alden Carpenter's closest friends. Mrs. Harvey was one of the popular "Dudley girls." They used to say in those days that everyone had his or her favorite Dudley.

Dr. Emilius C. Dudley and his delicate little, steel-strong wife were one generation's favorites. Their daughters, Dorothy [Mrs. Harvey], Caroline [now Mrs. Joseph-Delteil—her husband a famous French writer] and Katherine, a greatly gifted artist, were the three members of the next generation.

After Dr. Dudley's death Mrs. Dudley and Katherine and Caroline Dudley went to France to live. Caroline Dudley, incidentally, organized and trained the first American Negro revue ever shown in Paris and took that city by storm. Her prima donna, Josephine Baker, became and remained the toast of Paris. Mrs. Dudley died some years before the war but both Mrs. Delteil and Katherine Dudley have lived in France thru the German occupation.

The Harveys came back to America when the war broke out. Anne Harvey, now 27, has had a unique training in art. Since she began painting as a child of 12 she has known intimately, thru her aunt, the greatest of modern artists. Eight of the 20 drawings and paintings in the exhibit have become additions to famous private collections in Chicago.

On Tuesday afternoon Mrs. Walter Brewster, president of the Chicago chapter of France Forever, gave a small cocktail party in honor of Helen Kirkpatrick who has just returned from Europe. Miss Kirkpatrick recently spoke before the Council on Foreign Relations and before the Woman's Athletic club.

She will be one of the guests at the dinner which Mrs. Brewster as head of France Forever and Mrs. Walter Kirk and Louis H. G. Bouscaren as co-chairmen of Chicago's branch of American Relief for France are arranging for Nov. 29 at the Casino in honor of the French ambassador, Henri Bonnet, and his charming and chic Greek-born wife. It will be the first joint social event of these two very popular groups.

Harry Channon was famed as a wit even as a child. At a dinner party which his mother gave for a visiting French literary figure when he was still in his teens, young Harry was brought in to meet the guests. The guest of honor said to the boy "And are you an only child?" The boy's instantaneous response was, so the imperishable story goes, "Oui, Monsieur. Edition de luxe."

Some wag may have had himself a time at the Arts club on Tuesday, or the crowded state of the men's dressing room may have been responsible for a definite sign that the war is over. Upstairs at one luncheon table, taking an hour away from her indefatigable work with the woman's committee of the Victory loan was Mrs. Thomas Connors beaming with maternal pride over her son in his sailor suit, looking, incidentally, like anybody's dream of a gob. At a near-by table was Adm. Ralston Holmes lunching with Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Woodward who has just piloted the amazingly successful drive to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the founding of the Chicago Lying-In hospital. Instead of the $100,000 which was their goal, the committee raised $380,432! While the navy was lunching upstairs a guest who went to get his own hat rushed out in glee to summon every one to the vision which had met his eye. Gaily riding atop the admiral's handsome gold encrusted chapeau was the little round sailor hat.

women's advisory committee to the war man power commission.

Presiding at the 25th convention will be Mrs. Charles B. Gilbert of Norwich, Conn., who was elected president at the curtailed meeting held last September in Chicago. Mrs. Gilbert held numerous state and national offices in the auxiliary previous to the presidency, and she also is an active member of the D. A. R. Her membership in the auxiliary stems from her husband, who was a submarine fighter in the first World war and who has been a prominent figure since in the Legion. The Gilberts have two sons who served in this war.

A presidential term in the auxiliary is limited to one year. There are no indications of a contest in the election this year. The probability is that Mrs. Walter Craven of North Carolina, who is serving now as national chairman of the auxiliary's child welfare program, will follow Mrs. Gilbert in office. The delegates will vote just prior to adjournment on Wednesday, and the newly elected officers will be installed by Mrs. Alfred J. Mathebat of California, a past president.

Directing preparations for the meeting here as chairman of the 1945 convention committee is Mrs. Melville Mucklestone of this city. Mrs. Mucklestone has figured prominently in previous conventions in Chicago. She was state department president at the first meeting here in 1933, and in that office acted as the official hostess. She was the convention chairman who managed the 1939 meeting, the largest in the history of the auxiliary. Mrs. Mucklestone is a past national president, having been elected at the 1936 convention held in Cleveland, O. She has had extensive business experience and has been prominently identified with civic welfare programs and movements. Governor Green recently appointed her to the board of advisors of the state reformatory for women. Her husband is a Chicago attorney, who served as lieutenant in the air force in the first World war.

Auxiliary delegates will meet with the Legion at the opening of its convention next Sunday afternoon in the Coliseum. There will be a pre-convention meeting of the national executive committee at 10 o'clock Saturday morning and a convention committee meeting that afternoon in the Stevens.

Appointed to committee chairmanships by Mrs. Gilbert are: Mrs. Ethel M. Flynn of California, credentials; Mrs. Edward D. Stoops of Minnesota, permanent organization; Mrs. John A. Lakeman Jr. of Massachusetts, resolutions; Mrs. Inez Peck Kashman of Connecticut, rules.

Mrs. Gilbert's daughter, Helen, will serve as vice chairman of pages, assisting the chairman, Mrs. Richard Piney of Massachusetts. The chairman of the distinguished guests committee will be Mrs. Robert Lincoln Hoyal of Arizona, with Mrs. Ralph C. Webber, a member of the national executive committee, assisting as local chairman.

Mrs. John Shimkus, Illinois department president, will be the official hostess.

SILHOUETTE SENSATION

Blonde wool and brunette nutria, draped into a widely extended silhouette by a celebrity designer, make one of the most notable suits of the oncoming winter. Suede surfaced wool in a putty tone of the winter blonde group blends exquisitely with the hazy subtleties of nutria. Slim skirt of the wool.

Alliance Will Celebrate Its 22d Birthday

The Alliance of Business and Professional Women of Chicago will gather a large number of friends tomorrow evening in the Florentine room of the Congress hotel to share in the celebration when its president, Mrs. Hazel R. Ferguson, lights the 22 candles atop a mammoth birthday cake. The anniversary dinner is set for 6:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Hazel Ferguson

Seated at the speakers' table will be past presidents of the alliance. With them will be a number of distinguished guests, all women of outstanding achievement in their various fields—Mrs. William E. Ragland, the internationally known Edith Mason of grand opera; Miss Harriet Vittum, head resident of the Northwestern university settlement; Dr. Bertha Van Hoosen, one of Chicago's pioneer women physicians; Mrs. Jennie Purvin and Mrs. Charles S. Clark, civic leaders prominently identified with women's organizations; Mrs. Bertha Baur and Mrs. Elizabeth Conkey, leaders in women's political action.

Anniversaries inviting reminiscences, the alliance's birthday party is assured its full measure of pleasant memories, but so forward looking a group must make of the evening also an occasion for discussion of immediate interests. Mrs. Judith W. Lowe, the principal speaker, will talk on "The World Today—The World Tomorrow."

Among the places that, at different times, have been home to Mrs. Lowe are Paris, Madrid, London, Russia, Italy, Holland, Germany, Austria. Her acquaintance of diplomatic circles here and abroad gives her a cosmopolitan background for interpretation of world events. A graduate of the University of Chicago and of Armour institute, Mrs. Lowe was one of that notable band of women who made Hull House an institution that became world famous. During her years abroad, Mrs. Lowe taught at several European colleges and universities, among them the Sorbonne in Paris.

The alliance united a notable group of women. Back in 1923, at the meeting of organization, which was held in the Cordon, it was Mrs. George W. Plummer who presided. Mrs. Plummer, a prominent figure in clubs and civic organizations, was an expert in parliamentary law. Among the founder members were Genevieve Forbes Herrick, who was then with THE TRIBUNE, and one of the best known newspaper women in the country; Pauline Palmer, the artist, and Nellie V. Walker, the sculptor; Bertha Iles, teacher of dancing, and Dora Wells, retired principal of the Lucy Flower Technical High school.

The committee for the anniversary party is headed by Mrs. Anne L. Landry.

Another business group meeting this week is the Credit Women's Club of Chicago, whose members will have dinner Tuesday evening at Huyler's restaurant at 308 S. Michigan av. They will hear a talk by Ralph A. Colorado, foreign service director with a publishing company, on the "South American Viewpoint."

The Chicago Filing association will hold an opening meeting that evening in the rooms of the Chicago Ethical society at 203 N. Wabash av.

Chicago Junior Ort Will Meet This Afternoon

Chicago Junior American ORT [Organization for Rehabilitation thru Training] will meet at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the South ballroom of the Stevens hotel to hear Kermit Small in a talk on "Responsibility of the Press in a Democracy." The ORT society endeavors to make refugees useful and self-supporting thru training programs conducted in Canada, Latin America, Europe, Asia, and Africa.

School Association to Hear Talk Next Friday

Miss Sarah O'Malley, music supervisor in district 2 of the Chicago public schools, will give a talk on music appreciation at 4:15 o'clock Friday before the Chicago Public School Kindergarten Primary association. The meeting will be held in the 19th floor assembly room of the Republic building, 209 S. State st.

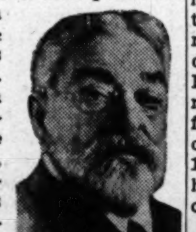
When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, November 13, 1897.

Dear Julia: We have been wondering who would be chosen president of the Pullman company and today's paper tells us that Robert T. Lincoln has been elected to the directorate, to be acting executive, but only temporarily. He has been the company's lawyer for years and knows the affairs of the corporation thoroly, so Will feels he probably will continue in office. The prestige Mr. Pullman's name gave the company was so great that his death has affected the price of the stock, which has gone down from 175 to 169. Now that Mr. Lincoln, son of the greatest president our country has ever had, is at the helm, security holders will feel better.



Robert T. Lincoln

Chicago has a warm place in its heart for Robert T. Lincoln. He has lived here a great deal of his life, save for intervals when he was in the service of his country. From 1889 to 1893 he was in London as United States ambassador, but when he returned to this country in 1893 he built the house in which he now lives on Lake Shore dr. and it seems as if he would always be a Chicago citizen. Will sees him sometimes at bar association meetings [Mr. Lincoln was a charter member of the Chicago Bar association] and says he is most cordial always. Will thinks he was one of our best representatives to Great Britain, for he did not allow himself to become pro-British in his thinking, tho he was made much of because of his great father's name. He has been criticized, especially during the strike of 1894, by those who complained that he was not enough interested in the common man.

Theodore Thomas is giving us wonderful concerts this season. The Auditorium was packed yesterday when Nordica sang with the orchestra. She had not sung here since a year ago last February and every one was curious to see if her voice had suffered as a result of her illness which has kept her idle. On the contrary, rest seems to have benefited it and she sang most beautifully.

A great treat of yesterday's program was the suite by the American composer, Edward MacDowell, played here for the first time. I was delighted with the MacDowell music, which is quite new and original. Just as Dvorak took the Negro spirituals as his inspiration in his "New World Symphony," so MacDowell has taken Indian melodies as the basis for this new suite. "The Dirge" and "In War Time" were, I thought, particularly beautiful.

Our friend, Mrs. N. S. Bouton, called this afternoon. She is rejoicing in the dedication of the new Christian Science church on Drexel blvd. near 40th st. It cost $100,000 and has been dedicated free of debt. I am always glad when a church can begin in such a comfortable way. Interest charges eat up the income and a mortgage always is a worry. "Owe no man anything" is a good rule for churches as well as for individuals.

Mrs. Bouton told us the church is an outgrowth of Mrs. Eddy's work in Chicago in 1884, when she taught a class and formed a Christian Science association here. I had not realized that this group had been so long in existence in Chicago. The organist of the new church is Frederic W. Root, son of our old friend, George F. Root, the writer of so many of our Civil war songs. Like his more famous father, Frederic W. Root is a composer and teacher. The church is fortunate to have him as its organist.

And now I must close, Your affectionate friend,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOT NOTES

Robert T. Lincoln [1843-1926] became president of the Pullman company and lived in Chicago until 1911 when he retired owing to ill health and moved to Washington, D. C. He died at his country home in Manchester, N. H. The house he built about 1893 is now numbered 1234 Lake Shore dr.

The Bryan Family

Mrs. W. T. Daum of Elmhurst tells us she found the Jean Ingelow poem from which we took the "Thread of Gold" [offered as a Poem of the Week recently] from an old volume in the Elmhurst library. "Some of the older books in our library still wear the book plates of 'Byrd's Nest'—a combination of the Byrd-Bryan-Payne family crests. Many have been removed, for souvenirs, I suppose. You can see where the book plate once was, but is no more," writes Mrs. Daum, adding: "'The Batesville Dressmaker' is precious. Is she your brain child?"

Victorian Keepsake

Many readers are buying this little red and gold book for Christmas presents. Easy to send. Easy to buy, too. Just write the Tribune Public Service Office, 1 S. Dearborn st. Price at the office, 50 cents. By mail, 55 cents.

Selection of the Week

We have decided to change the title of this corner of the column, as we often want to offer prose instead of poetry. Today we offer Franklin's "Moral Code." If you'd like this list of "moral virtues," send stamped, addressed envelope to Herma Clark, Chicago Tribune.

Jewish Council Plans Party for Mrs. Alschuler

In appreciation for 25 years of devoted service, Chicago section of the National Council of Jewish Women will give a party for Mrs. Samuel Alschuler tomorrow in the Standard club. Mrs. Alschuler is retiring from the Council camp committee. It was back in 1920 that she became associated with the group, and for the last 17 years she has been its chairman.

Mrs. Samuel Alschuler [Rayhuff-Richter Photo]

However large the gathering of council friends at Mrs. Alschuler's party, theirs can be only a small part of the affection that surrounds the occasion, for in her long period of service her wise and kindly spirit has embraced a vastly larger circle. Mrs. Alschuler's is a name known to thousands of Chicago's needy—the mothers and children of underprivileged neighborhoods who have enjoyed the warm hospitality of Council camp. The camp, a lakeside vacation spot near Wauconda, is one of the organization's largest philanthropic projects.

Thru Mrs. Alschuler's efforts, the camp facilities gradually were expanded to the present capacity. It now is possible to accommodate 150 mothers and children at each 2-week camping period during the summer. She supervised the setting up of a special nursery school for tots from 2½ to 5 years old, and it was she also who made it possible for mothers and children afflicted with cardiac disorders or diabetes to enjoy the camp.

The party planned for Mrs. Alschuler will be a luncheon and musical. It is set for 12:30 o'clock. Shirley Sorelle, a young soprano who has been studying with Rosa Raisa and Giacomo Rimini, will give the program. Miss Sorelle recently was auditioned by the Metropolitan Opera company.

Also on the council's calendar this week is a program of the national affairs class, scheduled for 1:30 o'clock Wednesday in headquarters at 185 N. Wabash av. Mrs. Samuel B. Baker, chairman, will present Howard V. Williams, who will talk on Henry Wallace's book, "Sixty Million Jobs."

The large local branch of the council is headed this season by Mrs. Charles Levin, who succeeded Mrs. William H. Sahud to the Chicago section presidency.

Another Jewish group giving attention this week to the Wallace theories of full employment is the Chicago Woman's Aid, which has invited Meyer Kestenbaum, prominent Chicago business man, to speak at a noon breakfast Friday. His subject will be, "What Price Sixty Million Jobs?" Mr. Kestenbaum is president of the Council of Social Agencies and a director of the Community and War fund. He recently was associated with the war labor board as a member of the public panel.

Earlier in the week, on Tuesday, the Aid will have Chaplain Selwyn D. Russlander, recently returned from overseas duty, as a guest speaker at a noon breakfast. Before entering the service, Rabbi Russlander was active in the Temple Youth movement.

Weekly Cruise Service Plan of Grace Line

The Grace Line program for passenger and frate service on its long established routes to Latin America has been announced by the company. It provides for:

1. Weekly service by new combination passenger and cargo liners from New York via the Panama Canal to Colombia, Ecuador, Peru, Bolivia, and Chile on the west coast of South America.

2. Two sailings per week from New York to ports of the Caribbean area and the north coast of South America. One of these weekly sailings will be made by Grace Line's new combination passenger and cargo liners. The other weekly sailing will be made by Grace Line's only surviving pre-war luxury liners, the Santa Rosa and Santa Paula.

3. Regular service by fast cargo ships from United States Atlantic coast ports other than New York to Panama and the west coast of South America.

4. Sailings every three weeks from ports of the United States Pacific coast to the west coast of Mexico, Central and South America, by new fast cargo liners.

5. Sailings every three weeks from Houston, Galveston, New Orleans, and other gulf ports via the Panama canal to the west coast of South America. This service also will be provided with new fast cargo liners.

Altho all privately owned American ships still are under requisition by the government and Grace Line routes are still being serviced with ships allocated to them by the government, the company has been able, with the coöperation of the United States maritime commission, to build a new fleet of vessels. This new fleet will consist of nine combination passenger and cargo liners now being constructed and the nine purely cargo liners already delivered, together with the Santa Rosa and Santa Paula. First deliveries of the new combination liners will be made in February, 1946, and all will be delivered by July of that year.

Discussing the Grace program, R. Ranney Adams, president of the company, said:

"Grace Line soon will be ready to give improved passenger and frate service to the public in all the countries which it has linked to the United States and to each other for so many years. Our new combination passenger and cargo liners will be fast and efficient vessels with accommodations for 52 first class passengers. In their design the emphasis has been plac[e]d on comfort and simplicity. Each stateroom will have a private bath. All cabins and public spaces will be air conditioned, first application of this comfort to the Latin American trades.

"It should be noted that these new liners will provide weekly passenger service to the west coast of South America in contrast to the fortnightly service provided before the war.

"Our new cargo liners, equipped with ample space for refrigerated cargo will provide better, faster, and more efficient service for the increased volume of trade between the United States and the Latin American countries which the post-war years are expected to bring about.

"We hope soon to be able to announce the specific dates on which these new post-war services will be available to the public."

Bridge at Clifty Falls State Park in Indiana Closed

Indianapolis, Ind. [Special]—The wooden bridge spanning Clifty creek at the Madison entrance to Clifty Falls State park has been closed, Robert F. Wirsching, parks director for the Indiana department of conservation, has announced. Wirsching said a department engineering survey group found the bridge unsafe and recommended that a new span be erected.

Plans for a concrete structure are now being drawn, he said, and work is expected to begin early next spring. Traffic must enter and leave the park from state road 7 while the bridge is closed.

Paulist Choir Plans Reunion Friday Night

The old saying that music makes all men kin is borne out by Chicago's famous Paulist choir. Numbered among the choir's "alumni" are gold coast tycoons and laborers from back of the yards—all brothers under the white surplice in Father Eugene O'Malley's harmonious musical world where a sound bass E and a smooth tenor B are the criteria for distinction. Some of Father O'Malley's choristers travel 40 miles to rehearsals.

Friday night will find the alumni gathering again with the present singers, with the board of directors, with the Choristers' association of parents and patrons in the Blackstone hotel for the 42d annual "homecoming" celebration. Father O'Malley, who has come to be an outstanding authority on medieval music, is himself an alumnus.

The party this year will take on the note of a victory celebration, for many of the former choir boys at the homecoming will be army, navy, and marine corps veterans returned from overseas. Frank Hangsterfer heads the committee for the party. Actively assisting with arrangements is Mrs. John Gavin, president of the Choristers' association.

Last December, the choir sang a $4,061,500 bond concert in Orchestra hall for the sixth war loan drive. The concert ranked third in a series given thruout the country by famous artists and organizations.

The Music Study Club of Chicago will have a Armistice day program at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the Woman's City club suite in the Fine Arts building. Charles Fries, tenor, will sing, accompanied by Edith Heffner Dobson. Mrs. Royden J. Keith, board member of the National Federation of Music clubs and former president of the Illinois federation, will speak.

Lilyan Sacks will give a program of songs for the Musarts Club of Chicago at its meeting at 1 o'clock Wednesday in the Woman's City club. Her accompanist will be Pansy Jacobs. The program has been arranged by Mrs. Robert L. Huttner. Mrs. Edward Weinstein will preside.

WAVES OFFICER WED TO ENSIGN

Mrs. Jerry B. Magruder Jr. (Marion Helm Reiley) and Ensign Magruder of the merchant marine were married recently in the North Shore Baptist church. The bride, niece of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Voris of Eastlake terr., is an ensign in the WAVES and is stationed in Washington, D. C. Ensign Magruder, son of Mrs. Elsie Magruder of N. Glenwood, is a graduate of the Merchant Marine academy in King's Point, N. Y. He has reported to New York for sea duty.

Deborah Woman's Club to Meet Next Sunday

The Deborah Woman's club will present Dr. Franz J. Polgar in a telepathy demonstration at 2 o'clock next Sunday in the Standard club. Mrs. Lester Stern is president of the organization which maintains a club for underprivileged boys at 2441 W. Division st.

Bohemian Society to Sponsor Benefit Party Wednesday

The annual card and games party sponsored by the Bohemian Women's Civic Club Juniors for the benefit of the society's philanthropic and war service fund has been set for 8 o'clock Wednesday night in the Lawndale Masonic temple, 2300 S. Millard av. Mrs. William E. Zib, immediate past president of the club, has been named general chairman for the party, and is being assisted with arrangements by her committee co-chairmen, and by the current club president, Miss Julia Cibulka.

The Bohemian Woman's Civic club will meet tomorrow at 1:30 o'clock in the La Salle hotel to hear Roderick Ginsberg give a talk on the atomic bomb. The program was arranged by the club's international relations department.

Willing Helpers to Hold Memorial on Wednesday

A program in tribute to the memory of Jane Neil, pioneer welfare worker for crippled children, will be held at 1 o'clock Wednesday in the Spalding school, 1628 Washington blvd., by the Willing Helpers for Crippled Children. Mrs. Otto M. Olsen will preside at the meeting, which is open to guests.

Corp. Sherman B. Lans to Wed English Girl

In a ceremony, Nov. 17, in England, Corp. Sherman B. Lans of the army medical corps, son of Mrs. Annaleah M. Lans of W. Argyle st., will take as his bride Miss Joan Selwood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. V. Selwood of Luton Bedsfordshire, England. Corp. Lans, who was awarded the bronze star, the medical combat badge, and the Presidential unit citation for his action in Europe, is studying medicine at the Shrivenham American university while awaiting shipment to the United States. Two Architects Share Show at Art Institute

By Eleanor Jewett

Again we are faced with a wealth of new shows. At the Art institute the room of Chicago art is shared by two architects whose exhibits opened last Thursday to continue to Dec. 16. Of the two it was Samuel A. Marx who said "he painted for his own amazement," a brilliant pass which we venture to think could apply to many of our modern artists, but which they hesitate to use as possibly affording the public a key to their extraordinary antics.

Mr. Marx' work cannot be classified under antics; his water colors are charming. The training that architecture gives its followers is never better realized by the layman than when the architect breaks over the formal lines of his profession and gambols in the garden of fine art. Both George Fred Keck and Mr. Marx give us in this show one of the most delightful, subtle, penetrating, and interesting exhibits the room of Chicago art has offered in months. The work is fresh and original, and beautifully executed.

Another new exhibit at the Art institute is that of original drawings in color by Kenneth Becker of historical houses in the near vicinity of Chicago. The exhibit hangs in gallery 12. There are 41 drawings in the current show which will be followed by other groups drawn from houses in Ohio, Pennsylvania, and the Virginias. Mr. Becker is very successful in his approach to this work; he has imbued each house with a personal dignity and atmosphere. It is an exhibit that should prove popular.

• • •

The ninth annual exhibition of miniature etchings and the 36th annual exhibition of larger etchings by members of the Chicago Society of Etchers opened last Monday in the Club Woman's bureau, Mandel Brothers, to continue thru Nov. 30. There are many superb large prints in the show, but we were extremely disappointed in the quality and flavor of the miniature etchings. Last year a visitor to the exhibit wrote in the guest book a criticism to the effect that the miniature etchings should be more unusual, more piquant, more popular in subject [citing baby animals, elves, etc.], and more original. The criticism is equally pertinent this year. There are a few little etchings of value, but too few. Leon Pesheret offers two of these, "Chicago" and "Wacker Drive." North Woods" by R. H. Palenske, showing a deer sniffing the branches of a pine is another. "Chickadee" by Margaret Ann Gaug, "Study of a Little Girl" by Arthur W. Heintzelman, "Young Blue Jay" by Charles E. Heil, "Chipmunk" by Henry Morris Hobbs, "La Barraca" by Ernest A. Melchert, "The Shelter" and

INCIDENT OF WAR AT SEA

Linwood C. Borum contributes this incident of war at sea to the art exhibition by merchant seamen of the allied nations to be seen at the Museum of Science and Industry thru Nov. 25. It's called "Surfacing Sub." The exhibit is sponsored by the Community and War fund.

"Woods in Winter" by Lee Sturges, "Witches Road, Mexico" by Reynold Weidenaar, and "Solitude" and "Wisconsin Farm" by James Swann suggest the quality of which the quantity could be vastly increased.

R. W. Woiceske has two stunning large etchings, "Sunlit Woods" and "Winter Interlude." This last, a magnificent picture of heavy snow on shrub and tree, is perhaps the most beautiful print in the show. "Street of the Goats, Taxco" by Reynold Weidenaar is fascinating. Another beautiful print from Mexico is the "Cuernavaca Cathedral" by Lawrence Nelson Wilbur. An entertaining print is "Boy Trouble" by Mildred Brooks, in which a treehouse and a host of boys bring the "Old Woman Who Lived in a Shoe" to life. "Annabelle and Tessie" by Heintzelman is still another charming print in the larger category.

Neither James Swann nor Ernest Melchert, president of the society, agrees that this exhibit is less good than those of previous years. We contend it is neither as original nor as exciting as former shows. If it were possible to conduct a postcard ballot it might be interesting to know with whom the public will side. The etcher-lover is a difficult man to persuade.

By the way, a stunning western print by R. H. Palenske, "Over the Pass," is the gift print this year to the associate members of the Chicago Society of Etchers. Cowboy and horses stand out against a background of steep mountains white with snow; Mr. Palenske has done many stirring western pictures but none, it seems to us, finer than this.

The Chicago Galleries association, 215 N. Michigan av., opened yesterday an exhibit of paintings by Joseph M. O'Malley, Roy C. Keister, and Richard A. Chase, to continue thru Nov. 30.

The Renaissance Society of the University of Chicago presents an exhibit of Coptic textiles and paintings by Marsden Hartley and Max Weber this evening in 108 Goodspeed hall, 1010 E. 59th st., to continue thru Dec. 6.

Fashions

Foundation garments for the slim of figure who wear a girdle because it gives them a slick, well groomed feeling and not because they need it, will have no more trouble choosing one suitable to their comfort and requirements. There is a variety of styles in these junior average figure models to suit individual tastes.

Ideal for the devotees of the bare leg fad is the rayon lastex pantie girdle, at left. This scantie also helps preserve a smooth line when worn under slacks.

The step-in girdle, right, has many interesting features. The rayon satin front panel has two gussets of elasticized mesh, the same mesh on each side, and a rayon lastex back. A curved band across the back at top fits into the small of the back and thus prevents wrinkling. Once again we find adequate elastic garter support. The manufacturers of this model have attached a card on which is an illustrated series of steps to be taken showing the proper method of putting on the garment.

The pink net bra illustrated on the figure at right has elastic across the back and bands of elastic on the adjustable shoulder straps.

Tricks Make Small Rooms Seem Larger

By Edith Weigle

One of the most frequently recurring problems that city apartment dwellers have to face is that of making small, cramped quarters seem larger and brighter. The question naturally arises: How is it possible to make tiny rooms seem anything but cluttered? Are there decorating tricks to increase their apparent size and to give them a really attractive appearance?

Yes, there are a number of simple ways of solving this puzzle. First of all, the obvious points to remember are to dispense with as many little objects, knickknacks, and objets d'art as possible. Also, use a few well chosen tables rather than a number of small ones. This applies to lamps, as well.

Next, decide on your color scheme, and keep to two or three hues. Let two predominate, and the third be an accent.

Keep the walls and ceiling light. Suggested colors are: Pale gray, light pinky beige, light gray-green, light blue-green, light yellow, light soft blue, pale mauve. If possible have the woodwork and the walls exactly the same color.

If you feel you must have wallpaper, choose a design having a pastel ground and use it on one wall only. Then repeat the background tone on the other walls.

A strongly colored ceiling will give the illusion of coming down into the room and of making the walls seem lower, so keep to a plain white into which has been mixed just a tint of the side wall color.

One very small bedroom we saw recently utilized the clever trick of having the same color on lower walls and floor. Thus, the soft light green rug which completely covered the floor from wall to wall was echoed in the light green of the dado, which was painted. Above this dado was a variegated pink and white striped wallpaper. And there were no other colors in the room except the dark mahogany of the furniture.

Another example of how to make a small space seem larger was seen in a bedroom furnished in American maple. Here the trick was done by using a textured rug which was exactly the same tone of brown as the furniture. The walls were done in a delicate green with matching woodwork.

Of course, in a small special-purpose room such as a cocktail bar, or a powder room, or breakfast room, or entrance hall all the rules can be broken and you can use dizzy paper on the walls, or gay, bright, strongly hued paint, and boldly figured draperies or upholstery.

That Holiday Bird Deserves Right Cookery

By Mary Meade

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

This will be the first turkey Thanksgiving in several years for many families, and in not a few homes there'll be an ex-soldier, sailor, or marine to help enjoy the feast. That will be cause for real thanksgiving in these families.

A turkey is an important and imposing bird, and needs to be roasted with care. The actual roasting is a simple matter, but there are a few rules to be observed. We want that breast meat tender and juicy, not dry and stringy. We want the turkey roasted to the exact degree of doneness which permits the man of the house to carve thin, neat slices.

How long do you cook a turkey?

The time may be three hours, or it may be six hours, depending on the weight of the turkey and the oven temperature.

If your turkey weighs between 8 and 10 pounds market dressed [head and feet on, feathers removed, not drawn], roast it at 325 degrees for 3 to 3½ hours.

If your turkey weighs up to 14 pounds, roast at the same temperature for 3½ to 4 hours.

A turkey weighing 14 to 18 pounds market dressed should be roasted at 300 degrees for 4 to 4½ hours.

An 18 pounder takes 4½ to 5 hours at 300 degrees.

A 20 pounder requires 5 to 6 hours at 300 degrees.

If you buy your bird fully drawn and ready for the oven, time will be slightly longer to compensate for the stuffing. The stuffing just about compensates for the weight of head, feet, and entrails after their removal from a market dressed turkey.

There are several ways to test for doneness. One is to grasp a drumstick and move it up and down. If it moves easily, the turkey is done. Or you can insert your meat thermometer into the center of the inside thigh muscle. When it registers 190 degrees, the meat is properly cooked.

I believe that most homemakers now follow the modern roasting method which produces juicy meated, golden brown turkey of incomparable flavor. The rules are simple. Place the turkey on a rack in an open roaster, keep the breast well greased, the temperature low, and otherwise leave the turkey alone. No water is wanted in the roasting pan.

To keep the breast from drying out is the chief concern during roasting. A V-shaped rack which holds the turkey breast down is excellent protection, for the cooking juices and fat keep the breast moist and the skin uncracked. If the turkey is roasted breast up, some cooks keep the breast covered with a piece of butter soaked cheesecloth to protect it. The skin browns nicely under the cloth. Half-hour bastings with butter usually accomplish the same purpose.

A word about that turkey stuffing. Here's the place to splurge on butter or margarine, if you possibly can. But keep the dressing light textured, not heavy or soggy, if you have any respect for the digestive systems of your guests. It isn't necessary to add any moisture at all in many cases, as the stuffing absorbs the juices of the turkey. If moisture is added, it should be a small amount of broth left from cooking the giblets, or milk, or oyster liquor if there are oysters in the stuffing. Once in a while the fancier touch of white wine may be used as a moistener.

Always leave room for the stuffing to expand during roasting.

Here's an excellent, simple, digestible stuffing.

Parsley and Celery Turkey Stuffing
[14 pound bird]

- ¾ cup butter or margarine, melted
- ½ cup minced onion
- ½ cup minced parsley
- 1 cup finely cut celery
- 1 tablespoon salt
- ½ teaspoon pepper
- 1 teaspoon poultry seasoning
- 2 beaten eggs
- 3 quarts soft bread crumbs

Cook onion a few minutes in the butter, add parsley, and cook ½ minute. Then combine ingredients, tossing lightly, and fill turkey. If desired, a small amount of broth, milk, or white wine may be used as moistener, but none is really necessary.

Watercress is excellent in turkey stuffing. Chop it coarsely and add up to a cupful to any of the simpler stuffing recipes.

Turkey carving is an art and has much to do with the attractiveness of the turkey when served. My department has an illustrated book, "Easy Lessons in Carving," which shows in easily followed, step by step procedure, just how to carve the big bird. Pictured methods for carving meats are included, too, and directions for sharpening that carving knife properly. The booklet is 7 cents by mail. For your copy, write Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

Festive Glitter Accents Short Dinner Styles

By Rea Seeger

Each American designer interprets the short dinner suit or dress in a manner peculiarly his own and, of course, to suit the women who wear them. These costumes must be definitely different from day time clothes, even tho the silhouette, the combinations of skirt and jacket or skirt with blouse top, are pretty much the same. The difference is, of course, in the festive flash of beads, sequins, bugle beads, or paillettes worked in blazing decorative motifs.

Nearly every midseason collection stresses the dark exterior, the slim sleek silhouette, and under this deceptive exterior all the glitter and brilliance imaginable. Consequently, the newest costumes are more than calmly eye catching. They have all the dramatic lure of a regulation evening gown, the handwork and evidence of a master designer making the most of little material, the simple details of a little one piece dress or a street suit combined with the gala details of glitter and sheen. Small wonder these still popular short length costumes are the special delight of the shoppers.

Adaptations of Molyneux originals are suave examples of simplicity of line contrasted with bands and motifs of jet black sequins worked in intricate patterns to make the most of the yoke line, shoulders, lapels, and such minute details as the simulated flaps of pockets on both skirt or jacket. Entire blouse tops of striking white crepe are enlivened with sequined dots. Otherwise simple one piece dresses have sleeveless bodice tops covered in an all-over pattern of white sequins that catch every light. Both dinner suits and dinner dresses as designed by Molyneux have this festive glitter, but under smooth control.

American designers, among them our well known Chicago designers, not only present costumes of crepe but of fine soft wool liberally alight with sequins and fanciful embroidery. The Eisenberg originals are stunning examples of such superlative artistry. Both brown and black suits flaunt the light catching sequin or paillette embroidered bands across the chest, the sleeves, or in an all-over pattern on many jackets.

Many of the Eisenberg one piece dresses of clinging crepe have the contrast of dusky gold sequins or the bronze beauty of beads and paillettes. Others have realistic penny size dots attached in an all-over design on both bodice and skirt. Many dresses have the wide sleeves, but there are plenty of short, straight sleeves and also enough long sleeves to please all.

Two piece suits consist of slightly flared skirt and smart fitted jacket, with the jacket boasting the bead and sequin handwork. These two pieces can be worn with a blouse of satin, chiffon, lace, or net; a blouse of unusual colored soft wool, or as a dress suit with the neck line filled with the crushed elegance of a velvet or satin ascot.

Sketched are four examples of the bright new flash to short dinner or informal evening suits and dresses. All are available in a superb collection of such high fashion clothes in a Chicago store. For further information call Superior 0200.

FLASH! Complexions Can Now Be Bleached Into Younger Looking, More Radiant Beauty by Mercolized Wax Cream

THE thin outer layer of skin called the scarf skin has less blood nourishment and circulation. It is the oldest of skin layers, and becomes dull, drab, harshened, freckled and browned by wind, soot-laden air and sun. It thus covers up the natural baby-pink skin beauty underneath. But the lovely bleaching action of MERCOLIZED WAX CREAM on this skin surface is a delightful surprise. New skin beauty results with a soft glowing freshness and radiance that can be the envy of everyone. Thousands of women have used MERCOLIZED WAX CREAM for years. Thousands of others will THRILL at discovering what it may do for them. Use only as directed.

PHELACTINE DEPILATORY—REMOVES FACIAL HAIR. Here is a clean, easy way to take ugly superfluous hair off the face in a few minutes. It extracts a portion of hair embedded under the skin along with the surface hair. Not a cream or powder. Has no unpleasant odor. Clear your face of superfluous hair with Phelactine Depilatory.

OILY SKIN—Helped by SAXOLITE ASTRINGENT—It is easy to help oily skin look fresher and better with the invaluable aid of Saxolite Astringent. Just dissolve Saxolite in one-half pint witch hazel and pat it on the skin several times a day. It subdues excess surface oil, tightens skin surface by temporary contraction, and leaves the skin feeling delightfully refreshed.

Lady of the House

If your mighty Nimrod is home from the uplands, the flats, and the marshes, no doubt you, too, are on the still hunt for those favorite recipes for roast pheasant, grouse, prairie chicken, reed birds, quail, canvas back, mallard, wild goose—or just coot.

A not-too-old cookbook says to enjoy a reed bird dinner thoroly one must mingle with the gunners on the Delaware as a guest or member of one of the many clubs whose houses are situated within a few hundred yards of the hunting grounds. "After the judges' decision as to who has high boat, the birds are plucked [and at some of the clubs drawn], arranged neatly in a dripping pan with bits of fresh country butter between them. They are allowed to cook on one side a few minutes and, with a long handled spoon, are turned over to brown on the other side. A little salt is added and they are placed on a platter en pyramide and the gravy poured over them; they are then sent to the table with fried chipped potatoes."

On "ladies' day" the men were more particular than on "member" day. Then they prepared the birds by drawing, and removing the head; large sweet or Irish potatoes, cut in two, inside scooped out, an oyster or small piece of bacon put inside each bird, and the birds put inside the potatoes, tied up with twine, and baked until all was done. This was called "Reed Birds a la Lindenthorpe," and for a dainty touch for the ladies the twine was removed and a piece of narrow white or colored tape was tied in a neat bow and the birds sent to the table on a napkin.

Perhaps you'll be roasting your wild fowl, or domestic bird, all wrapped up in some of the new aluminum foil promised us very soon, altho it is primarily designed for wrapping foods in pantry and refrigerator. Being lightproof it will keep in vitamins, moisture, flavor, and color, and keep out odors and other taints. It also has been tested for use in the bottom of broiler pan [saves scraping], wrapping vegetables for cooking in water, potatoes for baking, meats for roasting, food for lunches and picnics.

I recall an earlier paper cookery fad, when we lined perforated roasters with parchment, baked fish in parchment, tied things in paper bags for boiling, baking, and steaming. Fads come and go.

All That I Have Met

"I am a part of all that I have met"—
  Thus said Ulysses to the boundless sea.
And now I find that in some subtle way
  All that I have met becomes a part of me.

As silent as the coming of the dawn,
  As vivid as the sky at eventide,
A vagrant thought recalls to pensive mind
  The memories of things once put aside.

Beyond my windows all is drear and gray;
  I stand there looking out upon the rain;
But deep within my heart once more I see
  A sun drenched prairie field of ripening grain.

I feast my eyes upon the joyous sight
  Of flowers blooming everywhere—and lo!
Immortalized in wells of memory
  The crocus thrusts its face above the snow.

I watch the moon move slowly thru the sky
  Above the shifting shadows of the dune,
But see deep etched upon my memory
  Above a crystal lake the self-same moon.

To no man is denied the right to dream
  And muse upon the things that once have been.
That man is happy who, at will, recalls
  The beauty of the things that he has seen.

Let me look toward the future without fear,
  As I look toward the past without regret.
Let each new thing become a part of me
  As I am part of all that I have met.

Last Year's Nests

Above a sidewalk where I pass
  There hangs a last year's nest;
Forlorn, forsaken, to and fro
  It heeds the wind's behest.

I often follow with my thought
  The birds so far away,
The birds who once as nestlings filled
  The home with chirpings gay.

The turtle bears away his house,
  The snail keeps close at home;
'Tis wings that set the wearer free,
  That give him leave to roam.

A parable I sought to find,
  But smiled, and felt it wrong;
Why should not those who stay at home
  At times burst out in song?

Many a mere man of the house will applaud A. J. Potteiger, who wrote these words [and music] for a feature on his wife's club program, "Melody of Life"—

The lady of the house is always bright and gay
  When she spends an afternoon at club.
But let me tell you, sister, she only seems that way
  Because she has escaped the laundry tub;
And except when she's away at play
  This is the way she spends the day—
Scrub the floors and clean the house,
Wash and iron and catch a mouse,
Darn the socks and press the pants [pause]
Today I was invaded by red ants.
  [Slower]
Up at every dawning, fixing things to eat,
Spend the whole day yawning, always short on sleep.
Because I sing tonight my man
Eats his dinner from a can.
When it's beans, he raves and rants—
Today I was invaded by red ants.

Fashions and Fancy

By Judith Cass

The provocative little question mark of a hat that Mrs. Ferre C. Watkins wore to a recent luncheon meeting of the Chicago branch of the English-Speaking Union actually had started life as a Hawaiian lei. Mrs. Watkins had owned the lei of blue-green peacock feathers from Hawaii, her home before her marriage, for some time, and, thinking the little used object too striking to be relegated to a dark drawer, she had it taken apart and made into a saucy little bonnet to wear atop her upswept coiffure. The sleek black crepe dress and silver fox jacket which the resulting chapeau complemented were Mrs. Watkins' "city clothes," as she was in town for the day from Highland Park, where she and her husband spent the summer months. The Watkinses are moving into the Ambassador the middle of this month. Maggie Teyte, the Irish opera singer whose records are cherished by many music lovers present in the audience that day, was a special guest at the luncheon. However, as she was passing thru town, her crowded schedule allowed her time only for the briefest of introductions before she had to dash on, without luncheon. Wearing a brown fur coat with ascot scarf over a simple black dress, and a little helmet of black coq feathers and black jet beads, she stopped by Mrs. Frederic W. Upham's table for a moment to say good-by to the luncheon hostess. Mrs. Upham's black hat, worn with a distinguished black gown, was crowned with wide loops of pale blue and cherry colored velvet ribbon.

Among others who got a view of the speaker from Mrs. Upham's table were Mrs. William B. Greenlee, in black satin and pearls, and Mrs. Francis Stanley Rickcords, in a black town suit and blouse of putty crepe, its collar edged in self-pleating. A little black hat with a crest of black feathers was tilted over Mrs. Rickcords' shining silver curls—an outstanding example of the contention that gray hair can be both becoming and youthful. The reverse of the gray and black motif was illustrated by Mrs. Thomas I. Underwood, seated at the speaker's table in a tailored gray suit with black accessories, and a little black calot dotted with jet polka-dots. The chic fur coat that Mrs. Arthur Wirtz removed as she slipped into her place at the luncheon table was a short belted one of black broadtail, with a wide band of sable around the hem.

A beautiful old jeweled flower basket with a history of sentiment is worn in a modern setting by Mrs. Kendall I. Lingle. It was a wedding present from her husband's father, Bowman C. Lingle, to his late wife, and when Mr. Lingle handed it on to his daughter-in-law recently she immediately purchased two of the gold circular chokers so popular just now and hooked the flower basket to one of them, like a pendant. The jewelry was distinctive with the sleek, short sleeved black frock which Mrs. Lingle, but lately out of a hospital, wore to welcome a few close friends at the cocktail hour the other day. The younger Mr. Lingle came to Chicago from his work at Purdue university. They expect to go to Charleston, W. Va., her parents' home, for the Christmas holidays. Among the Lingles' guests who both admired and enjoyed a huge baked ham which provided substantial hors' d'oeuvre nourishment, as well as the sweeping panorama from the senior Mr. Lingle's apartment on top of the Ambassador East, was Mrs. Frank Sims. With a suit of vivid scarlet she wore black accessories, including a satin blouse which tied in a soft bow under the chin.

Thru the Looking Glass

Not all of us have been endowed with hair of outstandingly beautiful color or texture, but we can make the most of what we have to work with. Healthy hair can be lovely, regardless of color, and even the most hopelessly drab looking tresses can be given new luster and flashing glints of light thru consistent care.

If you think all the talk about using a hair brush regularly and with gusto is a lot of fluff, and have been content to give your hair only enough strokes to get the snarls out of it, let a month of concentrated care show you how wrong you can be.

There isn't any head of hair that wouldn't be improved by a hundred or more hearty strokes per day with a hair brush. The young girls know this, and their lustrous, shining locks give eloquent testimony to the rightness of their methods. But older women who really need the flattery of pretty hair are somewhat loathe to agree it's as simple as that and won't even try it.

Get your hair brush out and really use it. Brush the hair until each strand practically stands out as an individual. Bend over from the waist and give your hanging head a thoro going over from forehead to nape and side to side. Feel your scalp tingle with accelerated circulation and the hair become elastic and alive. Straighten up and continue brushing, polishing each strand to a new shininess. It will take about five minutes and all of us can find that much time before retiring at night.

Even one such treatment will show an improvement and the hair will possess a sheen and highlights you didn't think possible. Given this kind of treatment day in and day out, the tresses become a real beauty asset. Whether the hair is gray, undecided brown, nondescript blonde, or what have you, brushing will heighten the natural coloring and give it life and sparkle.

The coloring and styling of the hair are not nearly as important as sheen and gleaming luster, and the best way to acquire these qualities is thru regular use of a hair brush. Keep the hair young and shining looking, and, regardless of color, it will make a becoming background for the face and help you look younger than your years.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	2 hearts	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Four of clubs.

That it is not good business to deposit money in a bank that is about to close, is a generally accepted truth. I say generally accepted because there are some card players who apparently do not subscribe to that view. The West of today's hand was one such player.

The bidding was along orthodox lines. It will be noted that a contract of four hearts could have been fulfilled against any defense, but it was somewhat difficult to reach. South had not sufficient trump support to raise that suit at once and North feared to bid again lest his partner might expect more from him. Furthermore, with his balanced hand it appeared that it would be easier to play for nine tricks rather than 10.

The four of clubs was opened and East played the king. He was permitted to hold the trick and continued with the 10. This, too, declarer ducked and it held. The third round of the suit was taken by the ace and the hearts were then run. With the club suit established against him declarer's one hope was that the ace of spades was with East. The 10 of spades was therefore led and since East was unable to return his partner's suit declarer scored 10 tricks.

West had erred very definitely. At the second trick when East returned the 10 of clubs and declarer followed with the nine, it became quite evident that the club suit could be established in another lead. But what earthly good would it do to store up club tricks when West knew that the doors to his hand were permanently closed? Nothing short of an act of magic would enable him ever to obtain the lead to cash the club tricks. Some other suit must be found in which to take tricks if the contract were to be defeated. Obviously the only suit that offered any kind of hope was diamonds. West should therefore have overtaken the 10 of clubs with the jack for the purpose of abandoning the suit. A shift to the 10 of diamonds would have built up two tricks in that suit for his partner while he still retained the ace of spades for entry.

It rarely pays to plug away at hopeless suits when it is evident that declarer will soon have enough running tricks to fulfill contract.

A Friend in Need . . . . . .

By Sally Joy Brown

[If you are in need, perhaps I can help you. If you have household articles or clothing you no longer need, please let me place them with needy families. Address correspondence to Sally Joy Brown, Chicago Tribune, Chicago. Activities of this department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

We are hopeful of locating an automobile for an agency working for the welfare of neglected and dependent children thruout this state, and unable, because of budget limitations, to purchase one at this time. Perhaps one of our readers has an extra car harbored in a garage, idle much of the time, which could be put to better use by this agency.

Exclusive of the children cared for by the agency in Cook county, there are nearly 700 thruout rural and small town districts for whom it assumes responsibility. They come from homes broken by death and desertion; many are babies of unmarried mothers; others have suffered abuse and neglect at the hands of calloused, irresponsible parents. But whatever the reason for their dependency, foster homes are found for them by staff workers, where they may be assured security and understanding and a new start amid congenial surroundings.

A case worker may be responsible for three or four counties, in which as many as 50 children are under her supervision, many living on farms. It is up to her to make a careful study of the child and his background in order to determine what sort of home he needs, and an equally careful study of the home in order to learn what it has to offer.

She takes the children to their new homes and checks periodically on their adjustment, growth, and development, not only at the foster home, but at school, thru principal and school nurse. She confers with the local physician regarding their medical needs and brings them into Chicago's clinics and hospitals when ill health so indicates. For problems arise with youngsters in foster homes as with youngsters in their own homes, and often they can be smoothed out by the case worker, who must make her calls in all weathers.

Workers cover as much ground as time and facilities permit, but there are about eight counties in northern Illinois uncovered at present because of the lack of a much needed car. Two workers in that district could make their round of calls, supervising the health and care of 70 to 80 dependent children, if one were provided. The name and address of the agency will be supplied upon request.

Child's Fear of Dark Can Be Dispelled

By Gladys Huntington Bevans

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

He was a very little boy resting on the front steps of their summer camp, and he was just recovering from a session of high fever and grippe. Suddenly his mother heard him scream and then burst into terrified crying.

She rushed out and found him shrinking back from a huge green katydid who had alighted on his blanket and was at the moment emitting a grotesque sort of croak.

"Why, darling, it's only a katydid. You know the funny sound they make every night."

His mother was momentarily puzzled, because her child loved everything outdoors.

"B-but I never saw one before. See how he stares at me."

The little boy's mother leaned over, and then she saw the really strange looking insect with the eyes of her child. He did seem to stare. And looking at the flushed young face and using her imagination she was able to realize that when you are weak and your nerves unstable even a familiar object may take on a fearsome aspect, while a strange thing making a harsh sudden sound easily might inspire fear.

So it happens quite often when children are little. Quite often they experience fears that we may be able to penetrate but which, on the contrary and in spite of our efforts, may remain incomprehensible.

A similar incident is the following one about a little child of 4:

Until he saw it, just as the light was being snapped off and mother was saying good-night and shutting the door, he had been a quiet, normal, sensible boy with none of those troublesome fears of the dark that bother so many children. But the moment he caught sight of the harmless little spider, crawling aimlessly along the wall, his very personality seemed to change instantly. He cried and hid his head under the covers.

"Take it away! Take it away! Don't put out the light! Don't shut the door!"

What had happened to this boy to make him so terrified of spiders? There is not always a simple answer to the question of why children have certain fears. Possibly this child had heard stories about huge spiders which ate up little boys. Possibly he had been threatened with being bitten by a spider if he disobeyed. Possibly his nurse or another adult he knew had spider-phobia—many persons have.

What can be done to help children overcome fears of this sort? Different things, of course. In this case the mother might have a talk with her son and see if, together, they can determine the "why" of his fear. She might tell him some interesting stories of the wonderful patience which it requires to build a web. She might make him a present of a children's book with attractive illustrations of Mr. Spider and his family. But there is no use whatever in scolding the child. The removal of this fear, which is very real to him, will take time, patience, and understanding.

Is your child afraid of the dark? If so, and you have not been entirely successful in curing him, try to associate the dark with something pleasant. On a starlit night, after you have put out the light, take your son to the window and sit there quietly. If possible, find the north star or the dipper. Tell him interesting stories about the heavens and impress upon him the fact that only in the dark can he see these wonders. Sit at the window, too, on a bright moonlight night and try to find your friendly stars.

You might even play a game of "hunting." "See how quickly you can find, in the dark, your brush and comb, a handkerchief, your skates, your stamp book, and your engine, and bring them to mother. I will stand at the window." After that try standing in the hall and then have him bring things to you when you are in another room. You will be surprised to see how his fear of the dark will decrease.

This clever and beautifully illustrated booklet contains original designs of prize winning dresses which were submitted in the Teen-Age group of the Sixth Annual Chicago Tribune Fashions contest. You can treat yourself to a wardrobe designed by America's prize winning stylists.

Patterns of the dresses in this book were selected to cover every season, and they possess the required amount of youthful sophistication for any occasion on which they are to be worn.

Date dresses, party dresses, school clothes, and play clothes are included in this interesting collection. For example, there is the double duty dress—an eye catcher if ever there was one. First we see it as a striking party dress for fall and winter festivities. The slim bodice is made of rich green velveteen, with a long rustling skirt of striped taffeta. Then with a deft twist of the wrist, the skirt can be removed to reveal a slim one-piece velveteen dress which is perfect for informal dates.

Descriptive material accompanying each illustration offers a variety of suggestions for substituting other materials.

In the back of the booklet are front, side, and back views of the dresses. Together with these diagrams are included the various size ranges and fabric requirements of each garment.

This booklet is for sale for 15 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 S. Dearborn st. and Tribune Tower, 435 N. Michigan av. Clotilde Pattern

A row of buttons down the side front distinguishes this clever princess line dress. Smart business girls may choose the version with the crisp Peter Pan collar and bracelet length sleeves. For more festive occasions the dress may be made with a square neck line and short sleeves. The pattern, Style No. 2531, is designed for sizes 10 to 20. Size 16 requires 4 yards of 39 inch material and ¼ yard of contrasting material to make the collar.

the fall and winter edition of The Chicago Tribune Book of Clotilde Fashions now is on sale at the Public Service office, 1 S. Dearborn St. and Tribune Tower lobby, for 15 cents. The cost is only 12 cents if the book is ordered with a pattern from the address in coupon.

Presbyterian Business Group to Hear Book Talk

Mrs. H. W. Bernhardt will review Adria L. Langley's book, "A Lion Is in the Streets," before the Business and Professional Women's club of Second Presbyterian church at 6:30 o'clock Wednesday in the church. Those who arrive early for the meeting have been urged by Miss Juanita May of the service committee to sew on surgical towels or baby gowns for Presbyterian hospital.

Miss Herma Clark to Tell Story of 'Bustles and Bangs'

Today fashion authorities agree that no designer can dictate to American women—and get away with it. And yet, in 1890, according to Miss Herma Clark, that is exactly what Worth, courtier to the carriage trade and sole fashion arbitor of the Victorian era, succeeded in doing. He decreed the end of the bustle!

Mrs. William J. Chalmers

Miss Clark, author of the "When Chicago Was Young" feature in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE, will make known her theories of "Bustles and Bangs" tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. when she appears on Chicago Fashion Industries parade of fashions series at the Museum of Science and Industry.

Miss Clark will support her views with illustrative slides. Among the bustled ladies of fashion present, pictorially speaking, of course, will be Mrs. H. O. Stone, Mrs. George W. Pullman, Mrs. Arthur Caton [later Mrs. Marshall Field], and other notables from the city's past. One of Miss Clark's exhibits in the case for the bustle is a picture of Mrs. William J. Chambers in her wedding gown standing by the portrait of her mother, Mrs. Allan Pinkerton.
